THE Dassel Anchor under the management of Sidney J. Huntley, has been enlarged to a six column quarto. Signs of prosperity or ambition.

SOME claim as an objection to sympathizing with the Boers in their struggle for liberty that they have coolie labor, which they call slavery. They should remeber that this country had slaves before it obtained its freedom from England.

THE Boers want the United States to interfere with Englands coming over there to devastate their country. The Filipinos would like for England to do the same for them, against the United States. But it is hardly supposable that either will get their wants, only as they may gain them themselves.

A NATIONAL Anti-Trust Conference is called to meet in Chicago on the birthda of Abraham Lincoln, February 12, 1900. Several prominent men of Minnesota are among those issuing the call. It is evident that something must soon be done about the trusts. It is a good plan to meet and discuss the subject. The country awaits the action of this convention.

THE Bryan visit to Minneapolis on the 10th will be the opening of the democratic campaign in Minnesota. The Democratic State Central Committee will hold a meeting. The Reform Press Association will meet, and everybody is to attend the lecture by Bryan at the exposition at 7:30 p. m, after which the banquet, at the West, by the League of Democratic clubs will be held. Other able speakers will be present. Every democrat that can should be present. The banquet tickets are $1.50. The exposition meeeting free to all.

IT is simply wonderful how people will misrepresent things. Stories have been published broad cast that "the situation is well in hand," in the Philippine Islands. That Aguinaldo dare not take his army farther north or the natives would exterminate it and him, that his followers except three women and two soldiers had deserted him; that he had gone north with the prisoners captured on the Yorktown; that his wife was dead; that she had surrendered to the United States authorities. There seems to be nothing reliable, except the long list of deaths and other casulties to soldiers coming from that far away country. The Filipinoes claim that our authorities have not kept faith with them, that promises have been made and broken. When we can't get reports any more reliable than those cited, ourselves can we think that the same people will do better with the Filipinoes.

Expansionists Rileyed.

Expansionists, so called, but in reality imperialists, are considerably riled over a prayer alleged to have been offered by Rev. W. B. Riley, of the First Baptist church, in Minneapolis. An effort was made by a petition to the deacons of the church to have the preacher "resign" but on a vote 7 favored keeping him, 3 wanted to sever his alliance with the church, while one was neutral, not voting. It was pointed out by one of the deacons that several of the petitioners influence wouldn't count for much: for instance that of a manufacturer who gives dancing parties at his house on prayer-meeting nights. These facts we glean from the Dispatch.

If Mr. Riley offered a prayer for peace he surely had a right to do so, for is it not written. "Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God." If the petitioners prefer dancing parties to prayer meeting we presume he did not offer his prayer to them, but to the Almighty Maker of heaven and earth, as was his privilege and duty.

Mr. Charles Conzet,

Dear sir, and brother: Myself and family wish you and family a merry Christmas and prosperous New Year We are all well and doing fine. We had two inches of snow fall Christmas eve, and seems like winter. You will please find 8 cts in stamps to pay postage and for one of the M. E. church calendars. The family will be glad to hear of the debt on the church being wiped out, and you have taken a good course to do it.

Yours truly,

Independence.

January 2, 1900

Happy New Year to ye editor and staff. This is the time of year when people swear off and form new resolutions, but as a rule the health of the person has something to do with it.

We have been having some very cold weather, yet it hardly seems like winter, there being no snow on the ground.

Last Friday evening, Mrs. W. W. Mills and daughter returned from Hundington, Tenn., where they have been living for the last three years Mr. Mills will come later on, bringing household goods and some stock. They will locate somewhere in our town.

The Maple Plain creamery makes butter and grinds feed; Mr. Moore having put in a feed run.

Quite a good many boys from our town who belong to the Woodman lodge went to Watertown last Friday evening to attend lodge there, and put some of the boys through as they call it.

Our old familiar friend, Dr. King, of Elk River is calling on friends in our town.

Earl Hosington was in Minneapolis one day last week attending populist meeting.

Some people want snow and some do not want any snow, but all join in saying we have had a nice winter so far.

That prayer that Rev. W. B. Riley made at the anti-imperialist meeting held in Minneapolis a short time ago, has become a crocodile in the eyes of the members of that church, and it seems a majority of them refuse to endorse the resolutions passed at a public prayer meeting by a few members of that church; the resolutions not censuring him for making the above mentioned prayer, but it seems the resolutions would not go down, and so I suppose Rev. Riley is out on bail

"By the deeds of the law shall no flesh be justified." It seems that members of the above named church did not consider Rev. Mr. Riley's prayer ecclesiastical or evangelical, and not being of the expansion kind, received no credence with them. I have always been a strong believer in sacred history, and the teachings of Christ, the prophets and apostles, and always supposed it was the duty of Christ's shepherds to preach against sin and iniquity, come in what form it may, but I fail, with one or two exceptions, to hear of the preachers of today saying anything against this American Filipino war. If bloody wars that kills the flower and strength of our country, destroys nations and fills thousands of homes with mourning. If this is righteousness and in accordance with Scripture and Christ's teachings, then I have but little conception of what is right and what is wrong and am greatly in error.

The ministry is unanimously against the saloon and the use of intoxicents as a beverage In this we agree. And do they not know that through this Filipino war has been opened trade and commerce for the sale of whiskey and beer, and hundreds of tons of Milwaukee beer is being sent to those islands. With this and the army canteen as an annex to our army there is plenty for the minister to condemn, but they are as silent as a marble monument in an Egyptian grave yard. Why? The reason is plain but we will not make mention of it here.

Gustave Theden, of St. Louis Park sugar factory is quoted as saying, if free trade is given to this country's new possessions, to ship in raw material from those islands, they, the sugar beet refineries of this country will pull up stakes, sell their plant for what they can get and go into those colonies where they can hire cheap labor, ship their products free of duty, increase their profits, and kill the new and growing beet sugar industry in this county. He says the republican congress fathered the beet sugar industry in this country by a bounty provision under the McKinley law, and now it would be very wrong for the republican congress to tear down the barristers which were put up by its protection.

But Mr. Theden must remember that politics has strange bedfellows.

FARMER of the 19 century.

Among our Exchanges.

St. Paul News: What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander; if the United States must prevent its citizens from selling bullets to England, it must also prevent them from enlisting in the Boer army. As a matter of fact the citizens are at perfect liberty to do either.

Wasecа Herald: The Globe and Broadway bank difficulties, of Boston, it seems, had a wide and disastrous effect upon financial matters in eastern cities. The National bank combine is making every possible effort to prevent further failures. This flurry shows how unwise is the party in power in giving into the hands of unscrupulous corporations the sovereign power to issue or call in the money of the country. The goverment of this country should issue and control the quantity of "money,, in circulation. It alone should be sovereign in money matters.

LeSueur Sentinel: The Advocates of bimetalism have always claimed that the single or gold standard, put the finances of the world where they would become the foot ball of the gamblers and speculators of the world. That gold would be drawn from one country to another all over the world, whenever it would pay for speculators to cause its movement. The movement has now begun from America to England. Look out for our gold reserve. Practically every dollar of gold in this country, can be taken out of it if there is a chance to speculate that way.

Going for Bondsmen.

At the annual meeting of the board of county commissioners, held yesterday, afternoon the board unamously re-elected Charles Wilkins chairman and the latter had passed around the cigars, George H. Benton addressed the board on his application to prosecut the bondsmen of all saloon keepers who violate the law by selling liquor to minors, keeping open after hours or in any other manner. The plan outlined by Mr. Benton is to smoke out the violators of the law, have them arrested and upon conviction sue their bondsmen.

In addressing the board he said he realized the stupendous nature of the task, and of the risk he was about to run, but if given the permission he said he would put the spurs to the sides of his philosophic and altruistic purpose and prosecute the violators of the law to a standstill or a finish The subject referred to the committee on ways and means and the county attorney.—Minneapolis Times

Riley's Prayer.

Editor of the Dispatch:

Do you not think that much of the critism to which the Rev. Mr. Riley, of Minneapolis, is being subjected is unfair? It seems so to me at any rate. I naturally disagree with Mr. Riley in his attitude towards the policy of the present administration. I firmly believe the victory that is not far off, will not only reflect the greatest credit upon our government, but will eventually be acknowledged the greatest blessing that could have come to the inhabatants of the Philpines. Every Sabbath in my own church, I pray for victory. Yet I must accord to every man the freedom of conviction, and of speech I claim for myself. I want no man hounded day after day because, forsooth, he prays according to his own convictions. No man shows himself to be wanting in patrotism simply because he honestly thinks the goverment is pursuing a mistaken policy. There may be as much patrotism in opposition as in support. We cannot afford to depreciate candor and sincerity even in those whose views differ radically from our own Possibly there is too little of these qualities on both sides. I have too much respect for the Baptist denomination to believe, for one moment, that Mr. Riley will be requested to resign from his pulpit charge because of the prayer he offered at an anti-expansionist meeting. It seems to me unfair and ungenerous to impugn the motives, and question the sincerity and patrotism of those who do not think or speak or pray as we do. I am not personally acquainted with Rev. Mr. Riley. I do not write in his behalf alone. I write in behalf of justice and fair play.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 29, 1899.

Senator Cockrell, the leading democratic member of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, is strongly opposed to the republican imperialistic, in reality plan for a large standing army, and intends to fight it every time it shows its head. He said on the subject: "The army establishment is provided for until July 1, 1901, and there is no necessity for legislation at this session on the subject. This gives us a year and a half to consider the matter and decide what had best be done. I am in favor of slightly increasing the artillery arm of the service, to take care of our sea coast fortifications, but I do not think there is now, or will be in the near future, any occasion for a permanent increase in the number of infantry or cavalry regiments above that which has been provided for by law for a number of years." The republicans are too shrewd to make any move towards legislation for a large standing army until after the Presidential election, but there isn't the slightest doubt that they intend doing so at next winter's session of Congress.

There is reason to believe that the Lawton fund will reach a total in the neighborhood of $50,000 by next week, when it is to be closed.

Captain Sigsbee and Chaplain Chadwick had charge of the funeral over the bodies of 150 of the crew of the battleship Maine, which were brought from Havana this week, and interred in Arlington cemetery. The ceremonies were very simple.

Neither Mr. Quay nor his friends are acting like men who are confident of landing that seat in the Senate. They are in reality alarmed because of the large number of Senators who decline to say how they will vote.

The American Protective Tariff League has done many absurd things, but all its efforts in that line have been eclipsed by a circular letter it has sent to preachers for the purpose of trying to get them to say that church collections are increased by a protective tariff. The ministers of Washington are inclined to resent this attempt to use them for political purposes. One of them-Dr. Alexander Mackay-Smith-who voiced the opinion of most of them, said: "The weather cuts more figure in church collections than any tariff measure that could be framed. I have noticed that collections frequently fall off as much as half on a rainy Sunday. The attendance at the church is the greatest thing to be considered. If the gentlemen who are sending out the circulars can prove that more people go to church under a protective tariff than under a tariff for revenue, I will be inclined to think that there is something in their contention."

Secretary Gage showed his contempt for public opinion when he ordered something like a million dollars a day-the receipts of the government for internal revenue taxes-deposited in a favored New York bank, pending distribution among other national banks, but he may find himself in hot water on account of that order, as a Senator is quoted as having said of the order: "The only satisfaction Secretary Gage vouchsafes to the country is that it is a confidential arrangement between the Treasury and the bank". That is a queer way to talk about the goverment's transactions, and I wouldn't be suprised if an effort should be made in the Senate to ask some sharp questions about it. I remember that a big noise was kicked up during Mr. Cleveland's administration because a much smaller sum of goverment money was deposited in widely scattered banks. In Jackson's time the same question was raised and the country sat down hard on the scheme."

The hearings in the case of Senator Clark, of Mont., which are to begin Jan. 6, before the senate committee on Elections, will be sensational if Senator Clark proves, as he says he will, that the whole case against him has been a conspiracy, which having failed to prevent the Montana legislature electing him Senator, turned its schemes towards the U. S. Senate, with the hope of getting him deprived of his seat. Although each witness from Montana will cost about $350, a large number have been summoned by the committee. Ex-Senator Faulkner, W. V., is Senator Clark's chief counsel.

While there has been no agreement to that effect, the general tendency of talk among democratic Senators indicates a strong desire on their part to force a test vote on some of the numerous Philippine resolutions which are now on the table, whence they can be called up at any time, in order that it may be positively known whether a majority of the Senate intend to stand by Mr. McKinley's policy of imperialism. There is also some talk of the advisability of a caucus of democrats, both Senators and Representatives, shortly after Congress resumes work, for the purpose of mapping out a party policy on all important legislation, but there is some strong opposition to this idea, from those democrats who argue that the republicans being in full control of all branches of the government, the wisest plan for the democrats is to formulate no specific policy, but to assume the role of "Br'er fox, he lay low", and content themselves with showing up republican blunders.

THROUGH THE AIR SHAFT.

By Kennett F. Harris.

SPEAKING of ideals, I am going to take a course of study in acoustics," said the flat dweller.

"I suppose so," said his friend. "It would of course be necessary in that connection. Hydrostatics might help a man out, too. Do you happen to know what you are talking about?"

"Too, too well. Several of my most cherished ideals have been shattered lately by an iconoclastic air shaft in our building, and I want to find out whether people are merely careless of the opinions of their neighbors or whether they are ignorant of the sound-conveying properties of the said shaft. It seems impossible that you should not hear what the rest of the house is saying. And yet if they do I don't understand why they are still civil to me when they meet me on the stairs or in the vestibule, or why they don't take a tumble and shut down the windows when they are talking over private matters."

"Is that what you do?"

"That is most certainly what I do. If I want to express my opinion of the piano playing on the third floor or the inconsiderate way in which the man on the floor above us kicks off his boots at midnight I go into the room opening on to the air shaft to do it. I open the windows as a further precaution and I say what I have to say in clear, sonorous, bell-like tones. If, on the other hand, I want to tell my wife that owing to the state of the market and other circumstances over which I have no control she will have to defer the purchase of that hat for another week or two, I first close both window and door."

"ITS WHAT MY WIFE SAYS."

"You are not willing that they should even suspect that you have to practice a reasonable economy," remarked the friend.

"Well," said the flat dweller, "you don't always grasp my motive. It isn't so much what I say to my wife that I care about folks hearing, it's what my wife says to me. Of course she says it in the heat of the moment, and doesn't really mean it, but people who heard her and didn't know me might suppose that she was relieving herself of her candid and unbiased opinion of my conduct and character."

"How about the ideals?" asked the friend.

"Oh, nothing particular, only things are not always what they seem, and I had been going through life taking people at face value before I went up against the shaft. There is the case of Mr. Jackson to begin with."

"If it was Mr. Jackson I feel relieved."

"Jackson lives on the third floor, and he starts for business about an hour ahead of me, so that I don't see very much of him. I never wanted to, as a matter of fact, because whenever I looked at him I seemed to realize what a vile and abject wretch I was and how little valid excuse I had for living. That isn't a comfortable feeling, you know. I don't know what it was about him in particular that made me feel that way. It was his general effect, I guess. I'm pretty certain, however, that his little side whiskers and his black gloves had a good deal to do with it. He's just the silkiest talker, too. Lays a whole lot of stre-s-s-s on his S's—and his smile is simply ineffable. Well, I was parting my hair quietly and peaceably one morning last week when I heard a door slam up above and almost immediately through the shaft came a blighting stream of anathema. I would have closed the window immediately, only I was curious to know what it was all about. Pretty soon somebody, who was feeling the same about it—a female unmistakably—said: 'What is it, Henry?'

"'Nothing,' Henry yelled back. 'I've cut half my face off—that's all.'

"'I believe you're exaggerating,' remarked the female voice.

"Then Henry broke loose again. It appeared from what he said he laid the cut to the banging of the door as an immediate cause, and that he considered that action needless and criminal, only possible of perpetration by a person of a low order of intelligence. He used some fine, vigorous, unexpurgated language in his characterization of this sort of thoughtlessness and a few lines more on the general course of human events.

"Suddenly he wanted to know if he was to be compelled to bleed to death without an effort being made to preserve him. Sticking plaster, he said, was the 'first aid' usually applied in such cases. Where was the sticking plaster? Where in thunder did the owner of the female voice keep the sticking plaster? Maledictions of several varieties on the sticking plaster and on the disgraceful lack of system prevailing in this place.

"I stepped out and called gently to my wife. When she came, and after she had listened for a moment, I asked her if she recognized the voice. No, I am not articularly curious about my neighbors, but anybody who had heard what I did would have wanted to know something of the personality of the man who could say such things. She said it was Mr. Jackson.

"I told her not to jest on such a subject as Mr. Jackson. It didn't seem right to me, and I'm not what you'd call a particularly reverential man. But she stuck to it, that it was Jackson, and I had to bet her a box of candy to keep her quiet. My own theory was that it was the cigar salesman up above us. I had heard the cigar salesman remonstrating with the janitor about the heat when the cold weather first came on, and I thought I recognized his style. However, about an hour later, I heard the street door close, and, looking out of the window, I saw Mr. Jackson. I noticed that he had a strip of black court plaster just below his neat whiskers. I smiled at him as he looked up, and he only bowed. I guess he was afraid his wound would crack open if he disturbed the natural order of his face."

"It must have been a great shock to you," murmured the friend, sympathetically.

"It was; but as I said, or as I meant to say, if I didn't say, it wasn't the worst I've got. There's a sweet, timid little thing who has been sitting on the steps outside on a strip of red carpet, with a smooth-haired, innocent-looking boy all summer. I heard her swat her little brother and then tell her mother it was because the little boy had eaten all the cold boiled cabbage. When she hit the kid it sounded as if somebody had burst a paper bag. Before that I could have loved that girl myself if I had been free.

"I think they have got little Willie, of the red carpet, cinched, however. I heard the old man and her mother talking it over in the air-shaft room the other night. It seems that Willie is getting $18 a week, which was something of a surprise to me. He doesn't look it. At the same time the old lady doesn't seem to think that $18 will support Evelina darling in the style to which she has been accustomed. When I reflected on the present ridiculously low price of cabbage this was another staggerer. The old man thinks the proposition is all right the way it stands, and I think his head is level, taking the family point of view. From Willie's side of the fence I think there's some sympathy coming to the bridegroom. Still, you can't always tell. I'm not a self-respecting girl, as you know, but if I was, Willie couldn't sit on the same red carpet with me and hold my hand through the sweet, summer evenings."

"I should think," observed the friend, "that you would feel a certain delicacy about listening to this sort of thing."

"I do," replied the flat dweller. "It's oppressive, at times. There's lots of the talk that doesn't interest me a particle, and I waste a deal of valuable time waiting in the hope that something of importance will be said. I don't care whether the Phippses have entertained their cousin Beels about as long as they care to and wonder she hasn't sense enough to see that she has outstayed her welcome. When it comes echoing and reverbes along down that shaft that I'm suspected of having stolen a spring mattress from the storeroom next to mine in the basement, there's a certain flavor of mild excitement about it. So there is when theories are advanced concerning the past of Mrs. Carmichael, who is in my judgment the best-looking woman in the building; but I hate to put in ten or twelve minutes to learn that the janitor hasn't thoroughly cleaned out the garbage cans for two weeks. I'll tell you something about Mrs. Carmichael some time or other."

"WHERE'S THE COURT-PLASTER?"

"Isn't now about as good a time as any?"

"It would be all right if I wasn't in something of a rush," said the flat dweller. "Mrs. Carmichael was one of my ideals. She—but I'll have to tell you about that some other time."

"That's the way with you," said the friend, in an aggrieved tone. "You maunder along for an hour or two, and then, just when you are threatening to tell something entertaining you choke off."—Chicago Daily Record.

Cautionary.

A Georgia colored preacher has more than one way of making sure that none of his parishioners let the contribution plate pass unnoticed. A French scientist has just discovered that some kinds of mushrooms afford a vaccine against the venom of snakes. But the Americans prefer a somewhat different remedy for snake bites.

It is said the oleomargarine factories have driven 4,300,000 cows out of business. Between these and the pump it begins to look as though bossy would soon have nothing to do but lie in the shade and ruminate.

Congress will shortly consider the advisability of completely revising the laws now governing Alaska. A new clause that might not be out of the way would be a statute regulating the size of yarn to be sent out concerning the wonderful gold fields discovered with such startling frequency.

The Russians are preparing for the Paris exposition a map of France in stone, which will be a remarkable specimen of the lapidary's skill. It will show each separate department in jasper, while the sea will be represented by lapis lazuli, the rivers by platinum and 106 towns marked by precious stones.

Albert H. Holder, an expert mining engineer who has arrived from Africa, says that the war between the Boers and the British will last at least two years. He predicts that before giving up Johannesburg the Boers will destroy the mines and everything else, the whole being valued at a billion and a half dollars.

Land in Cuba is not measured by the acre. A planter buys a "cabaleria" of land, not an acre. When it is said that a cabaleria of land is in the form of a circle it will be seen at once that there is unlimited room for dispute. These circles overlap each other and chunks are left out, and the result of a land transaction is bewildering.

Foreigners who visit the Paris exposition this year will have an opportunity of seeing a typical American machine shop in full operation. Not only will the machinery in the building, such as traveling cranes, hangers, shafting, electric motors, etc., be of American make, but the structure itself will have been made on this side of the Atlantic.

A Kentucky man undertook to do a little work with blasting powder in a room where there were three children and a fire, and as a natural result the powder worked overtime. When all people have learned the advisability of never getting on familiar terms with explosives one may reasonably hope to find the millennium just around the corner.

The American army mule is coming to his own again in South Africa. A short but eventful experience with him has shown the British that he is superior to the Spanish, or English, or Australian mule. He is not invulnerable to seasickness on long voyages, but after four weeks at sea he kicks up his heels with the enthusiasm of those of his kind that capered in the same way 35 years ago after the mud campaigns on the Chickahominy or on the long march to the sea.

Representative Cushman, of Washington, has already made a reputation in congress for an Abelincolnesque style of humor. He is tall and lank and his legs are so thin that he himself says he has often been arrested for being without visible means of support. Another quaint expression is that he was once so poverty-stricken that he sewed buckshot in his summer coat to make it heavy enough for winter wear. This is all said in a serious manner, and Cushman may be said to have made a decided hit.

In 1880 there were 60,873 telephones under rental in the United States; in the latter part of 1898 there were 1,124,846, with nearly 1,200,000 miles of wire. In 1885 there were 1,225 miles of wire underground; in the year 1899 there were 358,184. It is estimated that the total number of connections made between points in the same exchange on the last day of 1898 was 3,823,070. If the exchanges of one day should be multiplied by 365 an idea of the amount of telephone talk can be obtained. This is, indeed, a wonderful increase.

Assistant Postmaster General Heath says his order prohibiting the retention of married post office employes is not intended as a discouragement of matrimony—though it may work that way—but is simply for the betterment of the service, and was made necessary by the peculiar unreasonableness of brides and grooms. Two clerks will work together in the same office and give entire satisfaction, even after they have fallen in love, he declares, but as soon as they are married their personal relations are constantly obtruding themselves and getting in the way of public business.

The centennial of Washington's death, which occurred recently, recalls the fact that his illness was only of one day's duration, and this was the first time that he was ever known to have been sick. Various opinions have been given of the medical treatment, and one prominent writer pronounces it "little less than murder," but Dr. Cohen, of Philadelphia, after very elaborate examination, not only repels this charge, but defends the attending physician. Dr. Cohen says the disease was oedematous laryngitis, of which few cases have ever been known.

AS THE LAW STANDS.

Breaking and entering a dwelling house for the purpose of serving a writ of replevin, after admittance has been demanded and refused, is held in Kelley vs. Schuyler (R. I.), 44 L. R. A. 435, to constitute the officer a trespasser.

Publication pending trial of an action, of an article concerning the cause, which is calculated to prejudice the jury and prevent a fair trial, is held, in Telegram Newspaper company vs. Com. (Mass.), 44 L. R. A. 159, to constitute a contempt for which a corporation may be criminally liable.

A passenger on whom a drunken man is thrown by being jostled with the conductor in removing another drunken man from the car rightfully and without negligence, is held, in Spade vs. Lynn & B. R. R. (Mass.), 43 L. R. A. 832, to have no right of action against the carrier therefor.

A deposit in a savings bank in trust for the owner of the money and another person as joint owner, subject to the order of either, and the balance at the death of either to belong to the survivor, is held, in Milholland vs. Whalen (Md.), 44 L. R. A. 205, to constitute a valid declaration of trust in favor of the survivor as to the balance of the fund remaining on the death of either, although the settler retains possession of the bank book.

The impulsive and unguarded act of a lady passenger, by which she is hurt while trying to escape from a car because of a reasonable fear due to mismanagement of the carrier, is held, in Gannon vs. New York, N. H. & H. Railway company (Mass.), 43 L. R. A. 833, to be properly deemed a consequence of such mismanagement, for which the carrier is responsible.

A very striking application of the rule that a bank is not liable for negligence of a notary employed by it is made in First National bank vs. German bank (Ia.), 44 L. R. A. 133, where a bank is held not to be liable for the negligence of its assistant cashier, who was a notary public, in failing to give proper notice of the dishonor of an inland draft which the bank held for collection.

The Philippines seem to handle more heavy mail than any other of our new possessions, therefore there is a strong demand there for stamps of high denominations.

DEFEAT FOR BOERS.

British Troops Under Gen. French Win a Victory at Colesberg—Neat Bit of Strategy.

Rensberg, Cape Colony, Jan. 2.—Gen. French has completely defeated the Boers and occupied Colesburg. The general continued to keep the Boers on the move, and pressed them closely Saturday and Sunday, giving them no time to make a prolonged stand, and when day broke he was within striking distance of the enemy. Monday night all the cavalry, artillery and infantry, the latter riding in wagons to increase the general mobility, started upon a night march, with the object of turning the Boers' right. The flank operations were successful. The infantry and field batteries immediately made a feint attack upon the Boer front, and while this was proceeding the cavalry and light artillery got completely around the enemy's right flank, as arranged. The programme worked without hitch. The Boers were utterly surprised and, finding their retreat threatened, fled in disorder to the eastward, leaving Colesburg in Gen. French's hands.

London, Jan. 2.—The Daily Mail has the following dispatch, dated January 1, from Rensburg:

"Yesterday afternoon a big force of cavalry and infantry, with ten guns, under the personal command of Gen. French, moving by detour, occupied some hills three miles from Colesburg, where the Boers were in strength, confident in the natural aid afforded them by the hills around. The enemy's position extended six miles around the entire village. At daybreak our artillery opened the battle. The Boers were taken by surprise, but replied vigorously. An artillery duel was maintained for two hours. Then a Boer hotchkiss collapsed and was abandoned. We captured it. A Boer big gun was silenced, but this and the other Boer guns were withdrawn to the northward, where we are harassing the Boer retreat by a damaging shell fire. Colesburg is in our hands and the few remaining loyalists are jubilant. We have captured many wagons and a considerable quantity of stores. Our losses were quite slight, but the Boers must have suffered heavily. They may stop at Achtertang or cross the river altogether at Norval's Point, where the bridge is still intact."

One important effect of the success of Gen. French is that it will probably have a deterrent influence upon Dutch disaffection. There is some disposition here to exaggerate the importance of small skirmishes and engagements. It should be borne in mind that Gen. French has only 2,000 men, and so far as the important points of campaign are concerned the situation is virtually unchanged.

IS NOT A CANDIDATE.

Gov. Tanner, of Illinois, Announces That He Is Not Seeking Election for Another Term.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 29.—At the gathering of Illinois republicans for their annual love feast a bombshell was exploded Thursday afternoon by the declaration of Gov. John R. Tanner that he was not a candidate for reelection. This declaration was made at a special meeting of the governor's political friends, called by himself. He said: "I have not been a candidate for governor from the time that I entered office, and I am not now a candidate for reelection." Prefacing this declaration, Gov. Tanner made a tart speech arraigning the newspapers which have criticised his course and accusing them of going into a combination to "down" him. He defended his course in signing the famous Allen bill at some length.

Costly Fire in New York.

New York, Dec. 30.—The two seven-story buildings at 425 to 435 East Twenty-fourth street, occupied principally by the wall paper factory of William Campbell & Co., were destroyed by fire Friday night. The loss is fully $500,000. The plant of the New York Hygeia Ice company, which occupied the basement of No. 425, and that of the Manhattan Electric Light company, on the first and second floors of the same building, were totally destroyed.

Indebtedness Very Heavy.

New York, Dec. 30.—Harper & Bros.' indebtedness to country banks, it is said by those familiar with the reorganization affairs of the company, will amount to $1,700,000, and negotiations are under way for the organization of a protective committee representing the banks holding the paper of the firm. Many of the banks purchased the paper of Harper & Bros.' without investigation, and it follows now that they have a number of unsecured claims.

Shot Through the Heart.

New York, Jan. 2.—Ellen Labash was shot and instantly killed at Passaic, N. J., at the beginning of the new year Monday. Michael Schwartz celebrated the advent of the new year by going outside the house and firing four shots from his revolver. After entering the house he pulled the trigger, believing there was no other bullet in the pistol. There was a loud report and Miss Labash fell to the floor, shot in the heart. Schwartz was arrested.

Their Final Resting Place.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Upon the windy heights of Arlington cemetery the Maine dead, brought from Havana by the battleship Texas, on Thursday were laid away in their final resting places with simple religious services and the impressive honors of war in the presence of the president, members of his cabinet, officers of the army and navy and other representatives of the government.

Country Bank Robbed.

Tolono, Ill., Jan. 1.—The Bank of Tolono, a private institution, of which R. A. Bower is president and S. M. Bower cashier, was entered by burglars at an early hour Saturday morning and $4,500 in cash taken from the safe. Besides this about $500 in stamps and postal funds were taken from a deposit box which Postmaster Campbell had placed in the bank for safe keeping. The safe was ruined.

Rich Gold Strike.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 30.—A dispatch from Spokane, Wash., tells of a rich strike on a claim of the Lemon Gold Mining company, of British Columbia. In grading for a stamp mill site near the shaft of the Gold Standard mine, the men uncovered a 12-foot ledge of oxidized quartz, which assays $825 per ton in gold and nine dollars in silver.

The Seal Catch.

Washington, Dec. 30.—The total catch of seals by Canadian sealing vessels during the past season was 35,344, as compared with a total for the preceding year of 28,552.

STATE OF TRADE.

Review of the Situation by Dun's Commercial Agency — Extraordinary Year for Industries.

R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: "No correct report of failures in 1899 can be made until the year has closed. A collapse of speculation in copper stocks has swelled the aggregate at Boston alone over $18,000,000 within a few days, and might yet add to the record. The failures thus far reported are fewer in number than in any year since 1883 and smaller in amount of commercial liabilities than in any year since 1881. The aggregate of defaulted liabilities is $120,160,000, but nearly two-thirds of the banking liabilities were added within a few days, the aggregate reaching about $30,000,000. The commercial liabilities have been about $89,260,000, though exact returns for a few recent failures are not yet obtainable. No other years except 1881, with defaulted liabilities of $81,155,932, and 1880, with $65,752,000, have failures been as small since the agency commenced quarterly returns in 1875. The average of liabilities per failure is less than $9,560, the smallest in any year of the 25, a gratifying evidence that commercial liabilities are further removed than usual from the point of danger.

"The week has been exciting only at Boston, where the failures growing out of speculation and the efforts to reestablish banks and firms suspended have not given the week a holiday character. Yet general business is thoroughly safe and prosperous, and no important firms have failed save some which were individually connected with concerns involved in speculation. The speculative troubles come because the volume of legitimate business and the unprecedented distribution of profits, interest and dividends made it no longer possible to carry some stocks on borrowed money. Prosperity itself placed a check on speculative ventures.

"The industries are closing the most extraordinary year of their history. Long-established branches have undergone a veritable reconstruction, vastly increasing their capacity, while new industries which scarcely existed a year or two ago have enlisted a vast capital, altered modes of business and production in almost every direction and improved conditions for the future almost beyond calculation. Electrical developments in light, heat and power, in making cataract work, performing wonders in production of materials and providing transportation all over the land, deserve especial attention.

"For such reconstruction the increase in demand for iron and steel products is the great feature of the year. With 415,732 tons unsold and 243,516 produced weekly January 1, hindered by severe weather so that the output March 1 dropped 15,000 tons, but expanding in every month afterwards, the industry is now producing about 300,000 tons weekly, and unsold stocks are reduced to 122,923 tons, and yet orders unfilled will require six to nine months' work from most of the establishments. Prices have not changed the past week, though demand for some products improved a little.

"Failures for the week have been 221 in the United States, against 252 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 22 last year."

Fatal Flames.

New York, Jan. 2.—Fire early this (Tuesday) morning in the double tenement at Forty-second street and First avenue resulted in a panic among the 20 families which occupied the building and the death of at least two persons, and possibly more. The victims were children of Edward Leonard, aged one and five years. Mrs. Leonard was so badly injured that it is feared she may not survive, while John Keller, 17 years old, the hero of the fire, is also in a precarious condition. Keller went to the top floor, arousing all the tenants and aiding in the work of rescue. He stayed too long, and was burned about the hands and face, and was taken to Bellevue hospital. The house was gutted, entailing a loss of $30,000.

Fatal Explosion.

Lockhaven, Pa., Dec. 30.—Grant Bathurst, assistant postmaster at Rote, this county, was killed and two other persons were injured Friday by an explosion of dynamite in the weighmaster's office of the Bellefonte Limestone company, at Salona, eight miles from this city. One of the men in the office raked the fire in the stove with a poker, and while it was still hot hung the poker on a nail. It slipped from the nail and fell into a bucket filled with dynamite and fuses, and a terrific explosion followed. The building was blown to pieces.

McCoy Wins in Five Rounds.

New York, Jan. 2. — "Kid" McCoy again placed himself in the championship class by defeating Peter Maher in a brisk, well-fought battle of five rounds before the Coney Island Athletic club Monday afternoon. The fight was scheduled to last 25 rounds and the purse was to have been $20,000, but the attendance was not as large as had been expected, and before the fight was begun the principals agreed that the winner should receive the gross receipts. McCoy received $12,000, and Maher $4,000.

A Strange Case.

Ellinwood, Kan., Dec. 29.—Mary Beck, 42 years old, was found by one of her four children dead in her rocking chair, her throat cut and her forehead bruised. One of the children said he heard his mother say during the night she had killed some one and would kill herself. Her husband has been in the insane asylum for two years and Mrs. Beck supported her family by following the plow during the day and performing her household duties at night.

Price of Thread Advanced.

New York, Dec. 29.—It was announced at the office of the Clark Thread company in Newark, N. J., that the concern had made an advance on the price of cotton thread to the extent of about 15 cents a dozen spools, in common with the other cotton thread concerns. The increased price of cotton and the increase in wages in the New England mills is given as the cause of the increase in price to the retailer.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 1.—Four men were killed and several others injured by a boiler explosion one mile west of Elizabethtown. They were employes of Keller and Kresson, railroad contractors. The dead are: Donald Haldeman, of Bainbridge; Wit Sherbahn, of West Donegal; Burt Harris, a negro; an Italian, known as Tony. The latter was hurled 150 feet.

Below Zero.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 30.—Dispatches from northern Michigan report extreme cold weather with heavy gales from the west and snow. At East Tawas the thermometer registered 18 below zero Friday. Ten degrees below is reported from Sault Ste. Marie and other upper peninsula points.

Caused Three Deaths.

Ardmore, I. T., Dec. 30.—Charles Chapman attempted to drive through a swollen stream above here Friday with his family, with the result that Mrs. Chapman and their daughter were drowned. Upon being told of the accident the mother of Charles Chapman died of the shock.

CAPTURED BY AMERICANS.

Our Troops Begin General Southern Advance by Occupying Cabuyao—Two Killed.

Manila, Jan. 2. — The first movement of a general southern advance occurred Monday morning, when two battalions of the Thirty-ninth infantry landed and occupied Cabuyao, on the south side of Laguna de Bay. Two Americans were killed and four were wounded. Twenty-four of the enemy's dead were found in one house. One hundred and fifty prisoners and four six-pounder rapid-fire guns were captured. The gunboat Laguna de Bay bombarded the town before the disembarkation of the troops from the cascoes, which was made under the enemy's shrapnel fire. The enemy evacuated the place before the charging Americans, retreating to Santa Rosa, to which town they were pursued. Heavy fighting occurred along the road to Santa Rosa, which was occupied by the insurgents retreating south toward Silang. The Americans burned the country between and around Cabuyao. The gunboat returned to Calamba for reenforcements and thence came to Manila to fetch ammunition. She recently captured two of the enemy's steam launches, one under the fire of artillery at Calamba, and also four cascoes loaded with rice. Other regiments are mobilizing at San Pedro Macati and Pasig, preparatory to continuing the southern advance.

Sunday's capture of bombs involved the seizure of documents inculpating a thousand Filipinos who intended to rise against the Americans. Papers were also found showing a distribution of the city into districts and a careful assignment of leaders and followers. The precautions taken by the Americans on Saturday, it is now evident, alone prevented an uprising. The provost marshal has requested that two more regiments be detailed for the protection of Manila. Three thousand troops are now actually in the city.

Manila, Jan. 2. — Aguinaldo's wife, who was recently reported to have died in the mountains; her sister, Col. Leybas, two sisters of the insurgent colonel and 18 men have surrendered to Maj. March, of the Thirty-third infantry, in Bontoc. Two Americans and several Spanish prisoners of the insurgents were released at the same time.

Madrid, Jan. 2. — Dispatches received here from Manila confirm the reports as to Aguinaldo's growing unpopularity with the insurgents. Through failure to make headway against the Americans the Filipino commander in chief is said to be falling into deeper discredit every day.

Church Burned.

Stromsberg, Neb., Jan. 2.—Eden Baptist church, which was dedicated only a year ago, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning and two people seriously injured. The fire was caused by an explosion of acetylene gas, with which the church was lighted. New Year's watch meetings were being held and a large number of people were present, but most of them had just left the building when the explosion occurred. The building was badly wrecked and what was not destroyed by the explosion was consumed by fire. Mrs. J. L. Johnson and her daughter Pearl were seriously injured.

Another Gift by Carnegie.

New York, Jan. 2.—Andrew Carnegie has given $300,000 to Cooper union for the establishment of a day school, similar in scope to the present night school and the object of which will be to give such practical instruction as shall enable young men to become first-class and skilled workmen. The school, which will complete the last department of the original plans of Peter Cooper, the founder of Cooper union, will be technically known as the Mechanics' Art High School of Cooper union.

Sent to Prison.

Troy, Kan., Dec. 30.—Pool Grinslead editor of the Wathena Star, was sentenced in the district court here to 15 months' imprisonment in the county jail under a conviction of criminal libel. The conviction is an outgrowth of a legislative scandal, the editor having accused State Senator John Fulton, of Brown county, of accepting a bribe in connection with the location of a new state insane asylum. Senator Fulton was the complaining witness. Grinslead will edit his paper from the county jail.

Death of E. V. Smalley.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 30.—Eugene V. Smalley, the editor and publisher of the Northwest Magazine, died shortly after midnight at his home in this city with stomach trouble. As a newspaper man, author and publisher, Mr. Smalley was one of the most widely-known writers of the northwest. As a political correspondent, he traveled through almost every state in the union. He was president of the National Sound Money league.

Sympathy for the Boers.

Boston, Dec. 29.—The common council of Boston on Thursday, after a spirited debate, adopted a resolution of sympathy for the Boers.

New York, Dec. 30.—At a meeting of the New York city council Friday resolutions of sympathy for the Boers which were offered on last Tuesday were adopted with but one dissenting vote.

Left No Will.

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 2.—A petition was presented in the probate court here Monday by W. R. Moody, eldest son of the late evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, asking that he be appointed administrator of his father's estate. The petition will be acted upon to-day, when it is expected that the request will be granted. Mr. Moody left no will.

Torn to Pieces.

Vienna, Jan. 2.—One of the animal keepers at the Vienna zoological gardens entered the cage of lions Monday in a spirit of bravado, and six lions rushed upon him and tore him to pieces. The attendants sought in vain, with flaming torches and streams of water, to drive the wild beasts from their victim.

Snow in Georgia.

Macon, Ga., Jan. 1. — The heaviest snow ever known in this part of the south fell here Sunday. It is estimated that the fall was fully six inches on the level. Much wheat has been planted in this section, and the farmers say the snow insures a big crop.

Mormonism.

This is a question that should interest every one. It is a blot upon our fair land—a symptom of governmental ill-health. The right laws would act as speedily upon it as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does upon constipation or dyspepsia. They would quickly clear it out and restore healthy purity; and this is just what the bitters does for the human constitution. It makes the stomach strong by curing indigestion, biliousness and liver trouble.

The Finest Road.

"I suppose," he began, as he entered a railroad ticket office—"I suppose you sell tickets to New York?"

"Certainly, sir," was the reply.

"You have a direct line?"

"It is down on the map as the only direct line?"

"As you see, sir," replied the agent, as he opened a folder.

"Y-e-s, I see. You land passengers in New York ahead of competing lines, of course?"

"Of course."

"Luxurious coaches—no dust—finest dining cars—scenery unexcelled?"

"Yes, sir."

"By taking your line I avoid delays and reduce the chances of accident to a minimum?"

"Yes, sir, you do. Have a ticket to New York over our line, sir?"

"Can't say yet. I'm going to see five other agents, each with the shortest and most direct line, and if I find a liar among the six I'll ticket over his road!"—Ohio State Journal.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. JAN. 1, 1900!

AND THE OUTLOOK FOR VICTORY STATE AND NATIONAL.

Inspiration From a Week's Presence in Minnesota of Senator James K. Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee—Enthusiasm, Party Unity and Unity of Co-operating Reform Forces, the Net Result—New Year's Greeting—The Week's Round-up of Vigorous State and National Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Jan. 1, 1900.

Happy New Year to all! With a hope for the dawn of better things for the republic than foreign conquest and surrender to the money power, in the opening of another decade, and another century.

Now that it is conceded on all sides that the new century does not begin until Jan. 1, 1901, how glad we are that we have not mingled with the discussion, and that on the 64th day of the bran New Century, Bryan will be installed in the White House!

Decidedly the political event of the week has been the inspiring presence of our great head of the Democratic National committee, Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas. He with ex-Vice President General Stevenson of Illinois, and the distinguished General Watt Hardin of Kentucky, met with a goodly company of Twin City Democrats and other members of the Reform forces at Democratic headquarters, the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, the day following Christmas, a number from outside places, chancing to be present. The result was large chunks of inspiration for the state forces of reform, while the distinguished visitors took with them to their different fields, a good impression of the forward state of organization in the North Star state, and a high opinion of the men charged with the people's affairs, under the administration of Governor Lind, and the future success presaged at their hands.

It is indeed a happy circumstance that the children of our Southern friends have settled among us, thus assuring frequent visits of their honored parents.

It was a great pleasure to all to find Senator Jones in the enjoyment of robust health and that vigor which has in the past enabled him to do so great work in the cause of true Democracy, and which is one of the almost certain omens of final success. Intercourse with him while here, as well as his utterances in public, have inspired our state leaders with absolute confidence of success in the fight now opening. To such Senator Jones was entirely frank and open, speaking freely of the exact situation, as well as the plans maturing for action. All is encouraging. He also exposed numerous lies industriously spread by a venal press, among which he mentioned those stories personal to himself and colleagues of the committee, representing that serious factions exist. There is not one word of truth in this. Another untruth is that there is any portion of the South not in harmony with the policy of opposition to the Republican conquest of the Filipinos; that tale is absolutely untrue.

Senator Jones states that congress will at a very early date force through the infamous gold bill, and complete the surrender to the money power, McKinley completing it with his signature, the final surrender of his life record as a bi-metallist. This act of the Republicans will make the financial question very prominent, and the people will settle once and for all whether they will surrender this country to the hated foreign policy which has so long figured for mastery in this country. The trusts will be an issue, the Republicans being held absolutely responsible for existing conditions, unless, since they are now in power, they in the present session pass absolutely remedial legislation. Senator Jones explained the campaign of education that will be relied on, laying stress on the work of the country press, on which, in the subsidizing of the daily metropolitan press, everything depends.

Another refreshing event occurred Thursday evening at Minneapolis when Hon. Elijah Barton, chairman of the local Democratic committee, arranged a reception to National Chairman Jones by the local Democrats. Those invited included Governor Lind, State Chairman Rosing and National Committeeman T. D. O'Brien, and also Hon. Charles A. Towne. A magnificent feature was the attendance of Gold Democrats and others not previously acting with the "regenerated Democracy."

It was learned from Senator Jones, that all sections of the country are as nearly unanimous in sympathy with the Boers as he finds them in the Northwest. Also, that the quickened American conscience is rapidly seeing that the same principles are involved in the McKinley war on the Filipinos as Great Britain's war on the South African republics.

And so we saluted the flag of the Filipino republic did we, before we fired upon it? So the record seems to be. What infamy!

The annual meeting of the state educators at St. Paul was under circumstances of unusual interest and profit. The sentiment abounded that Superintendent Lewis is giving the people a mighty good administration of the educational department. The numerous improvements he has accomplished and the untiring energy in the discharge of duty, as well as the ability of the corps by which he has surrounded himself, were highly commended.

South Dakota Anti-Imperialists have followed Minnesota in a large and enthusiastic organization, headquarters Sioux Falls. Congratulations.

A Russian count has invented a coffin attachment that will signal above ground if a person has been buried alive. It is safe that the apparatus will not be needed for the G. O. P. after the November burial. The patient will be real dead.

The small-souled persons who for base partisan purposes would discredit Minnesota wheat, should carefully ponder the following:

The Corn Trade News, Liverpool, of Dec. 2, just at hand, reports sales for that day as follows:

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 85½ per bushel.

3,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 84¾ per bushel.

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Manitoba, December, December delivery, at 84 per bushel.

Strange to say, Englishmen have not yet found out that Minnesota grades are ruined.

And yet within the past week, the unfair Mankato Free Press said this:

"The fact is that the grade instead of being established and maintained by the state grain inspection department, as was formerly the case, is now made by the buyer or his agent."

Preparations for the St. Paul carnival, Feb. 3 to 12, inclusive, are progressing with great enthusiasm. The programme will be such that the weather will cut no figure. If hot and summery, the programme will abound in cooling features; if cold, there will be hot things in plenty.

Venezuela followed the United States with a first class, gold-standard panic. "And there's more to follow."

Whenever you lick a revenue stamp, don't kick. For you not only contribute to support our army of conquest in the Philippines but also to benefit the speculators on Wall street. You also contribute to the funds which McKinley's secretary of the treasury deposits with the Rockefeller bank without interest, to be loaned out in the next flurry at from 3 to 186 per cent.

McKinley's administration has out-Clevelanded Cleveland's by openly establishing the favorite New York bank, Rockefeller's, where the treasury funds are being turned in at the rate of millions a day. How do the people like it? How do the banks that are not in the combination like it?

Who thought that we should so soon have the great banking trust? But here it is, and how do you like it?

The currency bill and Secretary Gouge's selection of a New York pet bank to hold the public money, present exactly the United States bank question that was fought out in Jackson's administration. Jackson took the money power by the throat. Another will throttle the great banking trust, and his name is Bryan.

Following the Harper Brothers' celebration of gold standard prosperity, by failure, comes an equally prominent move of the same kind in Boston, the celebrated Lovell Arms company. Established in 1841, this company had for 58 years prospered under the bimetallic policy. And so they go. For a time the smaller concerns, but the great ones as their times come. Gradually the gold standard skull and cross bones becomes, like the real thing, "no respecter of persons."

Boston has recorded $17,000,000 of failures within two weeks past—pretty good for gold standard, prosperous Boston.

Executive Agent Beutner of the Game and Fish commission, has made his annual report, and it shows that the department has been conducted with rare abillty and economy under Mr. Beutner. The nets and property seized or destroyed in violations of the law aggregated over $5,000. Sales from seizures also exceeded $2,000. In fish propagation more than 2,000,000 "fry" were planted. Trout, 2,101,000; bass, 28,000; croppies, 58,000; wall-eyed pike, 400,000; total, 2,587,700. Agent Beutner is another case of the right man in the right place.

Arrangements are completed for the Minneapolis Jackson day celebration, by banquet and Exposition meeting, Jan. 10. Persons desiring tickets (banquet, none are to be issued for the Exposition)should apply at once to William Baldwin, West hotel, Minneapolis.

Mr. Bryan closed his Texas outing with the capture of a real live panther. He will from this on pursue the Republican catamount, and will bag him in November.

Financial reports show that 46 railroads lost $345,000,000, while 48 trust concerns lost $320,000,000, in decline of stock values in the panic of last week. Even Twin City Rapid Transit had a dead loss of $1,000,000, falling 10 or more points and has been dropped from quotations.

There is another just judge to add to the Brewers and Caldwells who have stood by the people, located in Toledo, who has decided that laborers on strike commit no violation of law in peaceably patrolling where laborers are employed who have taken the places of the strikers, or in efforts to induce them to also quit work. The employers had obtained the corporation weapon of injunction against the strikers, which, on hearing, the Toledo judge dissolved.

And, speaking of "government by injunction," condemned by the Chicago platform, the sensible man is now hard to find who will not admit that the Democratic declaration was right. Thousands who condemned that plank in 1896 will now support it, as well as the then hated declaration for the income tax.

Surely a Dream.

The rich, talented, handsome stranger prostrates himself at the feet of the beautiful cashier in the laundry.

"Be mine!" he implores.

"Am I dreaming?" the young girl asks herself, anxiously.

She has not long to remain in doubt. For she presently spurns the rich, talented, handsome stranger and marries the bow-legged boilermaker to whom she had plighted her troth.

This, of course, makes it a cinch that she is dreaming.—Detroit Journal.

Professional Curiosity.

"Yer honor," said the prisoner to the judge, "I should like to have my case postponed. My lawyer is sick and can't come to court."

The judge took two or three minutes to consider. "The case may be postponed," he said, at last, "if you desire it. But I see here that you were taken in the act. What can your counsel have to say on your behalf?"

"That's just what I want to know, yer honor," said the prisoner.—Collier's Weekly.

RECORD OF THE YEAR

Many Pages Added to the World's History in 1899.

Some of the Leading Features—Events at Home and Abroad—Notable Deaths—Disasters, Murders, Hangings, Etc.

The year 1899 will always be memorable as that in which the Spanish-American war was officially closed and the Filipino insurrection reduced to a mere disorganized guerrilla warfare, with its leader a fugitive. On the first day of the year Spain relinquished its authority in Cuba and the United States assumed control. The peace treaty was sent to the senate three days later, and February 6 it was ratified. April 11 ratifications were exchanged with Spain and peace proclaimed. The work of political reorganization in Cuba has progressed satisfactorily.

The history of the revolt of the Tagals, under the leadership of Aguinaldo, against the sovereignty of the United States is embraced within the period of the old year. It had its incipiency in the refusal of the insurgents to surrender Iloilo to the United States, the demand of Aguinaldo for independence and his proclamation of a republic. As this government failed to recognize him, he precipitated an insurrection by his attack upon the American forces near Manila February 4. Since that date there have been many encounters with the insurgents, in every one of which our forces have been successful, and numerous towns have been captured, occupied or destroyed. Aguinaldo's so-called capital has been moved from place to place with celerity as our troops advanced, his so-called government has disappeared, his forces have melted away until there is but a handful left to keep up a guerrilla war, and Aguinaldo himself is virtually a fugitive without a following.

There have been other important questions settled during the year. The army scandal, which originated in the commissary department, has been quieted by the court-martialing of Gen. Eagan and the resignation of Secretary Alger. The disturbed relations between Great Britain and the United States over the Alaskan boundary have been temporarily adjusted by a modus vivendi. The outbreak in Samoa has been settled by a dissolution of the tripartite agreement between Great Britain, Germany and the United States, Great Britain renouncing all its claims and receiving compensation elsewhere. The United States retains possession of the island of Tutuila and the important harbor of Pango-Pango, Germany having possession of the rest of the Samoan group.

The Old Year Abroad.

The old year abroad has witnessed some events of a stirring nature. Notwithstanding the czar's spectacular exhibition at The Hague in the interests of international peace and brotherhood, the two leading events in Great Britain's record for the year have been warlike. Early in the year the British government issued a proclamation of joint control of the Soudan with Egypt, and has effected that control by a series of brilliant victories won by Lord Kitchener, who is now on his way to South Africa, second in command to Lord Roberts, to take part in Great Britain's second war for the subjugation of the Transvaal and Free State Boers. The causes of this needless war and the progress of its events are too fresh in the public recollection to need recapitulation. Great Britain thus far has paid a heavy tribute of life and treasure to gratify colonial ambitions. The territorial dispute between Venezuela and Great Britain has been settled by arbitration, to the advantage of the latter.

France early in the year lost President Faure by death. M. Loubet was at once elected in his place, and from that time, in February, to the end of the year the republic has been in turmoil over the Dreyfus rehearing and the innumerable ramifications of the "incident," the resignation of ministers, the violent uprising of socialistic and anti-Semitic mobs, demonstrations against the government and revolutionary plottings. But meanwhile the government has remained firm, seditious acts have been suppressed and Paris expects to crown the closing year of the century with the brilliancy of its exposition.

Epidemics and Famines.

The loss of life by epidemics and famine shows an increase over last year. The plague in India, Africa and at other points has swept off over 250,000 victims. Famine has claimed over 50,000 in Russia and Africa and cholera about 2,000. Yellow fever has attacked different places between Florida and Brazil, but improved methods of treatment have reduced its fatalities to about 900. It is hard to collect statistics of this kind, but the total, so far as reported, is about 310,000, as compared with 222,900 in 1897.

Summary of Disasters.

As nearly as can be estimated 1,750 lives have been lost upon the ocean, 469 upon inland waters, 3,552 by railroad accidents, 44,828 by disasters abroad, 6,775 by minor disasters in this country, 300,000 by epidemics and famine and 48,237 by wars, making a total of 405,711, as compared with 127,930 in 1898, 289,017 in 1897, 246,546 in 1896 and 275,391 in 1895.

Suicides.

ing 1899, as reported by mail and telegraph, is 5,340, as compared with 5,920 in 1898, 6,600 in 1897, 6,520 in 1896 and 5,759 in 1895. It will be seen that the decrease in self-murder since 1897 has been steady. Of this total 4,155 were males and 1,185 females, which is about the usual proportion year by year for the last ten years. Among professional men physicians still head the list, 38 having taken their own lives, as compared with 44 in 1898, 41 in 1897, 47 in 1896, 39 in 1895 and 45 in 1894. During the year also 9 clergymen, 7 prominent attorneys, 7 persons engaged in the banking business, 2 actors, 7 journalists and 2 college professors have committed suicide. The causes of suicide were as follows:

Despondency	2,573
Unknown	1,649
Insanity	255
Liquor	127
Ill health	225
Domestic infelicity	191
Disappointed love	146
Business losses	74

Murders.

The total number of murders committed in the United States during 1899 shows a continued decrease, being 6,225, as compared with 7,840 in 1898, 9,520 in 1897, 10,652 in 1896 and 10,500 in 1895. The causes of these murders may be classified as follows:

Quarrels	3,309
Unknown	1,689
Jealousy	173
Liquor	212
By highwaymen	296
Infanticide	182
Resisting arrest	114
Highwaymen killed	83
Insanity	31
Self-defense	31
Strikes	29
Outrages	6
Riots	10

Hangings.

The number of legal executions in 1899 was 131, as compared with 169 in 1898, 128 in 1897, 122 in 1896, 132 in 1895, 132 in 1894, 126 in 1893 and 107 in 1892. There were 100 hanged in the south and 31 in the north, of whom 58 were whites, 72 blacks and 1 Indian. The crimes for which they were executed were: Murder, 113; rape, 17; highway robbery, 1.

Lynchings.

It is gratifying to note that the criminal work of the mob murderers, notwithstanding some instances of special barbarity in Georgia, Louisiana and Kentucky, has decreased during 1899, being much smaller than in any year since 1885. Judge Lynch executed 107 persons during the year. Of these lynchings 103 occurred in the south and 4 in the north. Of the total number 84 were negroes and 23 whites.

Embezzlements.

The record of embezzling, forgery, defaulting and bank wreckage for 1899 is the smallest ever known in any year in the history of business since statistics were kept, which embraces a period of 21 years. The total is but $2,218,373, as compared with $5,851,263 in 1898 and $11,248,084 in 1897. The losses are distributed as follows:

Stolen by public officials	$534,457
From banks	640,300
By agents	253,296
Forgeries	118,000
From loan associations	3,245
By postmasters	25,734
Miscellaneous stealings	663,241

Fire Losses.

The losses by fire in the United States during 1899 aggregate $150,537,365, as compared with $133,129,467 in 1898, $120,601,737 in 1897, $111,856,067 in 1896 and $131,578,206 in 1895. Those where the loss in each case was $100,000 and upwards amounted to $71,212,000 and the losses by smaller fires to $34,725,365.

A Bright Spot.

Among all the records of the year 1899 not one stands out so conspicuously as that of the donations and bequests made for religion, educational institutions, charity, libraries, museums and galleries and to cities for popular benefit and entertainment. No year in the history of the country has ever equaled it. The aggregate thus bestowed is the immense sum of $49,749,956, as compared with $23,984,900 in 1898, $33,612,814 in 1897, $23,670,129 in 1896, $28,943,549 in 1895 and $19,967,116 in 1894. Of the total amount stated above there has been given to educational institutions the extraordinary sum of $35,851,817; to charities, $13,206,676; to churches, $2,992,593; to museums and art galleries, $2,686,500, and to libraries, $5,012,400.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Reducing the Debt.

State Treasurer Koerner and Auditor Dunn had their annual lottery at the state house, in which the numbers that come out get $1,000 apiece and are considered unlucky. For the lottery calls for the payment of $70,000 of state bonds, and the holders would rather have the bonds than the money.

Of the 70 bonds drawn, 12 are in the permanent university fund and seven in the permanent school fund. That is not such a grief to the treasurer as it would have been a year ago, for both funds are well placed now, and more can be used soon by investment in capital certificates.

Of the other bonds, 30 belong to the German Savings Bank of New York, 12 to the Savings Bank of Utica, four to the Life Insurance Clearing Company, now held as a trust deposit. It cuts the state debt from $1,349,000 to $1,279,000. The levy of .2 of a mill was expected to make $150,000 a year as the rate values were rising, but for some years there was no increase in valuations and the funding fund amounts to about $70,000 a year. Even so the small debt is shrinking toward the vanishing point.

A Canine Thief.

While two ladies were walking along the streets of Minneapolis a large mastiff came up to them and made a pretense of friendship by wagging his tail and playfully jumping in glee about the two pedestrians. They paid on attentian, supposing him to be an ordinary every day dog. Finally he became too persistent in his attentions, and continued to leap upon one of the women, who carried a canvas bag which she was guarding jealously. She put out her hand to push the animal aside. As she did so, he watched his opportunity and seized the bag between his teeth. Then he made all possible haste to run away.

The owner of the satchel was at a loss what to do. The dog was fleet-footed, and she could not overtake him. A passing policeman gave chase and after a run of several blocks secured the bag, which contained nearly $2,000 in cash and checks. At the time of the occurrence the lady was on her way to the bank to make a deposit.

Wants Old Bug.

Lewis Sells, one of the proprietors of the Sells Brothers' circus, now wintering at Columbus, Ohio, has been in negotiations with a number of Chippewa Indians on the Leech Lake reservation, including Bug-a-na-geship, the old chief who defied the military power of the United States a little over a year ago, and a number of braves who took part in the fight at Sugar Point, to travel with the circus next season and participate in the mimic Indian war representing the last Indian outbreak in the United States.

It is understood that the negotiations had progressed so far as to have secured the consent of the Indians themselves, but when the circus people applied to Indian Commissioner Jones for the necessary permission to take Indians off the reservation, that official promptly refused, replying that hereafter the department would permit the use of Indians for no public exhibitions except such as aimed to represent the progress of the tribes toward civilization.

Revenue for Educational Institutions.

By an act of the last legislature of Minnesota two-thirds of the revenue which may be derived from any non-agricultural lands that may be donated to the state for forestry purposes shall be paid "to such public educational institution or system in the state as the grantor may designate." The lands so granted are to be managed by a state forestry board, which as at present organized comprises, among others, Frederick Weyerhaeuser, John Cooper, William Mitchell, Greenleaf Clark and Professor Green of the State University.

U. S. SENATOR ROACH

Says Peruna, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator From North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

"Persuaded by a friend I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."

Senator Roach's home address is Larimore, North Dakota.

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systemic remedy for catarrh but Peruna. Address the Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh, written by Dr. Hartman.

HE WANTED THE TROUSERS.

Which Accounted for His Inability to Remove the Grease Spot.

A young fellow on the South side has a negro valet, an old-fashioned southern darky.

"Here, Jeff; I want those trousers cleaned and pressed to-day," he said, pointing to a rather loud-striped garment that Jeff has long had his eyes on.

"All right, sah," said Jeff, with a sigh.

Next morning Jeff brought the trousers back with a big grease spot still prominent on one knee.

"Can't you get that spot out?" said the owner of the trousers.

"No, sah."

"Did you try turpentine?"

"'Fo' de Lawd, I done sacchurated 'em wid turpentine."

"Did you try coal oil?"

Thinks Columbus Made a Mistake.

We liked Americans very much, indeed—the kind of Americans one meets; but we did not like the American mob, the human background, the kind one doesn't meet; and it is unfortunately the mob, the human background, and not the chosen remnant in the foreground, that gives a country its character, its dominant note. American food, American hotels, American railway carriages, American shops (and the "ladies" and "gentlemen" who flung things at us in them), American officials, American servants, American newspapers, the starved-looking American landscape, and last, but by no means least, the great American climate, ended by getting on our nerves to such a degree that we were compelled to wonder, with a French friend of ours, whose affairs necessitated his residence in New York, "why Christopher Columbus had not exercised a little discretion and kept his disgraceful discovery a secret."—London Chronicle.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 5, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The Cargill elevator company has closed down business here for the present.

—The tax gatherers are to be in Delano at Gilmer's Hotel, Tuesday and Wednesday, January 16 and 17.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thirsday and Friday.-11tf.

—Our beautiful mild weather has knocked off 50 cents a cord on the price of good maple wood in the last few days.

—An interesting game of foot ball was played on New Year's Day in Delano. It is not often that such sport can be had in Minnesota in mid winter.

—Skating is in its prime. We are informed that Charley Sell took a big load of young folks from his neighborhood to Lake Hauchey, on Wednesday evening and had a fine time.

—The Delano Athletic Club have rented the Dedrick room formerly occupied by the drug store, and have equipped it with appliances, etc., for members, also books, papers and magazines for reading and now have a place where they can enjoy their evenings.

—Coal barons may raise the tariff, cut the men's wages, get a ring on freight rates, and combine on prices. But the Lord who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb controles the weather, and this winter has favored the consumers rather than the dealers in coal.

—The news leaked out some way yesterday that the teacher of the grammar department had resigned! Also, that a part of the board had bargained with some teacher's agency for another teacher. That is one way of doing business. But a much more satisfactory way would be for the whole board to be made acquainted with the facts in the case, and teachers who wish to apply for the place given an opportunity to do so. Nothing adds more to a village's prosperity than good schools.

--Prof. Carleton informs us that another change in High School work has been made by the State authorities and now the four year's course is to contain 4 years in English; 3 years in mathematics; 2 or 4 years in Latin with either German, French or Greek for 2 years of the Latin if perfered; 6 half year course in History and Civics; Physics and Chemestry 1 year each; Botany, Zoology, Physical Geography and Geology, half a year each. Each student is not expected to take all these, but to pursue four studies at once for the four years.

—From the Washburn, (Wis.), Times we learn that the public schools are doing better work than before. "And it is gratyfing to note the great improvement in the condition of the High School under Prof. Cameron and his assistants." "Besides the able work of supervision by Professor Jones and Cameron, there is an able corps of teachers through the different departments, and the schools are in excellent shape." Delano takes to herself a little pride in this report from the fact that one of her boys, Prof. E. M. Cunningham has charge of she scientific department and is director of the laboratories.

—New Years afternoon the Delano High School and Alumni football teams met on Cramer's field for the second time; the H. S. team coming off victorious. Improvements were made in both teams since the Christmas crimmage and the result was a hard and interesting game all the way through, with the Alumni team on the defensive most of the time. The game started at 2:45 with Dr. King umpire, J. P. Chance referee, and J. McDonald time keeper. First half.—The Alumni chose the North goal with the wind in their favor, and the high school kicked off. After about 20 minutes play without any material gain for either side, the ball was on the Alumni 45 yd line when they attempted a punt. Catlin of the H. S team captured the ball and after a hard run went over the Alumni goal for a touchdown. The goal was missed on the kick and the score stood 5 to 0 in favor of the H. S During the rest of this half the Alumni half backs, Murphy and Erickson, indulged in line plunging for center and the High School was content with holding them on short gains till time was called.

Second half.—Alumni kicked off, and the ball was carried back to center of field before downed. After a couple minutes play the H. S. punted, and downed the ball on the Alumni's 15 yd line. The Alumni beat them back with their heavy line and half backs but lost the ball at their 30 yd line on downs. After a trial at the line the H. S. Punted the ball over the end of the field and the Alumni had a free punt off from the side of the goal. The ball was carried right back within ten yards of their goal but the H. S. could make no gain through their line so attempted a drop kick but was blocked by Wandersee, the ball bouncing back about 10 yds. Two more attempts were made at a goal from the field, but one fell short and the other was blocked by Roy Wilder. After a few more minutes play the ball was carried up near the Alumni goal and another trial made from the field in the last minute of the game, which was considered a success by H. S. players, but was not allowed by the umpire.

—Delano Fairi Day tomorrow Jan. 6

—Henry Jarrett, of Maple Plain, is handing out some pretty calendars about town, advertising T. L. and J. L. DeLancey, dealers in imported horses.

—The Secretary of the Board of education has a letter from the Grammar teacher, dated Jan. 1, 1900, tendering her resignation. He says this was the first intimation he had of a vacancy in the corps of teachers.

—A man wound the lines around the hub and went into the post office for a minute last evening, and the team created considerable excitement before he got them quieted. Hitching to the wagon is a dangerous habit.

—The St. Cecilia Club gave a fine entertainment in the City Hall last Tuesday evening. The audience was well pleased, and highly complimented those taking part in the programme and especially the instructor.

—Dr. Catlin as instructor in hygiene in the public school will hardly "go." —Eagle.

Wonder what the Old Bird is scared at now? Is she afraid some of her idiosyncrasies will be used as illustrations of the effects of ignoring hygienic laws.

--The long talked of mortgage on the M. E. church property was burned according to programme on the last night of 1899. The money for paying of the mortgages was about all raised and with a little borrowed for the occasion, the Hosington mortgage was secured on Saturday, and $100, for the payment of Rev. Blackhurst's mortgage deposited in the bank subject to his order.

Rev. Forbes, of Duluth, came Saturday evening and delivered his lecture at the City Hall. On Sunday he preached in the church, and in the evening at the Hall. After the services in the hall $121 50 was subscribed payable within three months for paying up other debts and repairing and painting the parsonage; also a small collection for the minister's salary. Then Miss Julia Cunningham and Miss Joy Kerr advanced to the stage and burned the mortgage. Rev. Thompson made a statement of affairs, and kindly thanked friends for aiding in making it possible to wipe out the debt.

A Holiday Wedding.

Through the kindness of Mrs. A. F. Thompson we furnish our readers the following:

Chime on, chime on
O New Year's bells,
Some happy news
Your music tells;
Thou art the chimes
Of wedding bells,
Chime on.

A home wedding occured at eight o'clock Monday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. Rader, on third St. when their daughter Miss Allie Murphy and Charles McDonald were married.

About one hundred relatives and near friends gathered to witness the service, and enjoy the happy scene.

The colors red and green were carried out in the decorations with holly and ropes of ground pine. Clusters of red carnations and American beauty roses in profusion were placed through the rooms.

Preceeding the wedding march, Dr. N. M. King sang "O Promise Me" very effectively. Miss Blanche Rader, sister of the bride, presided at the piano and played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the bridal party entered. The bride with her maid Miss Stella Jacobs entered the room preceeded by Miss Vera Rader and Master Clarence Rader, niece and nephew of the the bride; the former in beautiful white short sleeved frock, carried a white silk and lace pillow on which was placed the wedding ring, and the latter strewed flowers for the bride.

The groom with his best man, Mr. Guy Murphy, brother of the bride, entered the room by an opposite door. The bride and groom met beneath a canopy of green and white, when Rev. A. F Thompson, of the Methodist Episcopal churchread the impressive ring service.

The bride's dress was cream liberty silk trimmed in cut chiffon lace, and her boquet was cream roses. The bridesmaid wore organdie over silk.

Dainty and appetizing refreshments were served Al' Americane.

The presents were numerous and beautiful. Many pieces were in china, cut glass and solid silver.

The bride's present to her maid was a gold brooch, to Miss Vera a gold chain bracelet while master Clarence received a gold ring.

The groom presented his best man with gold band ring, his present to the bride.

The bride is a very popular young lady of Delano, and will be much missed by her many friends here.

The Howard Lake Herald is now edited by M. O. Menaige and published by H. S. Saylor.

Sheriff Nugent was stirring about the court house on Tuesday while the commissioners were in session.

Don't take any stock in a man calling himself a democrat who is not in accord with the party principles.

About two months more will bring the spring elections, Township and Village officers are to be elected. Be out and vote for good men.

The combination succeeded in securing the county printing at 75 per cent of legal rates, though other bids were much lower. The county pays the difference.

Dr. Shannon, who has one of the finest offices of any physician and surgeon in Wright county is doing his share of business. He is still firm in the Bryan faith also.

Politics at the County Seat don't appear to have assumed much form yet. Things are rather mystifying. It would suit the people much better if politics were pure, and not carried on in whispers, around dark corners.

Prof. A. P. Ritchie, of Cokato, would give any man the Republicans can put up a good warm run for Sheriff, and with his large and favorable acquaintance in Cokato would, doubtless, get his share of votes even there, where the Eagle claims they vote for Scandinavians first, last and all the time.

Look out for calls for primary elections. It want be a great while till they are called. Usually the first is the one to express your opinions as far as possible towards nominating a President and Vice President and toward shaping national politics. After that the thing is to get good honest men for state and county officers.

The Eagle in apologizing to Mr. Swanburg, the would-be Sheriff, for publishing that he "could arrest Barney McGuire or any other offender of Hiberian extraction" makes matters no better by saying. "If he said such a thing he didn't mean it—or rather said it jokingly." The Eagle is noted for putting it's foot in the pail every time the milk of human kindness permits it to "complemdnt" anybody.

County Attorney Pidgeon gave the County Commissioners some good, wholesome advice about placing on the list from which jurymen are to be chosen, only good, reliable men, such as any man on the board would be willing to have a suit of his own before, and said that political preferment ought not to influence choice of jurymen. We patiently wait to learn how many of the new jurymen are not republicans.

Wright county newspapers were well represented at the County Seat, Tuesday. There were present at the county commissioner's meeting. C. J. Buckley, of the Eagle; C. J. Carlson, of the Enterprise; T. J and A. G. Catlin, of the GAZETTE; Walker, of the Journal; S. S. Rank, of the Messenger; F. B. Lamson, of the Standard; C. A. French, of the Times; and F. W. Schmidt, of the Tribune. The Herald and the Advocate Post were not represented.

Several who felt so elated over actions of the County Commissioners as to pass the cigars to the crowd, were very much surprised to find three editors that don't smoke.

The full Board of County Commissioners were present at Buffalo Tuesday and organized for the New Year, by electing Thomas Hudek Chairman. Joe Enghouser was chosen janitor for the ensuing year. Chairmen of several committees were named, and the board settled down to business. Bids for printing were opened. A combination bid was offered by H. S. Saylor, of the Herald agreeing to publish in the Eagle, Standard, Enterprise, Times, and Herald, all printing at 75 per cent of legal rates. The GAZETTE and Messenger each had in bids for parts of the printing at much cheaper rates while the Tribune bid on all the printing was away below everybody else. The law allows the county commissioners the privilege of taking into consideration the amount of circulation and character of the papers and some of them claimed the combination bid, even if at a higher price would be better. To offset this Mr. Schmidt offered to furnish supplements to each paper not in the combine and claimed that this with the great saving to the county would make the bid in his favor. The board requested the newspaper men to retire from the room and they would take the matter under consideration and arrive at a conclusion.

ROCKFORD.

Jan. 1, 1900.

We wish you one and all a happy New Year. 1899 has passed away with all of its hopes and fears, its sorrows and sufferings, its woes and wrongs, its pleasures and prosperities. All has passed into history or oblivion, and we have before us the glad New Year, 1900. Let us take a few lessons from the past to assist in the future to avoid mistakes generally called misfortune, and that we have more pleasure than pain, more friends than foes, more happiness and contentment, and clearer consciences than we have had in the past. The year has passed away and with it the century, although we do not all agree to so regard it. The expansionist's want the past century to extend another year. If this is so we shall have a new principle and a new form of counting in the future If we wish to measure off say 10 feet we shall, before we commence, say one, and when the ten feet are measured we shall call eleven. This may be all right but to the man up a tree it looks like foolishness.

Amongst the numerous weddings during the past week are registered the marriages of William Carney and Miss Mattie Dravne, of Rockford; also Frank Hardy and Miss Sarah Gardner, of Rockford. The entire Drayne family went to Minneapolis on Sunday evening to make a Christmas visit to Theresa and attend Mattie's wedding.

Last Tuesday Sam Thompson went to Monticello with a team and a heavy load of machinery from Levi Thompson to Will Thompson, of Monticello, when going down the hill near the Monticello cemetery one of the whipple trees gave way or the bolt played out and the horses jumped. The wagon tongue dropped and Sam was jerked off his high seat and the wagon went over him, just how he does not know, only the marks tell. Both arms and one side were rather badly scarred: no bones broken except a small cap bone on the point of the shoulder, which makes a useless arm for the present. The horses and load went flying down the hill, over the rail road track, and were caught by Mr. Michaud as they were turning around a small barn in the village. Nothing about the horses, wagon, or load was harmed, and Sam is able to creep around today.

Mrs. Mary J. Farnham spent part of last week at Cokato visiting E. W. Farnham and family.

Mr. Herman Bugbee and his wife Mabel called on old friends and former neighbors on Christmas day. He is miller in one of the big flour mills at Minneapolis.

The star mail route from Rockford to St. Michael's station is reestablished and daily service ordered to commence Feb. 12, 1900. The people who worked so hard to have the route discontinued and the Loretto Bonanza established have found out their mistake, come to their senses and repented and have been forgiven. We can only say to Delano people who worked so hard to get the Delano and Rockford mail route discontinued, go thou and do likewise. But you did not get the direct route to Buffalo and then to Hanover and St. Michaels station and all just to out Rockford, and now it is too late, you had better come into the ring of good fellowship, pro bona publica, and have the mail route reestablished from Rockford to Delano, the East and the West, the North and the South of the county can then send mail matter to each other without having everything go through Minneapolis

Well we had a large number of visitors for the holidays and some went away, but to name them all as is quite the modern form of correspondence would not interest the general public.

The members of Star Lodge No. 62 A. F. and A. M., with visitors and invited guests had a very interesting meeting at G. A. R. hall on Wednesday evening the 28th. After the installation ceremonies which are as usual interesting, there was singing and music, short speeches, by D. R. Thompson, F. H. Johnson, F. H. Prior, P. H. Greear, G. W. Florida, and others, The hall was well filled and everybody seemed happy and interested. About ten o'clock the past master, F. H. Johnson announced that supper was ready in the lower hall. About 120 enjoyed a most excellent repast about 12 o'clock. The too old and too young and all those who had conscientious scruples about the fiddle and the bow or shaking the light fantastic toe went home, each saying, "We have had a grand good time". The sound of the music and the merry swirl of the happy boy with his sweetest girl was heard until the "we sma hours aninst the dawn".

THE administration don't seem to have any Philippine policy, or to know just what it is going to do about most important matters Perhaps they have concluded to turn affairs over to the other fellows.

AS LONG as the people rule the government is safe.—Willmar Argus.

Brother Wharton has the right idea. He probably remembers some of his early instructions; but having flopped, now writes favorably to an administration that prefers to rule the people, not only of this country, but of the islands of the sea. Let us have the good old way, Brother. Let the voice of the people be heard in the land, and their wishes have weight in the actions of their servants.

IT is wonderful how many "anarchists", "traitors," "antis" according to the g. o. p. definition, there are in the country. A short time ago Gov. Lind was hauled over the coals, by the city dailies, for having expressed himself as against the Philippine war. He was abused roundly. On Wednesday evening there came along company for him. W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, T. E. Ryan, of Wisconsin, and C. A. Towne and C. D O'Brien, and others expressed much the same sentiments, and Gov. Lind reiterated his views on the Philippine and the Boer wars, and the people, the house full of people cheered and shouted their approval of the patriotic sentiments.

THE Willmar Argus, in an editorial over a column in length, on "What of the Issue?" says: "In our country there is comparatively little difference between the principles of the two great political parties. There are two parties and there probably always will be". Then the tariff question is brought out and settled. Next comes "Free silver is not national but sectional" What can ail Brother Wharton now. Free Silver "not national but sectional"! "It is a question that effects some states in one way and other states in another"! Why, don't he know that in the last campaign it was not "national" but "internation al"? Is his memory so short that he don't know that the g. o. p. teachings were in 1896, that we can't have free silver alone? But only by consent of other nations, principally England?

Is the Argus getting a little off from the party principles?

Then again the lengthy editorial winds up with a good old democratic principle. "As long as the people rule the government is safe". Is Brother W. then tired, good and tired of the rule of boss Hanna; or is this bold declaration simply an outcropping of Jim's early training?

The Bryan Meetings.

William Jennings Bryan arrived on time Wednesday morning and put in one of his biggest days in Minneapolis. Ever since he became known in the North West, it had only to be announced that he would speak to get a crowded house. But on this visit, after all the leading dailies announcing that "Free Silver is Dead", "Bryanism is a Thing of the Past" and belittling all they could the efforts to hold a Bryan meeting. Wednesday evening found the big exposition packed to the top, and an interested audience listened to the matchless orator for an hour and a half, while Hon. T. E. Ryan, of Wis., and Charles A. Towne, of Duluth, spoke to the overflowing crowd that stood in the lobby of the West Hotel and cheered to the echo the words of truth as they fell from eloquent lips. The crowd was so great in the big hotel lobby that many had to seek the open air for breath. Never have we seen people more interested in politics than now, at the very opening of the campaign, and it was the generally expressed opinion, that if the election was to be held now that W. J. Bryan would be elected president, C. A. Towne, congressman, and John Lind to any office he might want.

The banquet at the West Hotel was the largest by two hundred ever seated in that big house. 800 plates were laid, and the speeches of all, though some were very short, owing to the lateness of the hour, in order to give way to others, were cheered and warmly received.

IT is claimed by some that we, as a free nation of free people, should, in the war between England and the Transvaal, sympathize with England because she is now fighting against what we once fought against, taxation without representation. The United States did fight against taxation without representation, when England tried it on this country. Our country succeeded. But the English can hardly make any but Englishmen, or English sympathizers, or those who do not understand the situation, see any parallel between the cause of war between the United States and England, and that between the English and Boers along this particular line. The Englishmen have gone into the Boer's country and secured control of valuable mines. They work them and carry off their gains to England, their homes Why should they not be taxed? If they do not have representation who is to blame but themselves so long as they refuse to sever their allegiance to Queen Victoria and become citizens of the Transvaal according to the laws of the land? Do Englishmen expect to own vast possessions in the Boers country, and, while refusing to take upon themselves any of the burdens of citizenship; refusing to join the army because they claim to be English subjects, expect to go untaxed, and to vote and have a share in running the government? If they do we think they are being rapidly convinced of their mistake.

Do Englishmen come to America and accumulate wealth, and vote, and take part in the government, without becoming citizens? Do they enjoy representation in this country without becoming citizens, or do they, when bound to be Englishmen, quietly submit to taxation without representation? Why should they expect more liberties in the Transvaal than in the United States? Is it not simply because they think they can overcome with force the smaller country?

They Agree.

GOV LIND says he is no Free Silver Republican But simply an Anti-Republican

C. A. TOWNE says he is a Free Silver Republican. The National Chairman of that party.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN is known all over as the leading Democrat in the world.

Yet all agree remarkably well on what is best to be done for our country.

The Hon. C. A. Towne says the Hon. Mark Hanna is trying to seat the Hon. William McKinley on a throne. If Mr. Towne doesn't change the burden of his song his bonnet will be so riddled that he won't be fit to loaf around the throne.—Dispatch Hot Tamalles.

Duluth Herald: When Andrew Jackson smashed the bank of the United States all the newspapers of the then great cities turned on him and declared that his defeat was certain In the next election, out of 288 electoral votes Jackson received 219, and his nearest competitor, Clay, rolled up the impressive total of 49.

Will He Answer?

(From the Pioneer Press)

Pittsburg, Jan. 10.—Pursuant to the order of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States the permanent committee on temperance has prepared a petition to President McKinley against the sale of liquor in the new territories, and this paper will leave Pittsburg for Washington with a prayer to the president that he look into the matter at once and give the committee some recognition of their action.

Hits the Nail on the Head.

A returned volunteer from the Philippines, writing to the Springfield Republican of the justification of the war on the grounds of "destiny or commercialism," says: "Few of the old soldiers who joined the army for the cause of humanity were anxious to shed their blood to open up on the grave of a republic a market for our beef, bacon, beer and beans." And he adds the pertinent remark: "The true patriot should be ready to die for his country, but the man who is ready to die for commercial expansion should come out and do the dying."—Litchfield Independent.

Patriotic Politics.

Only think of a man who counts three hundred millions as his earthly possessions; $300,000,000! owned by one man, while thousands of God's unhappily situated children cry for bread and the common necessities of life; $300,000,000 to help corner the products of human industry, while thousands are groaning under the unnatural burdens they must carry: $300,000,000 to ply the whip to pale, weak, consumptive women in the sweat shops, selling their lives for a bare pittance. Still the 25,000 miles of God's foot stool turns round each 24 hours, loaded with joys enough for a first class Heaven, and on the other hand, Hell presents a picture no more dismal. But he is dead, this man of such a colossal fortune. Can one suppose that this great Vanderbilt has got safely through the needle's eye?

Let us all wonder how long it will be before the administration will consider the Filipinos to be competent of self government. They are surely making mighty strides in that direction, if it is true that there are now 432 rum shops in Manila, while there was only two before the American forces arrived there? Some of our great evangelists say "This is God's war, and a holy war it is". If it is God's war, it seems awful that He should allow the curse of rum to take possession of those islands; but the scriptures enjoin us to "Give wine unto them that are heavy of heart".

I saw the picture of Washington's funeral, an event one hundred years old. One hundred years ago this December, the man that American history loves to honor most of all, died and was buried. The sun was setting when the sad ceremonies were concluded, but the dead man's fame is fresh in all loyal hearts today, nor has it yet reached its meridian. Thanks to our historians, there is evidence that such great hearted men lived, that Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and hosts of others, lived and breathed into our constitution the breath of life, and this breath still animates millions of loyal hearted men who love the nation our fathers left us.

There is a man of agricultural fame, a most eminent expansionist, who in his great wisdom said, "Our flag must not float over hen houses, nor be folded up and lain away".

There are other men too who are not expansionists, but who love the grand old flag as they do their lives, and who think our flag stands for greater principles than it is called on to represent. If it means anything it means liberty of body and mind It stood for human liberty when a handful of half starved men camped at Valley Forge, bare footed in the snows of winter, poorly fed and clothed, brave defenders of that principle that is God's voice speaking through every living man's soul, the magic word, Liberty! That dear old flag stood for a principle great enough to loose the shackles off from four millions of human slaves, who were an imported evidence of the white man's meanness. The dear old flag stands for protection of homes, for honor, virtue, for all that makes life worth the living; and cursed be the hand that makes it represent despotism and the awful power of human greed. Nor should this emblem of human liberty be used as an advertisement of the merits of any party of politics. And above all may Heaven forbid that our flag should float over harems and slave pens of Mahomedan polygamists of the Sulu islands. This only the opinion of a class of reformers; not popular.

If the crime of '78 was perpetrated in an underhanded manner, if silver was demonetized in so clever a manner that even members of Congress and others high in office did not understand the nature of the bill, did not know it was the entering wedge that would finally open up the gold standard, if all these evils were so well covered up, let me say this much to the credit of this present Congress and all combined, that the monster crime now contemplated is open and above board. This scheme by which nine hundred millions of legal tender money is destroyed, making the gold coin the only debt paying money of the United States, was not rushed through in the dark. The dear voters will have no one to blame in this instance. This financial villan was born in the quiet of the summer resort of "Atlantic City" and the papers published the fact at the time. The financial plank of the democratic party, to insure the party any measure of success, must be eliminated. It was considered a foul corpse and the sooner it was ruled out by demo pops the better would be their chances for success. But see what a lively time the gold standard party are making. Democracy enjoined to strangle the silver question, a measure that should be near and dear to every man that earns an honest dollar; while the enemy comes boldly to the front with a full fledged financial policy that puts the "crime" of '73 out of sight for meanness. We have not seen the beauties of the gold standard, as we can be made to see it, when the pinch comes. The republican party has waxed hot for tariff, high tariff, protective tariff, etc. But the figure head of the g. o. p. has blasted the hopes of protectionists and farmers as well With one fell swoop he has, or wants to ruin the interests of both parties under the heading of "Porto Rican Trade". The message says: "Our plain duty is to abolish all customs and tariffs between the United States and Porto Rico and give her free access to our markets". These new acquisitions to United States produce tobacco, rice, fruits and grain. They can furnish the trade, sugar combines, and all department of public pilferers with unlimited raw material, the product of cheap labor, and thereby beat down the prices of American production. The New York Press, organ of the imperialists, admits the gravity of the case, and considers it the great blunder if persisted in. The Press continues to say: "President McKinley has struck the heaviest blow at the American tariff system it has ever received from a republican. It is useless to deny this". This republican organ continues to say: "The presidents recommendation is an opening wedge to separate agricultural products which manufacturers receive. How long would Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, and Minnesota stand that" Our great (?) politicians that have in the past, pounded, expounded, and ten pounded the tariff racket had better look out how they take "Willies" last pill. 'Tis a free trade pill! furnishing raw material free of duty to the manufacturing combines. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson says: "These islands can be made to furnish nearly all the tropical products we import, which approximates two hundred million dollars yearly"

But as Christmas is so near to us, let us try and feel thankful for these great blessings Mr. McKinley has pointed out and the g. o. p will so earnestly ratify, i. e. gold standard, expansion, free trade, less money, trusts to the front, and no polygamy at HOME. A PATRIOT.

The Anti-clinker Base burner Bee.

I have noticed bees very closely indeed during my life. In fact I have several times been thrown into immediate juxaposition with them, and have had a great many opportunities to observe their ways, and I am free to say that I have not been so forcibly struck with the difference in their size as the noticeable difference in their temperature. I remember at one time sitting by a hive watching the habits of the bees, and thinking how industrious they were, and what a wide difference there is between the toilsome life of the little insect, and the enervating, aimless, idle and luxurious life of the newspaper man, when an impulsive little bee lit in my hair. He seemed to be feverish. Wherever he settled down he seemed to leave a hot place. I learned afterward that it was a new kind of bee called the anti-clinker base-burner bee. NYE.

A Hat Deposit in the Black Hills.

An old hunter was out among the Black Hills, east of town, last summer, hunting for cotton tails and sage hens, and he ran across a little gulch where the abrupt rocks closed together and formed a little atmospheric eddy, so to speak. There in that lonely reservoir he found what he at first considered a petrified hat store. It was a genuine deposit of escaped straw hats and plug hats that the frolicsome Zephyrs had caught up and carried for ten miles, until this natural hat rack had secured them. Of course there were other articles of apparel, and some debilitated umbrellas, but the deposit seemed to assay mostly hats.

THE INVINCIBLES.

With a uniform gay and a laugh that is glad
There comes every morning a brave little lad
To wake the alarm clock which lags by the way
And tell the whole house of the breaking of day.
The tune that he plays is the fav'rite 'mongst boys,
A small share of rhythm and plenty of noise;
He startles the dog and surprises the cat
As he plays on his drum, Major Ratatatat.

And following close with a faithful refrain
Is the brother, who whistles with might and with main
On his fife made of tin. And the tumult which falls
On our ears is enough to shake Jericho's walls.
He has never a fear as he hastes to the fray,
Where 'mid pillowed intrenchments his sire waits the day,
And vainly beseeches and begs him be mute.
Entreaties can't move Captain Rootytoo-toot.

They ask no assistance, these officers fine,
But play their own music when they are in line.
They are veterans bold. It is useless to scold.
The enemy's weakness they've tested of old.
In case of repulse fortune can't go amiss,
For amnesty straight is obtained by a kiss.
So you may as well yield when you hear the salute
Of Ratatatat and of Rootytootoot.

The News in the Extra

THEY were dancing, she with a reckless abandon of enjoyment as of one fully determined to drain to the very dregs the cup of pleasure that fate held to her lips with rather a grudging hand.

She loved dancing for the pure pleasure of it, with its accompaniment of lights, flowers, sighing, sobbing rhythm of music and the throb of hurrying feet over glistening floors. She loved it always, but best when his arm encircled her, when his quickened heart beat against her shoulder and his breath sent the lovelocks about her temples fluttering.

The brown eyes were looking down into the gray ones tenderly, appealingly. "Are you not just a little sorry that I am going?" their owner asked. "Tell me that you are just the least bit sorry to have me go and I can do anything, face any difficulty and surmount it to bring you back success. That I am going to bring you a loyal heart I won't promise, Marcella, for I am leaving my whole heart here in your keeping to treasure or cast away as you see fit."

Rather a long speech to be made in the whirl of a dance, but the young fellow was desperately in earnest and was making his last plea for what he thought his life's happiness. Marcella loved him he knew, but did she love him enough to wait until he had achieved fortune enough to justify him in making her his wife? All Marshalltown would have smiled broadly at the notion of Hamilton Stewart making a fortune. That he could and had made two rather large ones fly with great ease and dispatch was well known, but if he had ever made a penny by honest labor or otherwise the fact had never come to the knowledge of even his most intimate friends. Yet here he was, penniless and deeply in debt, asking one of the prettiest and most eligible girls of his town to love him and wait for him until he could win fame and fortune enough to wed her.

There was no denying that he was superbly handsome in his captain's uniform, to purchase which and his outfit he had parted with his last remaining acre, and Marcella was desperately in earnest when she promised to wait for him until the very last.

They had stopped dancing now and stood in the shadow at the end of the piazza, the scent of honeysuckle and monthly roses all about them, the moist air of the summer night robbing her hair of curl and the frills of her dancing dress of all their crisp freshness. Some of the girls who passed them half unconsciously envied Marcella. The devotion of the handsome captain, spendthrift and ne'er-do-well though he always had been and doubtless always would be. And many would-be suitors for the bright young woman's favor wondered secretly whether Marcella intended to waste her sweetness and her small fortune on such a worthless object as everybody knew poor Hamilton to be.

"We are wasting this lovely waltz," said Marcella after they had conjugated the verb to love through all its varying modes and tenses. "Let us have one more. It will be our last, I'm afraid, for many, many days."

Marcella and her chaperon were the last to leave and Hamilton had whispered as he tucked her into her little pony carriage beside her fat old aunt: "I'll see your grandfather a little later to-day," for then the first pink streaks of morning were beginning to show above the black line of swamp that bounded the horizon on either hand. It was already dawn ere the pony carriage reached home and Marcella could see her grandfather seated in his favorite chair on the gallery facing the rising sun, sipping his early coffee and ready to review the hands as they passed in a long straggling line before him.

"Well, and how was the party?" he asked as the two women came up the steps in the first beams of the very early sun.

"Oh, a success, as few farewell parties are. Each young hero was danced with impartially, by all the belles, blessed and bidden Godspeed and a safe return with victory, etc." She spoke in her usual bright manner, helping herself to a cup of the old major's steaming coffee the while, but the glances she stole at him were anxious and troubled, and she said nothing at all of the subject nearest her heart. Many of the young men, the flower of the county who had answered at once the call to arms, came over during the day to bid good-by to their old friend and neighbor, and among them young Capt. Stewart, brave in all the glory of glittering war paint. But his was a different errand and his heart almost misgave him as he followed the fat old negress along the wide, familiar hall of the major's home. He had proposed writing from camp, but Marcella had insisted on a personal appeal face to face. It was a bad half hour the young fellow underwent in the library that morning. He felt very small and foolish in his unworn shoulderstraps and glittering buttons, before the old warhorse who held him at his true value, and he heartily wished he had appeared as plain Hamilton Stewart instead of in his yet unmerited role of captain of company C. Under the best of circumstances the old major was not the easiest man is the world of which to demand a granddaughter's hand, and he listened now in grim, impassive silence as the gay young soldier made his rather stumbling plea.

"I don't mind telling you, sir," he answered, suavely, "that I have other views for Marcella. Ah, yes, other views which I believe offer much more assurance of happiness for her than the offer you are good enough to make, and if you please, my dear boy, we will say no more about it—especially to Marcella herself. There must be no vows, no promises, no nonsense of any sort. It is much better so."

The captain left the library angry and sore at heart and, from the parlor farther up the hall, Marcella darted out with big, anxious eyes and white cheeks.

"Never mind, I'll wait for you," she said. "I'll have you or nobody. I'll be true, true, true, no matter what."

And so she was, poor child, in her heart, but alas for the purposing of maids as well as of men. A few days later, by the strange ruling of heartless fate, the old major ceased to exist, and Marcella found herself compelled to face the knotty and often disheartening subject of how and where. There was nothing left when the necessary debts were paid, and don't blame her or call her forsworn when she gave her hand to a retired liquor merchant, very rich, very quiet and gentle in manner, and very nearly as old as the major himself. The Spanish-American campaign went merrily on. The eagle screamed and the stars and stripes floated in triumph. But short as it was, every step to victory was marked by the heart's blood of some woman—maiden, wife or mother.

Another revolution of the wheel of time, and a very short one, and fate again laid her hand heavily on Marcella.. She sat in her chamber—the very luxurious chamber of her husband's home—alone. Below in the big, dim drawing-room there lay in awe-inspiring silence the man who had called her wife. Three silent watchers sat beside the door, but the one knit to him by the closest human bond sat dry-eyed, patiently waiting until the last rites would remove him forever from her path.

She had fulfilled her promise to honor and obey. There had been a gentle, grateful deference always, but her heart had never ceased from straying among the parched wilds of Cuba, nor her eyes from scanning eagerly the meager accounts of the dreadful scenes of suffering through which the heroes were passing to hard-won victory.

"Extra! Extra!" strident voices cut the moist summer dawn, waking echoes along the silent streets. Marcella leaned from her window, with a quick gesture which was more quickly answered by a flock of ragged gamins swarming to the gate. Like a shadow she stole down, thrusting a piece of silver through the door and seizing the still moist slip of paper.

No need to look for details. They were blazoned in double-leaded lines upon the first page. "Battle of El Caney," with a meager account of the killed and wounded on the first count immediately after the fray.

Heading the list of the first in small capitals, which seemed to stand out from the others with awful conspicuousness, Marcella read: "Hamilton Stewart, captain, Co. C."

It is estimated that we have in this country 21,458,294 children of school age, and that 70 per cent. of this number are in school. In 1870 the percentage of children in school was but 61.5. The American people are not degenerating when they can show such a magnificent record as this.

The gondola has had its day of usefulness in Venice. A corporation has been at work for some time supplying the city's historic waterways with steam launches. It is only a question of time now when the palace of the Doges will have to make way for a skyscraper office building.

Among the men who have come to congress this session for their first term is Delegate Pedro Perea, of Bernalillo, N. M., who is one of the wealthiest ranchers of the southwest. Residents of West Hartford, Conn., have organized the Noah Webster Memorial association, the object of which is to erect a library building in that town in memory of the great lexicographer. Representative Roberts, of Massachusetts, has introduced a bill in the house which attaches a penalty of $50 to the desecration of the national flag in any way. It prohibits the printing of pictures of political candidates on a flag, or words, figures and designs of any kind. It also prohibits its use as trade-marks for advertising merchandise of any sort. Nearly all of the patriotic organizations of the country asked for such a bill two years ago.

A big salt mine operated by the Belle Isle Salt company at Belle Isle, Miss., was recently flooded, when the shaft penetrated a big spring, but an engineer has solved the difficulty. He will freeze all of the water in the mine by means of a refrigerating process, and will then cut out the ice. When the ice has been cut out near to the spring a dam will be built, and the spring will be permanently walled up. The company has so much confidence in him that they have given him $32,000 with which to carry out the work.

It is intimated that the census of Cuba will show a larger population in the island than was expected. Estimates from careful authorities on the ground put the number of inhabitants at about 1,500,000, which is 200,000 more than has been commonly supposed. Another fact which will cause general surprise is that the proportion of negroes in the island is found to be much smaller than has been imagined. The ratio, it is now believed, will be found much below that in Mississippi, South Carolina and Louisiana. We have already enough.

The science of surgery is accomplishing wonders. In Vienna a wonderful piece of work has been performed by Dr. Schroetter. A 12-year-old child swallowed a piece of lead as big as a half sovereign. It was located by means of the X-ray, the lead having passed the trachea and lodged in a bronchus of the second order. A bronchoscope was inserted and electrically lighted and then, with the X-ray still assisting, the piece of lead was pulled out by means of a specially constructed pair of pinchers. The operation was performed without pain.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Brien, who are now man and wife, but who before their marriage were brother-in-law and sister-in-law, came all the way from Liverpool to be united because of the English law which prohibits the marriage of a man to his deceased wife's sister. They were to have been wedded in Jersey City, but were in such haste to catch the first steamship going back that they did not wait for the five days required to elapse in New Jersey after the issuance of the license, and were married in New York by an alderman.

TRADE REVIEW.

The Situation as Viewed by Two Leading Commercial Agencies.

New York, Jan. 6.—Bradstreet's says: this week pending the results of annual "The business world has 'marked time' stock-takings and the passing away of the holiday influences which usually make for quietness at this period. Aside from the strengthening of values of a number of staples, such as the cereals, provisions and cotton, which are speculatively dealt in, there has been no decided movement forward, but, on the other hand, the strength of all other staple values point to there having been no backward steps taken. Perhaps the most notable movement among leading staples is that developed in hogs and hog products, a better realization apparently being had of the features making for strength in those products, notably among which being the reduction in the supply of hogs, which, like the similar falling off in the number of cattle, has gone on for a number of years past. That the advance in hog products is beginning to attract more attention seems evident from the extent to which this advance has had sympathetic reflection in the prices of wheat and other cereals, which really trace some of the strength which has been shown this week to that source. While stocks of wheat have fallen off in Europe and shipments thereto in December were the lightest recorded for many years past, still stocks have increased in this country to nearly as great an extent. In iron and steel quiet strength has, as for many weeks past, been the notable feature. A rather more aggressive feeling is noted at Chicago, where wire and nails have been considerably advanced, and bar steel, angles and channels have also moved upward. With the country's production sold ahead as heavily as it is there is naturally little or no immediate new business offering."

R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say: "Failures in 1899 were 9,396 in number, with liabilities of $123,122,679. The last days of the year added a few to the number and some millions to the known liabilities of firms and banks which failed close to the end, so that commercial defaults reached $90,879,889, of which $20,792,164 were in manufacturing, $48,924,771 in trading, and $11,162,954 in brokerage, promoting and other commercial liabilities.

"Most people in business have been so occupied with the accounts and the settlements of the past year that little new business has yet been done. No new tendency in manufacture or in trading appears, and less change than was anticipated in money markets. There is nothing unsound in the business of the great industries, but an extensive revision of prices may disappoint expectations.

"Wheat still moves very sluggishly, with small change in prices. In six months of the crop year about 99,000,000 bushels, flour included, have been exported, against 123,000,000 last year. Atlantic exports have now fallen to only 2,069,926 bushels for the week, against 5,214,429 last year, and Pacific exports were 531,225, against 614,823 last year. The price is practically unchanged, as also for corn, of which 3,923,195 bushels have been exported for the week, against 3,572,412 last year.

"Failures for the week have been 273 in the United States, against 243 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 24 last year."

BATTLE AT IMUS.

Loss of the Enemy in the Engagement Estimated at 60—Otis Outlines the Situation.

Manila, Jan. 8. — Reconnoissances out of Imus, Cavite province, Sunday morning resulted in the loss of three Americans killed and 20 wounded. The enemy's loss is estimated at 60 killed and 80 wounded. Col. Birkhimer with a battalion of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry advanced toward Noveleta. Maj. Taggart, with two battalions of the same regiment, moved toward Perez Das Marinas. A part of the Fourth infantry was engaged south of Imus.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The war department has received the following from Gen. Otis:

"Manila, Jan. 8.—Bates pursuing enemy in south with vigor; Schwan's column moving along shore of Laguna de Bay struck 800 insurgents under Gen. Noriel at Binen on the 6th inst., and drove them westward on Silang, captured place, from which point cavalry pushed through to Indang. Schwan captured three of Noriel's six pieces of artillery, and will take remainder; also his transportation with records and large quantity of ammunition, two battalions of the Twenty-eighth, part of Wheaton's column, struck enemy near Imus yesterday, killing and wounding 140. Birkheimer, with battalion, struck enemy intrenched west of Bacoor yesterday morning; enemy left on field 65 in dead, 40 wounded and 32 rifles. Our loss thus far Lieut. Cheney, Fourth infantry, and four enlisted men killed, 24 enlisted men wounded. Expected that Schwan's troops will cut off retreat of enemy's Cavite army. Wheaton moving to-day on Das Marinas. Boyd, Thirty-seventh infantry, moved east from Las Banos, surrounded troops of Gen. Risal at daylight, capturing Risal and considerable property. It is expected that Cavite and Batangus provinces will be cleared up soon. In the north Leonhauser, with three companies, on the 25th attacked robber bands in Arayat mountain; dispersed them, destroying their barracks and subsistence; found there five of our prisoners, whom they had picked up on railroad; three killed, two seriously wounded. These northern robber bands will be actively pursued."

A Terrible Deed.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 5.—While in a fit of rage Charles Root, a farmer living in Texas township, Thursday afternoon cut his wife's throat and then his own in the presence of their two children, who notified the neighbors of the killing. The eldest is only eight years old and can give no intelligible account of the tragedy, except that his parents had been quarreling. The clothing of the children was spattered with their parents' blood. The couple had had frequent troubles before.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9. — At noon in the rotunda of the state capitol Hon. George K. Nash was inaugurated governor of Ohio, succeeding Asa S. Bushnell. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Shauck, of the supreme court, following which Gov. Bushnell presented the new governor with his commission. Gov. Nash then delivered his inaugural address. Lieut. Gov. John A. Caldwell, of Cincinnati, was inaugurated in the senate chamber during the afternoon.

A bill appropriating $75,000 for the purpose was immediately passed. The bill lacked one vote of the two-thirds necessary to give it immediate effect.

Found in the Lake.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 9.—The disappearance of Sister Augusta, of the Order of St. Mary, from Kemper hall in this city, on last Tuesday evening is no longer a mystery. Shortly after noon Monday the body was found floating in Lake Michigan near the southern boundary of Kemper hall grounds. Chaplain Maryon stated that there was no doubt that Sister Augusta had taken her own life, and assigned as the cause a fit of temporary insanity.

ATTACK IS REPULSED.

Gen. White Succeeds in Holding Ladysmith—Boers Driven Back at Point of Bayonet.

London, Jan. 8.—A special dispatch from Frere camp, dated Saturday, January 6, 7:20 p. m., says: Gen. White heliographs that he defeated the Boers this morning. They crept up so close to the defending forces that the Gordon highlanders and the Manchesters actually repulsed them at the point of the bayonet.

London, Jan. 9.—The following dispatch from the front was posted by the war office Monday afternoon:

"Frere Camp, Natal, Jan. 8.—The following is from White, dated two p. m. Sunday:

"'An attack was commenced on my position, but was chiefly against Caesar's Camp and Wagon Hill. The enemy was in great strength and has pushed the attack with the greatest courage and energy. Some of the entrenchments on Wagon Hill were three times taken by the enemy and retaken by us. The attack continued until 7:30 p. m. One point in our position was occupied by the enemy the whole day. But at dusk, in a very heavy rainstorm, they were turned out of this position at the point of the bayonet in a most gallant manner by the Devons, led by Col. Park. Col. Ian Hamilton commanded on Wagon Hill and rendered valuable service. The troops have had a very trying time and have behaved excellently. They are elated at the service they have rendered the queen.

"'The enemy were repulsed everywhere with very heavy loss, greatly exceeding that on my side, which will be reported as soon as the lists are completed.'"

London, Jan. 9.—Telegrams from Rensburg say seven officers and 30 men of the Suffolks were killed and that about 50 were captured. Gen. French's announcement that the Essex regiment has been sent to replace the Suffolks is more bitter to the latter's friends than the list of casualties, as the only inference deducible from this fact is that the Suffolks disgraced themselves and their flag by bolting and leaving a few of their more stanch comrades to fill the Pretoria jails.

Durban, Jan. 8.—The German steamer Herzog has been seized by a British warship and brought to this port. The Herzog is known to have aboard the Belgian Red Cross contingent, which was to be disembarked at Delagoa bay and sent to the Boer lines.

The siege works, zigzagging in toward the city in an effort to mine and form a breach in its defenses, are also shown.

GEAR THE NOMINEE.

Iowa Republican Legislative Caucus Names Him for Reelection to the Senate.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 9. — Senator John Henry Gear was renominated by the republicans in joint caucus Monday evening. A. B. Cummins' name was not presented because it had been determined that defeat was inevitable. Senator Gear was therefore nominated without opposition. The senatorial election will take place on Tuesday next, when the houses will meet separately and ballot; and on the next day they will meet in joint convention and take a joint ballot. The democratic caucus named Fred E. White, of Webster, as democratic candidate for senator and he will receive the compliment of his party's vote.

The Twenty-eighth general assembly opened its sessions Monday and the two houses effected formal organization. Dr. D. H. Bowen, of Allamakee county, was elected speaker of the house without opposition, the democrats presenting no candidate. Committees were appointed to count the ballots in three contested election cases, involving the seats for which Byers, of Shelbyville (rep.); Scott, of Ida (rep.), and Cottrell, of Plymouth (dem.), hold certificates.

REV. DR. M'GLYNN DEAD.

Prominent Catholic Clergyman Passes Away After a Long Illness at Newburg, N. Y.

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, rector of St. Mary's church, died at the rectory at 5:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon, after an illness of about seven weeks of heart failure, superinduced by Bright's disease.

Dr. McGlynn was first stricken with illness on November 16 at the rectory. He was seized with a severe cold and was compelled to seek his bed. Though he was obliged to break engagements to lecture, no alarm was felt by his friends until the following Monday, when he suffered a severe chill. The first serious attack occurred November 26, and a day or two later there was a consultation of physicians. It was announced that Dr. McGlynn was suffering from chronic kidney disease. Early in December Dr. McGlynn suffered two attacks of heart failure and his relatives were hurriedly summoned. He rallied, however, and until Saturday night he appeared to be holding his own and gradually regained strength. He was able to sit by his bedside for a few minutes each day, but was never able to leave his room. Dr. McGlynn was 62 years of age last September. When he was stricken he was robust and of fine physique, but he became greatly emaciated by his long illness.

The father and mother of Dr. McGlynn came to New York in 1824 from County Donegal, Ireland. In 1837 Edward McGlynn was born in a house in Third street, between Second and Third avenues. He was one of 11 sons and daughters, and of the entire family only one, Dr. McGlynn's brother, in California, is now living. At the age of 14 years Archbishop Hughes had him sent to the College of the Propaganda in Rome, where, after a long course of studies, he was ordained, March 24, 1860, in the Church of St. John of Lateran.

Dr. McGlynn early developed a line of independent thought which was destined to make him trouble within the church for the upbuilding of which he incessantly labored. He was seldom in full sympathy with the teachings of the authorities of the church regarding questions of public policy. His opposition to the parochial school system was a striking illustration of his independence. He never hesitated to declare his belief that Catholic children should be educated in the public schools. He also deemed it his duty, as well as privilege, to engage in politics.

Dr. McGlynn's participation in the municipal campaign in this city in 1886, when he expressed his sympathy with the single tax teachings of Henry George, who was then a candidate for mayor, was regarded by the vatican as "pernicious activity." Archbishop Corrigan admonished him that his course did not meet the approval of his ecclesiastical superiors, but Dr. McGlynn nevertheless remained an active worker in the cause until election day. After that he was summoned to Rome, but refused to obey the papal summons. To him was granted 40 days in which to comply with the order and defend himself before the vatican. In July, 1887, he was excommunicated, being notified of the action by Archbishop Corrigan.

For six years Dr. McGlynn remained without the church, and during that time his conduct was such as to inspire the greatest admiration. At no time did he rail at his fate or denounce those who had brought disgrace upon him. He continued his work of charity among the poor, and never forsook his position of independence. In 1893 the ban of excommunication was lifted from his shoulders, but it was more than another year before he received a church. On Christmas day, 1894, he celebrated mass for the first time since his excommunication, and on the following New Year took charge of the parish of St. Mary's, in Newburg, where he had 2,000 souls under his charge. After this his life was uneventful, though filled with the hardest and most useful work.

It is said the estate which listed about $8,000,000 when the will was probated, now figures up nearly $14,000,000.

TWO MEAN TOWNS.

Stories Told by Traveling Men About a Couple of Decidedly Poor Places to Live In.

They were talking about bad towns.

"The meanest place I ever was in," said the man who travels for a Chicago house, "is down in Massachusetts. Say, do you know what happened while I was stopping there once? A man had fallen through a hole in the sidewalk and sustained injuries that resulted in the loss of his right arm. He sued the city for damages, and the case was tried before a jury, which, the papers said, was composed of representative citizens. Well, what do you suppose they did to him? Brought in a verdict in favor of the city, holding that inasmuch as he was left-handed his injury didn't amount to anything."

"Yes," the cigar man said, "that's a pretty mean town, I admit, but I know of a worse one. This place is in Pennsylvania. An acquaintance of mine down there was injured some time ago in pretty much the same way the man you mentioned got hurt. He fell on a bad sidewalk and lost one of his legs. He sued the city, and didn't get anything. I never heard just why, but probably because the jurors didn't believe he needed more than one leg in his business, seeing that he was a barber and couldn't hone a razor or shave a man with his foot anyway. But wait, I haven't come to the point at which the real meanness developed. Being a poor man, he couldn't afford to buy a cork leg, so he had to get along with a wooden peg, and one day while he was crossing the principal street this peg in some way got wedged between a couple of paving stones right in the middle of the street car track. It took them nearly an hour to get him loose, and what do you suppose happened then? Blamed if they didn't go and fine him ten dollars and costs for obstructing traffic!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

Matrimony on Small Capital.

A Wilmington clergyman tells of a Philadelphia couple who came to him to be married one day. When they left the boat at the Fourth street wharf in the city they had but five dollars between them. Nevertheless, the groom called a cab and ordered to be driven to the city hall and then to the nearest minister. At the city hall he paid $3.60 for a marriage license, which left $1.40 to pay the cabman and to fee the minister. At the latter's house the cabby demanded $1.50. The groom replied that he did not have it, and the driver compromised on a dollar, leaving 40 cents for the minister. The groom, however, was not done buying, for he stepped into a near-by store and bought an envelope for a cent. In this he put the remaining 39 cents, and after the ceremony handed it to the minister. How the newly-married couple got back to Philadelphia is a mystery. —Philadelphia Record.

Knew It Was in Lehigh.

A certain Pennsylvania Sunday school teacher was questioning her class. "Where was Christ born?" she asked of Willie. Willie pondered awhile and finally announced: "Mauch Chunk." "Mauch Chunk!" screamed the teacher. "You ought to know better than that. Why, little Georgie knows where Christ was born. Where was Christ born, Georgie?" And the treble of the four-year-old answered: "Beth-le-hem." "That's right," said the teacher. "Well," said Willie, pouting: "I knew 'twas somewhere on the Lehigh Valley railway."—Chicago Chronicle.

Railroad Building in Africa

The Dark Continent Being Developed Because of the Greed of European Nations.

THE greed of Europe is building railroads in Africa. The competition for African territory has become so keen between the European nations that each is striving to do its utmost to exploit and protect its title to the territory it has claimed. To do this the nations are building railroads through their African possessions.

For the past few years the world has watched with interest the growth of the "Cape to Cairo" railway project of England, which has been developing under the masterful hand of Cecil Rhodes, from the south impelled by the craze for territorial aggrandizement, and from the north under the guidance of Gen. Kitchener as a military necessity in connection with the conquest of the Soudan.

But while the world has applauded the efforts of Rhodes and Kitchener, and the completion of each new section of the English project is heralded throughout the entire civilized world, there are other railroad projects of almost equal importance to the continent of Africa that are being pushed slowly forward and of which the world hears practically nothing.

One competitor for the world's favor of the English project is the Trans-Saharan railway that the French are working upon, and which will in time penetrate the wastes of the Sahara desert into the very center of the continent and form an outlet for the vast stretch of country which France lays claim to. Both Tunis and Algeria are lined with railways along the Mediterranean coast, the total mileage in the two countries being 2,361, and from these coast lines there is now building under the patronage of the French government a line that shoots straight south across the desert to a point more than 1,500 miles from the Mediterranean sea. When this line is completed it will practically connect the French possessions of the Mediterranean with her possessions of Central Africa and along the Atlantic coast, and would forever set at rest any dispute in relation to the territory through which it passes. In a portion of its report to the French minister of commerce the Marseilles chamber of commerce says:

"This year we have to mention profound modifications in the power and expansion of the five great nations which direct the world — that is, England, Russia, the United States of America, Germany and France. These five seek everywhere to make their influence supreme. The present year will be marked by the entrance of the United States as a colonial power which wishes its part in the division of the world. France pursues its African march from the Atlantic to the Red sea and rubs against the British project of connecting Cairo and the Cape. The great fact which holds attention is the effort being made to exploit these possessions without delay by the construction of railways."

Germany is using the same means of exploiting her African colonies both on the east and west coasts of the continent. In her possessions on the west coast there is now being built a line from Walfish bay straight into the interior for a distance of close to 500 miles to Windhock, and the question is being agitated of continuing the line through to connect with the English line building north from the Cape. Railroad construction in German East Africa has not progressed as rapidly as it has in the western colony, yet it has been decided to build a considerable number of miles of road in that colony, and when once these lines are completed they will open to the world a rich and productive country, including the territory around Lake Victoria Nyanza and Lake Tanganyka.

In addition to the great English project of a line from the Cape to Cairo the English colonies are still ahead of other African colonies in the construction of lines of railway and are being developed more rapidly in every way. Of all the nations in Africa, Italy is about the only one that is not pushing the matter of railroad building, but her possessions are so small that their lack of railroad facilities will not retard the development of the continent to any appreciable extent.

It is greed for territory that has induced the nations of Europe to undertake the construction of these roads. The map of Africa has been changed almost an innumerable number of times in the settlement of disputes between the nations of Europe. Choice possessions have been lost to almost all of them at different times because of no tangible evidence that theirs was the first right to such territory. Nation is crowding nation in the race for empire, and to hold the territory once acquired each nation is building railroads as a tangible proof of their occupation.

The accompanying map gives one a good idea of the railway projects of Africa. Many of the lines shown here are but now nothing more than possibilities for which the people of the different nations are clamoring; many others are but short lines built with no other object than to serve as proof of occupancy by the nation claiming sovereignty. But it will be but a few years before this system gives way to a systematized construction of railroads that will open Africa to European civilization, the attacks of which the dark continent has withstood for centuries.

The following table, prepared by United States Consul Skinner at Marseilles, France, shows the mileage of African railways, with the exception of the "Cape to Cairo" project, that are either in operation or under construction at the present time:

A RAILROAD MAP OF AFRICA.

Our own country is deeply interested in the matter of railroad building in Africa, for we are supplying much of the material that is being used in their construction.

SOLDIER DISCHARGES.

Army Authorities Take Steps to Stop the Appeals of Relatives of Men in the Philippines.

Army authorities have become incensed at the ridiculous excuses which are sometimes trumped up by the relatives and friends of soldiers who wish to evade military service and who desire their premature discharge from the army. Gen. Miles has decided to discourage this system of securing favors, especially as it appears that in many cases the reasons given are spurious.

At least, it is Gen. Miles' name which appears at the foot of a letter which has been sent to Gen. Otis and other department commanders, which says:

"In view of the fact that many applications for discharge of enlisted men are received at this office, based on statements that the parents, sisters, brothers, etc., are sick or that for some reason since their enlistment their relatives have become destitute, which condition in many cases existed when the men enlisted, and which statements are frequently found to be false and only used in order to enable the men to be discharged and then enlist in other regiments, the major general commanding the army directs that officers to whom the applications are submitted should not favor them nor forward them, as a rule, unless they have first obtained proof of the statements or are otherwise convinced of the truth thereof."

Another Mystery.

"I have never yet," she said, "heard of an elopement that turned out for the best."

"Then," he answered, "I suppose you would never consent to elope, for, of course, you would not wish to rush into unhappiness with your eyes open."

"Well," she murmured, "you know it is always the exception that proves the rule."

He didn't argue the point, and yet he was almost sure when he went home that she was mad at him for something. —Chicago Times-Herald

OPENING GUN

FOR 1900—W. J. BRYAN AND THE JACKSON DAY CELEBRATION.

The Great Minneapolis Banquet and Exposition Rally—Twin City Political Factions Lead to Governor Lind's Determination to Refuse a Renomination—Government for the People, of the People and by Them, Shall Not Perish From the Earth—National Chairman Jones' Tribute to the Reform Forces in Minnesota—Here and There With People and Leaders—The Week's Resume of State and National Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
St. PAUL, Jan. 8, 1900.

ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIER!

The Anglo-Saxon Christians, with Gatling gun and sword,
In serried ranks are pushing on the gospel of the Lord;
On Africa's soil they press the foe, in war's terrific scenes,
And merrily the hunt goes on throughout the Philippines!

* * * * * *

Then onward, Christian soldier! through fields of crimson gore,
Behold the trade advantages beyond the Open Door!
The profits on our ledgers outweigh the heathen loss;
Set thou the glorious Stars and Stripes above the ancient Cross!

—William Lloyd Garrison, Boston.

By the time these lines are before state readers all "roads to Rome" will lead to Minneapolis for the greeting to our great chieftain, Hon. W. J. Bryan, or be filled with the enthusiastic hosts returning to the battle for Americanism for which, at the dawning of the new year, there are so many omens of victory. For the benefit of those who may receive this letter before it shall reach all the press, as well as for indication of what the occasion has been, the following authentic statement of the programme is made:

Mr. Bryan comes on the invitation of the State League of Democratic clubs, of which William Banquet Baldwin is president. He will speak at both banquet and Exposition meeting, those programmes being so arranged as not to conflict. Mr. Baldwin will say the word of welcome at the banquet, and his honor, Mayor James Gray, will act as toastmaster. Banquet speakers will be Mr. Bryan, Governor Lind, National Committeeman Thomas D. O'Brien, Hon. J. E. Ryan of Wisconsin, and Hon. Charles A. Towne.

It will also be widely known that Governor Lind has fixed and announced his determination to retire from political action, and not to be a candidate for re-nomination. It will probably be quite well known what has led Governor Lind to this course. Suffice it to say that it is due to the governor's desire for better things than bickerings and quarrels over appointments to office, and the aversion he has to association with that class of men who see in the public service only what there is in it for them, regardless of the great good of the general public. It is no secret that from the time of retirement from congress he steadfastly turned his face from political action, and only yielded on each former occasion to appeals to duty and conscience for service to the state he so dearly loves. This he feels that he will have fully discharged by the close of his term.

It is easy to imagine what will be the feeling of the people throughout the state, when they understand what the governor has undergone during the past year, and realize the result of Twin City factions and dirty politics.

The first gun for 1900, and how do you like it?

Our distinguished visiting statesmen, Senator Jones, General Stevenson and General Hardin, before returning home met the local Democracy of Hennepin, called together by Chairman Elijah Barton. To the writer each visitor expressed his satisfaction of the political situation in Minnesota, as he had had opportunity to judge it. Senator Jones highly complimented those at the front of our organizations, and said that there was not a state in the Union in as good shape as Minnesota, in his opinion.

We have received from Hon. Erving Winslow, Eastern secretary of the Anti-Imperialist League, the proof sheets absolute of the criminality of the McKinley administration in causing the Philippine war. The witness to prove this terrible arraignment is Otis, whose official reports reveal that McKinley's proclamation of "sovereignty" caused the outbreak, and that Otis, hoping to allay the suspicions of the Tagals, actually suppressed those words from the president's proclamation so as to deceive the Filipinos and make them think our government really intended to give them independence until such time as we were ready to prevent any outbreak. General Otis says he endeavored to do this, but the truth leaked out through General Miller, a subordinate, who used the real proclamation, hence the outbreak. All is fully proven by the official documents, and it is these, we have no doubt, that Senator Pettigrew aims to place before the senate. Was such infamy ever before known?

The Boers, with a population of 150,000 souls have 50,000 soldiers, while England, with 40,000,000 people, has 80,000 soldiers in the field, and more may be coming. But the Boers have more than soldiers, or people, or gold—they have God and liberty on their side.

Patriotic and liberty-loving St. Paulites are afire with the pro-Boer sentiment. Very little Toryism in the Saintly City. Likewise fewer and fewer Imperialists and other supporters of vicious McKinley policies.

The Reform forces of St. Paul, determined to wrest the city government from Republican hands that have disgraced the city, are making ready for the spring campaign. The disposition on all hands to sink personal differences and to unite with the one fixed purpose of overthrowing the mis-rulers, is most encouraging. There will this year be but one battle cry with Democrats of all shades, with Populists and with independents, namely, "St. Paul must be redeemed."

As the case now stands, Republican "feenanciering" will close the St. Paul public schools long before the close of the school year, as the Minneapolis G. O. P. did last year. Out with it!

Wabasha did not have an election—only a bank failure. Another bank gone Republican.

The total failures from the recent panic footed $216,000,000, including losses from shrinkage in stocks, and yet the "commercial reports" scarcely referred to the matter, and their weekly and monthly aggregates of failures were only about the normal. How perfectly reliable, to be sure.

In the list of concerns recently taking the gold standard treatment was the far famed proprietors of "St. Jacobs' Oil," failing for $2,000,000. Great is the gold cure! For it beat St. Jacob's Oil.

The regular organization in Kentucky seems to be distinctly in it. Blackburn returned to the senate and Goebel taking the Republican governor's place, will be a good start for complete redemption of "Old Kaintuck" in November.

Secretary Gouge's report claims reduction of the national debt $5,000,000 in December. Let's see. He bought $25,000,000 of bonds (debt) in December. Hence, instead of actually reducing the debt by that sum, it has considerably increased.

The petition to this great and good administration for pardon for members of the Fifteenth met with a deaf ear. Our good friend Major Elwin would have succeeded better if laboring for release of counterfeiters and syndicate swindlers.

Secretary Gouge has been forced by the storm of protest to withdraw the "million a day" favor to the Rockefeller bank, but has nevertheless gone ahead distributing the government money to the pet national banks. There is $20,000,000 of this, in a single month, which money the banks have without a cent of interest, to loan out for as big interest as opportunity will allow. How long, oh Lord, how long?

Admiral Dewey has done himself and his new wife out of the finest thing of their lives by not accepting the St. Paul Carnival invitation.

Can it be that Tams Bixby has come and gone, without a single recruit for the Oklahoma boarding stable? He might have taken the disappointed editor of The Dispatch.

That brave old fighter for the people, Blackburn of Kentucky, has the congratulations of every liberty-loving Minnesotan, on his return to the senate.

Aforetime they said, Oh that mine enemy would write a book. Now, up in the Seventh district, it is, Oh that he would get mixed up in a government building site tangle. Apply to one Eddy for particulars.

In the death of Nelson Williams of Minneapolis, humanity lost one of its noblest friends, and the Republican party added another to its many sins of commission; for poor Williams undoubtedly died of a broken heart, from having been deprived of the postoffice appointment. Promised it by Knute Nelson, and as Mr. Williams said, by McKinley himself. Loren Fletcher needed the appointment in his business, and poor Nelson Williams went to his grave the victim of party ingratitude and broken promises.

Appeal to Reason points out that, as the only raise in wages has been, as a rule, by those corporations which have immensely raised prices of their products, there has in reality been no raise in effect. Thus, if the wage raise has been 10 per cent. and the product raise 20 per cent, the effect has been a reduction of 10 per cent. As a matter of fact the raise in all articles of consumption has been many times 10 per cent. and in general there has been no salary or wage increase. Without any doubt the great toiling masses and the smaller dealers and small salaried classes were never so badly off in this country as at the present time, if the real facts were known.

In boosting the prices of stoves the concerns are explaining that trust articles are the cause, the following advances having been made in articles used by stove manufacturers, since the last stove raise, six months ago:

Materials.	Per cent
Pig iron	125
Copper	81
Wire	132
Pipe fittings	111
Oils	00
Steel	100
Tin plate	76
Nails	170
Bolts	111
Rivets	110

Every article given is trust controlled and prices arbitrarily raised at will. How do the people like this?

The state dairy department's "Happy New Year" is devoted to continuing the enforcement of the pure food laws, without "fear or favor." With reference to the baking powder "war," the department will simply enforce the law as far as it is possible to do, and in so doing will have no intention of favoring one side or the other of the contending interests. Suspicious.

Stranger—Do you know a man around here by the name of Brown?

Man in the Door—Er—tall man?

"Can't say; you see, I never met him. I am an attorney and a rich relative of his has died and left him a fortune."

Some Are So Clever.

"Is it hard to propose to a girl?" asked the novice in affairs of the heart.

"Sometimes it's a good deal harder not to propose," returned the man of worldly experience, thoughtfully. "It's always well to be on your guard."—Chicago Post.

Protection at Both Ends.

A nervous drummer, who carries with him wherever he travels a coil of rope, was asked by the landlord of a small hotel up in Shasta county what the rope was for. "That's a fire escape," explained the drummer, "and I always have it with me so in case of fire I can let myself down from the window." "Seems like a pretty good idea," said the landlord, "but guests with fire escapes pay in advance at this hotel."—San Francisco Wave.

How It Sounded.

"My daughter's music," sighed the mother, "has been a great expense."

"Indeed?" returned the guest. "Some neighbor sued you, I suppose?"—Boston Traveler.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The State Capitol.

The new state capitol has reached a point up to the roof beams. Its cost to the present time has been $1,094,960.98. This was one development of the recent meeting of the commission. Architect Gilbert in his regular report informed the members that the mark set for the contractors had been reached, and that all the work contemplated thus far had been completed with the exception of two small portions, the rotunda piers and the arches of the front wall of the south pavilion over the main entrance.

Mr. Gilbert reported that the roof beams were largely set, the roof trusses over the chamber of the house of representatives are mostly in place, and practically all the iron and steel work involved in the present contract is either in place or delivered on the grounds.

During the past year 65,086 cubic feet of marble have been set; of granite, 399 feet; of Kettle River sandstone, 28,592 feet; there are now 2,833,919 common brick in the wall and 1,159,969 sewer brick; 698,599 pounds of iron and steel work have been placed, and 880,289 pounds have been delivered.

The commission is already to commence preparations looking toward the letting of the contract for the marble dome.

Peculiar Accident.

John Little and Louis Werth were severely injured in an accident in Minneapolis. The mishap was a very peculiar and unusual one, and to all appearances unavoidable.

Shortly after 6 o'clock, a Fourth avenue car was moving along near Fifth street, when it struck the outstretched pole of a fuel wagon. The wagon was backed up against the curb, and the horses were unhitched. It was dark and the motorman was unable to see the danger. As the pole struck the front vestibule, it was pushed aside, and then, with considerable force, it swept through the windows in a line with the heads of the passengers.

Mr. Little's head was struck by the pole, and he was knocked insensible. A gash four inches in length was cut in his scalp, laying bare the skull. Mr. Werth was injured in the same manner, but not so severely. Both men were removed to their homes.

Gift for the Governor.

Governor and Mrs. Lind were presented with a silver tea set by the governor's friends in the state government. The ceremony took place at the state capitol, and the presentation speech was made by James F. Jackson, secretary of the state board of correction and charities. A large number of state officials and politicians was present.

The set, which is solid, includes a large tray and six pieces. The governor's monogram and the state flower, the moccasin, are to be engraved in the various pieces.

A Suicide.

The body of Knute Larson, a farmer living in the town of Queen, a few miles northeast of Crookston, was discovered hanging by a rope attached to the limb of a spruce tree, a half mile from his home.

Deceased was a bachelor, about 45 years old, and lived alone, a brother occupying an adjoining farm. Larson had been melancholy during the winter, and particularly so of late.

People passing his place noticed his absence and an investigation showed his stock was uncared for. His brother was notified, and he summoned the neighbors, who aided him in a search of the premises, finding the body as stated.

Not Anxious.

Minneapolis members of the old First Regiment of the National Guard, and of the Thirteenth Minnesota Regiment, do not seem to be very greatly interested in the orders issued by Adjutant-General Lambert, Saturday, which indicate a desire on the general's part to reorganize the old National Guard regiment from among the members of the Thirteenth, weeding out those members of the old regiment who did not respond to the call for troops for service in the Spanish-American war.

REED AND HIS MUSTACHE.

The Man from Maine Was Proud of It Till a Barber Did It Up for Him.

"The members of the last two congresses will recall the smooth-shaven visage of former Speaker Reed," said an old attache of the house to a Times reporter the other day. "And the older members will likewise remember that Reed at one time wore a mustache of a few straggling hairs, so often seen on the upper lips of extremely fleshy men. How Mr. Reed parted with his hirsute apology can best be told by a certain barber in the house of representatives who attended to that gentleman's wants.

"One day the big man from Maine settled himself in the barber's chair and requested a shave. When the operation was completed Mr. Reed straightened himself and asked: 'Have you any of that old-fashioned pomade to wax mustaches with?'

"The barber hustled among his pots and jars and produced a French preparation in vogue a quarter of a century ago, and then proceeded to wax the ends of the Maine statesman's few wirelike hairs.

"When the man of snap-shot sentences arose and contemplated himself in the glass he turned to the astonished barber and said: 'Cut this blanked-blank mustache off, for you have made me look like a confounded catfish.'

"Since then Mr. Reed has not worn any covering beneath his nose."—Washington Times.

His Card.

A commercial traveler on his trip called upon a well-known chemist. He was nervous as he put his hand in his pocket and handed out a card.

"I represent that concern," said the young man.

"You are fortunate," replied the chemist. The commercial traveler was encouraged and said:

"I think so, sir, and the chemist who trades with us is even more so. My firm has the finest line of cosmetics in the country."

"I shouldn't have thought it," slowly responded the man of medicine. "Her complexion looks natural."

And he handed back the photograph which the young man had given him by mistake. He took it and left without waiting to make any farewell remarks.—London Tit-Bits.

England's Armored Trains.

The magnificent armored trains used by England in her war with the Boers will transport her troops, protect bridges and telegraphic communications in about the same way that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drives dyspepsia from the human stomach and then mounts guard that it does not return. The Bitters has won in every case of indigestion, biliousness, liver and kidney trouble for the past fifty years. It is invaluable at all times.

He Is Tamed Now.

About two years ago a fairly well-known young man of this town who, in the days of his bachelorhood, was addicted to the habit of conversing through his head-covering, was delivering himself oracularly on the subject of the duties of paternity. "A man who'll wheel a baby carriage," he perorated, loftily, "is a triple-plated, quadruple-expansion ass." One Sunday afternoon lately he was observed—all of the customary earmarks of sartorial economy distinguishing his make-up—placidly trundling a perambulator through Lafayette park. A huge, fat baby goo-gooed in the perambulator, and a little lady with a bulgy, home-made bonnet walked at his side. Silence is ready money, and there's a lot of pathos in the spectacle of a tamed man.—Washington Post.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK]

NEURALGIA

I do not know how to express how wonderful I think your "5 DROPS" medicine is. I was suffering intensely with NEURALGIA and thought for a month that I would have to die. One day a lady called to see me and brought me an advertisement of your "5 DROPS." I resolved to try it and sent for a sample bottle. Have been taking it for three weeks and have not had an attack of suffering since I took the first dose. I believe it has saved my life. This statement is positively true. I shall also take pleasure in recommending your "5 DROPS" for the cure of NEURALGIA. L. R. SMITH.
El Dorado Springs, Mo., Nov. 27, 1899.

RHEUMATISM Your "5 DROPS" came to hand on the 11th of last month and was glad to receive it for I was suffering at the time with untold agonies. I had severe pains all over my body, when night came I could not sleep. The worst pain was in my left leg. I could not put my foot to the floor without suffering great pain. Have used four different kinds of medicine for RHEUMATISM and got no relief until I got your "5 DROPS," which gave me immediate relief as above stated. —Clark Sturman is doing an enormous well business in Rockford. He is more often found in that vicinity than at home.

—George P. Schaffer has been appointed administrator of the late William McKinley's estate and guardian of Mrs. McKinley.

—The roads cannot be better than during the past two weeks, through the country: there being no dust, snow drifts, or chuck holes.

—The public schools opened up on Monday with several new pupils, and with a new teacher, Miss McCartney, of Fergus Falls, in the grammar room.

—Don't forget to attend the election of trustees of the Delano Cemetery Association, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 22, if you are interested in the matter.

—Fairday, Saturday, January 6, was warm and the ground dusty. A large crowd of people came to town and considerable business seemed to be going on.

—About twenty five young people were invited to the home of Miss Mary Eppel on 4th street last Saturday evening where they had an enjoyable time in the usual games.

—Quite a number from Delano visited Minneapolis Wednesday, and some of them attended the Bryan lectures. They pronounced the lectures excellent and the biggest crowd of all.

—The unsightly old shed attached to the Bruggeman building has been removed. Some enterprising parties ought to buy that corner and erect a good business block. It is a good corner.

—Delano has had two great treats this winter in the lectures of Rev. R. Forbes and Dr. Mitchell. Many of our citizens would be glad to hear other able men lecture. A regular course would be a good thing.

—Electrician Muckey is quite a genius, and a very industrious man. He has been working at spare times during the winter on a useful device which he has nearly completed, for savin oil and labor. It is an automatic oiler for his engine and machinery at the power house. It will pay machinists to call on him and see the device.

—This is a remarkable winter for Minnesota. Pansies bloomed out doors in December. Bees are humming about in January. And four men out hunting report having killed a garter snake about a foot and a half long crawling along the road on the sunny side of a hill near Mud lake, Hennepin county, last Sunday, January 7, 1900.

—Fred Kespohl, town clerk of Franklin has resigned his office and gone to Duluth to engage in business with his brother William, in the manufacture of artificial limbs. William has been at the trade for several years and has worked up a nice business. Both men are hustlers and will, doubtless, take a leading position in their line, in the Northwest.

—Hon. B. F. Christlieb, of Los Angeles, Cal., saw our reading notice three months subscription to the Review of Review for 25 cents, and promptly took advantage of the offer. Mr. C. writes that he is in about his usual health. He don't brag any on the fine weather there. As he has read the GAZETTE we presume he is not prepared to claim any better weather than we have had this winter.

—The County Attorney in Hennepin county is going for saloon keeper's bondsmen, for any breaking of the law they may do. In Delano some of the bondsmen often go into saloons on Sunday, themselves, and in other ways are familiar with the fact that the men on whose bonds they are, are repeatedly and openly violating their obligations. Some of our business men's commercial rate would be higher if they were not liable for saloon keepers violating the law.

—Mayor Lomiller a few days ago placed in our hands a letter from a firm in Chicago that is interested in establishing factories in the northwest for canning corn, apples, berries, squash, pumpkins, or any other cannable goods. They would like to establish a factory here if our people would interest themselves in it. The creamery pays why would not a canning factory that takes care of much that is now neglected pay also? Perhaps we will hear more about the matter later on.

—Rev Jenks gave up his protracted meetings here this week on account of sickness.

—Some claim that the first year of time was counted the year nothing (0). Can they point out in history a single incident that occurred in the year 0?

—Mrs. A. F. Thompson acted as substitute for Miss Agnes McCartney who was sick Tuesday, as teacher in the grammar department of the Public School.

—Col. P. H. Greear prides himself as being among those who secured platform tickets to the great exposition speech of Wilham Jennings Bryan. The Col was in his glory.

—There will be services at the M. E. Church on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30 P. M. There appears to be a spirit of revival in the air. Delano needs it, everybody knows.

—From one of our country contemporaries we clip the following card of thanks: "I take this method of thanking my friends and neighbors who so kindly aided me on the loss of my horse".

—The Enworth League will hold a dime social at the M. E. parsonage next Friday evening, Jan. 19. Everybody come and have a good time, and see how the building looks without a mortgage on it. A short programme which is not wholly made out, will be rendered. The programme as it now stands is as follows:

Song by the League.
Solo — Miss Mollie Maxfeld.
Recitation — John Catlin.
Song — Miss Beth Shrader.
Recitation — Miss Cotton.
Solo — Miss Mabel Young.

—The Forrester Lodge gave a large and successful cinch party in the Odd Fellow's Hall last evening. There were about forty couple playing; all striving for the prize, with varied fortune. There was nearly an hour passed in social chat before the game was started in motion by master of ceremonies, Borsch. Shortly after 11 o'clock the game terminated and the prizes were given. Mr. Day and Miss Webber took first prizes and J. Catlin and Catherine Shaffer the booby prizes. Excellent refreshments were then served by a corps of the entertaining Forresters, acting as waiters. Everybody had a good time and pronounced it an unusually successful social event.

—The Eagle is devoted considerable space to the discussion of what century we are living in. One of her correspondents this week has an article tending to prove that it is the 19th century. His argument is good, but also proves the necessity of sticking to facts if we would not further mix people up. The correspondent says: "To make myself better understod, I will say, that 1899 full years and eleven days have passed since the beginning of the first day of the first January, after Christ was born". Of course the arguer did not intend this statement as a mater of fact but simply as an illustration, But on the subject under discussion "What Century is it?" too many such illustrations tend to mix rather than straighten out the matter.

—A case of small-pox was found on Tuesday, at the home of F. W. Wandersee on the Montrose Road. The town authorities promptly quarantined the premises. Small-pox for the past year has been prevented in many parts of the United States, probably carried by the soldiers and others returning from other lands. Owing to vaccination, and other causes most of the cases have been extremely light, but a few deaths being reported from the disease. Yet there are enough to convince medical men of the correctness of their diagnosis. Pennsylvania's health department reports 900 cases with but 7 deaths. Ohio claims 1800 cases with but 30 deaths. People exposed or living near cases should be vaccinated and guard against the spread of smallpox.

Personal.

Miss Rosa Belt returned to Buffalo Monday morning.

John McGary was among the guests at the banquet.

Mrs. A. E Johnson took a trip west Thursday morning.

Ole Bekman and Jo Merriman visited Minneapolis Wednesday.

Hon. Nathan Warner, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor Monday.

Miss Grace O'Hair left Saturday afternoon, for her school at Wheaton.

Tom Lanway and Jim Johnson returned from the Woods last Friday.

P. H. Greear, after his holiday visit left for business again last Saturday.

Sam Coffin returned to the city last Saturday to pursue his studies at the "U".

C. G. Roosen, Dr. T. J. and A. G. Catlin attended the banquet in Minneapolis.

Elmer Babb and Alfred Peterson returned from their work in the west Wednesday evening.

Mrs. M. A. Chance visited relatives and friends at Howard Lake several days this week.

John Brandser made a trip to Fargo, Bermidji, and other points where he had friends, this week.

Tim Hitsman did not attend the lecture in Minneapolis, Wednesday, but never-the-less made the trip.

Joe Burnick again throws the bright rays of his smiling countenance up and down the streets of Delano.

County Cullings.

Sheriff Nugent attended the meeting of Democratic County Chairmen, at Minneapolis, Wednesday. He did not remain to the banquet.

Delano enjoys a foot ball game on New Year's day. Evidently our sister burg has an enthusastic lot of young folks.—Howard Lake Herald.

Howard Lake Herald:—And the Great Northern is again threatened with a strike. We believe this road is troubled more from strikes than any other in the northwest.

Moses E. Clapp dont suit some of our county members of the g. o. p. as a candidate for governor, he is opposed to the English trying to wrest from the Boers their little Republic.

The 3rd district, composed of Woodland, Rockford, and Franklin towns, are to elect a county commissioner at the next election. Voters should be making up their minds who will be the best man for that position.

Among Wright county democrats in Minneapolis, Wednesday were J. C. Nugent, of Buffalo; Messrs Tanner and Berthiaume of Howard Lake; Madigan and O'Laughlin, Maple Lake; Wilder, Monticello; Reems, Frankfort; Quinn, of Waverly; Catlin and Merriman, of Delano.

Now that the campaign is on it is time to select men for candidates for legislative and county offices. Select the best. The legislature should be in accord with the governor as nearly as possible in order to have good laws passed. Compromise laws seem to be worse than some that have friends and enemies both.

The committee of the County Commissioners appointed to count county funds, reported on hand $2,377 90. In banks $24,763.52: a grand total of $27,151.42. At the begining of the year, when accounts are all settled, and the tax gatherers are just starting on their tour to collect more this looks like a good deal of money to have deposited in Wright County banks; in Howard Lake, Waverly, Cokato, Monticello and Annandale.

People along the Soo line seem to be in poor luck this winter. It is claimed that cars can hardly be got for shipping flour, wood, and other products of that fertile region. Consequently many team to the line of the G. N. Can it be possible that there is a combination among the R. R's. to bring about this state of affairs? It is a trifle suspicious looking, as a road would hardly sit idly down and see its trade leave if it could help it.

Willmar Tribune:—Riley prayed that the war might speedily be terminated with peace and the soldiers would safely return. The imperilists tried to kick him out of the pulpit because they could not or would not say amen.

ROCKFORD.

Jan. 8, 1900.

The annual meeting of Elmwood Cemetery Association, of Rockford, was held at G. A. R. hall on Monday evening, Jan. 1, present G. W. Florida, President D. R. Farnham, Secretary, M. G. Waren, others absent. Meeting called to order by the president. Minutes of the last meeting read and approved. Secretary's report of last years business read and adopted. Treasurer's report read and adopted showing in treasurer's hand at last annual meeting $106 71; received during the year $39 00; total $145 71; expenses in 1899, $7 75 In treasurer's hands at this date $137 96 D. R. Farnham was elected secretary for the term of three years. On motion of D. R. Thompson it was voted that the board of trustees be instructed to have the cemetery grounds mowed and cleared off once in each month from the first of May to November and twice a month if necessary to keep down the grass and weeds. On motion of F. E. Warner it was voted to instruct the board of trustees to have new posts or stakes set at the corner of each lot; the posts to be of good solid white oak 2½ feet long, 2½ inches square, and set in the ground 1½ feet; painted two coats and the numbers of the lots painted on each post.

G. W. Florida has still another car load of flour ready for shipment, but freight cars on the Soo seem to be a rather scarce article. Somebody is waiting and grumbling every day for cars, cars, cars, to ship wood and for many other shipments.

Rev. George F. Wells, of Hamline, editor of the new prohibition paper, the Backbone, held a prohibition meeting at the Methodist church on Wednesday evening, Dec. 27. The lecture was on, "The Saloon Must Go". Well yes, let it go. We have no particular use for it and have not had for the past fifteen years, but the foundation of the saloon evil is the intense love of money, the rabid desire to accumulate, on the part of the money man, the distilling brewers and liquor dealers generally, assisted by the banker, manufacturer, and merchant generally. The laborers, mechanics and farmers do not send lobyists to Washington to work for the canteen in the army and navy; neither do they send money and men to St. Paul to corrupt, influence, and bribe the state legislature to save the saloon. Let the Backbone strike at the foundation and not say that the farmers, and laborers, and mechanics are the only supporters of saloons.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5, 1900.

As soon as Congress reassembled the hammering of Secretary Gage for his favoritism in depositing government money in national banks was begun. Senator Allen and Representative Sulzer offered resolutions calling for all letters telegrams, agreements etc., between the U. S. Treasury and the City National Bank and the Hanover National Bank, of New York City. Mr. Sulzer's resolution was referred to the committee on Ways and Means, and Mr. Allen's is on the table of the Senate. The hammering will be continued.

Senator Chandler, who is one of the republicans who acknowledges fear of the committal of his party to the single gold standard, has offered an amendment to the gold standard bill, now before the senate, providing for more attempted bamboozling in the shape of a continuance of the alleged efforts to secure international bimetallism.

Senator Hoar gave the imperialists in the Senate quite a scare when objections were raised to Senator Pettigrew's resolution asking the secretary of War whether it was true that Aguinaldo had sent a flag of truce to Gen Otis the day after the fighting of our men began, with a message saying that the fighting started through an accident and asking his co-operation to stop it, and Otis had replied by saying that the fighting must continue, by saying: "If there is to be an absolute suppression of all requests for information concerning the war with the Filipinos, I shall object to the taking up of other matters during the morning hour when such resolutions are pending."

Senator Allen put a quick stop to the rumor that he was to be brought out by the Nebraska fusionists as their candidate for president, by declaring that he was not a candidate, would not be, and would not accept the nomination if it were unanimously tendered to him. He clinched it by adding: "Mr. Bryan undoubtedly will be the candidate of the democratic, populist and free silver parties for the presidency, and Nebraska will give him a united, active delegation to all three conventions." Senator Allen also took occasion to say that there was absolutely no foundation for the stories of trouble in the fusion ranks because of his appointment to the Senate; that his appointment had been determined upon by the governor before Mr. Bryan knew anything about it, and that the relations between Mr. Bryan and Mr. Hitchcock and himself were of the most harmonious character, and would continue so.

Their may be a minority report from the Roberts committee, not concerning the polygamy of Roberts, which is regarded as having been proven, but on the right of a member of Congress with proper credentials to be sworn in. Most democrats have been of the opinion from the first that the proper way to proceed was to swear in Roberts and then take a vote as to whether he should be expelled from the House. The same opinion is held by many republicans, but their party organization is so rigid that they are not likely to vote their convictions.

When orders issued this week by the War Department are carried out the U. S. government will own and maintain two lines of ocean steamships, one from San Francisco to Honolulu and Manila, and one from New York to Cuban and Porto Rican ports. In view of this, it would seem to be about time for the republicans to stop calling men who believe that the government should own all transportation lines cranks. If it be right and proper for the government to own two steamship lines, what would be wrong about its owning all the railroad, steamship and telegraph lines if the people so willed?

Instead of squaring the administration with the users of hemp cord and rope, Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn's two contradictory statements about the war in the Philippines having nothing to do with the present high price of hemp, have served to direct the public attention to what looks like a scandal involving the War Department, or some of its subordinates. How the thing looks to outsiders may be judged from the following remarks of Mr. L J. Powell, a Hong Kong business man who is now in Washington: "The surprising inactivity of the U. S. War Department in the matter of opening the hemp ports in the Philippines is hard to understand. With the price of hemp more than 400 per cent above the normal, and the whole supply in the hands of a few wealthy speculators holding on for a still greater advance, it will be a hard year for the wheat growers and shipping men. American farmers use $10,000,000 worth of binder twine each harvest, and if the bill should be swollen to two or three times that figure no doubt there will be some lively kicking from them. It is openly charged in the East that some of the military authorities in the Philippines are on the friendliest terms with the speculators who have cornered the market, and are representing that to open the ports and ship out hemp would put money in the insurgents pockets. This is absolutely a false statement, for all the hemp now stored at blockaded ports is owned by American and English merchants. There are no insurgents in the vicinity of many of the closed harbors, yet the military authorities refuse to let reputable merchants remove their property."

THE EIGHT OF ELANDSLAAGATE.

The Natal Mercury, an English colonial paper relates an incident of the battle of Elandslaagate, Oct. 1899. The fire of the British guns was getting two hot for the Boers. Eight Boers suddenly ran forward out of cover, and coolly opened fire on the Imperial Light Horse, evidently for the purpose of drawing the British fire, while their companions changed their position. Seven of the eight men were instantly killed.—PRESS-DISPATCH.

Thunder of hoofs and a bugle's cry
And down through the velt came the British Horse—
Down with a rush on the burgher ranks
With a whirlwind's sudden force.

Maxim and shrapnel had done their work—
Only the charge was needed now
Only the light Horse sweep and Dash
To clear the kopjes brow.

Shouting of men and neighing of Steeds,
Beating of Hoofs like an angry sea,
And on, in one long wave of red,
Came England's Cavalry!

An instant yet and the knoll is theirs—
An instant yet and and the little band
Will be swept and whirled by the red simoon
Like a breath of desert sand.

When suddenly stepped from the shelter rocks
Eight burghers—eight in their hero might—
And there they stood as a single man
To meet the awful fight.

Down came the thundering mass of horse—
But see! where the eight are standing there.
Eight rifles gleam, eight rifles flash
Red death upon the air!

Ah, little thought they—eight mortal men—
To stay that onward surging tide—
Only for one brief moment's space,
To turn its rage aside:

To turn its rage while their comrades slipped
Through fate of numbers, tho' not of will,
Back to the Laagar stanch and grim,
Where Joubert held the hill.

A mighty crash from the charging troop—
For the burgher eight a sheet of flame—
And, where they stood, but one was left—
Sole hostage unto Fame!

Yet now ye know—yea all men know
That—live or die—the great Veldt breeds
As did the Switzer crags of old,
Old freedom's Winkelreids:

Undaunted sons who scoff at fate,
Rough children of Afric Rand—
Yet firm as are the eternal hills
For God and native land! —J. J. ROONEY.
FROM LITERARY DIGEST.

THE wrangling over the expansion ideas of the Administration, in Congress, are not very elevating to the rising generation.

"WHOM the Gods would destroy they first make mad". Somehow the g. o. p. is getting terribly mad. Why, they even want to lynch men who dare refer them to the Declaration of Indepen dence, as a measure for some of their doings.

THE name of Winston, who lately took occasion to write some, for the newspapers, that was contrary to the belief of the democratic party, was not cheered much in comparison with the ringing cheers for John Lind, who said, very firmly, that he was anti-republican.

CHRISTIANIZING the Filipinoes. How can it be, when we are sending them saloons by the hundred, and regiments of soldiers without chaplains? Under the circumstances people have a right to think such things necessary in order to keep up the appearance of war.

IF the great dailies can't do better than misrepresent W. J. Bryan, C. A. Towne, Gov. John Lind and others and try to belittle the vast audiences that crowded to hear them, and cheered what they said, the great dailies had better quit now. Thousands attended the Minneapolis meeting and heard for themselves the positions taken, and witnessed the enthusiasm.

MEN go about the country insisting that we are at war with the Filipinoes. But when they are asked who declared war? they get mad and call the inquirer a traitor. Others say the Filipinoes are rebels and ought to be killed. When asked how they became rebels to our government when they never took allegiance to it and never belonged to it, they pronounce all kind of unpleasant, bad names upon the interlocutor. But, they claim, we came into possession of the Philippines through war with Spain and we bought them for $20,000,000. If Spain owned the islands and the people and we bought them we should have the goods. But after conquering, and buying, being obliged to kill them off looks like a bad bargain, to a big majority of the people of the United States who respect the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of our country.

IT is absurd to suppose that the Boers whose prayers ascend to heaven before and during and after each battle and whose music is Old Hundred, and who are fighting and praying for freedom are going to be forgotten right away.

"NAPOLEON MCKINLEY" rung out on the ears, and glared in the newspapers at voters over this country during the last campaign. "Napoleon" isn't mentioned in connection with the name now. Oh, no! It's kept very quiet. But, then, actions sometimes speak louder than words.

TALK about christianizing the Filipinos. Why the most ordinary Filipino would blush to think he had degenerated enough to belong to a nation whose law makers indulged in such ungentlemany language toward each other as some of ours have, recently, and whose newspapers cartooned the leaders of the nation as some of the American press of today does: not to mention the American's example of drunkenness that is being set for them in their own land.

THE Pioneer says C. K. Davis is mentioned for second place on the McKinley ticket. He has been "mentioned" for first place for several years. But then Senator Nelson is, at present, a weak sister, and something must be done to save the state from Gov. Lind and his anti-republican followers. So it may become necessary for Cush to take the vice presidency in hopes to hold the old reliable state in the party lines. How shaky the administration must feel in Minnesota. Then there is Pennsylvania, usually so strongly republican has the convention. Are they afraid the Quay dealings will loose them the Keystone state?

SOME of the hidebound double distilled and dyed in the wool members of the g. o. p., not of Lincoln, and Blaine, and Chas Sumner, and others of that stamp, but of Marcus Hanna, Matthew Qnay, and a few more manipulators who want to establish an Empire have evidently, got their orders from headquarters quite recently that they must choke down their patrotism still farther and swallow the mess they are preparing for them. They have even begun, some of them, to talk against the patriotic efforts of the Boers to shake off the tyrannical oppression of their would be rulers, who, just now, tread in the shoes of Old King George and from whom our forefathers won that matchless boon, liberty, which has been handed down to us to this day, and whose price is eternal vigilance.

THE thousands of Minnesota's voters and others who listened to William Jennings Bryan's great speeches on the 10th inst at Minneapolis can, and will, ably resist the attempt of the hireling, dailies that attempt to make people believe that he is, camelion like, of the color, politically speaking, that suits his hearers. He distinctly and decidedly announced himself as favoring the Chicago platform of '96, and as being opposed to trusts and to militaryism, or imperialism. What more could the best democrat ask of him? Don't be misled by harum scarum editorials by young men who are writing for a present living and not for the hereafter, and by some silly pictures better fitted to comic almanacs than to great daily newspapers, representing leading citizens as horrible ghosts, or Uncle Sam himself as a cigaret fiend. Away with such politics.

Religion of the Boers.

Considerable has been said about the religion of the Boers. They were the early settlers of Cape Town, and the Encyclopedia Britanica says of the religion of that place:

The greater number of the Protestand denominations of the United Kingdom, as well as the Roman Catholic Church, are represented in Cape Colony. The Dutch Reformed Church, as might be anticipated from the early history of the country, is by far the most numerous community. In form of government and in order of service it closely resembles the Church of Scotland, to which country a considerable number of its ministers belong. The Church of England has, perhaps, the next smaller number of adherents. In 1847 a bishop of Cape Town was appointed to preside over this church, whose diocese extended not only over Cape Colony and Natal, but also over the island of St. Helena. Later, however, separate bishops were appointed for the eastern province (with the seat at Graham's Town) and for Natal. Wesleyan Methodists nearly equal the Anglicans in number, and have a larger proportion of colored people in their body than any other sect. The Congregationalists, including Independents and Baptists, are an important body. Lutherans, Presbyterians, and other Protestant communities, such as the Moravians, are in smaller numbers. The Roman Catholics have bishops in Cape Town and Graham's Town, but are comparatively few. Government provides an annual grant for ecclesiastical purposes, which is distributed among the various religious bodies, the Congregationalists alone declining to receive aid from the state. According, however, to the provisions of the "Voluntary Act," recently passed, the grants in aid are to be continued only to present incumbents. There are besides several foreign missions in the colony, the most important being the Moravian, London, and Rhenish missionary societies. The Moravians have been established there since 1732, and have labored hard to convert the native races.

Gained General Griggs.

Admiral Sampson has gained a point with Attorney-General Griggs, who holds that he took part in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, and is, therefore, entitled to a share in the prize money; but the status of Sampson's case with the public remains just the same.

General Griggs. He's the man we read of that decided that the canteen has a place in the army.

Appeal to the American People.

An appeal to the American people irrespective of political conviction, creed or Nationality has been printed in circular form signed, Fritz Koch, W Steward Smith, and Theodore F. Koch, St. Paul, Minn., and sent out over the state asking people generally, to express their opinions in regard to the Boer war. The circular states that Paul Kruger, president of the Transvaal Republic, when pressed by the British last summer, replied "I will give you all, all, all except Independence," but that Mr Chamberlain was bound to crush the Boers and settle the Afrekander question forever.

It is claimed by the circular that the intention is to have the public opinion of this country, so strongly impressed upon the British as to aid them in coming to the conclusion they had better cease hostilities.

Political Pointers.

Jan. 16, 1900.

Things continue as they were since the Bryan meeting in Minneapolis, with the exception that they look brighter than before. Would say that since hearing Bryan, Towne, Gov. Lind and other prominent speakers I have had my spiritual strength renewed somewhat. There is a possibility I think, that the ins may go out.

Would say before hearing Gov. Lind speak I was a little skeptical toward him, but now I think our state need not be ashamed of him as the chief executive of the great state of Minnesota. When I say great state of Minnesota I mean it though it has never had but one democratic governor, but we have had thousands of good republicans who have been true and loyal to the state and worked for its interest, yet in many things we do not agree.

But I am willing to concede there is good and bad among all classes and in all parties. But let the state of Minnesota be republican or democrat it has a nearness to me that can never be removed. Its hills, its valleys, its woods, its people, after a lapse of 44 years, have endeared themselves to me as were the hearts of David and Jonathan knit together. In politics and religion we do not all see alike, but I hope all of us are for the common good, and that all people may be free and equal This is in accordance with the Divine law.

I can not agree with those who believe in the expansion theory, it is not right to subjugate a country and its people without cause or provocation bring them under military rule and make them subservient to our will without their consent. If this is a righteous war as some claim it is then it would seem our righteousness does not exceed the righteousness of the Sadducees and the Pharisees for neither of these were right.

I have always been a strong believer in the principles of the constitution of the United States and the declaration of Independence. We find embodied in that masterly document, the Declaration of Independence, these words "To secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed". If this has been a guide to us a nation for more than one hundred years in the past, why should we deviate from it now. There is no one who thinks more of his country than I do and none who would be more willing to fight for its flag and its free institutions than I when assailed by a foreign foe at a time of my country's peril, but this sing song tune that keeps going the rounds of some of the daily papers every few days about patriotism and loyalty to the flag is only from the mouth out. It has no meaning or feeling to it and is like singing psalms over a dead horse. It creates within me a nauseous feeling at times and serves as an emetic.

The daily press is good for many things. It tells the people how much it knows about everything and I suppose it wants them to believe everything it advocates regardless of party affiliation, but I fear their sins of omission and commission will be piled so high against them in the day of Judgement that Jacob's ladder would not reach in sight of the top. I feel the time has come to throw sectarian principles aside and go for the principles that will be for the benefit of the masses. I know that money is about the only thing that talks now days. It seems that money can make or unmake whatsoever it will. If money is ahead of principle and righteousness then our republic and its free institutions are in danger. If the leaders of our country sacrifice principle and right for filthy lucre, then our country's free institutions are in peril. Now, Mr. Editor, if the swaggering politician and chief buglers of partisan politics would learn the first rudiments of civil government and the constitution there would yet be hope that some good thing might come out of Nazareth. 16 TO 1

Clearwater was the scene of a sad and fatal accident on Tuesday. Eugene Mitchell, the 13 year old son of Mr. and Mrs Eugene Mitchell, living about a mile from the village, was playing during recess from school near by. They had made merry go round by affixing a pole on an upright stick in the ice and while he was on one end of the pole three of his playmates were on the other. When they suddenly jumped off the pole he was thrown to to the ice and the sweep of the pole caught him beneath the chin. The jugular vein was severed and he bled to death in a few minutes before his teacher and playmates who were powerless to aid him Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell are inconsolable in their grief. --Howard Lake Herald.

DAYBREAK ON THE FARM.

There are songs for those who listen
Just at daybreak, on a farm,
While the dewdrops glow and glisten
And the dawn-clouds add their charm.

Gentle lowings from the stable,
While the patient cattle wait
For the filling of their table;
Plaintive bleatings from the gate,
Where the sheep have flocked together;
Merry cackling from the pens,
Where in spite of wind or weather
Music fills the throats of hens.
There are neighings low and tender,
There are whinnies of delight,
And the pigs their tribute render
For another peaceful night.

There are songs for those who love them,
Potent both to cheer and charm
All about, below, above them,
Just at daybreak on the farm.

Innocence at the Play.

By Kennett F. Harris.

THEY were Black hills men, and had as a matter of course "taken in the show." When a Black hills man by any chance finds himself in a town of consequence he invariably inquires of the hotel clerk—in whose judgment he has a childlike faith—which is the best in town, and, being informed, goes there. He takes a keen interest in the Thespian art and comes to its exposition with a fresh receptiveness of spirit that is touching in its simplicity. He is not critical. He approves of the circular-saw drama and is not ashamed to be thrilled when the slow music plays and the deserted heroine makes her farewell speech as she stands on the bridge spanning the cold, silent river in the light of the large, irregular moon. He is quick to applaud noble sentiments, equally quick to condemn vice, and his warm sympathies quite frequently carry him away, when he declines to remain a passive spectator of injustice or villainy. Three well-authenticated instances of this were related by the Black hillers in question.

They were discussing the performance, and one of them, a southern hills deputy sheriff, had to defend himself against a charge of having shed tears during one of the most affecting scenes. "You must think I never seen a show before," he said, indignantly.

"No," replied the Rapid City lawyer; "you probably sprung yourself for a private box at the Gem some time when you were in Deadwood."

"There ain't no reason why he shouldn't weep if he's a mind to," said the cattleman. "That ain't making a rough house, like Charlie Neebo did in Kansas City when him and Ed Blakey was up there together."

"Was that Blakey, the sheriff of Fall River?" inquired the deputy.

"Sure," said the cattleman. "Charlie Neebo has got a ranch down near Oelriehs. You know him, too, if you think a spell. He wears a red sash when he's dressed up, and there ain't nobody around there wants to tell him he shows poor taste. He'll fight at the drop of a hat, and he's mighty decided in his views and sudden in inforcin' 'em. Him and Ed went up to Kansas City an' took in some show where there was a woman who was trying to get her husband to lay aside his base suspicions an' fill up the woodbox as oncet he used to do. She was down on her knees, an' Ed says it was sure a pathetic thing.

"'Speak to me, Claude,' she says; 'speak! Turn not coldly away! Say you believe me! Speak, for heaven's sake! Oh, speak!'

"Her feller doesn't pay any attention to her, but folds his arms and looks ugly at the leader of the orchestra. The woman has still got her hands clasped, an' her back hair is down. She says once more:

"'Claude, darling, speak!'

"And still the man hasn't got nothin' to say. Charlie Neebo had been stirrin' around in his seat sort of uneasy. When the woman makes the second appeal he says to Blakey: 'I'm goin' to declare myself in right here.' Then he jumps up, pulls his gun an' throws, down on Mister Man. 'Say, you,' he hollers, 'there's a lady talkin' to you! She wants you to speak. Now speak, darn your ornery skin, an' speak quick!'"

"Did he speak?" asked the deputy.

"He did," replied the cattleman; "there was a reconciliation right there."

"That puts me in mind of Bobby Wood, of Custer," said the lawyer. "Bobby had been down to the democratic convention at Chamberlain, and on the way home with the rest of the crowd he stopped over in Sioux City—you have to go through Nebraska and Iowa to get at the eastern part of the state from the hills. After supper we all went down to the Booge opera house."

"Were you along?" asked the cattleman.

"I believe I was, now you mention it," replied the Rapid City man. "They had a great piece on. It was about a beautiful girl who was accused of being a witch contrary to the New England statutes in such cases made and provided. It was supposed to be in old Cotton Mather's time, or somewhere thereabouts, and the girl had a faithful Indian who followed her wherever she went. You ought to have seen that Indian. He belonged to the Lallapaloosa tribe. He looked as if he had just escaped from a cigar store.

"Bobby took a fancy to that Indian right away. He yelled: 'How!' the minute he came on. He told Connor that he looked like Isnayapi of the Two Kettle band and he thought he must be some relation. Connor tried to quiet him, but it wasn't any use. He kept up a running comment on the play and the audience seemed to think it was a good thing. Nobody mixed in, anyway. I thought Chris Jensen would die."

"Did you hear about the fuss Chris Jensen had with the Frenchman at Cadle creek?" asked the cattleman.

"I'm not through yet," said the lawyer, reproachfully.

"That's right; we've got you started," said the deputy. "I'll mark the place until Ben gets through. I want to hear about Chris. I didn't think Chris would fuss with anybody. Did he shoot?"

"No, it was a fist fight. The Frenchman was a big prospector they called Silver Bend John. He had been weighin' in his dust and hoisting tamarack juice at Paul Klemman's saloon for about three days steady, when Chris happened along. I think John just swatted him on suspicion without any of the formalities. Anyway, they were rolling under the pool table together the first thing anybody knew, and it was a lively affair.

"NOW SPEAK, AND SPEAK QUICK!"

"Finally the Frenchman got on top and began to improve the occasion. Chris stood it for awhile, but he had to own he had got a plenty. He told John so, but John was too busy to notice him and kept right on. He hollered 'Enough!' a second time, but John didn't seem to sabe. Finally Chris makes a heave and rolls over so'st he got his arms over his face. Then he yells out to the crowd: 'Say! ain't there some one here can speak French, an' tell this fool I've got enough?"

"Now, tell us about Bobby Wood and his Indian," said the deputy.

"There ain't much to tell," said the lawyer. "The only thing was that Bobby kept on making remarks all through the piece. I told you that. The villain, who was pursuing the beautiful girl, dropped a letter that gave the snap away and the Indian picked it up and turned it upside down and wrong side around, trying to make something out of it. When he shook his head and gave up Bobby was disgusted. 'He ought to have gone to Carlisle,' says Bobby. 'He ain't nothing but a blanket Injun, after all. I reckon he couldn't read that if it was a circus bill with nothing but elephants on it. Somebody's put dirt in his medicine sack.'

"After awhile the girl was talking over her plans to escape with the Indian, and the villain comes in and hides behind a tree. Bobby thought somebody ought to give them a hunch. 'Watch out, madam,' he hollers, 'that son of a gun's listening to you'—just that way all along, you know. But the climax came when the soldiers arrived to arrest the girl.

"They were all got up in steel caps and breastplates and they were heeled and loaded for bear with blunderbuses and swords and things. They looked as if they were out to hold up a train. The Indian was along, of course, and when the main guy started in to serve the warrant, the Indian got hostile and made a demonstration with his club. Bobby shouted to warn him, but it was too late. One of the soldiers ran him through with his gleaming blade and the noble red man bit the stage with a dull, sudden thud. Bobby got up and began to put on his coat. 'They've killed the only good man in the outfit,' he explained to the audience. 'The dod rotted fool! He might have known better than to tackle a crowd like that with a club.'"—K. F. H., in Chicago Daily Record.

The silk worm has a rival. A factory in Woolston, England, is said to be turning out an artificial silk that can scarcely be told from the genuine.

The new treaty between Mexico and China allows the free admission of Chinese emigrants, and, in fact, the two governments agree to encourage the settlement of Chinese in Mexico.

The United States annually produces more than two-thirds of the corn crop of the world. Hungary is the second largest corn producer and produces about one-twentieth of the world's annual corn crop.

The kopjes, of which the dispatches from South Africa have much to say, are usually the site of old native villages surrounded by stone walls at the top and bottom. They are natural forts and when strengthened by barbed wire can hardly be taken by a rush.

Uncle Sam is just about the worst person in the world for a man to have after him. He never gets tired or discouraged. It has taken him 35 years to get a judgment against a former army quartermaster, but he never gave up trying and he has been successful at last.

As a producer of pig iron the United States has a large lead over other producers, the output for 1899 being about 13,500,000 tons, while that of Great Britain was less than 10,000,000 tons, and that of Germany 8,000,000. Out output was last year 6,000,000 tons in excess of that of 1896, when the smaller quantity was sold with difficulty.

The return of Paderewski to this country recalls a remarkable fact. In 1883 Roentgen was professor of physics, Paderewski was an instructor in music and Tesla was an instructor in electricity, all of them being in the faculty of the University of Strasburg. At that time they were unknown to the world; now there are probably no three men who are better known.

Miss May Howard, a "society coach," who sued Mrs. Frances Augusta Skinner for services rendered, has been awarded $5,000 by a New York court. The coach seems to have become a fixed American institution. Backward students, football elevens, boat crews and other college athletic teams have had them for years, and now women with social ambitions are employing them.

One of the most remarkable coincidences on record has come to light in Lynchburg, Va., and Augusta, Ga. In each city there is a Walter Clark whose father was named Samuel and whose mother's maiden name was Walker. Both Walter Clarks have brothers named Samuel and William, uncles named Charles and John and an aunt named Elizabeth. Yet the two men cannot trace any relationship between the two families.

The part of the twentieth annual report of the government geological survey, which deals with the mineral resources of the country, just published, shows that since 1880 the value of mine products has increased from $369,319,000 to 697,820,720. Since 1893 the rate of increase has been $25,000,000 a year. All the metals except nickel made large gains. Aluminium, antimony, zinc, copper and lead reached their maximum.

It will be four years next summer since the discoveries of gold in the Klondike region excited the whole country, and just to show what the enterprising pioneers have accomplished in this brief space of time it is announced that the White Pass & Yukon railway will probably be opened next June, in which case it will be possible to make the whole trip from Taiya to Dawson by rail and boat. There has certainly been some tall hustling done.

The real cause of the increased price of meats is that the country has now 17,000,000 more meat eaters than it had ten years ago, while the number of cattle has fallen off 11,000,000 during that period. According to the figures of the bureau of animal industry we had 15,000,000 more hogs in 1890 than now, while the population has increased from 62,500,000 to nearly 79,000,000. A similar falling off is reported in the number of sheep. Under these conditions there is no prospect that the prices of meat will return to their former level.

Steam railroad building has been more active the past year than for some time. The new mileage laid is placed at 4,557 miles, against 3,265 miles last year and an average of about 2,000 miles for each of the previous four years. Iowa leads the exhibit, with 552 miles of new road, and Minnesota, Arkansas and California come next. Only five of the 50 states and territories are unrepresented in the table—those being New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Delaware, Nevada and the District of Columbia. This is certainly a very good showing.

Norway now has a new flag, and it is all her own. The Swedish flag was forced upon the Norwegians in 1814, though the constitution gave them an emblem of their own, and ever since that time they have been fighting for their rights. The king has vetoed every attempt that has been made, but now the storthing has for the third time voted to give Norway her flag, and as the king cannot veto the third consecutive enactment of a law Norway at last has her national emblem. The new flag bears no symbol of the union between Norway and Sweden.

CROSSES THE TUGELA.

Report That Gen. Warren Has Taken Up a Strong Position North of the River.

Cape Town, Jan. 16.—A dispatch to the Argus, dated Friday last, January 12, says: "The authorities have received news that Gen. Warren has crossed the Tugela and occupied a strong position north of the river." This report has been current here since Sunday, but is discredited in official circles.

Cape Town, Saturday, Jan. 13.—There is good reason to believe that the statement that Sir Charles Warren, with 11,000 men, has gone toward Weenen is correct, and we may expect important news shortly.

London, Jan. 16.—The war office has published the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Cape Town, January 15, 6:20 p. m.: "French reports that a reconnoissance yesterday (Sunday) shelled the Colesburg road bridge. No casualties. Returned to-day. Methven and Gataere no change."

London, Jan. 16.—Gen. Buller's latest authentic word as to what he and his 30,000 men are doing was wired from Springfield after his first forward step. Striving to think out the unknown, London is confused by surmise and rumor and disquieted by suspense. Spencer Wilkinson, the lucid military expert of the Morning Post, asserts that the Boer force in northern Natal is larger than Gen. Buller's and Sir George White's together, so that the Boers are able to leave a force around Ladysmith larger than that within the town and yet to oppose Gen. Buller with a force superior to his own.

Reports from the Boer camps affirm that the circle of investment has been drawn closer by the occupation of some hills nearer the town, thus liberating reenforcements to oppose Gen. Buller.

London, Jan. 16.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Pietermaritzburg, telegraphing Thursday, January 11, says:

"The gallantry of the Ladysmith garrison last Saturday appears to have depressed, if not actually demoralized, the Boers generally. It is believed that they lost at least two, if not three, killed as against our one. Many Boers are believed trekking northward. The magistrate at Nqutu, Zululand, telegraphs that scouts report having seen many Boer families with wagons proceeding north, via Zululand, while a European who formerly resided at Dundee declares that after the repulse at Ladysmith a number of Boer wagons, loaded with dead and wounded, passed through that mining township, and that the Boers burned some of the public buildings as they departed. Five days have passed since then."

The Blizzard in New Mexico.

Denver, Col., Jan. 13.—A special to the News from Alamo Gordo, N. M., says: Details of the blizzard which swept over southwestern New Mexico Tuesday and Wednesday are coming in, and they indicate that it was the severest storm ever experienced in the region. The velocity of the wind was terrible, all roads and trails were obliterated, and the driving snow made it impossible for travelers to see their way in the storm. When the storm abated, wagons which had been abandoned were found strewn all over the section. Several fatalities are reported. It is feared that many sheep herders have lost their lives. Thousands of head of stock perished, and it is believed that the loss will aggregate over half a million dollars.

Cheatam's casualties, one wounded; Anderson, Thirty-eighth, en route to Lipa yesterday, struck insurgents few miles south Santo Tomas, drove them through Lipa to Rosario; enemy's loss, 20 dead and wounded, 60 Spanish prisoners, $20,000; Schwan has liberated about 200 Spanish prisoners now en route to Manila. Anderson's casualties yesterday, one man killed, two wounded; Wheaton's force actively operating in western Cavite and Batanga provinces, all important towns and constant patrolling; great many Filipinos returning to homes, believed to be insurgent deserters. OTIS."

Manila, Jan. 16.—Part of Gen. John C. Bates' troops are operating about Lake Taal. The insurgents continue to retreat south. Col. Hayes, with the Fourth cavalry, is supposed to have reached Lipa, where many Spanish prisoners are held. Col. Anderson, with the Thirty-eighth infantry, took Talisay, on the north shore of the lake, with but little opposition. Maj. Cheatham, with a battalion of the Thirty-seventh, on his way to San Pablo dispersed 400 insurgents, whom the cavalry are pushing toward Alaminos.

A troop of the Third cavalry lost two men killed and three wounded in an encounter with the insurgents near San Fernando de la Union January 12.

YEAR BEGINS WELL.

The Situation in the Commercial World Is Full of Signs of Encouragement.

New York, Jan. 13.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The business of the new year begins well though there is still much of the usual hesitation. In branches where last year's business was extraordinary and prices have risen greatly some pause is natural, though nothing indicates decrease of consuming disposition or purchasing power, but there is continuing rise in wages to promote increase. Momentary conditions have grown easier with the return of $4,000,000 from the interior during the week, and further deposits by the treasury and more liquidation in some speculative stocks has also helped. Banks report an increase in their per cent. of commercial loans, and rates were generally more easy after the decline announced by European banks.

"The furnaces in blast January 1 were producing weekly 294,186 tons of pig iron, against 296,959 December 1, but as several had stopped only for the holidays and others had started, the output now is probably larger than at either date. It exceeds consumption at last, as the Iron Age shows an increase of 9,256 tons in unsold stocks, but the manufacture apparently consumed during the year 13,831,626 tons, less small net exports in December. The increase since 1892 is about 4,225,000 tons, or 46.5 per cent.

"Failures for the week have been 274 in the United States, against 318 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 24 last year."

Mill Men May Strike.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 15.—At a meeting of the Cleveland branch of the National Association of Rod Mill Workers Sunday night it was decided to inaugurate a strike in the four mills of the American Steel & Wire company in this city this morning. The strike here will throw 4,000 men out of employment and the number affected in other states will be large. The strike was brought about by the demand of the workers for a substantial advance in wages, a much greater advance than the 7½ per cent. made voluntarily by the company last week.

He was the founder of the Iowa odd fellows' annuity insurance. ALL PROBABLY LOST.

Little Hope That Any of Those on Board Ill-Fated Vessel Wrecked in St. Mary's Bay Survive.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 13.—The following comprise all the details regarding the wreck in St. Marys bay that could be obtained up to midnight: The ship is a two-masted steamer, of nearly 3,000 tons, and probably carries a crew of 60, with possibly some passengers. She went ashore before daybreak on Thursday, striking a ledge at the foot of the cliff, where escape was hopeless. The crew launched the boats, but probably during the panic some were crushed against her sides, others being swamped, and all the occupants apparently perishing. The ship was seen to be on fire by residents six miles away. Attracted to the scene, they found the after half of the wreck blazing fiercely, and the fore part under water. Kerosene in the cargo helped the blaze. At that time only three men were left on board. Two were on the bridge and one was in the rigging. Those on the bridge were safe until about two p. m., when they were washed overboard and drowned, the bridge being carried away. The survivor soon after left the rigging, swam to the rocks and twice endeavored to get a footing. Failing in this, he made his way back to the rigging, where he died of exposure during the night. Many dead bodies are visible tossing in the surf. Two of them, thrown up in a cove, cannot be reached owing to the heavy sea. One is thought to be that of a woman. There is not the slightest prospect that any soul on board escaped death, as the intense midwinter cold would kill any who escaped drowning.

SWEPT AWAY BY FLOOD.

Five Persons Are Known to Have Perished in Rising of a River in Idaho.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 15.—A downpour of rain for three days, together with a prevailing chinook rain, is melting the snow and has suddenly flooded several western Washington valleys and a great portion of Latah county, Idaho. Hundreds of farms in Puyallup, Stuck and White river valleys are under water and the mountain streams are raging torrents. The streets of Kent, lying on the banks of the White river, are flooded. A special from Kendrick, Idaho, states that three children of Charles Hamblin and two Chinamen are reported to have been drowned there. A Northern Pacific freight train was caught by the rushing waters in the canyon below Moscow and Kendrick and swept into the raging torrent. The train crew escaped.

Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The interstate commerce commission Monday made public its thirteenth annual report. The feature of the report is the strong plea made that congress uphold the hands of the commission by amendments making the interstate commerce law more effective. The report says that the commission a year ago called attention to the fact that in vital respects the present law proved defective and inadequate, and that until further legislation is provided the best efforts at regulation must be feeble and disappointing. The requests of the commission for needful amendments have been supported by petitions and memorials from agricultural, manufacturing and commercial interests throughout the country, yet not a line of the statute has been changed, and none of the burdensome conditions which call for relief has been removed or modified.

To Carry on Moody's Work.

New York, Jan. 12.—For the purpose of devising the best means of carrying on the work of the late Dwight L. Moody, members of the committees from the Bible house, Chicago, Mount Hermon institute for young men, and the seminary for young women, at Northfield, Mass., met here Thursday. It was decided to issue an appeal to the public to subscribe the $3,000,000 required to meet the expenses of the institution. The Northfield schools had each 400 students, and the Chicago school about 300. About $125,000 is annually required to maintain the work begun by Mr. Moody on the principles pursued for the past 20 years. This sum had hitherto been raised by the late Mr. Moody by his personal efforts.

Princeton, Ind., Jan. 13.—Robbers blew up the safe and vault in the banking house of McGinnis, Teel & Co., at Owensville, this county, and secured $15,000, the total currency in the bank. The money was placed on a handcar on the Mount Vernon branch of the Evansville & Terre Haute railroad and run to Poseyville, 12 miles southeast. Here the handcar was left and the money removed to a vehicle. The robbers then made their way overland to the Wabash river, crossing on the Illinois side.

New York, Jan. 13.—"Kid" McCoy got the decision over Joe Choynski in a bout which lasted three rounds at the Broadway Athletic club Friday night. THIRTY MILLION DOLLARS.

United States Official Assayer at Seattle Says that Will be Gold Output of Alaska and the Northwest for 1900---Cape Nome Will Rival the Klondike---$18,505,000 in Gold Received at Seattle Assay Office Since July 15, 1898.

Seattle, Wash.—A great many people ridicule the stories that are told of the fabulous riches of the Alaska gold fields. Reports of output of gold are characterized as deliberate lies. The rush to the gold fields is said to be fostered by railway and steamship managers. These "doubting Thomases" are respectfully referred to the following letter from Mr. F. A. Wing, assayer in charge of the United States assay office at Seattle. It is sufficient evidence of the amount of gold ACTUALLY DEPOSITED AT THE SEATTLE ASSAY OFFICE.

The Alaska gold fields have hardly been scratched. What the future may bring forth no man can foresee. Certain it is that young men of good health, with pluck and energy and a determination to succeed will dig immense fortunes out of the golden sand of Cape Nome, Cape York, Cape Prince of Wales, Norton Sound and Golofin Bay during the summer of 1900. Here is what Mr. Wing writes:

The U. S. Assay Office at Seattle, Wash.—Office of the Assayer in Charge, Nov. 28th, 1899.—Mr. R. C. Stevens, Gen. Western Pass. Agt., Great Northern Ry., City.—Sir: In reply to yours of the 27th inst., I have the honor to submit the following data which I trust will be satisfactory. This office was opened on July 15th, 1898. Since that date there have been 8,203 separate individual deposits of bullion, aggregating eighteen million five hundred and five thousand dollars; one-third of which was received during the first fiscal year ended June 30th, 1899; the balance since that time.

The comparative average values per ounce of Klondike and Cape Nome gold are as follows: $16.50 per ounce Klondike; $18.50 per ounce Cape Nome.

In my judgment the output for 1900 will easily double that of 1899. In my preparations for next season I am anticipating at least twenty millions for this office alone, on a basis of thirty millions as the entire output of Alaska and the Northwest Territory. All indications lead me to believe that Cape Nome and its immediate vicinity will equal the Klondike in amount of production. Trusting this will meet with your requirements, I am, Respectfully Yours, (Signed) F. A. WING, Assayer in Charge.

STRUGGLING YOUNG AUTHOR.

No Big Demand for His Wares But He Is Providing Against a Rush.

"I have just finished," said the struggling young author, "another storage warehouse for returned manuscripts, this being of the same dimensions as the other, 20x60 and four stories high, and, also like the other, fireproof. I find it cheaper to build that way and insure myself. It costs a little more, of course, to make the structure fireproof, but the interest on this additional cost is less than the insurance would be, and the difference I have set aside as a sinking fund from which to pay the taxes and repairs.

"You might infer from this that there has been as yet no widespread general demand for the productions of my pen; and, if you should, your inference would be quite correct; indeed, such unanimity of sentiment as appears seems to take the form of rigidly observed neutrality, with the result that my second warehouse has already begun to fill rapidly.

"But I have still no fear of the outcome; else, I should throw away these manuscripts instead of storing them; but as it is I think I am simply putting down a gold mine. Then why doesn't somebody see at least a color in these manuscripts now? Well, I don't know; you can't always tell about those things, but some day the gold is discovered; I've built both my warehouses on corners; so that when that discovery is made, and the publishers swarm around the buildings asking for manuscripts, I can deliver not only from doors but from windows, too."

Cow in a Golf Match.

Ed Tufts, of Los Angeles, was playing golf with a friend recently. When he drove from the third teeing ground, he sliced the ball badly and sent it away to one side. It stopped in front of a grazing cow, and Tufts came up just in time to see it disappear into the bovine mouth. When his opponent had made his stroke, Tufts untethered the cow, and, with many sounding thwacks of his club, drove the beast to the third hole. There he made her disgorge the ball, and, neatly holing it, announced that he had made the hole in two strokes. His opponent calmly finished the hole in seven, and claimed the hole. "But I made it in two," protested Tufts, gleefully. "No, you didn't," declared the other; "you made it in 39. You hit that cow 37 times, for I counted every stroke," and Tufts conceded the hole.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Suspicious American Tourist.

The American tourist is so firmly convinced that he is being cheated on all hands during his European travels that he occasionally oversteps the bounds of prudence. "What is the price of this pin?" asked a young man in a Paris shop, handling a small silver brooch of exquisite workmanship. "Twenty francs, monsieur," said the clerk. "That's altogether too much," said the young American. "It's for a present to my sister. I'll give you five francs for it." "Zen it would be I zat gave ze present to your sister," said the Frenchman, with a deprecatory shrug, "and I do not know ze young mademoiselle."—Chicago Chronicle.

IN SERRIED RANKS

GO FORWARD THE UNION FORCES TO VICTORY IN MINNESOTA.

Aftermath of the Great Jackson Day Celebration — Immense Accessions to the United Army—The Slogan Is for Complete Redemption of the State in November, and the Electoral Vote for Bryan and Americanism—Our Great and All-Powerful Triumvirate of the People, Bryan, Lind and Towne—Mr. Bryan's Coming Eastern Tour—The Week's Round-Up of National and State Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Jan. 15, 1900.

While the great speeches and intensely interesting events of the Jackson day celebration at Minneapolis go echoing round the state doing their whole, perfect work for the cause of the Union forces, there are numerous points and aftermath which should not be overlooked.

A feature overlooked or minimized, was the meeting with Republican and Gold Democrat, Anti-Imperialist and other independents with Mr. Bryan. This had been arranged by those who best knew Mr. Bryan's wise conservatism, and desired the earnest, honest Americans in the anti-imperialist movement who have been prejudiced against Mr. Bryan, to see him personally and as he actually is. The result was of importance. Rightly and shrewdly ganging that great man of the people, it is believed that without exception those enthusiastic Americans, believers in the old-fashioned doctrines of the fathers, and of the Bill of Human Rights, will be found voting and working for Bryan in November. Their position is, even those who are still gold standard men, that we will first see whether we have a republic, before we spend further time on economic or financial theories. See if this prediction does not prove true: That there will be an immense spread of anti-imperialist organizations under the American League.

The Republican reports of the events must in the main be called quite fair. The Tribune could not, however, fairly state the numbers at the exposition, "estimating" them at "4,000 in the building," and "perhaps 500" on the stage. Not less than 9,000 were "in the building," as everybody knows. One thousand tickets were issued for "stage," and every one "went." Other thousands were turned back from the closed doors and long stood in the gently and kindly falling snow, vainly hoping that those charged with the safety of the building would relent and let them in. The writer knows, for he carefully noted these facts for this very use of the truth.

The Tribune, however, must be credited with reporting Mr. Bryan's closing of the panther hunt incident. The Trib man asked Mr. Bryan if it was true that the panther, after being caught, was returned to the cage from which, as Mr. Bryan explained, it had been released for the sport. "Yes," said Mr. Bryan, "the panther was spared, for in these gold standard times people cannot afford to waste a whole panther on one hunt."

Governor Lind's speech, and the circumstances attending it, were by all and by far the most intensely interesting political incident within the recollection and probably in the state's history. Relating to the future, he made in substance the declaration forecast in this bulletin, but under such circumstances as no one could have anticipated. The one great, grand feature to be noted, was the absolute clearing of the atmosphere of all doubt and hesitation as to issues, and such inspiration to battle, from this on, as has never before been felt in this state. Likewise was it such a rebuke to what Mr. Towne termed "peanut politics," as will clear, there is no doubt, even the Twin City atmosphere.

The management of all the functions must be accorded due praise, as there is but one "Banquet" Baldwin, so is there but one Breslauer, when it comes to getting out and managing great political gatherings.

It was a proud time for the representatives of our Reform Press, and only to be regretted that more could not have attended. We should all feel a just pride at the renewed compliments paid our press by our great chieftain, Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan went direct to Lincoln and from there to a Kentucky banquet, whence he will go to New Jersey. Before returning home he will make an extensive tour through New England, with his gospel of true Americanism, of human, political and industrial freedom.

So many uncertain comments have been made with reference to the new duties given Surveyor General Corser, and recent "conferences" by him, that it will be a matter of political information to state what are the facts. Mr. Corser has been commissioned by the Democratic national committee, by Chairman Jones, to have official charge of the allies in this campaign, with reference to their relation to the Democratic organization—a function, the importance of which cannot be overestimated. This includes the Silver Republicans, the Anti-Imperialists, the Anti-Trusters, and other independent movements. Mr. Corser will, no doubt, much of the time later on in the campaign, be located at Chicago. The selection was made at the instance of Mr. Towne and other close friends of Mr. Corser who are aware of his tremendous energy and his great executive ability. It is to be hoped that the new and important duty will not too largely encroach on (?) connection with local and state work. His other work will cover any part of the whole country, and may especially apply to the close congressional districts.

The Boers have shown their good sense by firing the young son of McKinley's secretary of state, sent as our consul. Oom Paul don't intend to catch the British Hay fever.

The city lumbermen have given lumber another hitch, making $6 or more raise within the past few months. Wheat keeps "hitched" the other way, and is lower by 5 cents than at this time a year ago.

Don't take any stock in a rumor now traveling about the state, to the effect that there will be no ice palace at the carnival in St. Paul. There will be an ice palace, and 10 days of real old-time carnival fun, if the weather permits. St. Paul is preparing to do herself proud and make the carnival a memorable event in her history.

The address of Ex-Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts, the other day, in which he declared that McKinley would fail of re-election even more ignominiously than did Van Buren, suggests the close resemblance of the two administrations in points of weaknesses, inconsistencies, turmoil, lack of confidence and sharp antagonisms of large classes of people. Of Van Buren's administration a historian says it was like the definition of the parenthesis. "It may be read in a low tone of voice, or altogether omitted without injuring the sense." That will certainly apply to McKinley's, except for some of the crimes that will live to cry out against it!

And speaking of comparisons, the military features of the McKinley administration will be likened to Polk's and the Mexican War. Forced into the righteous war with Spain, McKinley's wicked and unnecessary Philippine war is the counterpart of the war with Mexico which arose in the false claim to Coahuila, in addition to the Texas territory. Polk gave away a 250 mile strip across our whole Northern boundary to England because strong, while taking weak Mexico by the throat for the Coahuilan strip on the Rio Grande. Polk paid Mexico $15,000,000, and assumed $3,500,000 of debt, or a total near to the McKinley figure paid Spain. Polk's administration was outdone by England, as McKinley's is being "hornswaggled" by Pauncefote and Chamberlain. Finally, McKinley, like Polk, will not be re-elected, though Polk was not even renominated.

The naked truth about Twin City business conditions is that the winter finds about the same situation as for several years back. The spurt of work, in numerous lines during the year, makes the every day laborer in better shape, but salaried people have less to show for their gold standard trust year than for a long time. Salaries have not as a rule increased at all, and living is much higher, as the trusts design. Small business concerns closed a poor year, and so do such lines as insurance, and agencies and commission earners. Few large business concerns, among retailers, are believed to have made much, and only such as had large stocks contracted ahead of the trust rises. These are plain, unvarnished facts and none know this better than the poorly paid writers of the G. O. P. press who write the contrary.

As to property interests they are absolutely flat and lifeless. The little building done in '99 has been cheap and skimpy, the one to three-story building, where six to eight stories rose when there was real prosperity. Real estate does not move, and what is to move it?

And speaking of conditions, some of the Minneapolis feeders of grain are actually hauling oats from near-by country elevators, so low is country produce. Such were paying 18 cents at points below Mendota on the Milwaukee. Eighteen cent oats and 50 cent wheat for the farmers, 100 to 300 per cent increase on all that they purchase of trust controlled articles!

Men and women who speak from experience, say it never was harder in St. Paul or Minneapolis to find decent and remunerative employment, and say if you don't believe it, just strike out and "find a place." We know an earnest, honest, business trained man who had this experience: After a diligent search, he heard from his application with one of the transcontinental roads, that he could have a place at $35 per month! Hoping to do better, he hesitated, and was summarily disposed of, for they said they had plenty who would take the place. This man's child is carrying bundles in one of the department stores at $2.00 a week, and the father is still in search of work, and now regrets that he did not take the railroad offer.

Said Tammany Croker: "Twenty thousand drummers are doing more against McKinley than Democrats could do with $50,000,000 a year."

A celebrated palmist read Mr. Bryan's beautiful hand, on a train in his recent campaign. "This long, sweeping line," said the palmist, "is the line of life. It says long life, health and happiness to you, Mr. Bryan. All these long ray lines, long and short, rising in the life line, mean success, power, high ideals and their realization."——

There was a sudden stop—thousands of voices cried out: "Bryan! Bryan! Bryan!" The famous hand and its owner were borne out into the darkness upon a very sea of humanity.

No man living or dead, we believe, has ever swayed the masses as does W. J. Bryan. Ever right and honest, ever sound in judgment, his influence is ever in right lines, and the result is that increasing confidence of his countrymen which is the chief foundation for the abiding faith of the millions that he will be called to the presidency.

FOR WIDER MARKETS

James J. Hill's Address Before the Agricultural Society.

He Desires Opening the Markets of the Orient to American Wheat. Farmers are Urged to Consider the Importence.

The feature of the opening day of the annual session of the State Agricultural society was the address of J. J. Hill on "Enlarged Markets." Following is Mr. Hill's speech in part:

About half of the people of this country are directly engaged in the agricultural pursuits and half of the wealth of the United States, too, is in agricultural property. A considerable percentage of this was in wheat. Only about one-third of the world's population were consumers of wheaten flour; the other two-thirds were rice-eaters. World's total production of wheat annually was about 2,300,000,000 bushels. Yet when there was a shortage in this production in one year of 70,000,000, in 1897, the price of wheat went up 15 to 20 cents, far more than the value at previous figures of the 70,000,000 bushels which were short. The average consumption of flour is about one barrel per capita. In America we eat 5½ bushels of wheat annually per capita; in Great Britain 4½ bushels; in France and Germany less.

Great Britain can raise enough grain to feed her people but 12 weeks out of 52. She must get the rest from somewhere else. In Germany we are not so welcome. They legislate against our meat on one pretext or another. France discriminates against us, too, by hostile legislation, probably because its people are so largely engaged in agricultural pursuits that its lawmakers feel constrained to protect them by legislation.

America has expanded in population. But what has been done to expand our markets since the civil war, for example? I have looked into the subject with some interest, but I have been unable to find an intelligent sentence written by any one, of the enlargement of the market for our agricultural products. We have fostered our industries because of our home market. It may be right of us to continue. We have reached that point where we export $75,000,000 in steel and iron, but that is only a little over half our wheat exports and a small percentage of the exports of all our agricultural products.

Where can we carry our grain if we cannot carry it to Great Britain? In Germany, France and Austria we are met with hostile legislation. To carry it to Russia would be like carrying coals to Newcastle. Russia is a large producer.

If one-third of the world are wheat eaters and the other two-thirds live on rice, maize and rye, we must seek a market with people who are not consumers of wheaten flour, who are not buying our products. We must get more people to eat what we produce. It is not an experiment. Where the introduction of wheat flour has been made to any race—with the single exception of the black race—they are ready and eager to eat it. The Indian will go further for flour than for anything else, unless, perhaps, for firewater, and that won't do him any good, and the flour will. The Asiatic if they can get it at a fair price. How can a people who have been living on 10 to 15 cents a day buy flour that must be carried across the Pacific ocean? If, instead of 4½ bushels per capita, we tried to sell them one, we would have to eat corn pone ourselves. Our average surplus of wheat is, perhaps, 150,000,000 bushels. Last year, I think, the figures were about 97,000,000 bushels. If we taught the orient to make a market for one bushel per capita for our wheat it would send 450,000,000 bushels to China and Japan alone, not to mention the Straits Settlements and other thickly settled portions of Asia.

Now, if the falling off in the world's wheat production from 2,300,000,000 bushels to 2,230,000,000 bushels raises prices from 15 to 20 cents, it seems to me that finding a market for 50,000,000 bushels in the orient would effect a marked strengthening in wheat prices. In the first place, that grain would naturally go from the Pacific coast states first, and the entire system of handling grain on the Pacific coast is different from that used east of the Rocky mountains. After the grain it reaches its market, it is put through a sweating process. It has to be shipped twice across the equator before through a sweating process. It has to be shipped in sacks, it not being practicable to dump it in bulk into the hull of a vessel, as we ship it across the Atlantic or on the Great Lakes.

This Pacific coast wheat is practically all bought by three concerns, two of them in Liverpool and closely connected with the White Star line of steamers, by which it is chiefly hauled. On its arrival in Liverpool this wheat is sold—I will not say to the highest bidder, for it is never high in any event. In fact, this coast wheat acts like a wet blanket on the entire wheat market. The last ship is leaving our coast about the time the first is reaching the European market, so you see the California crop is practically all afloat at once.

Thus a European miller can go in a minute and find out how much California wheat there is. I think it breaks the market twice as much as that which goes via the Atlantic, for when it reaches European ports it has to be sold. The boats cannot be delayed, and being in sacks, the wheat cannot be put in elevators, but must be carried to a warehouse. It has to go at once in Europe for what the market there will give for it. And I care not how you figure it, what you sell abroad fixes the price of what you sell at home.

Now there is a bill in congress to encourage the building of American ships. It gives a bonus on American ships according to their length and size, steam or sail, but it falls short, it seems to me. It does not provide that these ships need carry one ton of American products. Why should we pay a bonus for ships to come from Great Britain with manufactured products, to bring from France French champagne, and French kid gloves or other products, while our wheat is not getting any assistance from any quarter. (Applause.)

If this bill passes as drawn, and may be made the business of a party to pass it, it will be the worst snare and delusion ever offered to the American farmer, for the bulk of the bounty will be eaten up by from 15 to 20 Atlantic greyhounds, and the next time I come up to tell you to extend your markets, and I hope to keep at you until you do, you will say we've tried that and it didn't work. But you do not seem to me to be helped under the present bill. The bonus is based on the measured capacity of the ship at 40 cubic feet to the ton, with no guarantee that it will carry one pound of your products. You want your markets. I want as much as you to see our flag flying on every sea, to assist the agricultural interests, but let the bonus provided for under the present bill be put in form so it will not be frittered away. The bill's fate will be determined in the next 30 days. I'm not seeking a bonus. I wish I did not have to build ships. But some one will have to and it will have to be done as a business investment on such a basis as will provide a fair return for the capital invested. We can do a great deal in competition with the rest of the world because of our great facilities for the use of our mechanical intelligence, while others use human energy, directed as it may be, however indifferently. We held the supremacy of the sea before.

If we can open a market in the Orient for our grain, we would take this Pacific coast wheat out of the European market, and not only keep it from serving to depress the market, but it might be possible at times, if we could arrange for a return trade, so we would not have to haul our cars back empty, to find a market there for a large amount of our middle West wheat. Every time you haul a grain car back empty, you double the mileage, and consequently the expense of transportation. But we have no ships to carry this product to the Orient, yet there are few things from which more benefit could be derived by American product than would come from the establishment of such a trade.

We have been hauling bales of cotton right through this city to Puget Sound. Every foot of space on our line of boats is engaged to May 1 next, yet in spite of the crowding, the export of grain to the Orient last year was 257,000 tons, or about 12,000,000 bushels. It might just as well have been the entire Pacific coast crop, if we had had the boats to carry it.

The farmer will not get any benefit from a bill under which three-fourths of the bounties go to ships of 20 to 21 knots speed. What we want is to take our products to a new market where the people can not supply themselves as well from any other market as they can from here. You want to take this matter up with your representatives in congress. I have taken it up with the members from this state and the adjoining states, but they want to hear from you. Tell your representatives what you want them to do.

Mr. Hill brought down the house with the following closing statement:

It will bring national scandal and disgrace if under the name of helping the agricultural classes a law is passed which will pay $450,000 in subsidies to fast Atlantic passenger boats to carry our wealthy Americans to Europe to spend the money they have made here. Perhaps some day we will be rich enough so we can afford to do that, but let us first raise the price of wheat above 50 cents a bushel.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Blixt Will Stay.

The state board of pardons denied the applications for a pardon made by Claus A. Blixt, and James Terry (colored), who threatened to shoot the late Judge Seagrave Smith the day of his conviction. The most urgent case before the board was that of Albert Dunal, convicted of murder in the first degree in Jackson county, and sentenced to hang. The board deferred positive action on his case until Jan. 20.

The case of George A. Durnam, the former Minneapolis alderman, was also considered. The reason assigned for urgency in his case is the illness of his wife. The plea was taken under advisement.

John Leonard, sent up from Minneapolis for grand larceny, can be paroled in September, if his prison behavior is good.

Some blind pigging cases met with scant consideration. The board seeming to be a unit that violators of the license laws should be fully punished.

Burned to Death.

Four children of Michael Kerrich, a farmer living about 15 miles east of Little Falls, perished in a fire that destroyed their house. Five children slept upstairs and the parents and three other children slept downstairs. The family had retired, and the first intimation that the parents had that the house was on fire was when their oldest daughter fell headlong down the stairs enveloped in flames. The fire in her clothing was quickly smothered and the father made several attempts to reach the other four, but was baffled by the flames, and only gave up trying after being nearly overcome by the heat and terribly burned himself. The four children were all girls and their ages ranged from 7 to 15 years. The oldest daughter was also badly burned, but will recover.

A Suicide.

J. E. Sutton, editor and manager of the Daily Reporter, Logansport, Ind., was found dead in a chair at the top of a second flight of stairs in a building at St. Paul. A revolver was in his right hand and a bullet wound was in his head. Business trouble is thought to be the cause of the suicide. Sutton had been on a trip to Portland, Ore., and was on his way back to Logansport. He reached St. Paul, walked about until he found a dark stairway, and mounting this he ended his life.

A Barefooted Boy.

A barefooted boy running about the streets of Minneapolis on the 8th day of January is a decided novelty. It occurred on Fourth street, and the lad was not barefooted because he had no shoes, but because he enjoyed it. It was raining, the weather was warm and mild, and the boy enjoyed the experience. When asked if his feet were not cold, he looked indignant.

A Narrow Escape.

The infant daughter of Henry Peters had a close call from being cremated in bed at her home in St. Paul. A kerosene lamp bursted in the bedroom and fell into the bed in which the child was sleeping.

The mother, while eating breakfast, smelled the odor of smoke, and going to the bedroom found the cot in flames. The infant was uninjured.

Ice Palace Unwise.

The chamber of commerce of St. Paul, at a recent meeting, took a heavy fall out of the ice palace project. A. K. Pruden, president of the Commercial club, moved a resolution to the effect that it was the opinion of the chamber that an ice palace this year was unwise. After a protracted discussion the resolution was adopted.

News in Brief.

Postoffice service has been re-established at Kruger, with Delilo Benz as postmaster.

The fourteenth annual exhibition of the Minnesota Poultry association, which is scheduled to take place in St. Paul on Feb. 5 to 10, promises to be the most successful of all, if present indications are correct.

A. Otteson, a convict in the prison, died the day before his sentence expired.

Anton Prucha, living near Winona, was arrested for selling diseased pork.

The new village of Deer Creek voted against license by 11 majority. The total vote was 71.

The total assets of Redwood county, according to the financial statement of the county auditor, is $109,900.74, while the total liabilities amount to only $38,266.02, making the county assets about $71,000 more than the liabilities.

Todd county will erect a new jail at Long Prairie.

James Sterie, an Austrian miner, was killed at the Franklin mine, Virginia. The falling of a mass of earth caused him to step back, and in doing so he struck against a timber cap in such a manner as to break his neck.

Earl Mitchell, a boy 14 years of age, was instantly killed at Clearwater by falling on the ice. A number of boys were playing with a merry-go-round, when the pole broke, throwing young Mitchell so forcibly that it broke his neck, killing him instantly.

The Minnesota Alumni of the Northwestern University is to be organized soon.

Jacob Johns, of Winona county, celebrated his 101st birthday. He was born in Breslau in 1800.

It is understood that Warden Reeve, of the Stillwater penitentiary, has decided to retain ex-Alderman Durnam, of Minneapolis, as his coachman, a position which he held under Warden Wolfer.

Postoffice service has been established at Burchard, with Lena Lake as postmaster, and at Monterey, with E. H. Fitz postmaster.

The law mading it incumbent upon the county to stand the expense of furnishing a liquor cure for any inebriate who is or is about to become a public charge, will be tested in the courts at St. Paul.

Nine fish houses on Fox lake were burned by the fish commissioner.

The production of flour at the head of the lakes in 1899 fell off nearly 30 per cent as compared with 1898. The production last year was 1,948,825 barrels, as compared with 2,460,045 barrels in 1898.

R. G. Staples has been appointed postmaster at Maple Island.

The dead body of Patrick J. McCloskey, of Deerfield, Mich., was found in the Minnesota river at Mankato. It is not known whether his drowning was accidental, or if there was foul play.

New Cable Lines.

France is absolutely dependent upon England for news of the Transvaal war, because the cables are under her control, and she is ready to spend a vast sum of money to free herself. This is like many people, who, after allowing dyspepsia to settle upon them, spend a fortune seeking deliverance. Save your money and try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the medicine which never fails to cure dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, malaria, fever and ague.

Near Unto Greatness.

A Louisville woman who spent the summer at a famous mountain resort in Virginia declares that, like all other places of the kind, it has its star boarder. This one was a young southern girl. She was not pretty, yet far from being homely; there was no special style about her, and she was as heavy on hand as a log, and, last of all, she was not particularly rich. But she lorded it over the place, and all the other boarders walked behind like the sister of giddy "Dodo." The Louisville woman lost sleep—trying to find the key to this social mystery. One day she chatted with the female potentate. They talked on and on until finally the subject turned on the Davis family. "Did you know any of them?" she asked.

"No," replied the girl-who-walked-before, grandly, "but I just missed traveling on the train once with Winnie Davis."

And then the other women from the south gazed reverently at the "just missed," and the Louisville lady exclaimed, softly: "Eureka!"—Louisville Times.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Millions of Women Use Cuticura Soap

Exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes, for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated or toilet soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

☞ All that has been said of Cuticura Soap may be said with even greater emphasis of CUTICURA OINTMENT, the most delicate and yet most effective of emollients, and greatest of skin cures. Its use in connection with Cuticura Soap (as per directions around each package), in the "ONE NIGHT CURE FOR SORE HANDS," in the "INSTANT RELIEF TREATMENT FOR DISFIGURING ITCHINGS AND IRRITATIONS," and in "A SHAMPOO FOR FALLING HAIR, and ITCHING, SCALY SCALPS," and in many uses too numerous to mention, is sufficient to prove its superiority over all other preparations for the skin.

Cuticura Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor. Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA Ointment (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, and burning skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 19, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

-Dr. Niven, Jan. 30, at Delano.

--Dr. Niven, Jan. 27 & 28, Waverly.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thirsday and Fri. 11tf.

--The Lyndale Literary society is to spend an evening soon on the interesting question "Is the Boer war Justifiable?" A hot time is looked for.

—On Friday night and Saturday morning a couple of inches of snow fell, furnishing the first sleighing of the season, on January 13, 1900.

--Farmers living near town have cleaned the alleys of manure pretty throughly since sleighing began. Those who fertilize their farms claim it pays them well for the time and trouble.

—Sympathy for the Boers in their strugle for independence seems to be taking on quite a tangible form in Minnesota lately. Meetings are being held. Resolutions of sympathy passed, and money for Red Cross societies raised.

--The Delano Athletic Club has added a turningpole to their list of equipments. They have, also, adopted a password so only those who are members, or invited guests, or who pay 25 cts for the priviledge will be admitted.

—Rev. Thompson reports that he found four of his fine chickens dead Monday morning. His neighbor, Clarence Bullen, set a trap for the destroyer and soon caught a mink. The mink turned out to be Les Bartlett's ferret.

--John Henn remarked Wednesday morning that he had been instrumental in furnishing a nights exercise for the Delano people. A. L. Mealey retorted that next time he furnishes exercise he choose something that want give himself quite such a scare as did the loss of Bohn's boy.

—Dr. Bracken, Secretary of the State Board of Health, visited the quarantined premises of F. W. Wandersee, and returned via Delano home. on Saturday. He found one case, Emil Wandersee, with typical small pox. It was thought that he might have contracted the disease in Delano but Dr. Bracken investigated the matter and decided that he must have got it some other place than that suspected. The Dr. is doing his best to stamp out the disease from the state.

—The Board of Health held a meeting Saturday evening at the office of Health Officer Catlin. They discussed several important subjects and resolved that Health Officer Catlin be instructed to appear before the Village Council, Monday evening and ask for the purchasing of a Lentz' Formaldehyde Generator, for fumigating purposes, for the Board of Health. This is the latest mode of disinfecting houses; and is much less trouble than the old way with sulphur fumes, and it is claimed to be much more effective.

—The Red Cross Society of the Transyaal and Orange Free State has opened headquarters at 176 east 6rd St., St Paul, and ask for the hearty cooperation of every true American who stands for freedom and justice. Theo. F. Koch and F. W. Bergmeier, Pub. of the "Volkszeitung" have declared their willingness to accept contributions and to supply Boer buttons. All contributions of $1.00 and upwards to be accounted for once a week in the columns of the daily papers. Among the many names signed to a circular giving the above information is to be found: A. R. Kiefer, Mayor of St. Paul; Dr. Justers Ohage, Health Commissioner, St. Paul; J. D. O'Brien, Attornev; John Lind, Governor of the State of Minnesota; R. C. Dunn, State Auditor; J. A. Ackerman, Deputy State Treasy; John W. Willis, ex-Judge.

—On Wednesday evening at 8:30 oclock the ringing of the fire bell brought together most of the men and boys in town to learn that Grover Bohn, aged 6½ years, was lost. He with his brother Oscar, older, and Blaine Wright, younger, had caught on to John Henn's bobs for a ride, and the horses, taking their customary gait, when their driver is "feeling good", soon left Blaine and Oscar on the ground, and they were soon at home. But Grover fearing to jump was still on the runing team when last seen by the boys. Searching parties were out all night along the Watertown road and in other directions. No trace could be found until 8:00 a. m. Wednesday, when Mr. Sunday and his son drove into town with the missing boy. Mr. S. said the boy came to his house wet and hungry at about 7 the evening before. He warmed and fed him and put him to bed. At about 3 a. m. his boys came home having been to town and engaged in the hunt. They so reported and were told that the boy was asleep on the lounge. And still the hunt with anxious people from town went on until 8 o'clock. It was a fearful strain on the parents, brother and sister of the lost boy and many others. Blaine Wright started to go in the same direction that Grover took but was captured and by force compelled to come. Grover must have gone the nearly two miles to a secluded place away from the public roads, across lots where he was not seen after getting out of the village limits. "All is well that ends well" and people are glad it was no worse.

—Charley Conzet says Glenn Wilder is very fond of mince pie.

—Don't forget the Epworth League social at the parsonage tonight.

--Ice is being put up for next Summers' use by some of our provident citizens.

--Don't forget the Epworth League Sociable at the M. E. Manse, tonight. A short but interesting programme has been prepared.

—County Surveyor Bloom was in town this week surveying some lots for Paul Plotnik. Paul proposes to know where his lines lay.

—John Dahlgren reports another nice skating party that was not stopped on account of a big snow storm. There seems to have been some Sell about it.

—The sleighing of this week has been enjoyed by many, and those having hauling to do have improved the opportunity to get it done as far as possible.

—Delano boasts one good, substantial republican who paid full fare to Minneapolis and return rather than save 84 cents by getting a certificate of attendance at the Bryan meeting.

--Lenard Diedrick has purchased the old Brugeman property on the corner of R. R. Avenue and River St. and is having it torn down. It is a fine business corner, and will, doubtless have a structure worthy of the location.

--A good many of Delano's leading business men and others when they come to think it over were surprised to think they could stay up till so late in the morning and travel so far, afoot, as many of them did looking for Bohn's lost boy. They did nobly.

- Prof. Herbert Carleton showed us a few days ago a fine assortment of picture cards representing, mostly, native birds of Minnesota, that he recently purchased, from the proceeds of the DeAylen entertainment. These are to be used by the teachers while telling stories or lecturing on the birds to the pupils.

—The Eagle makes some more of her blunders this week. She seems bound to keep up her reputation. For instance, she tries to make out that Bryan is an expansionist; that it is four miles to Sunday's farm; and that the health officer and village council are not doing things right. The Old Bird must know a whole lot that nobody else does unless they read her screechings.

—Sympathy of Delanoites for Mr. R. M. Bohn and family in his affliction, he having been confined to the house most of the winter, by sickness, and the family having a sleepless night on account of his boy being lost over night, assumed a solid form on Wednesday when he was presented with a purse of $50 raised by collection in a remarkably short time by a couple of enterprising citizens.

--Septimus Parslow, uncle of H. C. of Delano, who died at Hassan this month was one of the oldest settlers of Hennepin county, since in 1855. He was the oldest lay reader of the Episcopal church in Minnesota. He was a delegate to the convention that elected Bishop Whipple, 40 years ago. He was post master at Hassan until too old to serve. His golden wedding would have been celebrated in about a year.

—According to the arguments of the Eagle and some of her followers the "Old Bird" is a "rebel", a "traitor", and ought to be "severely dealt with". She kicks against the government all along the line. She growls like an old bear with a sore head, about the health department, the village council, the governor, and seems inclined to be "agin' the government" generally. She is doing her own "fumigating" and is rather overdoing it, especially on the "Swedes".

—At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the M. E. Church held Monday Jan. 8, the Secretary was instructed to draw up resolutions of thanks to the Village Council for the use of the City Hall during the debt raising time. And to the people who assisted in the paying of the debt. And to the M. E Conference for the $200 aid in paying off the debt. The Secretary was also requested to solicit payment of enough of the amount subscribed at the City Hall Dec. 31, to pay a bal. of $21.79 to Rev. A. F. Thompson.

—But little more than a month from now the anniversary of the birth of George Washington, The Father of his Country, will have rolled round. The Washington's Birthday Association of Delano, should bestir itself and hold a meeting and arrange for a fitting observance of this eventful occasion in the heart of every liberty loving American. A century has passed since the death of Washington and yet his deeds are as highly honored as they were 100 years ago. and his name is written high among the great men of the world, as a true American.

County Cullings.

Joe Boxell and wife are having more trouble about Joe's visiting the children, who were placed in her charge by Judge Giddings' decision.

A. W. Nory succeeds S. L. Rink in the Maple Lake Messenger. Mr. R. is, according to the Buffalo Standard, "looking about for newer and greener pastures".

The Standard tells, at length, what kind of a superintendent of schools Wright county needs. Let the anti republicans furnish a good man and try for the place. Mr. Lee has about served his time.

Good men should be placed on all village and town boards this year. They will have to look after the counting of votes and election next fall. Be at the polls and help elect honest, capable, reliable men at the March elections.

The Herald twits us about offering to do the county printing for less than legal rates. If the Herald will count up what remains for its share after dividing, honorably of course, with the Enterprise, Standard, Times and Eagle, we think it will not have much to brag of.

Able, honest legislators are the kind to have. Our state needs a reconstructing of many laws, and some severe penalties for neglect of officers to discharge their duties. The GAZETTE takes upon itself the credit of having succeeded in making party politicians see that they must nominate others than lawyers to represent Wright county in our Legislative halls, and we think our county has lost nothing by this reformation.

Wright county's "ring" is said to consist of a variety of materials. The lower and hidden portions are of unknown fineness. The ring is supposed to be of gold, but many parts of it seem to be alloyed with silver, copper, and even pewter may have a place. But it is generally conceded, often on the sly, that the setting is of pure 24 carat gold, and getting very much the worse for wear. The whole ring, like the "One Hoss Shay" may go to pieces in some not very distant day. It is hoped it will.

There has, for years, been a feeling among the better element of all political parties in Wright county that the leaders mingled together rather too freely, and helped each other to nominations and to elections, that there was an understanding with those of parties who worked for certain interests and hoisted themselves upon the people, that certain men, regardless of professed party affiliations helped manipulate the first convention held, placing men who could "run well" regardless of character, or ability, on the ticket here, and fair candidates, there, then working as zealously, or more so to have the next convention select men for candidates who would not defeat those "in the ring" and to get men nominated against those not "in the ring" who, by hook, or crook, or anyway might be "pulled through". Voters are not "getting tired" of this! They have, for years, been thoroughly disgusted with such "appearances" in our county politics and now are determined to see some changes! It's about time.

The Republicans have called their national convention, to nominate candidates for President and Vice-President. In a short time the Democratic National convention will be called. This Convention will determine whether we are to have for a candidate for President the choice of the people W. J. Bryan on the Chicago platform of '96 with anti trust and anti-imperialism; or Grover Cleveland or some other innocuous disuniter, with their glittering gold standard and other g. o. p. principles. The national convention is made up of delegates from each couty convention called for that purpose, and the greatest care should be taken to see that representative men are selected to represent us at the state convention, to vote our sentiments, and not to work and vote for gold bug men and gold bug principles. We can be at the primary elections and help send the right kind of men to the county convention. Look out for the call, and do your duty.

HOW GROVER BECAME A ROVER.

Three little boys, of Delano, had often been told,
To stay about home, and not wonder from the fold;
But, as they larger grew, they became more bold,
And that's how this story comes to be told.

There was Oscar, and Grover, and Blaine,
And its a wonder all hadn't been slain
In their escapades in sun shine, in snow, or in rain,
Which caused their parents and friends much pain.

Even they were, of their families the pride,
They never, though told, could resist taking a ride.
But jumped on wagon, or sleigh, and far and wide
Rode away, even though whipped, or tied.

Til one day, in midwinter, they tackled a man
Whose team felt good, and whose name was Henn.
He had taken too much grog, and whipped up the span,
And away went the boys, while the horses ran.

Blaine slipped, and tumbled and rolled over
Oscar jumped, and fell, and wasn't in clover,
And one stayed with the team, and became a rover,
And that was Bohn's lost little Grover.

ROCKFORD.

Jan. 15, 1900.

G. W. Florida sent his car load of flour to Philadelphia last week. He will send more; several car loads, enough to feed the G. O. P. at the National Convention. Minnesota flour and especially Wright county flour, is noted for producing brain, nerve and backbone stiffening. The investigating committee at Washington will probably order large quantities.

The Kriaska dance and raffle at G. A. R. hall on Thursday evening was a German party well patronized and well conducted. Harry Golden, of Lake Beebe, won the bicycle in the raffle. They danced until morning; had supper at the hotel.

The postmaster and B. E. Mattison went to Minneapolis over the Soo, on Wednesday. They did not go exclusively to see or hear Bryan, Lind, Gray, and Towne, but had other business. They returned on Thursday.

Clark T. Angell, of Litchfield, is visiting old friends and relatives here this week. He is an old settler of Rockford and run the first photograph gallery here in the sixties. He enlisted in the army of the U. S. in 1861 and credited to this town.

Mr. Louis Allars, of Rock Island, Ill. is looking over his old stamping ground and shaking hands with numerous old friends here this week. Mr. Allars built the Centennial hotel and was an active citizen of Rockford for several years. He is now in the hotel and restaurant business at Rock Island.

The A. O. U. W., of Rockford, had a public installation of officers, supper, and dance, at G. A. R. Hall, on Friday evening, Jan. 12. P. G. M., J. W. Mc Cormack, of Minneapolis, installing officers. A very large party attended. The ball was full and everything passed off in order. After the interesting ceremony of Installation, Mr. McCormack gave a fine lecture under the head of the Good of the Order. The singing and music interspersed with speeches was very interesting. Messrs Florida, Thompson, Johnson, and others responded to calls and made short addresses. Anon, the Master announced that supper was ready and that seventy could be seated at the first table, and the others would have to wait. It was a well provided and bountiful supper. Everybody seemed to be happy and satisfied. In fact it was the most social and pleasant and enjoyable party of the season. We looked in to see the second supper. The tables were full. The tickets showed 138 at the supper, and a large amount of edibles left over. About 12 o'clock the hall was cleared of chairs, the violin and other musical instruments tuned up and the merry dance commenced. The music and the two step motion was still going at 7 o'clock a. m., and all said, we are satisfied.

The village council held the regular monthly meeting at the recorder's office on Saturday evening, Jan. 13 The members were all present and quite an amount of business transacted, but as the Gazette is not the official paper of the village the full report cannot at present be printed. The annual election of village officers and for other matters is approaching. No doubt but we shall be called upon to vote once and again on the liquor license question. Many of the voters will remember last year and no doubt give the right worded ballot, and the yes's and no's will be left out. The question of village bonds of $6,000 for water works or fire protection will come up. You will hear more on this subject next week.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12, 1899.

Imperialism, as everybody who has read of Julius Caesar and Napoleon Bonaparte knows, is always accompanied by spreadeagleism. It is one of the methods of imperialists to dazzle the eyes of the people with glittering words and promises so that they will be unable to see the many and glaring evils of imperialism. Therefore, the spreadeagle speech in favor of the administration's Philippine policy, made by Senator Beveridge, of Ind., was not a new policy, but merely a revival of one as old as imperialism itself. Mr. Beveridge, although a young man, is an orator of the old school, a master of diction, and a painstaking elocutionist. So his speech sounded well. But his facts and his logic were somewhat shaky. Senator Hoar said that practically every statement of fact made by Mr. Beveridge was refuted by official reports from Admiral Dewey, Gen. Otis, and other officials in the Philippines. Senator Hoar also said that the eloquence and beauty of the speech as a whole recalled to his mind the incident of Satan taking Christ or a high mountain and promising him everything in sight if he would kneel down and worship him. Christ replied: "Get the behind Me, Satan", and Mr. Hoar believes the American people will eventually say: "Get thee behind me, imperialistic tempter." Mr. Hoar expressed regrets that the speech of Mr. Beveridge was so full of "wealth" and "glory" and "glory" and kindred things that there was no room for such words as "right", "justice", "duty", and "freedom".

The bosses of the gagged House not having any business prepared and being afraid that the members might make some sort of a mischief if allowed to hold sessions every day, have held the House down to every other day sessions this week and cut them down to an hour or so, except upon the day that eulogies were delivered of the late Representative Greene, of Nebr. The one thing that members of the House can talk as much as they please about, on the floor of the House, is the merits of deceased members.

The democratic members of the House held a harmonious caucus this week. The only action taken was the adoption of a resolution for the appointment of two members to act as "whips"-to arrange pairs etc., and of the usual resolution at the beginning of each Congress for the selection of members of the Congressional Campaign Committee by the several State delegations. Representative Newlands, of Nevada, made a speech, by invitation, to the caucus, suggesting the formation of an advisory committee composed of democrats, populists, silver republicans, silver independents, all the elements opposed to the present policies of the republican party, the purpose of which should be to formulate a policy on the more important public questions in order to secure the advantage of united action on the part of all opponents of the republican party, not only in Congress but in the presidential contest. He said he did not make the suggestion for immediate action but wished it to be taken under consideration. A resolution was offered by Representative Robertson, of La., providing for a democratic "steering" committee of fifteen members, but its consideration was deferred to a future caucus.

Representative Champ Clark, of Mo. thinks, it is about time to put wood pulp and printing paper on the free list, in order to head off the paper trust, which is putting the screws on the users of printing paper, and he thinks such a bill might be put through Congress, because the republicans would fear the influence of the country paper, the publishers of which feel the increased price of paper most. He said one editor in his district wrote him that the increase in the price of paper would make it cost him $82 more to print the same number of papers in 1900 that he printed in 1899. He thinks something will have to be done or many small publishers will have to choose between shutting up shop or raising their subscription price.

Secretary Gage's answer to the resolutions adopted by Congress asking explanations of the favoritism towards two New York banks, in the matter of depositing internal revenue collections and of juggling with the title of the old Custom House, which was sold to one of those banks, is one of those explanations that do not explain. More is likely to be heard of these matters.

Ex-Senator Faulkner, chief counsel for Senator Clark, has been making things very unpleasant for some of the Montana witnesses in the hearings before the Senate Committee on Elections.

Republican Senators are preparing to grab the Senate patronage which is not already in their hands. They held a caucus this week and appointed a committee to arrange a programme for the grab.

A large and enthusiastic mass meeting of anti-imperialists was held in Washington Thursday night. Speeches were made by ex-Gov. Boutwell, of Mass; Senator Mason, of Ill, and Representative Lentz, of Ohio.

BRYAN and TOWNE would make a good team to land the democratic wagon safe in the capital at Washington.

GEN. CONGRESSMAN JOSEPH WHEELER is soon to leave Manila for Congress. He always wanted to be in the hottest of the fight.

JUDGE must have the bighead, and think New York Democrats that oppose Bryan the whole democratic party. Wait till the rest of the country and the Bryan Democrats of New York are heard from at the convention.

PRICES of overcoats, arctics and other overshoes, furs, caps, mittens and winter wear, are marked away down. This is no credit to the manufactures but is due to the Ruler of the Universe. People dont need them so bad as usual.

MOSES E. CLAPP has time and again been mentioned as the Republican candidate for Governor. He would be highly acceptible to some. But those who favor monarchical governments wouldn't want him since he acted as the chairman for the great pro-Boer meeting at St. Paul, recently.

THIS week's Judge has a picture which it claims represents Bryan turned to the wall by the democratic party. If they come as near representing the truth in the case as the picture does of looking like W. J. Bryan, it is away off. The cartoon looks more like some old money miser, than it does like any western rosy cheeked lover of his country we have seen.

A KIND Providence when it sets out to do so, can bust the biggest trust in the land. The clothing trust, the rubber trust, the coal trust, can testify to the powerful competing forces exercised this winter. Overcoats are marked away down, arctics and other over shoes are about half price, coal is a drug in the market, and never had these combinations conspired to make prices good and sales numerous more than now, and never in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant has there been a milder winter than the one half over now. Surely the Good Shepherd "tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" this winter.

IMPERILISTIC papers and orators are calling everybody that don't favor spreading our rule over the globe, whether or not the inhabitants there of acquiesce, traitors, rebels and fighters against the government. From their imperialistic point of view, perhaps they are honest. A King before now, has taken the liberty to make things go according to his own will, or the will of those to whom he was under such obligations that he couldn't help himself; even to shutting the mouths of his opposers, and when occasion, to him, demand taking their lives. Our imperialistic friends may think a child who has arrived at the age when he knows for himself right from wrong and refuses to comit crime at the demand of drunken parents, a rebel a traitor; they may think a citizen of a state who refuses to be governed by laws made by a partisan legislature, and which conflict with the constitution of our country a rebel and a traitor. If they look at things in this light why do they stop when they come to a set of partisan politicians running our free government, not in accordance with the Constitution which they swore to defend, and against the traditions and teachings of more than a century of the best men of our nation, but for the aggrandisement of themselves and their friends, and monied monopoly of every kind that is not working for the interest of the people they are capturing or the improvement of the country, or for the interest of the millions of Americas freemen but who apparently see nothing but the dollar, and are willing to sacrafice all that belongs to friend or foe to get it. People in America today are not opposing the government; they are opposing leaving the principles of freedom and of liberty, they are opposing the centralization of power into the hand of the monopolies; to the running of this free government in the interest of anybody else but the people, who are, themselves, according to our teaching, the government. What is wanted in the United States today is what has been wanted for years, "A government of the people, for the people, by the people."

Worse Now Than Then.

In the last campaign the fusionists made their campaign almost wholly upon state issues. The Republicans were handicapped by a candidate who was not well posted upon state affairs and who gave most of his attention to making oratorical efforts in which the battles of Manilla, Santiago and El Caney, the Goddess of Liberty and "the Heart of Bruce were important features. Shall we profit by experience?—Aitkin Age.

The people are more tired now of hearing of the glory of arms and the commercial expansion of our country, and of running after the flag wherever some hot head expansionists wish to claim it is boisted. Whether or not it has ever been within hundreds of miles of that place and also of English-American alliance to keep down growing republics or hold open the doors of China to the liquor and other trafics of the world.

British Brutalities.

Anybody, it does not matter what he calls himself, who believes, that the will of the ruler, emperor or president, is law, is an imperialist. He has accepted the imperialistic principle and should not kick against the title. This imperialistic disease is new with us, but a sure sign of it all the world over is, that those afflicted with it, call those who do not have it, traitors.

The American imperialists talk so much about their destiny to spread humanity and civilization, that it is well worth to look at the deeds of our dear cousins in their war against the Boers.

Durban is the port where England unloads the war material and the soldiers for the conquest. This, as well as Ladysmith and Dundee are English towns.

A German merchant from Durban writes to a friend in substance the following:

"It is rather hard on me, that you, a friend of the Boers, expects from me, an Anglo German, to give you my candid opinion about this war. I need not give the news about the battles, because the telegraph will bring those quicker. But I will report about the terrible and scandalous deeds of the British soldiers, as a proof that these cured me of my English svmpathies and because this report will not attract the vigilance of the English censor.

After the evacuation of Dundee by the British, the unhappy inhabitants came destitute, robbed of everything valuable, into Durban. The soldiers got at the beginning, beastly drunk in sacking the saloons; then they robbed the people, and what they did not steal they destroyed; they ravished women and guls, and if a relation tried to interfere he was knocked down. The officers who tried to stop this were threatened the same way. Reckless devastation, rape and murder showed the track of the retiring army. Is it a wonder that the farmers of that country joined the Boers for revenge? In Ladysmith and Pietermaritzburg it is not much better. General White, unable to stop the robbery of the garrison, because they refuse to fight if he does, promised the unhappy inhabitants a settlement afterwards.

Though, of course it is not as bad as that in Durban, no woman goes on the street in the evening, and one of my friends who tried to save a woman, lays, with a broken arm and broken ribs in the hospital. The captivated Boers are treated shamefully. They are plundered to the shirt and then they are beaten and maltreated.

Proud Albion ought to be ashamed of their sons. I admit that the soldiers are badly treated too. Tobacco mixed with sea weed, spoiled and doctored vegetables and meat are furnished as food; the underclothing falls to pieces when washed and the shoes have an artificial mixture of paper and leather refuse for soles. In consequence insubordination and mutiny existed already on the transport ships.

Though this is fearful, all the wars of oppression as long as history exists, are. Though the greed of the imperialists is covered with the pretense of humanity, christianity, or civilization, they reek with the same atrocities, because the common soldier knows that all this is humbug. He knows that he fights for the mediveal principle of robbery, and acts in his brutal way accordingly.

HUMANITARIAN.

Dignity.

Dignity does not draw. It answers in place of intellectual tone for twenty minutes, but after awhile it fails to get there. Dignity works all right in a wooden Indian or a drum major, but the man who desires to draw a salary through life and to be sure of a visible means of support, will do well to make some other provision than a haughty look and the air of patronage. Nye

Among our Exchanges.

Aitkin Age: There is a report that the fusion scheme is to be nominate Judge Thomas Canty for governor and have the convention endorse Lind for United States senator. It would be a strong combination and insure a lively campaign.

Prepare for the Census.

Director of the Census Merriam suggests to the agriculturists of the country that they use some of their spare time between now and June next in throughly preparing themselves to answer promptly and accurately the questions relative to the acreage, quality and value of crops; the quality and value of all farm products, animal and vegetable; the cost of fertilizers and farm labor, and in fact, all the items of farm opperations for the calander year 1899, which the census enumerators are by law compelled to ascertain. This he says will result in a full and accurate census.—Hutchinson Times.

The Boers and Huguenots.

The original Dutch settlement in South Africa was in Cape Colony, where the Hollanders first located in 1652. After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by Louis XIV, there was an exodus of Huguenots from France in 1688, and they, too, settled in Cape Colony. The French and the Dutch never got along well there together, and in 1709, the use of French in addressing the government was forbidden. In 1724 the French religious services were finally forbidden. Many of the Cape Colony Huguenots emigrated to other parts of Africa, and gradually the Dutch absorbed both the French and their language. In the main only French proper names now survive in the Cape Colony and the Transvaal.

Gen. Joubert is of ancient exiled Huguenot stock. De Beer and Ou Troitspan, whose farms were despoiled when diamonds were first found at Kimberley, were of Huguenot extraction.—World.

History of the Boer War for Independence.

The Boer war of independence of 1880-1881, in which the Boers showed themselves to be better soldiers than the British, was a desperately fought conflict from first to last.

Oom Paul was the head of the government, Joubert commanded the army, and Pretorius had equal authority with both.

The Boers at the onset surprised and captured a detachment of English troops under Lieut.-Col. Anstruther which was marching from Middleburg to Pretoria. The Boers conquered Natal as far as Newanka and Griqualand west, to Barkly. The British garrison at Pretoria was besieged.

Gen. Sir George Colley and his army on their way to Pretoria, attempted to force the pass of the Drakensberg at Laing's Nek, but were repulsed with terrible slaughter. In a subsequent engagement, on Feb. 8, he lost 150 men and six officers. The British finally landed reinforcements at Durban. The Boers, to the number of 10,000 armed men, intrenched themselves at Laign's Nek. Gen Sir Evelyn Wood marched to aid Gen Colley.

The latter, with 700 men, occupied the heights of the Spitzkop, on Majuba Mountains, commanding the Boer position. On Feb. 27, 1881, the Boers stormed the mountain heights and carried them. Gen. Cooley and 72 others were slain, and 184 British troops were wounded or captured.

Sir Fredrick Roberts was appointed Comander in Chief of the English forces, and 15,000 more troops were ordered to go to the Transvaal. Pending their arrival Gen. Wood procured, through President Brand, of the Orange River Republic, an armistice with the Boers. The English garrison at Potchefstroom surrendered on March 21.—World.

WOUND HIS BODY IN A "LOVE-KNOT" AROUND OLD RATTLER'S NECK.

PEACE OR WAR.

War! it is just and holy,
When the righteous cause is just,
And the fair fame of Freedom
Lies trampled in the dust,

When the great God of nations
Girds on His mighty sword,
And eager armies follow
The banner of the Lord.

But not within the whirlwind,
And not in earthquake shock,
Find we our Lord Jehovah,
Our Refuge and our Rock.

The still small voice eternal
Reveals His holy will;
It soothes the troubled billows,
It whispers: "Peace, be still!"

When spears are beat into plowshares,
When war no more shall be,
When peace the earth shall cover,
As waters swell the sea,

In clearer tones shall echo
The angels' song again:
"Glory to God in Heaven,
On earth good will to men."

Old Rattler and the King Snake

By David Starr Jordon.

Natural history stories have always proven acceptable to a large number of readers, and the following story, written by David Starr Jordan, president of the Leland Stanford Junior university and reprinted by permission from Appleton's Popular Science Monthly, can hardly prove an exception to this rule.

"I only know thee humble, bold,
Haughty, with miseries untold,
And the old curse that left thee cold,
And drove thee ever to the sun
On blistering rocks.....
Thou whose fame
Searchest the grass with tongue of flame,
Making all creatures seem thy game,
When the whole woods before thee run,
Asked but—when all is said and done—
To lie, untrodden, in the sun!"
—Bret Harte.

OLD RATTLER was a snake, of course, and he lived in the King River canyon, high up and down deep in the mountains of California.

He had a hole behind and below a large, flat granite rock, not far from the river, and he called it his home; for in it he slept all night and all winter, but when the sun came back in the spring and took the frost out of the air and the rocks, then he crawled out to lie until he got warm. The stream was clear and swift in the canyon, the waterfalls sang in the side gulch of Roaring river, the wind rustled in the long needles of the yellow pines, and the birds called to their mates in the branches. But Old Rattler did not care for such things. He was just a snake, you know, and his neighbors did not think him a good snake at that, for he was surly and silent, and his big three-cornered, "coffin-shaped" head, set on a slim, fat neck, was very ugly to see. But when he opened his mouth he was uglier still, for in his upper jaw he had two long fangs, and each one was filled with deadly poison. His vicious old head was covered with gray and wrinkled scales, and his black, beadlike eyes snapped when he opened his mouth to find out whether his fangs were both in working order.

Old Rattler was pretty stiff when he first came from his hole on the morning of this story. He had lain all night coiled up like a rope among the rocks, and his tail felt very cold. But the glad sun warmed the cockles of his heart, and in an hour or two he became limber, and this made him happy in his shaky fashion. But, being warm, he began to be hungry, for it had been a whole month since he had eaten anything. When the first new moon of August came, his skin loosened everywhere and slipped down over his eyes like a veil, so that he could see nothing about him, and could not hunt for frogs by the river nor for chipmunks among the trees. But with the new moon of September all this was over. The rusty brown old coat was changed for a new suit of gray and black, and the diamond-shaped checkers all over it were clean and shiny as a set of new clothes ought to be.

There was a little striped chipmunk running up and down the sugar-pine tree over his head, pursing his little mouth and throwing himself into pretty attitudes, as though he were the center of an admiring audience, and Old Rattler kept a steady eye on him. But he was in no hurry about it all. He must first get the kinks out of his neck, and the cold cramps from his tail. There was an old curse on his family, so the other beasts had heard, that kept him always cold, and his tail was the coldest part of all. So he shook it a little, just to show that it was growing limber, and the bone clappers on the end rustled with a sharp, angry noise. Fifteen rattles he had in all—15 and a button—and to have so many showed that he was no common member of his hated family. Then he shook his tail again, and more sharply. This was to show all the world that he, Old Rattler, was wide awake, and whoever stepped on him would better look out. Then all the big beasts and little beasts who heard the noise fled away just as fast as ever they could; and to run away was the best thing they could do, for when Old Rattler struck one of them with his fangs all was over with him. So there were many in the canyon, beasts and birds and snakes, too, who hated Old Rattler, but only a few dared face him. And one of these was Glittershield, whom men call the King of Snakes, and in a minute I shall tell you why.

And when Old Rattler was doing all that I have said, the King Snake lay low on a bed of pine needles, behind a bunch of fern, and watched with keen, sharp eye. The angry buzz of Rattler's tail, which scared the chipmunks and the bullfrogs and all the rest of the beast folk, was music for Glittershield. He was a snake, too, and snakes understand some things better than any of the rest of us.

Glittershield was slim and wiry in his body, as long as Old Rattler himself, but not so large around. His coat was smooth and glossy, not rough and wrinkly like Old Rattler's, and his upraised head was small and pretty—for a snake. He was the best dressed of all his kind, and he looked his finest as he faced Old Rattler. His head was shiny black, his throat and neck as white as milk, while all down his body to the end of his tail he was painted with rings, first white, then black, then crimson, and every ring was bright as if it had just been freshly polished that very day.

So the King Snake passed the sheltering fern and came right up to Old Rattler. Rattler opened his sharp eyes, threw himself on guard with a snap and a buzz, and shook his bony clappers savagely. But the King of Snakes was not afraid. Every snake has a weak spot somewhere, and that is the place to strike him. If he hadn't a weak spot no one else could live about him, and then perhaps he would starve to death at last. If he had not some strong points, where no one could harm him, he couldn't live himself.

As the black crest rose, Old Rattler's tail grew cold, his head dropped, his mouth closed, he straightened out his coil, and staggered helplessly toward his hole.

This was the chance for Glittershield. With a dash so swift that all the rings on his body—red, white and black—melted into one purple flash, he seized Old Rattler by his throat. He carried no weapons, to be sure. He had neither fangs nor venom. He won his victories by force and dash, not by means of advantage. He was quick and strong, and his little hooked teeth held like the claws of a hawk. Old Rattler closed his mouth because he couldn't help it, and the fangs he could not use were folded back against the roof of his jaw.

The King Snake leaped forward, wound his body in a "love-knot" around Old Rattler's neck, took a "half-hitch" with his tail about the stomach, while the rest of his body lay in a curve like the letter S between the two knots. Then all he had to do was to stiffen up his muscles, and Old Rattler's backbone was snapped off at the neck.

All that remained to Glittershield was to swallow his enemy. First he rubbed his lips all over the body, from the head to the tail, till it was slippery with slime. Then he opened his mouth very wide, with a huge snaky yawn, and face to face he began on Old Rattler. The ugly head was hard to manage, but after much straining, he clasped his jaws around it, and the venom trickled down his throat like some fiery sauce. Slowly head and neck and body disappeared, and the tail wriggled despairingly, for the tail of the snake folk cannot die till sundown, and when it went at last the 15 rattles and the button were keeping up an angry buzz. And all night long the King of Snakes, twice as big as he ought to be, lay gorged and motionless upon Old Rattler's rock.

And in the morning the little chipmunk ran out on a limb above him, pursed up his lips, and made all kinds of faces, as much as to say: "I did all this, and the whole world was watching while I did it."

Imitation.

"What splendid pearls the bride has! How can a man give his bride pearls?—they mean tears."

"Oh, that's superstition. Besides, they are imitation pearls."

"Well, if she knows that, the tears will be genuine, at any rate."—Fliegende Blaetter.

How are we to speak of this year briefly? Is it to be naughty-naught?

The physician that had his diploma and necktie stolen on his arrival in Chicago is in real hard luck. A man may be able to practice medicine without a diploma, but the public insists on his having a necktie.

It is just 20 years ago that Edison gave the first public exhibition of his incandescent light in his laboratory at Menlo Park, which led to the establishment of the first system of electric lighting ever established.

Next June will be celebrated the five hundredth anniversary of the birth of Gutenberg, the inventor of printing. The contrast between his little supply of material and modern composing and press rooms is a good illustration of the world's progress.

An exchange is trying to get up a controversy over the grammatical construction of the phrase: "The United States." It is a poor time to start such a quarrel. Everybody is quite sure just at present that the United States is, grammar or no grammar.

It seems as if the limit of humiliation has come at last to the horse. He has been used as a beast of profitless burden, cut up into sausage meat and otherwise abused in the flesh, and now doctors are making a drunkard of him in order that with his virus they may destroy drunkenness in that unreliable animal, man.

Frank L. Stanton writes in the Atlanta Constitution of a Georgia boy who sent a letter to his father, who was in another town. This is the way it read: "Dear Dad—This is wrote to tell you Jamie wuz blowed up by a toy cannon. He went in your direction. If you find him please send him home, as we are worried about him."

While Lord Roberts is 67 years old, Alexander the Great died at 32, Hannibal was most successful at 31, Caesar won Pharsalo at 48, Napoleon at the height of his power was 40, Wellington won Waterloo at 46, Washington was commander in chief at 43, Grant was 43 when Lee surrendered and Lee was 58, and Sheridan was famous at 34.

The wife of President Loubet, of France, celebrated her New Year's by giving 150 widows enough money to pay their January rent. It has been said by some of the sham aristocracy of France that the president and his wife are "very common," but it is evident that they are of royal stock even if their blood is not blue.

Mrs. Ballington Booth, of the Salvation Army, is to open her "home for ex-convicts" in New York city. The home will provide for 40 men at a time and will be a resting place for them while they are obtaining work. There have been many protests from the people living near the home who fear the ex-prisoners, but Mrs. Booth refuses to listen to them.

The consummation of the United States' "open door" policy in China is considered as one of the greatest diplomatic strokes of modern times. By it all the European powers become pledged to a pacific policy of commercial expansion and the United States secures every desired advantage of trade without meddling in the affairs of China or forming any entangling alliances.

Bells have been the same shape for so many years that everyone naturally supposed that it was the very best shape for them, but now up jumps a bell-maker who has discovered that the proper shape for the bell is tubular. It is stated that the discovery will make a revolution in bellmaking. All of which goes to show that if we insist upon staying in the old rut we will never know what there is outside of it.

It is very likely that a model farm will be established by the government three miles west of Washington. A part of the ground belonging to the Arlington cemetery, a part for which there has never been any use, will be turned over to the agricultural department. The house committee on military affairs has agreed to the bill providing for the farm, the action of that committee being necessary because of the fact that the land is in the charge of the war department.

Love laughs at locksmiths, but not at telephones. A young couple eloped from a place near Plainfield, N. J., and started off with horse and wagon for Plainfield to be married. The lovers were pursued with another horse. It was a close race till the first vehicle broke down in a muddy road. But the fugitives got hold of a tandem bicycle, and away they went. Alas! they had forgotten the telephone, and as they entered Plainfield they were arrested on a telephone message and detained for their respective parents. Modern science beats romance.

The government has a peculiar case on its hands from Hawaii. C. D. Pringle, a merchant, has taken possession of Cocoanut island, the most famous spot in all the islands, and claims the place under squatter's rights. The government lays claim to the place because of its having been set aside by the old monarchy as a quarantine station for the harbor of Hilo. Our minister has notified Pringle to leave, but he has thrown up a small fort and says he is prepared to defend his claim by force if necessary. He has appealed to Washington.

Perhaps we are growing more honest, or it may be that it is easier to be honest under prosperity than under adversity; at all events, in 1899 the total sum embezzled in the country was remarkable for its smallness; it was $2,218,373. This may sound like a large sum, but when one considers it with reference to what might be termed the stealable wealth of the country, it is trivial, and when one knows that it is $3,632,890 less than that of the year before, and that it is the smallest total for 20 years except 1882, when it was $2,000,000, then the real smallness of it appears.

PROGRESS IS SLOW.

March of Gen. Buller on Ladysmith—Boers Contesting Every Inch of the Way.

London, Jan. 23.—The Daily Mail has the following, dated Sunday night, from Spearman's Camp:

"There has been hot fighting all day. At dawn our attack was resumed along the entire line, all the brigades taking part. We soon discovered that the Boers still occupied the range of hills in force, their position being very strong. The range is intersected by steep ravines and many approaches very difficult of access. To-day the Boers who were driven from their trenches yesterday took cover in dongas and behind the rocks with which the hills are strewn. The forces, therefore, commenced the task of driving them out, and set to work with good heart in the early morning. Much firing took place, and our progress was slow, but gradually British pluck told its tale, and the enemy fell back to another kopje. We swarmed on and occupied it, and then the attack recommenced with the utmost gallantry.

"The country simply abounds in hills favorable to guerrilla warfare, and our task is an arduous one. Nevertheless, it is being gradually accomplished. Whenever any of the enemy were observed taking up a fresh position our field batteries poured in showers of shrapnel, and the rapid movement of the guns, followed by accurate shooting, must have greatly distressed them. The enemy were on the defensive almost the entire day, save once, when they attempted to outflank our left and were signally checkmated. They relied almost entirely on rifle fire. A few shells were fired from a heavy piece of ordnance, but these fell harmless.

"We now occupy the lower crest on the left, and are converging slowly but surely to the Boer center. The Boer loss is unknown, but must have been heavy. The killed and wounded are carried away to the rear rapidly. The strong rumors are in circulation that the Boers are retiring. The battle will be resumed to-morrow."

London, Jan. 23.—Just before midnight the war office issued the following dispatch from Gen. Buller:

"Spearman's Camp, Jan. 22.—The following casualties are reported in Gen. Hart's brigade as the result of yesterday's fighting: Killed—Capt. Ryall, Yorkshire regiment, and five men. Wounded — Second Lieut. Andrews, Border regiment; Capt. MacLaughlan, Inniskillings; Lieut. Barlow, Yorkshire regiment, and 75 men. Missing—eight men. Other casualties will be forwarded when received."

The foregoing was all the war office had issued up to midnight. Nothing, therefore, is known here as yet regarding Monday's operations.

London, Jan. 23.—The Daily Chronicle has received the following, dated January 22, 4:15 p. m., from Spearman's Camp:

"The Boers admit 21 casualties during Gen. Lyttleton's skirmish on Saturday. Gen. Warren continues pushing, though he is necessarily making very slow progress, as the Boers are numerous and strongly entrenched. Our infantry are working over parallel ridges, with Lord Dundonald's cavalry lying well out on the left flank and awaiting developments. The Boers contest every inch of the ground. This morning Gen. Warren's artillery reopened fire, but the Boers did not reply, and our fire became less hot. The naval guns in front here have been quiet. A Boer prisoner who was brought in boasted that it would take us three months to reach Ladysmith."

TWO BANKS ROBBED.

Silver Lake and Elletsville, Ind., Visited by Masked Men—About $8,000 Taken.

Peru, Ind., Jan. 20.—The Commercial bank of the town of Silver Lake, about 25 miles northeast of this city, was wrecked between one and two o'clock Friday morning by masked men, who blew up the vault and safe with nitroglycerin. The cracksmen carried away about $4,000 in paper money. They were compelled to leave several sacks of silver, owing to a battle begun by citizens. These sacks contained $15,000.

Bloomington, Ind., Jan. 20.—The village of Elletsville was aroused from its slumbers about two o'clock Friday morning by a loud explosion, which seemed to shake the whole town. Upon investigation it was discovered that the village bank had been broken into and the safe looted. The explosive used by the robbers was so powerful that every window pane in the building was shattered and the roof actually lifted off. Four doors of the safe were blown to pieces. The robbers secured about $1,500 and escaped on a handcar, George Fryhofer, the bank cashier, says papers were taken of sufficient value to make the aggregate loss $4,000.

The murderers disposed of Edlinger's pair of mules, one horse and a wagon in Bates county. Amos Phillips, an accomplice of the two brothers' crime, was convicted Friday of murder in the first degree. "OTIS."

Manila, Jan. 22.—The escort of 50 men of company C, Thirtieth infantry, Lieut. Ralston commanding, which was ambushed near Lipa, as already cabled, consisted of 50 convalescents from the hospital, who were going to rejoin the regiment. The insurgents hid in the bushes along the road and opened fire upon the pack train from three sides. The Americans, in addition to their casualties, were compelled to abandon the train, which consisted of 22 horses. The latter, with their packs, all fell into the hands of the insurgents, who pursued the retreating escort for three miles along the road, until the Americans were reenforced.

Manila, Jan. 23.—Two companies of the Forty-sixth infantry, under Maj. Johnson, and three companies of the Thirty-eighth infantry, commanded by Maj. Muir, defeated 800 insurgents at Taal, province of Batangas, Saturday, taking the town. The United States gunboat Marietta also shelled the place. The insurgents had four cannon, two of which were captured. Two Americans were wounded and ten insurgent dead were found on the field.

HOLD THEIR OWN.

An Even Balance Is Maintained in General Trade and Prices—The Situation Reviewed.

New York, Jan. 19.—Bradstreet's says: "General trade and prices as a whole maintain the even balance which has been the leading feature for some time past, and in which it will require the advent of distinctly new features to affect any basic change. General demand is large for this season of the year, but speculation is quiet to the extreme of dullness in some lines, and especially in those branches of speculation which go to radically affect financial affairs, and therefore the volume of bank clearings. Close examination of leading lines of industry fails to show marked unfavorable features. It is true that retail trade in seasonable goods has been and is being affected by phenomenally mild winter weather, but wherever spring trade, particularly in dry goods, has been developed, it has been in such volume and accompanied with such a readiness of acceptance of advanced prices as to point to undiminished confidence on the part of the trade world as to the outlook for spring business.

"The iron and steel industry, justly regarded as a trustworthy index of general trade, is still actively employed on old orders, and new business is limited for reasons unnecessary to recapitulate. It is evident that the few reactions in prices shown in such an ordinarily dull period as this have strengthened rather than lessened confidence in the future. Signs of preparation for the coming season's needs are shown in the reported active inquiry for steel rails at the west, recent sales at Chicago aggregating 80,000 tons, some of which are for northwestern railroads and some for export. Production is as evidently hard pushed as ever. Cereals are dull in nearly all directions, and the pressure of enlarged stocks, particularly abroad, has been influential this week in bringing about a reaction in prices. Corn and oats, however, are rather firmer on foreign buying, though sympathetically affected by the decline in the leading cereal. Lumber is strong, particularly white pine grades, partly because of smaller stocks and a possibly smaller cut in the northwest as a result of lack of snow, and partly because of a hopeful feeling as to the building outlook the coming spring."

"Failures for the week have been 242 in the United States, against 249 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 32 last year."

A TERRIBLE DEED.

Martin Bergen, of Boston Baseball Club, Kills Wife and Two Children and Commits Suicide.

North Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 20.—Martin Bergen, the catcher of the Boston baseball team of the National league, killed his wife and two children and committed suicide at his home here. An ax was the implement used in taking the life of Mrs. Bergen and one of the children, while a razor was used to cut the throat of the other child, a little girl, and of the man himself.

It is thought the action was due to insanity. It has been suspected for some time that Bergen was a victim of mental derangement. In fact, some of his actions in connection with his baseball managers last season led to the supposition at that time.

A Wonderful Case.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 19.—The post-mortem examination of the body of Charles F. Seeberger, the electrician who was shot last Saturday night at Brunswick, Md., by Conductor Jerome Swartley, and died Tuesday, revealed the fact that Seeberger lived 60 hours with a bullet hole through the center of his heart. The wound in the heart, the doctors say, was of such a nature that instantaneous death should have resulted, and that the man lived 60 hours after receiving it is regarded little short of miraculous.

Is a Bankrupt.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Richard H. Southgate, resident manager of the Auditorium hotel and the Annex and formerly one of the proprietors of the Hotel Brunswick, in New York, has sought relief under the national bankruptcy act from liabilities aggregating $434,938. His petition in bankruptcy, with the schedule of these debts and $306,775 assets, was filed in the United States district court Saturday. Much of the indebtedness was contracted by signing papers for others.

Pension Appropriation Bill Passed.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The pension appropriation bill, carrying $145,245,250, was passed by the house Friday. It was made the vehicle of an attack upon the commissioner of pensions by Mr. Curtis (rep., Kan.), who was seconded by Mr. Lentz and Mr. Norton (O.) and Mr. Robinson (Ind.), and other northern democrats. All inveighed against the lack of liberality in the administration of the pension laws. The commissioner was ably defended by a score of members from both sides of the house.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

State Agricultural Society.

The State Agricultural society, at its recent meeting, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, John Cooper, St. Cloud; first vice president, Chester R. Smith; second vice president, Thomas H. Shevlin, Minneapolis; managers for three years, C. N. Cosgrove, Le Sueur; J. M. Underwood, Lake City. With the exception of Mr. Shevlin all served last year.

In the absence of President Cooper, Manager Liggett read the former's annual report.

The report of Secretary Randall was submitted to the association.

E. W. Durant of Stillwater, for the society, in behalf of the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers, requested that the association be given a permanent site at the fair grounds and permission to erect a log building thereon. The application was referred to the incoming administration with a favorable recommendation.

At the Fish Hatchery.

Trout hatching has begun at the state fish farm. Already there are in the hatching tanks at the Willowbrooks hatchery more than 2,000,000 eggs and newly hatched fish, and there will probably be another million before many days, for there are still a number of breeders at the hatchery to be stripped. It is expected that the hatchery will send out more than three million trout of the various varieties in the spring. The distribution will probably begin in May and it will take several weeks.

Last year 2,110,000 trout were distributed, and this year the output of the hatchery will be about 3,000,000. About 2,000,000 will be brook trout, and the rest will be Scotch, California, or rainbow and steel-head trout. The state commission has never put any steel-heads in the state, although the government has put out a good many.

Money in Beets.

The officials of the Minnesota Beet Sugar factory are busy making arrangements for the coming season, and they have seven canvassers in the country at the present time making contracts with the farmers, who will grow beets for the factory this year.

About 2,000 persons were engaged in the work last year, with a total acreage of about 4,000 acres. It is expected that not less than 6,000 acres will be devoted to beets this year. The cultivation of beets was found to be very profitable last year, a large number of the farmers making from $50 to $75 an acre, and some making as much as $100. Very little trouble is found in making contracts this year as a result.

Too Small Type.

The state dairy and food department is about to inaugurate a crusade against the dealers in imitation butter, the fight in this instance being directed against the Armour Packing company of Chicago. Commencing with the new year, the latter sent out a large number of calendars for its customers, on which is printed in small type the words "Butterine used here as a substitute for butter." This calendar is posted on the wall, and it is supposed to allow an evasion of the law, which requires that in all eating houses where oleomargarine or any other compound other than butter is used notices must be posted on all of the walls in large type, and also printed on the bill of fare.

No Carnival.

The St. Paul winter carnival is off. At a meeting of the association it was concluded that it would be impossible to carry out the plans of the proposed carnival on account of the warm weather. This is the second time in the history of St. Paul that a winter carnival has melted away. It is about 10 years ago since an association was formed for the purpose of holding a carnival, to embrace an ice palace, with winter sports. It was conducted quite successfully one year, but the following winter the weather proved traitrous, and the idea was abandoned.

Teachers' Certificates.

After a hot tilt between the state high school board and the state normal board at the state capitol, it was decided that hereafter holders of state professional certificates will be allowed to teach in the high schools, it being understood that these certificates can only be obtained upon examination, or presentation of a diploma from a college in good standing. Normal school graduates are to be given credit in these examinations for those studies which they actually completed in normal, but will have to pass an examination in all others.

HIS MISTAKE.

An American Girl Gives an Englishman a Little Light on Ladies.

A Louisville girl, who was recently in Germany, met a young English officer who was in the same city, and, in fact, in the same house with her for two months, studying German for his promotion. Like most Europeans he had the usual absurd ideas about the girls of this country, who, in the minds of the untraveled foreigner, are rather hoyden creatures who smoke and have other masculine traits.

After dinner one day, in the early acquaintance of the couple, the officer offered the Louisville girl a cigarette, and, upon her refusing it, he said:

"Why, I thought all the girls in the United States smoked."

"So we do," replied the girl, "but never cigarettes; only pipes. If you will get that pipe off the mantelpiece in the next room I shall be charmed to smoke with you."

Not suspecting the joke she was playing on him, the officer brought the pipe and filled it, and it was not until he saw the wry faces his friend made in attempting to carry out the joke that he appreciated the situation. He was continually telling the American in a tone of surprise that she was just like the girls at home in England, and her rejoinder was:

"Lieutenant, don't you think a lady is a lady the world over?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WILLING TO TRY IT.

No Lineage Necessary as Long as He Had a Sufficiency of the Coin.

"I suppose," she said, "that you had an ancestor in the celebrated little party that 'came over' with William the Conqueror?"

"Perhaps," he replied, "but I have never looked the matter up."

"Of course you are a lineal descendant of some one who came over in the Mayflower?"

"I don't know. It is possible that I am, but I have never hunted up the records."

"Well," she went on, "you are descended from an officer of the revolutionary war, aren't you?"

Finding himself cornered he broke down and confessed.

"My father's name was Szfchzerskendowski, which he changed to Dows with the sanction of the court."

She sat for a moment, almost crushed. Then hope seemed to return to her and she asked:

"How much did you say you expected your father to leave you?"

"I figure that my share of the estate will be about $2,000,000," he said.

"All right," she answered briskly, "we can worry along without the lineage and still be happy, dear."—Chicago Times-Herald.

NEEDED THE SOAP.

The Amiability of Women Shoppers in a Bargain Store Rush Is Truly Fetching.

It was at a department store bargain counter for odds and ends. Women squeezed and elbowed and shoved to get alongside the counter. Frequently two of them happened to pick up the same bargain at one and the same time, and then they both retained their clutch on it and looked daggers at each other until the stronger of the two won the victory or the bargain was rent into ribbons.

A haughty matron with an electric seal coat picked up a box containing three cakes of imported soap for eight cents at the same moment that an humble-looking little woman in a faded tan coat had fastened her grasp on the box.

"I believe I was the first to take hold of this," said the matron in the electric seal coat, freezingly.

The humble-looking little woman held on for a minute, studying her antagonist, then she slowly relaxed her hold on the box.

"Well, you can have it," she said, amiably. "You look as if you need the soap."

The bargain counter is the place to observe how they love one another.—Washington Post.

A New Method.

The public schools of a certain New England city have recently taken to an exacting form of art. The pupils are placed before a model and told to sketch as they see. One day a little girl was seated on a chair on the platform, and her classmates were given the usual order. The results varied. Some of the drawings looked like a human being in a state of repose, others like wooden dolls. But one little girl had drawn the chair and a tiny figure standing in front of it.

"Mary," said the discouraged teacher, "didn't I say: 'Draw Amelia as you saw her?'"

"Yes'm."

"Well, is she standing in front of the chair?"

"No'm. She's sitting in it."

"Then why didn't you draw her sitting?"

Tears came into the child's eyes. She was misunderstood.

"But I hadn't got to it," she said. "I was just going to bend her down when you rang the bell."—Youth's Companion.

A Trap of Her Own Setting.

We have all met people whose pride in their possessions is so great that they can see no charms in those of others. A young botanist was showing a party of ladies and gentlemen through a conservatory of some of the choicest plants. Among the visitors was a would-be young-looking, middle-aged lady who at every description volunteered the statement that the plants and flowers she had at home were quite the equal of anything here or indeed anywhere.

Just as they were passing a giant cactus she was heard to exclaim:

"Well, this is nothing extraordinary. I have a cactus at home that is still larger. I planted and reared it myself."

"Reared it yourself?" the professor gently observed. "How remarkable! This specimen is 63 years old, and if yours is still larger—"

The lady did not stay to hear any more, but executed a strategic movement to the rear.—Philadelphia Press.

Just Like a Razor.

The other day a man walked up to the cashier's desk in a large stockbroking concern and asked for a pen to indorse a note. To his disgust, the pen sputtered, blotting his signature, and he threw it aside with the popular exclamation:

"Hair on it."

"No wonder," one of the bystanders remarked, "when it is shaving notes all day."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Small Boy's Sarcasm.

Aunt Jane wanted to study, but little Willie wanted to ask questions. After answering a few, auntie told Willie not to talk or make a noise. There was a dead silence on Willie's part for a moment, then in a plaintive voice he said:

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. A MINNESOTA FARMER DOES WELL IN CANADA.

Virden, Manitoba, 18th Nov., 1899.
Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada.

Sir—Thinking that my experience in Manitoba might be both useful and interesting to my fellow-countrymen in the United States who may be looking to Manitoba and the North-West with the intention of settling there, I have much pleasure in stating that through information received from Mr. W. F. McCreary, Immigration Commissioner at Winnipeg, I was induced to visit Manitoba in February, 1898. When I called upon Mr. McCreary he spared no pains to give me all the information, &c., in his possession, the result of which was that I came here with a letter of introduction from him to the Secretary of the Virden Board of Trade. That gentleman provided me with a competent land guide and altho' there was considerable snow on the ground, I had no difficulty in selecting three homesteads for myself and sons. Having made the necessary homestead entries at the Land Office in Brandon, I returned to my home in Lyon County, Minnesota, and came back here in May following accompanied by one of my boys, bringing with us two teams of horses, implements, &c. Our first work was to erect a temporary shanty and stable, after which we broke and levelled 75 acres and put up 30 tons of hay. I went back to Minnesota about 20th July, leaving my son here. I returned in October bringing my family with me. I found that the land we had acquired was of good quality being a strong clay loam with clay subsoil. Last Spring I sowed 100 acres in wheat, 50 acres in oats & barley (75 acres of this grain was sowed on "goback" plowed last Spring.) My crop was threshed in October, the result being over 2700 bu. of grain in all. Wheat averaged 13 bu. p. ac. and graded No. 1 hard but that which was sown on land other than sod ("goback") went 24½ bu. p. ac.

To say that I am well pleased with the result of my first year's farming operations in Manitoba does not adequately express my feelings, and I have no hesitation in advising those who are living in districts where land is high in price to come out here, if they are willing to do a fair amount of work. I am 10 miles from Virden, which is a good market town, and 9 miles from Hargrave where there are two elevators. This summer I erected a dwelling house of native stone and bought a half-section of land adjoining our homesteads for which I paid a very moderate price. There are still some homesteads in this district, and land of fine quality can be purchased from the Canadian Pacific Ry. Co. at $3.50 p. ac. on liberal terms. Good water is generally found at a depth of from 15 to 20 ft. I have 175 ac. ready for crop next year.

The cost of living here is about the same as in Southern Minnesota. Some commodities are higher and others lower in price, but the average is about the same.

I remain,
Your obt. servant,
(Signed) Jacob Reichert.

AMERICANISM

ITS CAUSE GOES BRAVELY MARCHING ON TO VICTORY,

While Liberty's Red-Mouthed Guns on Distant Shores Hold the Imperial Invader at Bay—Echoes of State and National Politics—Score Another For Minnesota Grain Inspection and Grades—Twin City Political News—Nelson and John Goodnow, and Dee Ames and the Veal Market—Work of the American League. Note and Comment of a Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Jan. 22, 1900.

While Liberty's red-mouthed cannon are holding at bay the ruthless imperial invader of the South African republics, emphasizing the iniquity which the McKinley administration has been perpetrating in the Philippines in the now completed destruction of an infant republic, the armies of Americanism have continued to make good progress in the peaceful but no less momentous struggle going on in the United States. Nothing like the deep earnestness now prevailing with the united forces has ever been known in this state at this distance before the formal opening of a national campaign.

Indicative of the deep interest and great power of the recent Bryan, Lind and Towne meetings, it is stated as a fact that one of the brightest and ablest of the political writers of one of the leading Twin City dailies has seriously debated with his conscience and his friends, as to whether, moved as he was by conviction of the right and truth of what he heard at the meetings, he could conscientiously remain in the service of the journal that was constantly preaching contrary and fallacious doctrines, and uttering, as none than himself better knew, political untruths, and unwise and un-American sentiments. It is the fact that men are being moved in this manner that gives hope for success of our righteous cause.

As another like pointer, it is given as the opinion of a Republican tenant of the great New York Life building in Minneapolis, the large majority of whom are Republicans, that on the question of support of the McKinley administration those tenants are unquestionably two to one against it.

One dark and forbidding recent night, Doc Ames "returned" to the Minneapolis G. O. P. fold, and the slaughter of the fatted calves has now increased the price of veal!

A portion of Senator Knute Nelson's recent speech carefully censored out, as well as the "break" Nelson made, was his illusion to the greatness of one John Goodnow as America's great representative now standing in the China "open door." Nelson used it as a great climax in one part of his speech, pausing as he reached it to remove his specs, for emphasis. As he roared out his tribute to the great and good(?) John he paused for the expected applause from John's former neighbors, and received not even a grunt of approval. Knute was knocked clear out of the box. He dropped his specs, lost the place in his manuscript and did not regain his composure to the end of the address. It was extremely painful.

Minneapolis Republicans are worried about their coming ban-quit. The sophomoric Beveridge hesitates about venturing into the G. O. P. frost of Minnesota, and wisely so. The Republicans scarcely dare undertake an Exposition meeting, and may confine themselves entirely to the ban-quit.

And, by the way, a very poor Beveridge is the article on tap in the senate labelled "Indiana." It lacks both age and flavor.

The tremendous pro-Boer meeting held in St. Paul has called liberty lovers in Minneapolis into action. On Jan. 27, evening, two anti-imperialist meetings will be held in South Minneapolis, in Normanna and Dania halls, and the following Sunday afternoon, a Boer meeting in the Exposition building, all to be addressed by that great man of the people ex-Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois, with whom Rev. Father Cleary will also probably speak. Look out for music!

Ex-Governor D. M. Clough is about to locate permanently in the state of Washington, either at Seattle or Everett. He will take with him the best wishes of hosts of personal friends in Minnesota.

It is now less than 50 cent wheat. What it will be before this gold standard rule is overthrown, the Lord only knows, and he does not seem inclined to inform even Hanna.

Hanna's call for cash has been made, and curiously enough he declared that it is for the purpose of sending men "out West" to open debating schools where the people may discuss whether they are prosperous or not. A prosperity that requires a debating school to determine whether or not it exists is—well, it is of the elusive, gold standard variety.

Get-there Eli Warner has got there on the surveyor generalship. Hence the lachrymal manifestations on St. Paul Newspaper Row.

Talk of the Kentucky contests—if the Republicans only keep on killing each other off, none will be necessary.

We judge from a letter from Captain O'Farrell, that Minneapolis' anti-imperialist meeting had a rival in Washington's. A dramatic incident was the solemn declaration of the venerable ex-Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts, that as he had helped the McKinley administration into power, so, by the help of God, would he do all in his power to drive it out of power. An incident "censored," Captain O'Farrell says, was that ex-Senator J. B. Henderson, an old time Republican declared that he prayed God to strengthen the right arm of Aguinaldo and his brave men, so that they might achieve independence, and shouted the challenge, "If this is treason, I challenge a trial." "The entire audience rose to its feet, cheering and shouting," Captain O'Farrell writes, "and yelled themselves hoarse with shouts of 'Down with McKinley and the traitors to the Declaration of Independence!'"

Our friends in the senate are doing themselves proud in opposing the Republican financial bill. Daily speeches of great force and power are delivered, of which, in the discrimination of the Associated Press, however, the people not having the privilege of the Congressional Record know little or nothing.

The state labor department has completed an elaborate report on wages of Minnesota labor, which will be considered next week. Suffice to say now, that it is entirely lacking in evidences of any material or general increase.

Watch for the "war" dispatches from Duluth, when the Truelson Boers will sweep the goppite British into the "unsalted sea," in the spring election.

What reform administration is doing for Minnesota wheat grades and prices is shown by current New York quotations. In connection therewith it is pertinent to remark that some years ago Duluth No. 1 Northern was quoted about the same or a little higher than No. 2 Red winter wheat. This condition, however, was gradually changed under the former inspection service, until No. 1 Northern fell below No. 2 Red.

Under the present inspection service No. 1 Northern is up again to its former position. And that this is not due to error or accident, is evident from the fact that it continues at its relatively high figure day after day without a break.

But the quotations speak for themselves:

New York Quotations—Wheat:

Date.	No. 2 Red Winter.	No. 1 Northern, Duluth.
Jan. 8, 1900.....	75¼	79
Jan. 9,	74¾	78⅝
Jan. 10,	76⅛	79⅝
Jan. 12,	75¼	78⅝

And so on.

Oh, yes, grades and reputation of Minnesota wheat have been "ruined" by the present regime!

Said Bob Ingersoll in his great speech nominating Blaine at Cincinnati in 1876:

"For the first time since man kept record of events the sky has arched above and domed a land beneath, that holds neither a serf, a servant nor a slave."

These words were uttered in his speech attempting to show that the Republican party, above all things, stood for freedom and equality of all men, of all races and all creeds. This quotation sounds beautiful under conditions as they now exist. What Republican dares quote Ingersoll's speech, in the face of the fact that some of our new citizens own "slaves and harems galore," and we poor devils lick the stamps to pay the freight?

Brave Andrew Carnegie! The stand that son of Scotland has taken for true Americanism, redeems him from a host of sins he committed in aiding the election of McKinley.

What a swipe Carnegie gave the imperialists, when they charged him with paying the cable tolls on Senator Hoar's speech, to carry the same to Aguinaldo. "I did not do it," declared Mr. Carnegie, "because the Filipinos did not need the speech to inspire them. But I would contribute the amount ($4,000), to put the speech into the hands of Americans who should read it, and who should follow the advice it contains."

While corn is also lower than a year ago, wheat continues the "Jim Dandy" for driving home the political lesson to farmers. Wheat is now 10 cents per bushel lower than the average January price for the past five years, and 8 cents lower than the January average for 10 years past! And this, too, with short crops and good foreign demand. What will be the result with big crops and less foreign demand? How the farmers must enjoy this gold standard, trust-ridden administration—this sway of the money power!

Hanna has made his first shout for campaign money, to send men out "to meet the labor agitators," says Hanna, "who are at work in the west." In the same breath Hanna declares the prosperity of labor will be a chief issue in the campaign. Labor is so prosperous that it needs campaign money to show it how prosperous and contented it is.

Apropos, Hanna's gold standard, 50-cent wheat prosperity has been conserved by the trust flouring mills of Minneapolis and Duluth shutting down, discharging employes, and, in some cases, boarding up the mill windows. For explanation the management simply said it was "ordered from headquarters."

Are these the "smokestacks" that were to so becloud the sky as to drive the people to spectacles?

The indications are that the name "American League," may be adopted to embrace all the work of organization of the different forces that will unite under one banner in this campaign. It is certainly more euphonious and less objectionable than "anti," as applied to imperialism and to the trusts, and altogether most suggestive and patriotic. With that, and with the flag already adopted as the Liberty symbol, the anti-Republican forces will have the goppites where the hair is short and the skin very tender.

FRUITS IN PUERTO RICO.

Special Agent of Agricultural Department After Investigation Reports Them of Poor Quality.

Dr. O. F. Cook, special agent of the agricultural department, has returned from Puerto Rico, where he went to ascertain what species and varieties of plants are found there, in order that the department might be able to enter upon the work of securing others likely to be of use in improving and extending the agricultural industries. He finds that coffee, sugar and tobacco are the principal productions, and that fruits and vegetables sold in the markets of Puerto Rico are inferior in quality and unsuitable for export. The banana, for instance, has scarcely been considered as a source of income or an article of export. It has been planted principally for shade in coffee plantations, and as one variety was as good as another for this purpose, most of the bananas are unsalable. As the conditions for commercial banana growing are favorable, it may be expected that attempts in this direction will soon be made. It is necessary, however, that at least 500 acres be put under thorough cultivation, for the product of less land can hardly be marketed to advantage.

There is room for great improvement in the production of coffee, and if modern methods were employed this industry would be much more profitable than it is at present. Oranges, limes and other citrus fruits, European grapes and other semi-tropical fruits and vegetables can be produced in the drier parts of the island, while from the moister parts vanilla, cocoa, mangoes and other strictly tropical plants can be exported. There are no localities sufficiently hot and humid for the rubber-producing plants of the Amazon valley, but the African rubber vines, if planted on the rocky pinnacles of the foothills, will thrive, and the wealth of the island can be greatly increased by their cultivation.

The Craving for Stimulants.

This question has lately attracted a great deal of attention from the medical profession. The use of stimulants seems to be increasing. This clearly shows an exhausted condition of the nerves and blood, which may be remedied only by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will do this for you. It brings all the energy of a stimulant with no injurious effect. It cures dyspepsia, constipation and nervousness.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Catarrh, Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrhal Diseases.

MRS. BELVA A. LOCKWOOD, LATE CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the eminent barrister, of Washington, D. C., is the only woman who has ever been a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. She is the best known woman in America. As the pioneer of her sex in the legal profession she has gathered fame and fortune. In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, she says:

"I have used your Peruna both for myself and my mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Bennett, now in her 88th year, and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down, and with nerves unstrung."

Yours truly, Belva A. Lockwood.

Catarrh may attack any organ of the body. Women are especially liable to catarrh of the pelvic organs. There are one hundred cases of catarrh of the pelvic organs to one of catarrh of the head. Most people think, because they have no catarrh of the head, they have no catarrh at all. This is a great mistake, and is the cause of many cases of sickness and death. Something for Mothers to Think About.

EVERY CHILD born into the world with an inherited or early developed tendency to distressing, disfiguring humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering but because of the dreadful fear that the disfiguration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest, and most effective treatment available.

That the Cuticura remedies are all that could be desired for the alleviation of the suffering of skin-tortured infants and children and the comfort of worn-out worried mothers has been demonstrated in countless homes in every land. Their absolute safety, purity, and sweetness, instantaneous and grateful relief, speedy cure, and great economy leave nothing more to be desired by anxious parents. Evidence is found in the mass of letters received from grateful parents, testifying to the incalculable benefits they have derived from the use of these preparations in the treatment of infantile skin and scalp disorders. There is a ring of truth and sincerity about the testimonials here submitted that stamps them genuine, and when a mother writes, as does Mrs. E. Butler of 1289 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., in simple, grateful language, of the good Cuticura has accomplished in her home, parents everywhere must regard these remedies as household necessities. Mrs. Butler says:—

"My oldest boy, age nine years, was troubled with sores on different parts of the body, especially on the leg, about twenty-four in all. They were about the size of a five-cent piece, and would fester very much and eject a pus. They were very painful. After my former experience with the cure of my little girl with CUTICURA remedies, I did not bother with the doctor in this case, but gave him the CUTICURA treatment which completely cured him in four weeks. As a rule, my four children are very robust and healthy, these two, the baby and the eldest boy, being the only ones ever troubled with anything like this I mentioned, but thanks to CUTICURA remedies they are all now in perfect health."

What can be more convincing to a mother than the following graphic letter from Mrs. J. C. Freese of 300 South First Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.:—

"My baby was about four weeks old when he began to suffer from that terrible disease, eczema. I tried every remedy I thought would do him good. I even called in the doctor, but I used his medicine to no account. I did not know what to do with him. He cried all the time and his face was equal to a raw piece of meat. It was horrible, and looked as if there never was any skin on it. I had to carry him around on a pillow. I was fairly discouraged. I was then recommended to use CUTICURA remedies. The first time I used them I could see the change. I used about half a box of CUTICURA Ointment, and not one half cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and at the end of one short week my baby was entirely cured. There has never been a trace of it since. To-day his skin is as smooth and soft as a piece of silk."

Another remarkable instance of the effectiveness of the Cuticura remedies is found in the terrible experience of the baby daughter of Mr. R. A. Lapham, 111½ West Side Square, Springfield, Ill. Mr. Lapham writes as follows:—

"Our little daughter was troubled from her birth with eczema. Her face, arms, hands, and neck would break out with red pimples which would swell and become terribly inflamed, water would ooze out like great beads of perspiration, finally this would dry up and the skin would crack and peel off. She suffered terribly. Had to wear soft mittens on her hands to keep her from scratching. We gave two of our leading physicians a good trial, but neither of them helped her in the least. I purchased CUTICURA SOAP, CUTICURA Ointment, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT. She improved at once and is now never troubled, although we used less than one bottle of RESOLVENT, three boxes of CUTICURA, and CUTICURA SOAP."

In a few forceful words, Mrs. C. Brand of Conesville, N. Y., vividly portrays an experience common to many mothers, and her letter, which follows, is full of comfort and encouragement for anxious parents:—

"Two years ago this winter my boy began to break out with a scaly rash. It nearly covered his back and calves of legs. I heard glowing reports of CUTICURA remedies and thought to try them. Three cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, two boxes of CUTICURA Ointment, one bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT cured him. I think them wonderful remedies."

The economy of the Cuticura treatment is shown by the letter of Mr. W. M. Nichell, of Lexington, Okl., who spent one thousand dollars with doctors, specialists, and medical colleges in a vain attempt to find relief for his little son. A friend recommended the use of the Cuticura remedies, and he gives the following account of the cure:—

"My son, when he was six weeks old, had a breaking out on the top of his head. It spread all over his head, and then his arms broke out from shoulder to wrist. Around his body and around his legs from his knees to his ankles, was a solid scab. My family doctor treated him for eighteen months, but no good was accomplished. I tried four more, and then a medical college in St. Louis six months. No good yet. Spent not less than a thousand dollars in money and time. Old Mr. Barney Clap insisted on my trying CUTICURA remedies, telling me he had a spell like my child's himself. By the time my wife had used the CUTICURA Ointment up, he began to improve and got so he could sleep short naps, and gave me and my wife some rest. Thank the Lord, he is now well, fat, hearty, and stout as any boy, after six long years of itching, crying, and worrying. CUTICURA remedies cured him."

Three children in one household suffering simultaneously from eczema. Such was the distressing condition of Mrs. Annie Ring of 515 East Thirteenth Street, New York City, who tells her experience in these words:—

"My second child got eczema when seven months old. Three months later my first child got it, and following him the last one, two years old, fell a victim. For twenty months they suffered fearful agony. Their whole bodies, especially their faces, were so sore and raw that the little ones were blind half the time. No words can describe the suffering of my second child, whose whole body was one bloody mass. He was constantly crying, could get no sleep, and he actually did not look human. I tried doctor after doctor, but none afforded the slightest relief. I decided to try CUTICURA. The first application brought relief in each case, and after fourteen days' treatment with CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA Ointment, the worst case was cured, and the whole neighborhood is surprised at the wonderful effect of CUTICURA."

One of the most wonderful of cures is that of the little daughter of Mrs. G. A. Conrad of Lisbon, N. H., whose sufferings from eczema were so intense that her hands had to be tied to keep her from tearing her flesh. The mother writes:—

"When my little girl was six months old, she had eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good; in fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her, I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and, when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces. I used four boxes of CUTICURA Ointment, two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life."

It will afford us pleasure to have parents whose little ones are afflicted with any form of skin, scalp, or blood humor, write to any one of the above addresses for corroboration of the facts given, and we have no doubt that such an appeal will elicit still stronger testimony regarding the wonderful curative properties of the CUTICURA remedies. The full set, for complete external and internal treatment, costs but $1.25, and consists of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA Ointment (50c.), to instantly allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A single set is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humors, rashes, itchings, and irritations, with loss of hair, when the best physicians, and all other remedies fail.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Jan. 26, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Dr. Niven, Jan. 30, at Delano

—Dr. Niven, Jan. 27 & 28, Waverly.

—One square Piano for sale cheap. Enquire of John Brandser.

—LOST. An English setter, female, spotted black and white. Return to R. M. Walter and get reward.

—Frank Cramer says he has got his next summer's supply of ice already housed, and is glad of it.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.11tf.

—Somebody must have thought the ice would all melt or float away in a hury, as a team was seen hauling last Sunday.

—A drove of sixty ponies were on sale here, this week. Horses are not so plenty as they have been, still with the shipments from the west the demand is pretty well met.

—All kinds of rumors are rife concerning small pox in the town of Franklin. The best known preventative or modifier of the disease is vaccination Everybody should see that themselves and families are vaccinated where the disease is in the neighborhood.

—Foot ball is talked of for the 12th of Febuary. But several that played in the Christmas and Newyear's games feel as if they had served their time at such rough sport. The Humane society might do some good by stopping such dangerous games as foot ball is as played now-a-days.

—On Sunday a couple of fire alarms on Bridge st. caused some excitement. First about church time there was a small fire in the Presbyterian church. Snow, and a couple of pails of water, soon extinguished it. About an hour afterwards the chimney of John Kappe, burned out. H. C. Parslow climbad up and threw salt into the chimney and soon had the flams checked.

—Hastings, Pressprich & Co., contractors and builders of Chicago, Ill. have sent letters to prominent citizens of many Minnesota towns asking about the prospects of putting up a factory for canning corn, tomatoes, squash, pumpkins, apples, berries and other things. We see by papers throughout the state that considerable interest is being manifested in the subject. Maybe it would be as good a thing as a creamery. We should look the matmer up and not get left out.

—At the annual election of trustees for the Delano Cemetery Association, held Monday evening, the following were chozen: T. J. Catlin and W. I. Lewis for 3 years; T. M. Shaw and John Cunningham for 2 years; W. D. Freeman for 1 year.

The Trustees came together on Tuesday and elected for the ensuing year:

President T. J. Catlin; Secretary, W. D. Freeman; Treasurer, John Cunninghan; Actuary, T. M. Shaw; Sexton, Charles L. Belt.

Regular meetings are to be held on the first Monday of every month.

—One of the Delano beaux drove out to see his country cousin one night lately and claimed he had returned early in the evening. But he had stayed so long that it snowed, and the "boss" knew about what time in the morning that happened and as the tracks of the team into the barn were evidently made after the snow storm it was plain to be seen that the livery man was entitled to pay for several more hours for team hire. And of course it is supposed the "old gentlemen" had to put up for that much more kerosene. Kinder expensive staying up so late.

—The Boer battle at Lyndale school house tonight threatens to be one of the hottest yet. The Tommy Atkinses have their biggest guns and abundance of ammunition on their pack mules, and are cautiously creeping up on the strongholds. The Boers are prepared to open up with rapid fire and long ranged guns, and are entrenched in almost impregnable positions. The inhabitants of the country, whose breasts swell with patriotism are mostly in sympathy with the Boers. Several from Delano expect to drive out and witness the occasion. A good discussion of the subject will tend to right people as to where they stand when liberty is at stake.

—The Boer war at the post office last Saturday waxed very warm. The battle raged furiously. Some terrible shots were made. The United States government in the form of the Assistant Postmaster, interfered, and demanded that the battle be removed from his territory. An armistis was declared, while the beliggerents filed out, and immediately renewed hostilities with redoubled vigor on sniffing the pure air of freedom, beyond the outer walls. After Tommy Atkins became much exhausted, and his ammunition well nigh spent, the Boer forces withdrew to their respective kopjes. The mule train of the invading army remained in possession of its original owners; but it is thought, through scarcity of provender it will soon become an easy matter to stampede it to the mountains.

It is learned latter that the first report so far as Uncle Sam's intefering is concerned, was incorrect and that the affair was on the sidewalk in front of the post office An item on the Boer war could hardely be expected to be reliable on the first report.

--One square Piano for sale cheap. Enquire of John Brandser.

—1 carload of dry maple wood wanted at once, at Delano. P. PLOTNIK.

--An auction of 50 western horses is to take place at the cattle yard tomorrow.

—Prof. Bohn has had constructed a new storm house. T. S. Kerr is architect and builder of the same.

—Usually in this country, people haul their ice on sleds, but, this winter, they have resorted to wheels.

--C. H. Carleton has finished up the new barber shop, and it now puts on quite a metropolitan appearance.

—The K. P. annual ball was held at the City Hall last night. A good turnout and an enjoyable time is reported.

—Mayor Lohmiller must intend keeping cool next summer. He just finished putting up 140 tons of ice Thursday.

—Fine fish appear in our markets occasionally. There seems to be more fish for sale than usual at this season of the year.

—Days are growing perceptably longer. It seems as if winter must be half over. But there has been very little backbone to it so far.

--C. M. Conzet has been traveling about without an overcoat. Some winters this would be a hardship. Charley thinks he just left his somewhere.

—Dr. R. M. Walters is kept pretty busy this winter attending to equine ailments. Barbed wire fence furnishes its share of the troubles with animals of all kind.

—The Minneapolis Tribune of Sunday contained a picture of Septimus Parslow who died recently, at Hassan, and his widow still living at that place. Mr. P. was an early settler and uncle of H. C. Parslow, of Delano.

—Protracted meetings are to be held in the M. E. Church. In fact they have already begun. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings services were held there. A greater number of church going people in town would be to the advantage of all.

—There was talk in town yesterday about the sale of some beef that had been sold. It was claimed that a cow was hurt on the ice and afterwards butchered and sold, except a part of one quarter which it was claimed was retained for home consumption.

—The Minneapolis papers gave an account of the falling thirty feet and breaking of several ribs of August Dahlgren, in Minneapolis on Thursday, it was read here, and his father, O. Dahlgren who lives in Franklin town took the train Monday morning to visit him. August was foreman of a crew that built our school house.

—Diphtheria is reported from Woodland. Instead of taking the children and making a visit to every place where sickness occurs, people should keep the children at home and cautiously ascertain if their friends need help and get it for them. It does more harm than good to go in and sit around and carry home smallpox or diphtheria.

—Len Diedrich has purchased a farm near Eph Jacobs; and has bought the old Bruggeman building, and torn it down, and is to use it in building a house on his land. We understand that, as soon as his license expires he will go out of his present business and become a horny handed husbandman, and settle down to a comfortable home in his old age.

—The third of Delano's course of Lectures will be given in the City Hall on Tuesday evening,

Subject: "Some Levers of Power; or how some folks get there." By Rev. A. R. Lambert, late of Huntingdon, Penn. Rev. Lambert is said to be a fine lecturer, and it is expected his lecture will be fully up to those already had this winter. Give him a good audience.

—Yesterday morning was a typical Minnesota winter morning. The first of the season. Everybody knew it was cold before they had arisen from their beds. The thermometers indicated 4 below zero. A long bright streak on the eastern horizon told where Old Sol would soon make his appearance. At 8 o'clock, suddenly, there appeared two fine large, bright sun dogs, with the sun between them. The moon in its last quarter, was nearly overhead, and shining brightly. The sky was clear. The air was fresh and exceedingly bracing. And people on the streets at this early hour were very brisk in their movements. It was the nearest to a genuine old fashioned Minnesota midwinter morning that we have had, and lacked snow and a few degrees of cold to make it fully up to par in that line.

—The Reguarally called meeting or the Washington's Birthday Association of Delano was held at the Council Rooms on Tuesday, and it was voted to dispense with the regular dinner, and to have an entertainment comenc at 2 p. m. sharp.

—From the Carver County News we learn that several cases of diphtheria have recently occurred in New Germany.

--John Turngren, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, of Franklin, informed us Tuesday that Mr. and Mrs. Wandersee and two daughters had the smallpox. This makes the entire family, Emil having almost recovered from it and the premises having been quarantined for several weeks. Several neighbors who called on the family before it was known what was the matter, have been exposed. But we have heard of no new cases. It is to be hoped no new cases will appear.

The music teacher of the High School has a new Latin class after school hours for the benefit of those who want sing.

The scholars who played hoky last week now regret it, after coming back they were compelled to make up their work after school.

If the good weather continues the prospects for a foot ball game for Feb. 12, 1900, is looked for between the H. S. and Alumni teams.

Last Friday the High School had a spelling match instead of the Literary, on account of some of the pupils not having their parts learned.

Let all members of the High School take their warning and stay at home evenings for Prof Carleton will surely spy you if you are at the Depot.

Emery Bryant, who was out snow balling last Friday, received a very severe blow in the eye. He has quit school for a few days to visit an eye doctor.

From the Buffalo school notes we learn that the school teachers and pupils there have subscribed for a number of magazines and established a reading table. A good thing.

The school is progressing very rapidly now as the feeling of teachers and scholars is becoming more friendly. Come up and visit the school and see what your children are doing. Visitors are always welcome.

The Professor is doing his best to get the pupils to take more interest in their work so as to pass in the coming examination. If more of us would take his advice there would be fewer disapointed mortals after examination.

County Cullings.

The Waverly Tribune in mentioning the smallpox cases at Wandersee's says: "We understand" etc., etc. The Tribune's understanding in regard to this affair would be broader if it should get it from the chairman of the Town Supervisors. He wears custom made ids.

Chairman Thomas Hudek, of the Board of County Commissioners has again been called upon to mourn loss by death in his family. His wife died on Friday, Jan. 19. It is but a short time since his eldest daughter preceded her mother to the great beyond.

The Standard is authority for saying that J. T. Alley has been appointed referee, to take testimony and report to the court on the first day of the April term, in the case of Joe Boxell in his suit against Mrs. Boxell for disobeying the order of the court in not allowing him to visit with their children.

Wright County has, for about a quarter of a century, been feebly democratic and not reliably republican. A democrat or two and a lot of republicans that would fit in the ring seems to have been the rule. You tickle me and I will tickle you has been played so long that voters generally, of all parties are thoroughly disgusted, and have been for years. It is only by the hardest kind of work, and all kinds of schemes from the primaries up that such a thing has been carried on, County conventions are manipulated, it is very plain to the casual observer so that, usually the will of the people is smothered suppressed kept from appearing where it should appear. The people is the government. The voters have a right at the primary. There they can vote for men whom they know as honest, and who will truly represent them at conventions.

From what has occurred in former years it is our honest conviction that a most desperate attempt will be made to carry Wright county for gold bugism. Boys, be on your guard at the primaries.

Our village was in darkness since Sunday night on account of Rockefeller's agent not delivering the required gasoline. In consequence electric light talk stock has taken a jump upward.—Waverly Tribune.

Township and village officers will be elected in March. In this general election year it is highly important that only the best men get elected Be at the caucus and get good men on your ticket, then take pains to get them elected. They will have to do with the election next fall. If you want an honest ballot and a fair count attend to your duty and remind your neighbors of theirs.

MAPLE PLAIN.

Snow all gone and muddy roads again. Has been a long time since we had such a mild winter. Perhaps the annexation theory of the Philippine Islands has sowething to do with our warm weather. There is nothing doing in politics just now. Seem to be waiting for more re-inforcement.

A good many of our towns people are engaged in putting up ice. The crop of ice is very good this year.

Does not seem to be any farms for sale this warm weather. Just now they think Minnesota is good enough but when the first blizzard comes then like a flock of wild geese hundreds of people will want to go south. But we have made up our mind to stay here any way untill after next Presidential campaign.

ROCKFORD.

J. H. O'Leary, formerly of this county, now of St. Paul, of the firm of O'Leary, Scheade and Co., Job Printers, is canvassing the town and village and probably the whole of Wright County for a county advertising sheet. He get his items; and asks questions, with the pencil; but he succeeds very well.

Mr. Barrett Cronk has moved his family into the Johnson Bros. house, opposite their store. Mr. Cronk is the successor of Mr. Carney, section boss on the Soo road at Rockford station.

K. C. Bucklin went to the city Saturday to consult a dentist.

Mr. Samuel Thompson is canvassign the village to get signers to a petition to the Board of County Commissioners to have his land the s½ of the sw¼ of Sec. 28, Town of Greenwood set of from school district No. 112 joined to dist No. 76, Hennepin county. It can only be done by a petition signed by a majority of the legal voters in each school district. The reasons for the set off as given in the petition are that Mr. Thompson has to cross Crow River to get to the school house in dis. No. 112. From the looks of the iron bridge at the village it would be a very long time, and his children would be quite aged before they will be obliged to swim or wade Crow River to get to the school house. When Mr. McLaine was let of sevefal years ago his claim was that he was nearer the school house 76 than 112 Mr. Thompson can make no such claim, but makes the flimsy one that he has to cross Crow River. In both cases the real reasons are less taxes. District No. 112 has for many years maintained a nine months school, and nearly one half of the children in 76 have been admitted free of tuition. If this continues it it will not be necessary to have but a very short term of school in 76, if any, and school taxes will be very low. The legal voters in the village who have signed the petitions should not complain about high school taxation in future when they have helped reduce the taxable property in the school district.

Mr and Mrs. Buckwalter, of the city, are visiting the family of their daughter, Mrs. O. C. Roberts, this week. Mr. B. was formerly a miller in Rockford.

The question of water works or of fire protection will come before the public before the annual village election. We must have some protection against fire. The water bucket brigade may do very well, as it has done. At a small building, in a very still time, with no wind the water buckets do very well. But with a large building on fire or with a strong wind blowing they are nothing. Fire comes without warning, unsuspectdly, and we might loose in a short time double the amount that good water works would cost. It is a good policy to look at matters as they exist today; take warning from what has happened at Dassel, and at other places, a sudden call, fire, and no water; then stand idlly by and see thousands of dollars worth of property go up in smoke and ashes on account of neglect; we all know the time will come sooner or later when we shall be bound to look this matter square in the face; no dodging stuborn facts. Let us consider, and act wisely and well.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19, 1900.

How little Mr. McKinley's promise to furnish any desired information to Congress meant was shown when the Senate, under orders from the White House, voted down Senator Pettigrew's amendment to the Hoar resolution of inquiry, asking that the Senate be furnished a copy of Mr. McKinley's instructions to the Commissioners who negotiated the treaty of peace with Spain. That information would, there are good reasons to believe, show that there is a contradiction in the policy Mr. McKinley claimed to have when he gave those instructions and that followed by him since the treaty was negotiated, and in order to avoid making a public exhibition of himself by going back on his word, he called on the republican majority in the Senate to save him, and his orders were obeyed.

The Senate has agreed to vote on the Gold Standard bill Feby 15

The Roberts Committee by a unanemous verdict found him guilty of polygamy, and his seat will be the penalty. The majority report favors declaring his seat in the House vacant, and the majority report, signed by two members, favors seating and then expelling him. In either case it is good-by Roberts.

The administration is trying to bring Boss Platt around to its way of thinking on the vice-presidential question by trotting out the western candidate bogy to frighten Platt into the belief that New York will loose the place if he doesn't accept the Hanna-McKinley programme without alteration. Of course, Mr. McKinley, and Senator Platt, know that there is little probability of the nomination of a western man for second place, but it pleases the former to pretend otherwise, and it may please the several western men, including Senators Davis and Spooner, who are being "mentioned" as possible candidates.

Senator Hoar says of ex-Minister Barrett's charge that a speech made by the Senator caused the Filipinos to revolt: "Only a silly head would tell such a story, and only a sillier head would believe it. Gen. Otis' report tells the story of the beginieg of the insurrection. Mr. Barrett's statement is too absurd to discuss." Mr. Hoar, in a speech in the Senate specifically charged Mr. McKinley with having caused the revolt, qualifying it by expressing the opinion that Mr. McKinley was coerced into it by the rabid imperialists of his party.

Senator Vest, whose health has not allowed him to take the active part he once did in the business, of the Senate, made a speech, this week, protesting against the policy of the imperialists in calling every man a traitor who dares to question the imperialistic foreign policy of the McKinley administration, that was full of old-time vigor, as may be seen from this extract therefrom: "I disclaim now positively any intention to indulge in any line of remark that may encourage oppisition to the U. S. anywhere. But as a Senator of the U. S., representing in part a sovereign State, I deny the right of any man in this chamber to muzzle me and prevent an honest expression of opinion in regard to this country for fear that I may be denominated a traitor and a public enemy.

I am sorry our foreign relations are in the condition we find them today, and yet all the world knows that so far we have been unfortunate. We have the bubonic plague added to the leprosy in Hawaii, starvation in Porto Rico unrest and disquiet in Cuba, and a war of indefinite length, so far as human foresight is concerned, in the Philippines. Is it treason to make this statement? Or shall we who opposed the Paris treaty, and predicted the disasters that have come and will come, be so cowardly and recreant to the trust imposed in us by a free people as to sit here silent for fear of a vitriolic denunciation on the other side, a decline to discharge our duty as the fearless representatives of a great people? Are we to remain silent, refraining even from ordinary criticism as to the conduct of the war, for fear we are to be denounced as the allies of Aguinaldo and opposed to the authority of our country?"

Ye gods, what a change in Congressional sentiment! If a democrat had a few years ago used the language of senator Chandler, when a negro petition for anti-lynch legislation was presented to the Senate, this week, there would have been a republican howl that would have jarred the earth; and what he said was so manifestly true that no senator commented upon it. Mr. Chandler said: "There is no power in Congress to prevent or to punish crimes committed in the various states."

Representative Richardson, the democratic leader in the House, made a calm speech showing how unsatisfactory Secetary Gage's reply to the national bank resolution of inquiry is, notwithstanding its 318 printed pages; that a single New York bank—the same that was allowed to juggle with the title of the old New New York Custom House, which is bought from the government—was given deposits large enough to leage it the continuous use for periods of six months of more than $13,000,000 of government money. This is the same bank that demanded favors of the Treasury because of political work done by its directors in the last Presidential campaign. It has certainly had them.

Railroading Patents

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16,

IMPROVEMENTS.

In days long since agone men fought,
In very different style.
The way the combatants behaved
Would make us moderns smile,
The warrior took his battle-ax,
Likewise his trusty lance,
And met the foeman hand-to-hand
With each an equal chance.

But now when you would sally fourth
And mingle in the fight,
Your foes or else your friends are all
Blown up with dynamite.
But have a care for only war
Permits such things, they say.
You'll find that it's against the law
To slaughter flesh that way.
—Washington Star.

GEN. BULLER gave as reasons for not holding Spion Kop that there was no water to be had; the perimeter was too big; and the Boer firing too sharp. Some are finding fault with his reasons. But they appear to be good reasons for retiring from the "mountain". But a first class general should have found these things out without so much loss of life. For instance, he might have "clumb a tree".

SOME of the anti-John Lind papers are howling awfully about his late Minneapolis speech. They claim that the governor evidently thinks that the Swedes elected him and ask "Will they do it again?" In asking such a question they evidently are trying to scare every Swede that did vote for Lind back into the ranks of the g. o. p. It is well known that others than Swedes, who belonged to the Republican party preferred to vote for Mr. Lind, and that many did. We don't know though as the Republicans have a warrante deed to all the Swedes in Minnesota or any more right to their votes than has Mr. Lind, provided some of the Swedes should wish to vote for him next time.

THE New York World labors hard to convince Mr Bryan that he must carry New York. When a state becomes so powerful as the World tries to make it appear New York is; as to having the balance of power in nominating a candidate for President and electing him, that state had better be set down on good and hard, by those having the power and disposition to do so. The World claims that New York and the states that go with it have been for the winning candidate every time since 1876. The World goes considerably out of the way to make this appear, and finally concludes that in three of these six elections the result would have been reversed if New York had voted the other way. The World warns Mr Bryan that neither New York, New Jersy or Connecticut can be carried by 16 to 1. That is a great big bluff! and Mr Bryan has long since learned to take such things for just what they are worth. New York has no business dictating the nomination nor election of a President.

WHILE it is plain that the sympathy of Americans is with the Boers in their fight with England, the powers that be, in their party manipulations, are suppressing, as far as possible, the ebullitions of patriotism by keeping leading speakers from attending pro Boer meetings, and procuring the writing of long articles against the Boers, for publication in the great city dailies, and to be copied by lesser sheets throughout the land. But they can't just yet, get hold of all the lovers of liberty, and freedom, who vote with them, so large non partisan meetings are held, and, as in Minneapolis, mostly all the speakers are democrats. This is not because democrats know more, perhaps, but only because they have less to loose, and are not in office now. Then the gold bug press shouts "See the Democrats" "kicking again". This isn't just right. Every true American in whom the patriotism of the fathers is found, to whatever party he may have been allied, or even the school boy who has not yet voted, feels his pulse bound when he reads of the atrocities of the country who once fought our forefathers much after the same fashion. This is no party matter. It is simply a question of freedom against tyranny, a republic against a monarchy, and patriots of every clime know without party diction which side they are on.

PAGE MORRIS is credited with making a speech in favor of keeping Brigham Roberts out of Congress. And Roberts heard the speech and left.

IMPERIALISTS quote several of the men who helped found our government, "of the people, for the people, and by the people". But they don't refer to Jefferson's saying: 'It is not by the consolidation or concentration of power, but by their distribution, that good government is effected."

KENTUCKYANS have been making history fast lately. Politicions waxed warm. Military powers were authorized by Taylor, the Republican who ran for Governor, to do business. Then the democratic candidate who was declared elected, was shot down by an assissan's hand, was sworn in and ordered the soldiers home. Things are in a turmoil. It is hard to tell what will come of it all.

The Farmer Comes In.

Wheat, butter and eggs have taken another tumble downwards, and lumber, nails, oil and other articles the farmers use, have gone up in price. Where does the farmer come in, in this era great of great prosperity?

The farmer listens to the charmers when they come round and tells him how it is, and helps do the voting; and to pay the taxes.

A Good Share of it.

Charley Towne reminds us of the description of the earth in our old geography. Politically he is considerably 'round, but is invarably flattened at the polls. Perhaps it is this resemblance to the earth that embues him with the idea that he is the whole thing.—Anoka Herald.

Mr. Towne acts well his part and is about as big a part of the earth as any body else; not excepting the Anoka Herald editor.

Coldbug Argument.

The following clipped from the Minneapoli Times is a sample of the arguments to which the gold bugs are driven in their extremity:

"A Maryland hen has laid an egg with Mr. Bryan's initials on the shell and three pigs in a Deleware litter form the letters W. J. B. with their little tails whenever they are hungry. Still the eminent Nebraskan is not inclined to let it go at that and stop talking."

A Political Scheme.

Isn't that a fine political scheme goldbugs are trying to foist upon the poor innocent voters of Minnesota, to make sure of one of their kind for governor? Just think of it. Democrats are asked to nominate Winston who has announced himself in the papers, as not in harmony with the teachings of Democracy of today. And the g. o. p. will try to nominate Moses E. Clapp who presided over a pro-Boer meeting at St. Paul, and who would probably receive about as many democratic votes as would his opponent and thereby become the governor of this great state. Either way you fix it the gold bugs would claim a victory.

Only an Acctdent.

The Anoka Herald writes terrifically against Gov Lind. It mudds him and his family all it can. It does this for political effect. From its own columns it is a traitor, a rebel and ought to be treated as such. It actually finds fault, or imaginary fault with the Govenor of our great state. It ought; from its own writings, to be ashamed of itself. It even says: "But as Govenor Lind is simply an accident; let us not feel that we are to be held in any way responsible for his public utterances." Are people who look upon President McKinley as only a temporary possessor of the power of the United States and complain of his "benevolent assimilation" and criminal aggression" any more rebels or traitors than is the Anoka Herald editor who kicks so vigorously against the government of our state. Shouldn't he, to be consistent, respect the powers that be?

Played out Politics.

One of the Sixth district republican organs much given to exaggeration in its praises of the g. o. p. and abuses of anything opposed to it makes fun of Gov Lind and his wife for shedding tears for the suffering of poor people who are being oppressed by those having the power, and says:

"Of course the governor will canvass the state next summer and fall, not so much speaking as weeping. This will introduce some mark of changes in campaign meetings. Whenever Lind speaks there will be a demand for mackintoshes and long rubber boots. The spots for his meetings will have to be picked out with special regard to drainage facilities, and if there should be a draught this year, nothing can beat Lind, a man of such capacity for turning on the water works and irrigating whole neighborhoods."

This could, without being subject to the charge of stretching things, half as much as the author of the quotation above, be taken as a write up, for the rubber trust whose goods are, just now rather a drug in the market. Such politics reacts on the writer and seems to be about played out.

Among our Exchanges.

Litchfield News Ledger: The English position in the Transvaal reminds us of the fellow who was under who called to a friend: "Just see me hold him down by my nose."

Litchfield News Ledger: The daily papers are putting up a big effort in the interest of Congressman Morris in the Sixth. Perhaps they have been counting their Bedes and stumbled onto something a little alarming.

Long Prairie Leader: The McKinley aid society Democrats in this state are talking Winston for governor. Talk is cheap, though. Lind or some other silver man fully in sympathy with Bryan will be the regular Democratic nominee.

County Line: When I die I want but two words written on my tombstone: "Infidel and tratior". Infidel to a church that could be at peace in the presence of sin; traitor to a magnificent conspiracy against justice.—Wendell Phillips

Saint Cloud Times: Now virtuous Kansas, which always gives huge Republican majorities, has had a lynching and it is stated that no steps will be taken to punish the perpetrators. It is now in point for the New England critics to talk of the horrible crimes perpetrated where the Republican party controls.

Litchfield Review: The papers in a somewhat novel suit have been filed at Columbus, Kansas. Like attempts have been tried before but never, we believe, with any success. Still the progress of the suit will be watched with much interest. Mrs. Catherine Smith sues the city of Columbus for $15,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained by reason of the city permitting saloons to be run in violation of the law thereby causing her husband to become a habitual drunkard. The proprietors of all the saloons in town and the owners of the buildings in which they are made party defendants. Should Mrs. Smith procure a verdict the result of the suit will be far reaching. Litigation of this character would show an immediate increase and the liquor traffic would receive a heavy blow.

Recovers From Wounds.

Egidius Fehr has returned from Minneapolis, after being under the skillful treatment of Dr. Fitzgerald, late surgeon of the Thirteenty in the Philippines. The young soldier's wounds have been successfully treated and his friends are gratified to see him able to walk without apparent pain and in a natural manner. The wounds, which Mr. Fehr received in the Philippines, were pronounced of a most serious character, and that he survived them is not the least ordinary. He has shown remarkable endurance and necessarily possessed a strong constitution. It has already been said that the young man's determination had much to do with his victory over his disabilities.—St Cloud Times.

A Fast Run.

Another record-breaking run of the "fast mail" train of the Burlington road was made a few days since. The train pulled by the famous engine, 1592, left Burlington, Ia., 36 minutes late and arrived in Chicago on time. The distance is 206 miles, and was covered in 209 minutes, including all stops. The run of 83 miles from Mendota to Chicago was made in 76 minutes—the best time ever made between these points. The 45 miles between Mendota and Aurora were covered in 39 minutes. Nearly all the way there was a heavy head wind, and the train was unusually heavy, having a big lot of foreign mail. Deducting the time for mail and water, the average rate of speed of the train was about 80 miles an hour. During some spurts it is believed that a speed of 90 miles an hour was attained.—The Railway Age.

Especially For Ladies.

MY PALE LADY

WHEN I was at the orphan asylum—and all of my earliest recollections are of that place—I used occasionally to see among the visitors who thronged the hospital on guest days, a tall, beautiful woman with a pale face and dark, unresponsive eyes. Even when I was a little child I had an idea that eyes could tell me things, and I particularly noticed the eyes of the tall, pale lady, because they did not tell me anything at all.

The lady seldom spoke to me, and when she did it was in a cold voice, but from the time she entered the room her eyes were fixed upon me. She reminded me of the picture of a lady down in the reception room, in that, which ever way I went I could not escape her gaze.

"So you have not found a home for this strange little girl," she once said to the matron, looking at me.

"No, ma'am," the matron replied; "She is a bright child, but she will not make up to any one. She is haughty, ma'am. That's the only fault I find with her. She will not kiss the strange ladies who ask her to, and she does not dance about and seem pleased the way the other children do when some little pleasure is given them."

But for the fact that the eyes of the lady told nothing I should have said that a gleam of approval came into them. The matron waited a moment, expecting, I suppose, that the lady would make some remark. But she did not.

"She is a singular child," added the matron, and turned away.

My life, in spite of the sameness of the days, was not without its surprises. Sometimes I had a gift coming from an unknown source, and the odd part of this fact was that these gifts were always exactly suited to my needs, although I may not have known of the existence of the articles before I saw them. For example, I once, when I was eight years of age, received a little dressing table supplied with all the articles necessary for the making of a dainty toilet. This gave me great pleasure. It seemed to me that I had been longing all the time to brush my long curls and to polish my little nails. The delicate perfume of the soap gave me a feeling of freshness and delight. I felt happier now that I was able to make myself dainty, and I did not mind the plainness of my clothes.

Usually the gifts which came out of the sky for me were in the way of books. They were of a different sort from those given the other girls by benevolently inclined persons, and at first they were hard for me to understand. But it was, somehow, a conviction with me that I ought to enjoy them, and after I had patiently read them the world began to seem different to me. The truth was, I had been made acquainted in simple ways with the story of Midas, of Pandora, of Pegasus, of Siegfried, of King Arthur, of Miranda and of Perdita.

Having discovered romance, I was no longer lonesome. The matron told the tall lady of it one guest day:

"Really," she said, "the child acts more like a human creature than she did. She used to remind me of a hawk my brother caught that sulked itself to death."

"Are you quite sure it was the sulks?" I heard the lady say. "Perhaps it deliberately chose death in preference to slavery."

"O!" shrilled the matron, "do you imagine that birds think, ma'am?"

"I'm quite sure birds think," replied the lady, as she moved away. From her intonation I perceived that there was someone who did not think, and I wondered who it could be. Perhaps—but I recognized the thought for a wild one—it was the matron.

A short time after this I was adopted by a widowed lady, whose two sons had married and gone to far distant parts of the world. I cannot tell whether I was made less unhappy or not by my new condition. I had always been terribly conscious of my condition. One form of charity seemed to me, young as I was, almost as bad as another. But I delighted in the beauty of my adopted mother's house. I was amazed at the number of books on the shelves of her library. And it gave me pleasure to be clothed in garments that were of gay colors, and made as those of other children were. I had a playroom to myself, and a governess, and a little pony and cart, but the curious part of it was that it did not seem at all strange to me to have all these things. It seemed to me in a few days after I came into possession of them as if I had always had them.

I had not been two weeks with my adopted mother when I heard the voice of the tall, pale lady in the parlor. I knew it at once. It always made me think of a bright winter day, with the hoar frost glittering in the sunshine.

"We have been neighbors a long time, Mrs. Thorneycroft," I heard her saying. "I have come to make amends for my unneighborliness."

There did not seem to be anything in common between these two, and the conversation often drooped, yet the visitor staid on and on. I got weary sitting on the stairs—I was waiting to go for a walk with my adopted mother—and so I walked boldly downstairs and into the parlor. The moment my eyes met those of the tall, pale lady I knew she was going to pretend that she had never seen me before. So I looked at her as strangely as she did at me.

"Your daughter, Mrs. Thorneycroft?" asked the lady.

"My daughter," said my adopted mother—and said no more.

"What is your name, dear child?" the lady questioned me. Her tone had never before been so tender in speaking to me. I suppose she pitied me because she thought my name had been changed.

"It is the same as it always was," said I. "It is Madeline."

I saw the lady turn pink at this.

"What a strange answer," she said. "But it is a beautiful name. Naturally, your name is the same as it always was."

"Naturally," said my adopted mother. "You may run out and play, Madelaine."

I played about the doorstep till the tall lady came out, and then I said, going up and taking hold of her hand:

"If you do not live far away I will go with you and see what your house is like."

"Thank you," said she, smiling, and led me on.

We turned a corner and stopped before a tall, dark stone house, with curtains like frost-work at the windows.

"Will you come in?" she asked.

"Not to-day. My mother will be waiting for me. But I will come to-morrow, if you like, and bring my doll. I can come after my lessons."

"At three?"

"Yes," I agreed.

But that evening, when my adopted mother held me on her lap, she said to me:

"Madelaine, you are never to go to see the lady who called here to-day, even though she asks you."

"Why, mother?"

"I hardly know why myself. But you must not go."

"I promised her I would go to-morrow."

"You must write her a note and tell her you will not be there."

"Yes, mother."

So I did. It was an ill-spelled little note, and it had a tear blot on it. The coachman carried it for me.

But still we met sometimes. Once in a terrible storm of wind and rain, when I was running home, she called me into her carriage.

"You are all dripping," she cried, hanging over me. "Oh, me! Oh, me! You will catch cold! Give me your hands and let me warm them." And she chafed my hands, and even held them to her cheek.

She was at my coming-out party, years after, and sent me a great armful of lilies, and after that I met her quite often at different places—teas or dinners or the opera. Sometimes, when we met in the dressing-room, she would give a little touch to my hair, or tie my ribbons afresh, or say whether or not she thought a certain color becoming to me.

On a certain day of every year I received a gift from an unknown donor, and I concluded, after much thought, that this day was the anniversary of my birth. Of the giver of these gifts I had no doubt. My adopted mother had not the heart to forbid me to keep and use the things I received in this manner, though I could see she was not well pleased that I should be the recipient of them.

I was quite 20 years old when one day, as I walked in the park, a woman came up to me, begging that I would come with her quickly. She said that her mistress desired above all things to see me. I knew the woman to be the maid of that lifelong mysterious friend whose influence had always surrounded me, though we had never lived under the same roof nor enjoyed intercourse together.

"I am forbidden to go to her house," I said, remembering the old forbiddance.

"But she is dying."

A swift fear winged my feet. I ran as fast as I could to the dark house with the frost-like curtains. Up the stairs I sped, past the servant who opened the door for me on to the front chamber. The nurse made way for me. There were two men in the room, but I brushed by them.

She raised herself from her pillows with a tremendous effort.

"Madam, madam," called the physician, "if you are so reckless you will end your life at once."

She caught me to her arms and we wept together.

"I thought I was never going to be kissed by you," I sobbed. "Why did you wait so long?"

"Do you love me, little Madelaine?" she whispered.

I kissed her on the eyes and on the hair.

"Dearest! dearest!" I answered.

She relaxed in my arms.

"My dear young lady," said the physician, gently, "she is dead."

I laid her on the pillow and then stood and looked at her.

"If only she had sent for me before," I said over and over with dry lips.

"You ask no questions," said the man who stood at the foot of the bed. I lifted my burning eyes and looked at him. He was a masterful man.

"I am not curious," I said, coldly, and I kissed my pale lady long on the lips and went away.—Chicago Tribune.

A sense of not having lived in vain is a great comfort. A man in New York has just paid $1,710 for a British Guiana postage stamp of the first issue of 1850.

Banks may fail occasionally, but no one comes along and lights fires in them. They are at least better repositories for money than are stoves, as has been demonstrated for the 3,896th time.

Director Merriam estimates that this year's federal census will show that the United States has a population of 73,000,000. Mulhall, the noted English statistician, estimates that our country has 77,300,000.

During the year 1899 a total of 21,000 persons were placed on the "missing" list and have never been heard from. The Chicago Tribune suggests that perhaps a few of them have wandered over into the next century.

George Westinghouse is reported to have said that, by a newly invented process, the garbage of cities can be converted economically into a fuel which can be used to drive gas engines to generate electricity. If Mr. Westinghouse has made such a discovery as is indicated, he has solved a problem that has troubled cities throughout the wold for many years.

Because bicycle clubs are changing their constitutions and becoming merged into merely social organizations it is argued that bicycling is on the wane. A more correct statement of facts is that the extravagant accessories of bicycling have run their course and that the wheel itself is as popular as ever. Cycling may be dropped as a social fad without material loss or impairment of its usefulness. The wheel has come to stay.

A number of Americans in Manila have formed a company for the purpose of digging for a treasure of gold and jewels buried in southern Luzon by a Chinese mandarin named Chan Lee Suey, who was very wealthy. The Filipinos and Spaniards have been searching for the treasure for years, but in vain. A few weeks ago a soldier found two Spanish gold coins bearing the date of 1758, and the treasure is supposed to be buried near that spot. It seems to be the "Capt. Kidd' treasure of the orient.

Lieut. Ward Cheney, of Connecticut, who died of wounds received in a skirmish in the Philippines, was a graduate of Yale college in the class of 1896, and was on the staff of the Hartford Courant when he enlisted, in 1898. When he left he remarked laughingly to his associates that he supposed he ought to write his own obituary before he should go away. The suggestion was taken seriously, and at the request of one of the editors he wrote a paragraph covering his life, which has just been published.

The "heliograph," about which you hear so much mention in the war news from South Africa, is an instrument used in signaling with flashes of sunlight. It consists of a mirror mounted on a telescope in such a manner that by directing the telescope to a distant station a beam of sunlight may be flashed upon the station. These flashes are read, either by the Morse telegraph code, or by cipher codes, and experts can send messages to great distances very rapidly. The operation of the instrument depends upon the shining sun.

John B. McDonald, of New York city, was the successful bidder for the construction of the underground four-track railway the entire length of Manhattan island from the Battery to Harlem. The city provides the money to pay the cost of the work. The contractor builds and equips the road for $32,000,000 and operates it for 50 years. At the end of that time it becomes the property of the city and will be operated by municipal employes. The line will be 12 miles long and it will be the greatest work of public improvement on the continent.

The navy department has received information from a United States naval attache at Paris that the grave of John Paul Jones, the revolutionary hero, has been discovered by M. A. de Ricaudy, a French antiquarian and editor of L'Echo du Public. M. de Ricaudy took up the search after "le commission du vieux Paris" had failed, and, according to the information received by the navy department, has succeeded in finding the remains in a former foreigners' Protestant cemetery, which was sold in 1804, and is now occupied as a private property.

Nothing relating to the war has been made public by the British war office since the taking of Spion Kop by the forces under Gen. Warren. Gen. Woodgate is among the many to lose their lives in the last big battle. Anxiety is not allayed, as Gen. Buller's army must cross 15 miles of battlefield held by strongly entrenched Boers before reaching Ladysmith.

In the Bacatello mountains in Mexico six American prospectors were shot by the order of Gen. Torres for friendliness toward Yaqui Indians.

A report from Gen. Buller of the abandonment of Spion Kop has depressed the British public. It is feared he has met with a more serious repulse than has been made known to the public. London papers consider the situation in South Africa very grave, and urge the sending of more troops. Seven days of fighting have left the main Boer positions intact, and Gen. Buller's army 706 weaker.

Gen. Kobbe defeated 600 Filipinos in the Province of Albay and occupied the towns of Sorsogon, Donsol and Bulan.

The retreat of the British forces across the Tugela river is reported by Gen. Buller. The London Times says "the catastrophe is almost without precedent in our military history, and, indeed, without parallel except the surrender of Yorktown.

GOEBEL IS SHOT.

Democratic Contestant for Governorship of Kentucky Seriously Wounded.

Assassin's Bullet Fired from Room Over Governor's Office in State House.

Harland Whittaker, a Farmer, Arrested—Rushed to Jail to Escape the Mob.

Intense Excitement Prevails—The Militia Is to Be Rushed to Frankfort.

News of the Great Calamity Creates a Profound Sensation at Washington.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31.—1:30 p. m.—Goebel's condition not so good and grave fears are entertained. He himself is calm and insists that he will not die.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31. — William Goebel was shot and very seriously injured Tuesday morning at ten minutes after 11 o'clock, while passing through the state house yard on his way to the capitol building.

Two shots were fired from a rifle, only one of them taking effect. It struck Mr. Goebel in the right side, one-third of the distance down from the arm-pit to the hip. The ball passed entirely through the body, coming out below the right shoulder blade. It is not thought by the physicians in charge that the wound will prove fatal, unless complications set in. Harland Whittaker, a farmer from Butler county, Ky., is under arrest, charged with having fired the shots, but he denies that he had anything to do with it. Three revoivers were found upon him when he was taken into custody.

Shot Fired from Window.

Mr. Goebel, in company with Col. Jack Chinn and Warden Eph. Lillard, of Frankfort penitentiary, was walking up the sidewalk leading from the street to the capitol building, Goebel being on the right of the three. When the three men were two-thirds of the distance from the street to the capitol a shot was fired from the third-story of the building occupied by the offices of the governor, secretary of state and other leading officials of the state. The ball struck Mr. Goebel in the side and he instantly dropped to the pavement. Chinn and Lillard instantly seized him, Chinn saying as he did so:

"I guess they have got you, Goebel."

"Yes," replied the wounded man. "I guess they have got me for sure."

Four More Shots Fired.

While Chinn was holding the wounded man, supporting his head in his arms, four shots more were fired at both men. All of them struck close, making the dust fly from the brick pavement. Both Chinn and Lillard stuck to their friend, neither of them moving from his side until the firing ceased, when Lillard ran for help. He had not far to go, for there is always a crowd around the gates of the capitol building. A crowd of men were around Mr. Goebel in less than a minute and he was carried to the office of Dr. E. E. Hume, in the basement of the Capitol hotel, and later to his hotel.

Lung Not Penetrated.

The ball, it was found, had inflicted a wound which was somewhat of a glancing nature and had not gone through the lung in a direct line, as Dr. Hume had thought upon the first examination. Had the ball struck the chest one-half inch to the right it would have caused certain death.

Intense Excitement in Legislature.

The house was in session when the shooting occurred and the senate was to have met within 20 minutes. The capitol building was, therefore, filled with members of the legislature, and to say that excitement followed is putting it very mildly. From both halls men ran wildly down the steps without hats or coats, and one member of the house came out carrying in his hand a bill on which he had been arguing when the shooting occurred.

News Spreads Like Wildfire.

By the time the members of the legislature had reached the lower floor, however, Goebel was on his way to the office of Dr. Hume. The members hastily rushed back to their rooms, adjourned with the most unceremonious haste and poured down into the streets again. The news that Goebel had been shot spread through the streets with lightning-like rapidity, and in a few minutes crowds were hastening toward the capitol from every direction.

An Arrest Made.

Within three minutes after the shooting a line of men was thrown around the building from which the shots had come, with the intention of preventing the escape of anybody from the structure. John W. Miles, an aged citizen of Frankfort, was standing at the foot of the stairway leading from the first floor of the office building to the west when a man, evidently a mountaineer, came rushing down the steps. Miles instantly threw his arms around the man's body, holding him with all his strength, calling loudly for help.

It was close at hand, and no escape was possible for the prisoner even had he attempted to make the effort. Men stood around him on every side, with drawn revolvers in their hands, and the slightest attempt at resistance would have resulted in instant death.

Submits to Arrest.

He submited to arrest very quietly, claiming again and again that he had nothing to do with the shooting. He gave his name as Harland Whittaker and said that he was in the state office building when he heard the shots, and, believing the long-predicted battle in the streets of Franklin had come at last, hastened out to see what was going on. He was searched at once and three large revolvers, all fully loaded, were taken from him. None of the cartridges had been exploded, and there was no sign of any of the weapons having been in use. It was at first thought that he might have replaced the used cartridges with fresh ones, but there was no sign of powder smut upon any of the revolvers. Whittaker is a man about 40 years of age, about five feet ten inches tall, with sandy hair and mustache, and not overburdened with intelligence.

Search for Weapon Cut Off.

The pistols of the man arrested were not discharged. A pistol did not do the shooting. It was a Winchester rifle. Search for the weapon, which was evidently left in the building, has been cut off by soldiers taking charge of the state house.

Hurried to the Jail.

He was hurried to the jail, three blocks away, with all possible speed, it being feared that an attempt might be made to lynch him if the crowd once was able to lay hands upon him.

Smokeless Powder Used.

Both Col. Chinn and Warden Lillard declared that smokeless powder was used in the cartridges that were fired at Mr. Goebel.

Republican Officials Act.

The republican officials acted with the greatest promptitude. Adjt. Gen. Collier was sitting in his office when the shots were fired. He was not over 300 feet from Goebel when he fell. He instantly rushed out of the building and, being told that Goebel had been shot, he realized that prompt steps must be taken to avoid the turbulence which would easily follow the great excitement which was increasing every minute.

Troops Called Out.

He at once telephoned to the armory on the hill, where all during the gubernatorial contest the local company of infantry had been held in reserve, and within 20 minutes the company, 30 strong, under command of Capt. Wolcott, was drawn up in front of the capitol building. Guards were placed at eevry gate leading to the capitol grounds and nobody was permitted to enter or leave.

Serious Trouble Feared.

It is possible that there will be more trouble between hot-headed partisans of both parties. As soon as it was noised around that Goebel had been shot members of the legislature made a wild rush for the telegraph office and filed voluminous messages to their constituents, and within an hour replies began to pour in, the general run of them having one tenor, which was: "We are coming." It is expected that fully 5,000 men will arrive in Frankfort during the afternoon and night.

All Militia to Be Called Out.

All of the military strength of the state will be called out and hurried to Frankfort.

The democrats are keeping exceedingly close watch over the person of J. C. W. Beckham, the contestant for the position of lieutenant governor. In the event of the death of Goebel he is their only hope, and they declare, with earnestness, that if Goebel dies, there will be no governor but Beckham. He is kept in his room at the Capitol hotel and will be guarded very closely until the trouble is over. He declares that he needs no guard, but the democrats pay no attention to his remonstrances.

Legislature to Remove to Covington.

It was declared at one o'clock that Speaker Trimble, of the house, had declared that the legislature would be removed to Covington and that Goebel would there be declared governor.

Special Train Ordered.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 31. — Orders have been issued from this city by railroad officers for a special train to be made ready at Lexington, presumably for the transportation of militia to Frankfort. It is not known what instructions have been issued by the state officers at Frankfort. The Second regiment state guard, Col. Williams commanding, is stationed at Lexington.

Nicholasville, Ky., Jan. 31. — The troops that were here guarding the Kendalls were ordered to Frankfort on a special train and left here at one o'clock, leaving ten soldiers to guard the jail.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31.—Company H, of the Second Kentucky regiment, at Newport, Ky., Capt. Bennett commanding, has been ordered to Frankfort. The alarm for mobilizing has been given and a special train ordered.

Hastens to Frankfort.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31. — Arthur Goebel, a brother of Senator Goebel, left at one o'clock on a special train with the most eminent surgeons available in this city. Arthur Goebel is a member of the large firm of Lowry & Goebel, of Cincinnati.

NEWS AT WASHINGTON.

President Expresses Deep Regret for the Calamity.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The news of the shooting of William Goebel, the democratic contestant for governor of Kentucky, was received at the white house while the cabinet was in session.

Upon reading the bulletin the president expressed sorrow, and remarked that it was a great calamity. He was much distressed at the news and so were all the members of the cabinet. All agreed that it was a most lamentable occurrence.

Fear Bloody Outcome.

The news of the attempted assassination of Mr. Goebel in Kentucky was received at the capitol with deep regret. A great many senators feared that there would be a bloody outcome on account of the bitter feeling that has existed before and since the election and which has been growing in intensity daily.

In the House.

In the house the news spread like wildfire, and was for a time almost the sole topic of conversation. The report was received at first with incredulity, and after confirmation with amazement. The members gathered in groups to discuss it, and there were everywhere expressions of horror that the bitter political contest which has waged in Kentucky had culminated in an attempted assassination.

Senator Uses the 'Phone.

Senator Blackburn had Sergeant-at-Arms Percy Hales on the Frankfort telephone at 3:45 p. m., and received a brief verbal account of the shooting that agreed in all essentials with the account received by the press. Senator Blackburn had no opinion to express on the shooting, but added: "Our people have been advised to keep quiet and are doing so."

A CRUSHING DEFEAT.

Buller's Movement to Relieve Ladysmith Is Disastrous.

He Orders a Retreat to the South Bank of Tugela— Gives His Reasons — Feeling in London.

London, Jan. 29.—Gen. Buller says that Warren's troops have retreated south of the Tugela river. The Boers say that the British lost 1,500 killed Wednesday. It is believed here that this includes the wounded. The Boers also claim that 150 of the English troops surrendered at Spion Kop.

Withdraws His Forces.

London, Jan. 29.—Gen. Buller's dispatch to the war office states that Spion kop was abandoned on account of lack of water, inability to bring artillery there and the heavy Boer fire. Gen. Buller gives no list of casualties. His whole force withdrew south of the Tugela river with the evident intention of reaching Ladysmith by another route.

Following is the text of Gen. Buller's dispatch, dated Spearman's Camp, Saturday, January 27, 6:10 p. m.:

Buller's Dispatch.

"On January 20 Warren drove back the enemy and obtained possession of the southern crests of the high table land extending from the line of Acton Homes and Honger's Poort to the western Ladysmith hills. From then to January 25 he remained in close contact with the enemy. The enemy held a strong position on a range of small kopjes stretching from northwest to southeast across the plateau from Acton Homes, through Spion kop, to the left bank of the Tugela.

"The actual position held was perfectly tenable, but did not lend itself to an advance, as the southern slopes were so steep that Warren could not get an effective artillery position, and water supply was a difficulty.

Attack on Spion Kop.

"On January 23 I assented to his attacking Spoin kop, a large hill, indeed a mountain, which was evidently the key of the position, but was far more accessible from the north than from the south. On the night of January 23 he attacked Spion kop, but found it very difficult to hold, as its perimeter was too large and water, which he had been led to believe existed, in this extraordinary dry season was found very deficient. The crests were held all that day against severe attacks and a heavy shell fire.

Praise for the Troops.

"Our men fought with great gallantry. I would especially mention the conduct of the Second Cameronians and the Third King's Rifles, who supported the attack on the mountain from the steepest side and, in each case fought their way to the top, and the Second Lancashire fusileers and Second Middlesex, who magnificently maintained the best traditions of the British army throughout the trying day of January 24, and Thornycroft's mounted infantry, who fought throughout the day equally well along side of them.

"Gen. Woodgate, who was in command at the summit, having been wounded, the officer who succeeded him decided on the night of January 24 to abandon the position, and did so before dawn, January 25.

Force Withdrawn.

"I reached Warren's camp at five a. m. on January 25 and decided that a second attack upon Spion kop was useless and that the enemy's right was too strong to allow me to force it. Accordingly I decided to withdraw the force to the south of the Tugela. At six a. m. we commenced withdrawing the train, and by eight a. m., January 27 (Saturday), Warren's force was concentrated south of the Tugela without the loss of a man or a pound of stores.

"The fact that the force could withdraw from actual touch—in some cases the lines were less than 1,000 yards apart—with the enemy in the manner it did, is, I think, sufficient evidence of the morale of the troops, and that we were permitted to withdraw our cumbrous ox and mule transport across the river, 85 yards broad, with 20-foot banks, and a very swift current, unmolested, is, I think, proof that the enemy has been taught to respect our soldier's fighting powers."

Feeling of Deep Gloom.

London, Jan. 29, 4:15 a. m.—The week has opened with the utmost gloom for the British public, and the reaction is all the stronger because of the high hopes that were reposed in Gen. Buller's turning movement and of his announcement that there would be "no turning back." At the very moment when Dr. Leyds is being received as an honored guest in the highest circles on the continent, Great Britain has to face the worst disaster in a campaign thus far disastrous. Open talk is heard of the absolute necessity of abandoning Ladysmith to its fate, while Lord Roberts reverts to the original plan of an advance over the Orange river upon Bloemfontein.

All the editorials this morning breathe the spirit of calm determination. Not one will allow that any reverse could deter the country from the object it has set itself to attain, whatever the sacrifices which may be involved.

The Times says: "The catastrophe is almost without precedent in our military history, and, indeed, without parallel except the surrender of Yorktown.

Very frank criticism of the government, however, is beginning to be heard even in quarters that have hitherto refrained. The Daily Mail boldly throws all the blame upon Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. Lord Landsdowne and Lord Wolseley. It points to President Lincoln's dismissal of Simon Cameron from the post of secretary of war as a precedent for "getting rid of incompetent ministers."

Losses Are Heavy.

Gen. Buller's operations has cost 912 men, so far officially reported within ten days. Applying to the 206 Spion kop casualties reported to-day the rule of proportion, the losses of officers indicate is 500 casualties yet to come. The total casualties of the war, compiled from official reports, are 9,523, nearly a division. Of these 2,186 are killed, 4,811 wounded and the rest are prisoners.

The aggregate British home troops in South Africa number 116,000, the Natalians 7,158 and Cape Colonials 21,000.

A Terrible Death.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 26.—Frederick A. Lempke, who has conducted Christian Science parlors in St. Cloud for some time, met a horrible death at the home of J. K. Orton, in East St. Cloud, Thursday afternoon. It is supposed he deliberately placed his head in a heating stove, for when found he was in this position, his head and shoulders burned to a crisp. A letter was found in which he said he had been unable to concentrate his thoughts for some time, and it is believed to be a clear case of suicide.

Decide Not to Reconsider Vote.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The senate, in executive session, Monday decided by a vote of 21 to 35 not to reconsider the vote by which the Samoan treaty was ratified, and then removed the injunction of secresy from the vote.

A Russian inventor has perfected an electrical appliance, which he claims will enable the blind to see. This will bring much happiness to those who have defective eyesight. Another great discovery which will bring much happiness to those whose stomachs have become deranged is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has made a world wide reputation for itself as a certain cure for such ailments as indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and malaria, fever and ague.

BOLD SPION KOP

OBSERVATION POINT FOR A GLIMPSE OF STATE AND NATIONAL POLITICS.

The Outlook Discouraging to the British Party in Africa, England and America, and Especially to the British Party in Minnesota—The Solid "Liberty" Sentiment is Against the G. O. P.—Van Sant and His "Waterloo"—"He That Is Not For Me Is Against Me"—McKinley and British "Aggression" One and the Same Thing—State Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Jan. 29, 1900.

At the moment of writing this Spion Kop is a good point of observation from which to view the situation political in Minnesota, affording as it does opportunity for looking into the Boer entrenchments on the heights beyond, or down towards the Tugela whence the British have come on their arduous journey into Republican Ladysmith! according as the view is pro-Boer or pro-British! The Spion Kop of state and national politics!

It is surprising how rapidly developments are placing those of all parties who favor liberty and self-government regardless of what part of the world the case is in, or with what nations or peoples on the one side, and the Tories and friends of imperialism on the other; and how Democrats, Populists and independents are to a man with the one, while the small numbers in the other are almost to a man of the G. O. P. persuasion!

The Twin City Pro-Boer meetings have disclosed this. It is true that when the St. Paul meeting was held in which several thousand people participated, Republicans were present, some, like ex-Attorney General Moses E. Clapp, taking prominent part. But as it has been more and more clear to what extent the McKinley administration is tied up with England, gradually prominent Republicans, as if having received the cue so to do from Hanna or his underlings, have withdrawn from all anti-English movements. Thus the promoters of the Minneapolis Boer meetings, who especially aimed to keep partisan politics out, extending earnest invitations to prominent Republicans to take an active part, found it impossible to secure active Republicans for speakers, even after it was known that ex-Governor Altgeld would be unable to be present. Ex-Candidate Eustis formally declined the invitation to speak, while would-be candidate Van Sant found it convenient to be out of the state. So with Bob Evans, and not only Republicans generally declined or dodged, but the Republican press sought every means for discouraging the meetings.

How have the mighty fallen, when Republican speakers refuse invitations to meetings whose sole purpose is to commend a struggle for liberty, or possibly to condemn those who would stifle it, and destroy two republics? When, in these degenerate days, a Republican administration of America is itself conducting a war against liberty, also in distant lands, and has itself destroyed a republic?

And gazing from that same Spion Kop may it not be regarded as deeply significant that "Waterloo" is the name of the town to which Van Sant is said to have gone as reason for declining the Pro-Boer invitation? Is the "liberty" question to be that on which Captain Van Sant shall meet his "Waterloo?" We shall soon see.

Referring to the recent report of the state bureau as to wages, we find that the bureau gathered no details for a comparison as to increase or decrease, except upon two industries, lumber and iron ore production, finding in those cases that there had been an increase of 9 or 10 per cent. Of course this is practically nothing, compared with the boost of living, and as to profits of the lumber men and mine barons, considering the arbitrary boosts they have given lumber and ore. The wage scale, on the average for all Minnesota is distressingly low. Sixty-five per cent of male employes in the whole state receive under $12 per week, and the average pay of the largest number of women is between $6 and $7 a week. In all Minneapolis and St. Paul but seven women were found receiving over $20 a week, while in the same cities 386 females are paid less than $3 per week!

And, speaking of business and "prosperity," besides the closing of the flour mills, the largest farm machinery concern at Minneapolis is closed by a strike for more wages, the men showing in their statement that they were promised more if McKinley was elected, and that instead they have taken reductions every little while since 1896. Here are some men that will not be marching in the G. O. P. "peroot" this year.

Hanna is making ready for next year's campaign, and at Cleveland is fitting up secret rooms, where, in an immense building, he can receive the leg pullers and dispense the campaign millions undisturbed.

Other signs of Hanna eruptions are that mud volcanoes are commencing to sprout in California!

The Tri-State Grain Growers association chose Hon. E. W. Randall for its president, the association, as well as the Minnesota Agricultural society, knowing a good thing.

No stronger approval of Inspector Reishus' administration and position regarding inspectors, has appeared than in the letter of H. M. Anson of Casselton, N. D., published in the Minneapolis Journal. Mr. Anson cited numerous large shippers of grain who approve the present inspection. When there is only occasional complaint, says Mr. Anson, as now, arising from the fact that grain differs on different land, "you may be pretty sure that the inspection is pretty near right. But when two-thirds of the shippers in three states roar, you may rest assured there is a big steal on, and that was the case under the Clausen administration. Do you suppose that elevator men can accumulate vast fortunes in a few years simply from the per cent they get for handling grain? Not much. Their wealth comes from the over-run and dockage and differences in grade from what is taken in and taken out."

Mr. Anson has recalled one of the key notes of the last campaign in the pledge given the people under the slogan, "Remember the grades."

Poor Schoolmaster McCleary. His pedantic speech on the currency bill was riddled as full of holes as a Kentucky shirt in election time, especially on the worn out point that silver coinage was not wanted because in a certain period, under free coinage, few "dollars" were coined. The reason was that the smaller coins then coined were "full legal tender," and dollars were not wanted. Now, the subsidiary coins are not full legal tender and the dollars are wanted. Also, the fact was thrown into the schoolmaster's frontispiece that fewer "gold dollars" were coined at that time than even of silver, and so few of the little chaps, that their coinage was soon dispensed with altogether, while the coinage of the larger pieces went on as usual.

These and other facts were adroitly brought out by interruptions of the schoolmaster, and with most telling effect. Thus was exploded and wiped out, one of the "points" that has long done duty on the gold side of the money question.

The New York Sun, which has become the advocate and intimate of the McKinley administration, has openly attacked the Republican financial bill, and openly come out for the abolition of the national bank system. The straw to break the camel's back, is the provision tacked on the bill, which creates a fund of $850,000,000, 2 per cent bonds, in order to permit the national banks to take out circulation at par value, for which they are to pay but one-half of 1 per cent tax, thus letting the banks clear 1½ per cent on the vast sum, without turning a hand over. The government guarantees, and pays in case of failure of the banks, their outstanding notes. The Sun boldly advocates the issue of government notes direct to the people without the national bank system, and declares that the national banks have got to go! This, says The Sun, is at the risk of "Bryanism," and indeed it declares that "Bryanism" will find an issue of great power with the people, which it more than intimates will succeed, if the money power and the administration go on with this proposed surrender of the money issuing perogative to the banks by the government! Good for The Sun.

In the Fifth (Hennepin) district, the opposition to Mr. Fletcher has reached the stage that leading Republicans are openly denouncing him. In this contingency there is more and more talk of ex-Mayor P. B. Winston as the man to beat "Your Uncle Loren." Certain it is that some one will do it.

And, as to the Fourth district, there is considerable talk that Hon. Thomas R. Kane, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, is the man to redeem it. Mr. Kane's recent pro-Boer speeches have added to his former strength with all liberty lovers, and his praise is on many lips.

Daily the St. Paul reform forces are getting into shape to redeem the Saintly city in the coming municipal election. Republican mal-administration can be smelled—well, as far off as Spion Kop!

Why in the world is the Doc Ames party, in Minneapolis, proposing to banquet on Lincoln's birthday. What single principle is left, of all that Lincoln stood for, that the Doc Ames party now represents. But the said party is wise in abandoning the exposition meeting. It couldn't fill the hall.

While the clergy, for the most part, stand supinely idle to the issues of the hour, or, what is worse, bend fawningly before those in power, or commend the sycophantic hypocrisy enthroned in the White House, how refreshing come such fervent utterances as those of Bishop James Ryan, bishop of Alton, Ills., which have usually first appeared in The Irish World.

"Vainly," says the Bishop, "has the Nestor of Ohio (Sherman) cried to his party that it has gone far from home and business. Reckless of expenditure and of the blood and burdens of the people, it must have colonies, forsooth. The party of Lincoln is dead; its heroic days are over; its great leaders stepping aside. It has set itself to reverse its own career, to reverse Lincoln, to tear out the embodiment of his work from the Constitution, to make the republic again half slave and half free, though he said that it could not so endure. * * *

"The flag of Lincoln is hauled down. The Republic is in danger."

Gradually is the light dawning, in which the people will see that the money power underlies all of the evils of which they complain; that free coinage and control of the volume of money, imperialism, trusts—whatever the issue—can only be obtained, resisted or destroyed, as the case may be, by first taking the money power by the throat and wresting control of the government from Wall and Lombard streets.

Higher Criticism.

The savage held his temper admirably.

"Nature," he replied, with a comprehensive gesture, "is our Bible!"

"Then of course you have no higher criticism!" exclaimed the enlightened man, shuddering.

"Oh, but we have!" protested the savage, vehemently. "Why, there are among us any number of advanced thinkers who wonder for instance, if there isn't too much salaratus in the bread fruit! Yes, sir!"

The Farmer Scored.

A farmer drifted into a hardware store at Mulhall and was asked by the manager: "Don't you want to buy a bicycle to ride around your farm on? They're cheap now. Can give you one for $35."

"I'd sooner put the $35 into a cow," said the farmer.

"But think," said the manager, "how foolish you would look riding around town on a cow."

"Oh, I don't know," said the farmer; "no more foolish, perhaps, than I would milking a bicycle."—Kansas City Journal.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Bit of Romance.

There was something of a romance in the United States land office, at St. Cloud. J. G. Vincent applied at the office in the morning for leave to file upon a homestead in Cass county for Miss Jennie Buck, but was told it would be necessary for the young lady to appear in person. Vincent had a farm near Pillager, and explained that Miss Buck's claim adjoined his, and that she wished very much to prove up that day, but there was an impediment in the way in that she had not quite the requisite amount of money. He was advised that she make out the application and remit within a day or two, but this also was objectionable, and the young man was forced to tell that he and Miss Buck contemplated matrimony, and were going to be joined for life that day, and that the filing would have to be made that day, otherwise she would be incompetent to make it after entering the married state. A friend finally came to their aid, the filing was made, and they left the land office with the expressed intention of adjourning to a justice office.

Claims Territory.

The claim is made that there are six square miles of territory which of right belongs to Hennepin county which is claimed by Ramsey county, and upon which Ramsey county has been collecting taxes.

The recent act of the Ramsey county officials, in taking Durnam island from Hennepin county, where is has always been assessed, is what brings the matter to light, and the facts are interesting.

Among those who looked up the Durnam island matter for the purpose of settling the tax question thereon, is Albert Phelps, a Minneapolis abstractor. While looking up that matter, he ran across facts in the laws, which if they are substantiated by investigation, will give part of St. Anthony Park and a small portion of the Minnesota Transfer to Hennepin county.

The claim is made that the auditor should at once place the property in question on the tax lists of Hennepin county, and if that is done, it will add many thousands of dollars in valuation to the Henepin county tax rolls.

Reapers on Ice.

During the seeding time of last spring an immense arceage of flax was sown in the low places on many farms throughout the Red River valley. The heavy rains of last September flooded the fields, in many places with over a foot of water, making it impossible to get on to the ground with a reaper.

Later, when ice formed on the flax fields, it found the grain standing erect and in prime condition for cutting. The reapers were brought out and the harvest began on the ice.

In many instances the grain saved in this manner threshed over twenty bushels to the acre and graded No. 1. The discovery that the grain could be saved has been a source of profit to many farmers.

A Sad Mistake.

Supposed to be suffering from the effects of liquor, James Magee was sent to the St. Paul workhouse when he was dying of cerebral meningitis. An autopsy proved what had caused his death. Magee was 50 years of age, and apparently a laborer. A policeman picked him up in West St. Paul a week before. He was charged with drunkenness and vagrancy because he could not tell his address. He was sent up for 40 days after spending a day in the county jail, as he was supposed to be sick. At the workhouse he was seen to be ill, and accordingly was sent to the city hospital, where he died.

DELAYED THE WEDDING TOUR.

Sad Story of a Young Man's Downfall on the Night of His Marriage.

There were a whole lot of sensational features at a recent swell wedding on the West side, which, for obvious reasons, never got into the society columns of the papers. They are too good to remain in obscurity, however, and are here related, the names, of course, being fictitious.

Hawkins was the groom, and the bride was the only daughter of a wealthy family, who are fervent members of the Methodist church. After the ceremony a reception was held at the house, the departure of the young couple on their wedding tour being set for 10:30 o'clock. About 9:30 o'clock Hawkins stole away from the house to a saloon about a block away.

As it happened, two of his acquaintances, who had not a very high opinion of him, and had a grudge to satisfy, were in the saloon. They noticed Hawkins' full-dress suit, and he, in an unwonted burst of generosity, asked them to take something.

"Give us a small bottle of champagne," said Hawkins.

"Why all these togs?" asked one of the men.

"Been getting married," responded Hawkins. "The old folks are teetotalers, and it was pretty dry around at the house, so I just slipped out to get a bracer. You know I seldom drink anything, but I feel pretty nervous tonight."

The two acquaintances congratulated Hawkins, and in honor of the wedding insisted on buying another bottle of wine, which was followed by another. By the time the third bottle had disappeared, Hawkins insisted on a fourth, and when that had been disposed of he was decidedly overcome. It was then 10:30 o'clock.

"Better go home, Hawkins," said one of his companions.

Hawkins wept at the suggestion. "Goin' sthay in here," he announced. "Gi'v's 'nother bot'l'."

The bottle was duly finished, after which Hawkins sat down in a chair and went to sleep. The other two men, who were pretty gay by this time, began to undress the unconscious bridegroom. They took off his collar and white tie, then his shirt and undershirt, after which they replaced his vest and coat. Then they removed his shoes and stockings, after which they put his shoes on. Last of all, they blacked Hawkins' face and then they roused him from his sleep.

"Come on, Hawkins, we'll walk around to the house with you," they said, and almost carrying the staggering Hawkins they sallied out, one on each side of him.

When they reached the house there was a scene. The bride was standing on the steps, almost distracted, and her parents had blood in their eyes. The wretched Hawkins was oblivious to everything, however, and had to be carried upstairs and put to bed, while the bride had a fit of hysterics and her mother snapped out: "I told you you'd regret this. I never was satisfied with the match."

As the two conspirators left Hawkins' room after putting him to bed, the mother-in-law stopped them and asked how he had got into such a disgraceful condition. They professed entire ignorance.

"We were coming along Madison street," they explained, "when we saw him sitting on the curbstone, with a lot of boys tormenting him. We drove the boys away, and after finding out his name and address brought him home. He is an entire stranger to us."

How Hawkins squared himself is not known, but he did eventually, and the wedding tour began two days later than the date set for it. It is believed that the teetotal principles of his wife's parents have been adopted by him, as he has not been known to take a drink since that night.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

WHEN NOT TO KEEP BOOKS.

Getting Ahead in the Accounts Without Anything to Show for It.

She decided that the only way to run a house economically was to keep a set of books, so she made all necessary purchases, including a bottle of red ink, and started in.

It was a month later when her husband asked her how she was getting along.

"Splendidly," she replied.

"The system is a success, then?"

"Yes, indeed. Why, I'm $66 ahead already."

"Sixty-six dollars!" he exclaimed. "Heavens! You'll be rich before long. Have you started a bank account?"

"No-o; not yet."

"What have you done with the money?"

"Oh, I haven't got the money, you know. That's only what the books show. But just think of being $66 ahead."

"Um, yes. But I don't exactly see—"

"And all in one month, too!"

"Of course; but the money? What has become of that?"

"I don't exactly know," she said, doubtfully. "I've been thinking of that, and I think we must have been robbed. What do you think we had better do about it?"

He puffed his pipe in solemn silence for a moment, and then suggested:

"We might stop keeping books. That's easier than complaining to the police."—T. E. McGrath, in Woman's Home Companion.

Don't Forget.

It is all right to be open and aboveboard in word and action. Frank open-heartedness is a characteristic greatly to be desired. But if we possess this excellent quality let us not use it in a way that will offend others. It may be all right to speak plainly one's mind if done at the proper time and place, yet it should always be done in a careful and polite manner. For, remember that to be considerate of the feelings of others is also a virtue, and while observing one we should not forget the other.—Searchlight.

WESTERN CANADA.

One of the Choice Spots on the Continent Open for Settlement.

The following extracts from an interesting letter to the Mason City (Iowa) Republican, written by Mrs. S. A. Brigham, late of that place, but now of Ross Creek, Alberta, Canada, so nearly describes most of the districts of Western Canada that we take pleasure in presenting same to the attention of our readers:

WESTERN CANADA.

Crop Prospects and Climate About Edmonton, N. W. T.

[Interesting letter from Mrs. S. A. Brigham, late of Mason City.]

Editor Mason City Republican.

Ross Creek, Alberta, N. W. T., Canada, Aug. 7, 1899.

Dear Sir:

We are located in the Beaver Hills, 30 miles from Ft. Saskatchewan and 50 miles from Edmonton. To the east of these is an immense area of bottom lands, which furnishes abundance of hay for the settlers. It is dotted with small lakes, the largest of which is called Beaver Lake, 16 miles in length.

There is shelter for the cattle and horses now feeding there.

The Beaver Hills are covered with small green willows which are easily gotten rid of before breaking up the land. Here and there poplar, birch and tamarack trees abound. Small meadows are numerous. The soil in these hills is much richer than the bottom lands, being a kind of black leaf mould. There is no tough sod to break and it is very productive. Wheat, oats and barley do finely, and vegetables are the finest that can be grown. Potatoes especially are large and solid, easily producing from 200 to 300 bushels per acre, and best of all never a "taty bug" to wrestle with. Wild fruit—strawberries, gooseberries, saskatoons (or pine berries), raspberries and cranberries—are found in the hills. Small tame fruit does finely; the red and white currants in my garden are as large again as common sized ones.

We have long days during the months of June and July, one can see to read many evenings until 10 o'clock in the twilight. Some nights less than 3 hours of darkness and the birds are singing at 2 o'clock. Then again, it rains so easily. You look toward the west and see a little cloud coming up, a gentle shower follows, the sun shines forth again, and in a little while you forget it has rained.

Cyclones are unknown here and the thunder and lightning is very light. We had two storms this summer accompanied with wind and hail, but nothing to lodge the grain. The average heat is about 78 degrees. We had three or four days in July at 90. The nights are always cool.

The winter season is one of great activity. All the fencing is gotten out then and logs for the farm buildings. By paying 25 cents you are granted a permit at the land office to cut logs upon vacant lands. The roads are good and smooth, for the snow never drifts, not even around the buildings, and this is a great saving of time to the farmer. Hay is hauled from the bottom lands all winter long, and a man can work outside every day as far as the weather is concerned. There are cold snaps when it reaches 40 and 48 below zero, but the lack of wind prevents one realizing it and the mountains 150 miles west of us are a great protection.

Our neighbors are mostly Canadian, Scotch, Swede, and we have a nice sprinkling of people from the States.

The creeks abound in small fish.

We are now in the midst of haymaking (Aug. 7th). Wheat will not be cut until early September, this being a little later season than common, but the crop will be immense. I send you a sample of wheat and barley—its height is almost even with my shoulders, average 50 inches. Newcomers lacking binders can hire their grain cut for 75 cents per acre. Prairie chickens are here by the thousands.

The water is good. We have a fine well 15 feet deep. In the creeks the water is soft and of a yellowish colour.

Then again we are surrounded with bachelors; we have no less than 18 single men in this neighbourhood, on matrimony bent. When a feminine gender of any age between 14 and 40 visits these hills we pity her, so great is the demand for her company.

In conclusion, if the remainder of our loved ones were here with us, we should better enjoy life on Ross Creek, and unless the unexpected develops, consider this will be a pretty fair place to end our days.

MRS. S. A. BRIGHAM.

In Another District.

Politics are absorbing; so the gushing young woman who had been talking to a congressman at last decided.

"See those distant stars?" she said, in a soulful tone. "Did you ever pause to think that they may be worlds?"

"Ye-es, I believe I have thought of it," was the somewhat dubious reply.

"And that they may be inhabited by human beings that hope and struggle as we do," continued the young woman, earnestly. "Oh, did you ever give deep thought to those people so far away, unknown to us?"

"No," was the unhesitating answer, "I've never thought of them at all."

"Why not?" demanded his questioner, with sudden briskness of manner.

"Well," said the man, reflectively, "I suppose one reason may be that they don't vote in my district."—Youth's Companion.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb. 2, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Lecture at the City Hall, Wednesday evening, February 7.

—The C. E. S. will have a sociable at the home of Mrs. Alice Davis Saturday evening.

—The Eagle was misinformed as regards to the Presbyterian Social. They will not have a social at Mrs. A. Davis's Saturday evening.

—Rev. Valentyne preached two good sermons at the M. E. Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

—The I. O. O. F's. put a number of Rockfordites through some of their mysterious degrees, Friday night.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fri. 11tf.

—Village officers are to be elected next month. Be on the look out, and get a set of officers that are all right. A good deal depends on the officers in a village how the village is run.

—The Methodist congregation has been holding a series of meetings and propose to continue them. They are earnestly praying for an awakening in this town. It is certainly needed. May their prayers be answered.

—The St. Cecilia Club met with Miss Margaret Wittman on Tuesday evening. After the business meeting each member contributed a piano selection to the evening's entertainment. It was decided that the next meeting should be an open one.

Secetary, KATIE FRANK.

—Don't fail to secure a ticket to the lecture "Some Levers of Power or How to Get There," by Rev. A. R. Lambert, lately from Pennsylvania. He comes very highly recommended. The lecture will furnish food for the mind for a long time with thinking people.

—The proceeds of Rev. Lambert's Lecture are to go towards paying a singer to assist in revival work at the M. E. Church. So you really get your money back from the lecture to use for some fine singing. The singer is expected to be a leader in his line and to instruct those who like music, along that line.

—A large audience was present last evening to listen to Rev. A. R. Lambert, a native of this county, lecture on the subject: "Some Levers of Power; or, How to Get There." It was a masterly effort. Rev. Lambert is regarded as one of the most eloquent and gifted men of the Central Pennsylvania Conference.-Committee on Lecture, Clearfield, Penn'a, Oct. 21, 1895.

—People who have invited parties, and those who attend them, in homes where there has been, or where there is the least suspicion of small-pox, chickenpox, diphtheria or other contageous or infectious disease, would, in case their own families should become infected, and be sick or die, be loudest in their condemnation of officers and people who failed in observing the state health laws.

—Some people are very inconsistant. They talk aboue expanding our government; about taking the islands of the sea under our tender care; and then howl worse than Commanche Indians because the Health authorities of the State do their best to preserve the health of themeselves and families by quarantining small-pox, diphtheria and other infectious diseases. Let 'em howl if it relieves them any.

—Charley Kaemmer, who used to live in the neighborhood of Albert Lea, where they have had so much small-pox this winter tells us that after resisting the Health Officer's attempts to quarantine all cases, even to killing a special policeman who was trying to get a patient to the pest house, the people quieted down and all cases were strictly quarantined, and now there isn't a case there. "A word to the wise is sufficient".

—The horse auction was called on soon after dinner on Saturday. It lasted about 15 minutes. The first horse offered was one of the finest of the flock and after a tedious spell of small bidding was knocked down to A. L. Jones for $25. Another smaller animal was offered and the bidding was still less animated. So the sale was declared off, and those wishing horses were invited to look them over and buy at private sale.

—Tuesday, Feb. 6th will be given in the City Hall at 8 o'clock p. m, an impressive and good reproduction of Cinematrographic seens (in moving pictures). The world's renown "Passion Play" as preformed by the Bavarian and Bohemian peasants. The good people of Delano and vicinity are cordially invited to grasp the opportunity given them and view this grand scene.—Admission 25cts. Reserved seats 35 cts. Tickets for sale at Wittmans Drug Store.

—The Rebekahs entertained fifty-six of their friends and neighbors at the Odd Fellow's hall last Tuesday evening. Progressive cinch occupied their time for two hours. Mrs. T. B. Rader acting as master of ceremonies. At the close of the game an excellent lunch was spread upon the tables, to which guests did ample justice. Mesdames Knoll, Johnson, Lindsley and Billings waited upon the guest in their usual characteristic manner. The gentelman's prize was awarded Mr. T. B. Rader; Mrs. Jones and Miss Chance had a tie which was amicably settled, awarding the prize to Miss Chance.

—20 below zero for a short time this week, was quite a change from our balmy winter.

Personal.

Mrs. A. C. Harris is home visiting her parents this week.

Miss Aggie Eppel visited with relatives and friends in Delano this week.

C. H. Green and A. L. Mealy made a business visit to the cities Tuesday.

John J. Catlin left yesterday morning for Minneapolis, to resume the study of medicine, at the State University.

Attorney Spath, of Waverly, was an early visitor Monday morning, on his way to Buffalo, to attend to some Probate matters.

W. B. Brooks, of Grinnell, Iowa, visited Delano friends this week. He and his wife formerly Miss Emma Cooper, of Delano, and daughter have recently recovered from a run of typhoid fever.

"FAREWELL OLD JAN."

Fare thee well Old Jan, time bids thee go
With your summered smiles in arms of snow.
Time ever crowned you winter's King.
Thy stay hath reminded of coming spring.
Farewell Old Jan, in truth I know
You'll come again with your arms of snow.

When you meet Miss "Feb" on your journey away,
Just whisper and tell her of your pleasant stay.
If she greets thee cold, chilly and wild,
Just touch her garments "Jan" and make them mild.
Kiss her to smiles and make her to know,
You will meet her again, in arms of snow.

You will come again, some cold wintry night,
With frosted locks, garments drifting and white,
Dear "Jan" you never more may bring,
In your arms of snow, sweet smiles of spring;
Treading so lightly, on frosted grass,
Basking in sunshine, watching you pass,
Farewell dear "Jan"; Ah! well you know
You'll come again, with your arms of snow.

DELANO, Jan. 31, 1900. "R."

Too Much God and no Flour.

Old Chief Pocotello, now at the Fort Hall agency, in answer to an inquiry relative to the true Christian character of a former Indian agent at that place, gave in very terse language the most accurate description of a hypocrite that was ever given to the public. "Ugh! Too much God and no flour." Nye.

School Notes.

Miss Weber spent Saturday and Sunday at her home.

Blanche Rader was absent from school last Tuesday.

Willie Mowatt has changed his recent location in the room.

John J. Catlin of '97 has again started to the Medical department of the "U".

Millie Cruikshank Edna Ross and Mrs. Green were visitors of the last literary.

Miss Eva Livingston of Lyndale is taking the State Examinations here this week.

The High School and the Grammar rooms are busy taking the State Examination this week.

One of the High School boys who says he has nothing else to do, walks down the rail road track for exercise.

A number of girls of the Grammar room are so infatuated with one of the boys in town that they can hardly wait for the recess bell to ring at recess so they can rush down on the corner of River and Elm streets, to see if they can get a chance to wave at him.

The High School is preparing a Lincoln's programme for Feb. 9. 1900. The program is as follows:

Song: School.
Reading; Amanda Brock.
Historical Sketch; Bessie Wilder.
Music; May Mowatt.
Paper; George Shellock, Frank Gabrielson and Chas Bentz.
Song; Mollie Maxfield.
Recitation, George Borril.
Critic Report; Miss Cotton.

Duluth Herald: Judge Morris spoke in favor of ousting Mr. Roberts and so they proceeded to put the Mormon representative out. Oh, there is no question the judge has influence at Washington!

County Cullings.

The Minnesota Editorial Association will hold the annual meeting at Minneapolis the 15th and 16th of Feb.

The Crow River Valley Medical Society is to hold a meeting on Wednesday Feb. 7, at Hutchinson or Waverly.

The only chance voters have to express their views on national questions is at the primary, usually the first one called, to choose county delegates. Be there and have your say.

Temperance people are making more of a stir than for a long time. Messrs. Higgins and Leedy will attend conventions at Cambridge Feb. 8; Anoka, 10; and Messrs Calderwood and Leedy are booked for Buffalo Feb. 16.

Mr. A. W. Many on assuming control of the Maple Lake Messenger, in his introductory says: "In politics we favor Republican principles, but we are not of that class who are all the time throwing mud and casting slurs at other parties than our own; we are going to run a cleanpaper."

It has been recommended by Mr. Bryan that each primary instructs its delegates to the county convention as to how they shall vote on the issues before the people. For instance, resolved that we favor the Chicago platform of '96, and are opposed to trusts and imperialism, and, hereby instruct our delegates to so vote, would cover the ground.

One vote more at the primaries might change the delegation and decide whether your precinct is represented as in favor of, or against, the Chicago platform of '96, trusts and imperialism. Don't stay at home when the primary is held; but be there, and be sure you vote for delegates that represent your views; and for instructing them to vote that way, at the county convention.

MISTAKES WILL HAPPEN.

Oh, Sir Redvers you're mistaken,
The Boers can hold their own;
And the best thing you can do sir—
Is, to take a passage home.

When England gave you that command,
She calculated thus:
With Redvers Buller in the lead—
We'll soon clear up this muss.

You forgot to count Oom Paul,
And Joubert brave and bold,
You failed to sound those native guides,
Confess sir; you've been sold!

And the guns how sad to leave them,
They're realy costly tools,
It seems to me it is something else,
Oh yes those blasted mules.

You are up again the real thing,
The Irish and the Dutch.
You might lick them you might kick them,
But that want hurt them much.

In the meantime you are kept busy,
At dodging Mauser balls,
You'd better move while moving's good,
Before the Transvaal, falls.

The Finest Limited Train.

From St. Paul and Minneapolis to Chicago is the Burlington electric lighted and steam heated. Every comfort that other trains have and some that no others have. Remember this when buying railroad tickets.

A Terrible Collision.

While Conzet & Darrow were coming down a bad hill they met Mr. Leather going up hill; but Conzet & Darrow's load being much larger and heavier and having started down before Mr. Leather got started up, the mule team, Pete and Charlie went right on to the bottom of the hill where they are now selling harness as cheap as ever, while Mr. Leather is still crawling, notch by notch, up the hill looking for customers. We are down on the level with every farmer whose wheat has been coming down the same way, just ahead of the mule team that brought down that load of harness supplies, which will last till Mr. Leather takes a tumble and rolls down the other side. We want you to come right in and see what we have to offer before the spring rush commences. We will sell cheaper now than after the rush commences as we have more time to spare.

Yours truly,
CONZET & DARROW,
Delano and Rockford.

Saint Cloud Times: Trace any bit of the anti Bryan talk seen in the press to its source, and you will find a republican behind it, although some of them are masquerading in cloaks labeled "gold democrat."

Sherburne County Times: During the temporary lull in politics some of the papers are mentioning this or that favorite who would make a good delegate to the national convention, ignoring the fact that the party managers have the slates already made up.

The LeSueur Sentinel: One of the great dailies, whose chief end in life these days is to make the people believe that the trusts are not to be feared, says that "competition and invention" will soon cause them to disappear. As yet inventive genius has not come under the dominion of the trusts, but if competition is not already throttled, there is no meaning in the word.

Saint Cloud Times: The Journal Press says that the Standard oil trust and the sugar trust "are wholly of Democratic parentage." Now, this is mere "dime novel" gush; but, even if it were true, they are repudiated bastards, and now dwell, as Gov. Altgeld said: "in the Republican camp." Said the Governor: "Men of all parties may be, and probably are, interested in them, but the fact remains that every trust in the land supports the Republican party. If you would break the power of the trusts, therefore, you cannot do it by voting the Republican ticket."

MAPLE PLAIN.

We have been having for a change a small blizzard, with cold weather for a few days past, but our winter has been so pleasant we do not feel like finding any fault. The worst just now is our roads. They are in very poor condition for travel. They are not fit to travel on for pleasure or to haul heavy freight.

W. W. Mills has returned from the sunny South with the intention to stay in Minnesota the rest of his days. Yes Minnesota has marvelous attraction for both young and old. Even the politician grows bigger and fatter here than anywhere else. Yet all do not die rich, but all sleep sound and pass away with a clear conscience.

Colds, rheumatism, and a longing for the gold dollar has afflicted a good many of our people.

Maple Plain has a number of Lodges now; Oddfellows, Woodmen, G. A. R. Post, W. R. C., as far as we know all are good orders.

Some are circulating their petitions for nominations to office. It is well to be on time.

The news comes to us through the daily press and administration papers, that prosperity like the waters from a flood gate is upon us, and all we have to do is to pick it up as the children of Israel picked up manna in the wilderness. Has interest on money decreased any during the last year. What is the price of lumber, nails, fence wire, glass, lath, oil, sugar, and in fact almost everything we buy. Wheat, the staple production of the North West is lower than one year ago. Pork and beef pushed up a little and they raised the cry the farmer is getting rich. Poor farmer he has been made a dupe of by many a shrude politician. The game has worked will but I hope the time has come when the farmer will see eye to eye.

Brigham H. Roberts suffered from the contempt of the 56th Congress, and went home somewhat cast down, but he has a chance to reform and redeam himself. But we the producer of the country cannot so easily change our condition from unjust laws that are imposed upon us. But when the Filipino war is ended and we have taken to our boosom the Philipine Islands including malaria, monkeys, and the skin tanned aborigines, then the white man of this country will have no burden only to feed himself.

ROCKFORD.

Chas Pitt of the Centenal Hotel has the Sub-Contract to carry the mail from Rockford via Hanover and St. Michaels to St. Michaels Station Daily, commencing Feb. 12, 1900; to July 1, 1903; a petition for a daily mail from Rockford to Delano has been in circulation in the village during the week and signed by everybody.

There is or will be a strong opposition to the proposed water-works or fire protection. It is supposed that the strongest and most earnest opposition comes from a few individual, who wish to so arrange matters that they can sell to the insurance companies at a good round price; such things happen occasionally.

It is about the middle of winter the ice still covers the fleecy ponds. Spring is not yet, and yet the bull frogs and other crookers are about and croak is about preparing for the Village election. We must make an entire change in the Village officers. So they say; put in sound, solid business men, yes we have tried that from 1882 1891, nine years. We had that class of men supposed to be the best; they had so much business of their own that they did nothing for the village in the nine years They buried the remains of our cat at a cost of 50 bonds, and audited and allowed each member his yearly salary; the village did not own even a hoe to work with. Since 1892 the village council have been quite busy; they have purchased wheeled scrapers and other tools, and with the town a road grader, have graded and, on many of the streets and roads leading into the village built culverts and bridges; have sidewalks and street crossings laid on the principal streets; maintained street lamps; spent about $350 opening up Cherry street from the school house to the Buffalo road; and $175 on Railroad Ave. And the taxes for village expenses and improvements have been 5 mills, except in 1898 nothing.

We have felt for years, that Rockford has literary talent; but it lacks that push which is necessary to bring it out. Some one or something to lead has been the great lack. It seems as if the Ladies' Literary Club is a move in the right direction and that it ought to be encouraged in every worthy enterprise. While the members each devote about seven hours per week to solid study they are not selfishly devoted to their own interests but occasionally give abenefit to the public at a price so low as to be within reach of every one.

Last spring their Whittier entertainment was such as to reflect credit on a much larger town, and Miss Sanford's lecture in Oct. was greately enjoyed by all who heard it especially by lovers of Art. Mr. Rankin, State Inspector of Graded Schools is soon expected to give a lecture on "Formative Influences". He will try to explain how children's characters are formed from environment and will give advice that every parent ought to hear. Don't fail to go when he comes.

We dont belong to the club but we want the members to know we are always ready to help any enterprise whose object is progress and improvement.

Mrs. William Gould is very ill with a form of typhoid fever. It seems as if "Will" has more than his share of sickness.

Florian J. Benner in company with Alick McNeal of Dayton started on a trip Saturday morning to Duluth, Deer River, Walker, Cass Lake and Bermidji. They expect to be gone about a week.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19, 1900.

There is open revolt in the republican ranks against a part of the McKinley programme. Senator Platt, of Conn., has given notice of his intention to offer amendments to the administration bill providing governments for Hawaii and Porto Rico. He will amend both bills by moving to strike out the clauses allowing each of the islands to send a Delegate to Congress, and in the case of Hawaii his amendment will provide for striking out all that portion of the bill dealing with customs duties and a continuation of the present customs relations. Instead of free trade with Porto Rico, as the bill provides, Mr. Platt's amendment provides for the collection of a duty on all articles from Porto Rico brought into the U. S. equivalent to 80 per cent of the duty collected on similar articles from foreign countries, and for aduty in the same proportion to be collected in Porto Rico on all goods from the U. S. How serious this revolt will be is yet to be determined, and it will depend largely upon the attitude of the democratic and populist Senators, but it has greatly alarmed the administration.

Roberts was thrown overboard yesterday, according to programme, and, according to the ethics of the unco good, the House must be today a very much more moral and virtuous body. Well, it may be that it is, but there are serious objections to the House, as at present constituted, setting itself up as a court to pass on morals. This isn't meant as a defense of Roberts, who deserved to be kicked out for cowardice as well as for polygamy, but as an advance protest against the House going into morality censorship as a regular business. That business is already badly overcrowded.

Secretary Gage must be disgruntled about something. He said a day or two ago that he believed the Boers would lick the English and sincerely hoped they would. Here is more treason in the McKinley camp, and Gage isn't Irish either.

Representative Champ Clark, of Mo., sent the following cablegram to Webster Davis, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, when the news was received that Davis was on his way to Pretoria, in President Kruger's private car:

Webster Davis, Pretoria, care of Kruger: Hearty congratulations on good company in which you find yourself. Have always admired your splendid genius, and now that you are out of the society of republicans and jingoes, and fraternizing with men fighting for liberty, I hope, when you return to your native shores you will join the democrats. We will give you a most cordial welcome" Mr. McKinley is so much afraid that the visit of Davis to Kruger will be misconstrued that he has caused it to be officially given out that Davis is traveling as an individual and not as a representative of this government.

Senator McEnery, of La., made a speech against the Pritchard resolution declaring the proposed suffrage amendment to the N. C. constitution, similar to the one now in force in La., to be unconstitutional, in which he declared that his state had been greatly benefited by the restriction of suffrage; that while Congress had the power, it had not the right, to declare any law or constitutional provision of a state unconstitutional, that right belonging solely to the judicial branch of the government. He stated the whole race question when he said: "There can be no admixture of the races. This is a law of nature. They must work out their destinies on parallel lines, which cannot come together. The Anglo-Saxon blood and brain will always be the superior and cannot be subordinated to the negro."

Representative Henry, of Texas, has introduced a bill providing a government for Porto Rico, which most democrats think good enough to be made a party measure. It follows the lines of the laws establishing territories, which have stood the tests of a century, and places the government as much in the hands of its people as those of the territories of Arizona, New Mexico, and Oklahoma are in the hands of their people.

Senator Turner, of Washington, made a speech, this week, arraigning the administration both for its Philippine policy and for its attitude toward the Boers, the people of a republic struggling for liberty against a powerful monarchy. After asserting that they had the sympathy of American people, he said: "In other days our sympathy would have been expressed through governmental channels. But now, the ghost of liberty murdered in the Philippines stands in the way. We cannot even preserve a decent neutrality between this heroic people and their assailants. It is yet permitted to us, however, as individuals, to avert our eyes, and as those noble men go down to death and oblivion to say to them, as I now do, 'Thou lost survivors of a heroic age! Hail and farewell' ".

The Quay reports have been made and the Senate will proceed to decide the question of whether he shall be seated as soon as it feels so disposed. The Quayites are showing so much confidence that it is believed they have received promises of support from some of the Senators who have been classed as doubtful.

OBITUARY.

L. C. Johnson who has been suffering for some time from senile gangrene died at his home in Rockford, Monday morning Jan. 29, 1900, at thirty-five minutes past one o'clock from the effect of blood poisoning arising from his malady. Mr. Johnson was born in Bescawen, N. H., Nov. 16, 1822, where he remained until he reached manhood, when he went to Lowell, Mass., where he remained for some years. While there he formed the acquaintance of Adaline Fisk, of Whitehood, N. H., whom he afterward married, Jan. 6, 1847. The pair made their home for a time in Lawrence, Mass., removing from there to Oldtown, Maine, from which place they again returned to Lowell. In 1854 they followed the tide of emigration then setting toward the west and arived at Minneapolis, June 30. In May 1855, Mr. Johnson filed on a claim within six miles of the Falls of St. Anthony but abandoned the same in the fall and went to St. Cloud, where he remained for a few months and then took a homestead four and one-half miles from Clearwater. This remained his home until Dec. 1865 when he moved his family consisting of his wife and seven children to the village of Clearwater. In 1876 he entered the merchantile business in that place and continued it until 1894 when he was forced to retire on account of deafness with which he had been afflicted for some years. This increased to such an extent that for several years previous to his death he was unable to converse only with the aid of a speaking tube. In the spring of 1895 he and his wife removed to Rockford to be near their sons. In 1863, Mr. Johnson united with the Congregational church at Clearwater, of which organization he remained an honored member during his residence there. He was a man of the strictest integrity and enjoyed the respect and confidence of all who knew him. His wife and six children survive him:—F. H. and C. M. Johnson and Mrs. A. F. Clifford, of Rockford, Minn., Mrs. Helen S. Bagley, of Monticello, Minn., Royal F. Johnson of Chicago, and George W. Johnson of Newport, Idaho. He rests in Elmwood cemetery in Rockford.

Railroading Patents.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

REPORTS from Grand Forks say that the educational institutions at Wahpeton are closed on account of small pox.

GOLDBUG papers have a good deal to say about Mr. Bryan's stubbornness driving many "old Democrats" into the Republican party. The Goldbugs don't believe it or they wouldn't tell Mr. Bryan so often of his "great mistake".

MY BRYAN is "loved for the enemies he makes." The sooner all his opponents join the McKinley band wagon, the better for Bryan and his followers. For then those of other parties will fall into line and more than fill up the ranks

KENTUCKY has a divided legislature. The minority, Republicans under orders of Gov. Taylor are at London, up among the roughest, it is claimed of Kentucky's rough. The majority, Democrats congregate at Louisville, down among the largest city population in the state.

WE acknowledge receipt of, with complements of Lucian Swift, a copy of the Minneapolis Journal Almanac and Year Book, for 1900. A good book for reference also a copy of "expansion" a book containing Bart's cartoons for 1899. bound. Both are interesting. The "Expansion" more especially to those who believe that way.

WHEN as old a state in the union as Kentucky has two men claiming the office as Governor and one is shot down in the capatol grounds, and armed soldiers are used to prevent the Legislators from meeting in their customary halls, and the legislature is adjourned to the mountain county where roughs flourish it is strange that we should think the Philipinoes unable to govern themselves. Surely they could do as well as that.

A BINDING TWINE circular has been sent out by Prison Warden C. McC Reeve, stating that the board of Managers have fixed the prices of binding twine f. o. b. at Stillwater, to farmers or actual consumers only, for Manila and Sisal mixed, 12½ cts. per pound, (only, 300,000 pounds made.); Pure Sisal 10 cts. per pound; No pure Manila made or to be made this season. Farmers can regulate their crops accordingly, as they know now what twine is to cost.

PRO-BOER meetings held to extend a sympathizing hand to those engaged in war against a big nation and in favor of liberty, freedom and all they imply, and advertised as non-partisan, ought not to be pointed at as partisan. Yet those "Lovers of liberty" who, when Cleveland ran for president, on a platform of free trade, got out cards and circulated them, with two flags printed on, one English and the other the Stars and Stripes, with the significant question printed beneath "Which flag are you for?" are now trying to keep people whose patriotic hearts are beating in sympathy for the oppressed of whatever country, away away from meetings called to express sympathy for those that same English flag is being carried against. And worse yet trying to make people believe the meetings are partisan rather than patriotic.

TARIFF, tariff we have been told all along that the tariff question was settled for the present, and it was conceded that the present high rate would be needed for some time to pay off our war debts, etc, etc. And that we must expand. Now that we have expanded the expansionists want to impose a tariff on goods coming from our newly acquired "possessions". Who ever heard of such a thing, except when England put a tax on tea coming to the United States, and got her tea emptied into Boston Harbor. Oh no, we guess not, we must do business with each other on an equal basis, wonder if those scheming tariff fellows aint figuring on this imposing tariff on our new possession's as an opening wedge to create a tariff between one state and another. The people wouldn't want this; but if the party did, why, of course they would soon be howling for tariff! More tariff! "Anything to help the party," is the motto with too many.

ON Tuesday evening while dedicating the new Olympic theater at Bemidji, two saloon men got into a quarrel and one shot the other so that he died in a short time. And this is not Kentucky either. But bad whiskey had its share in the murder.

CONTRARY to Republican reports that Bryanism is waning in the east, and Bryan vascillating as to a platform Mr. Bryan comes out in a signed article in the New York Journal, copyrighted, saying that he finds things more favorable in the east, and that he is eagerly listened to on the subjects of Money, Trusts and Imperialism.

THE 26th Annual State Convention of the Y. M. C. A. will we held Feb'y 15 to 19, at Winona. A fine program has been prepared for the four days. Eminent men from all over the country will be present and participate in the exercises. Free entertainment to delegates. One and one-third on all railroads. This is to be the biggest convention of all. Be there if you can. The Y. M. C. A. is doing a big work and lots of good in the land.

BRYAN keeps firm. That's not strange. During his speeches in the east, notwithstanding reports from opposition papers, and from so called democratic but really goldbug papers, that he was weakening on this or that point, the National Watchman and other papers with a national circulation report his speeches correctly, and they agree exactly with what the crowd who listened to his grand eloquence, and persuasive powers in Minneapolis heard him say. Bryan is the same whether in New York, Boston, or Minneapolis. Don't be mislead by reports to the contrary. They are purposely to kill him off.

SOME individuals have a kind of patriotism. They pretend to love their home, and home institutions; to reverance the Declaration of Independence; and to enjoy the rights of freedom handed down to them by liberly loving ancestory. They profess to believe in equal rights for all and special rights for none. They say they believe in freedom wherever it is sought for. They berate England as an old tryant for her actions making necessary the war of the Revolution, and they protest strongly against her war against the Boers. They loved liberty enough to go, or to send their sons, and neighbors' sons to help stop Spain from appressing her subjects in Cuba and the Philippines. But they are perfectly contented to be taxed for millions, and to have hundreds of Uncle Sam's boys killed off by desease, and poor whiskey to "extend our commerce" or to "hold open the doors of China" for commersial aggrandizment of a few corporations, who will contribute largely to the next campaign fund Queer patrotism.

A Fast Run.

Another record-breaking run of the "fast mail" train of the Burlington road was made a few days since. The train pulled by the famous engine, 1592, left Burlington, Ia., 36 minutes late and arrived in Chicago on time. The distance is 206 miles, and was covered in 209 minutes, including all stops. The run of 83 miles from Mendota to Chicago was made in 76 minutes—the best time ever made between these points. The 45 miles between Mendota and Aurora were covered in 39 minutes. Nearly all the way there was a heavy head wind, and the train was unusually heavy, having a big lot of foreign mail. Deducting the time for mail and water, the average rate of speed of the train was about 80 miles an hour. During some spurts it is believed that a speed of 90 miles an hour was attained.—The Railway Age.

General Booth on the War.

Baltimore, February 4.—Ballington Booth, commander-in-chief of the Volunteers of America; said at a public meeting tonight: "I do not believe the sun in heaven ever shown on a more just war than that of the United States against Spain. Rule Must Stand.

State Superintendent Smith of the public schools, St. Paul, say that he doesnot see his way clear to abrogate the rule of the state high school board requiring first grade professional certificates from all teachers. The ruling directly affects Professor Miller, who was assigned to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Miss Austin of St Paul high school. He did not possess the required certificate and the state high school board was appealed to. Mr. Lewis' decission is believed to represent the judgement of the board. Professor Meller is said to be qualified for the position, and would willingly take the examination, but all subjects cannot be completed before next fall.—Ex.

Paper from Reitz.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The papers here publish extracts from a remarkable document emanating from the secretary of state at Pretoria, dated Dec 16. The document comprises 10,000 words and is countersigned by Secretary of State Reitz. It seems specially written for the American public. It says:

We to a great extent depend on America for our foodstuffs. It will be criminal on the part of the great powers to suffer this little nation to perish by famine since the sword has failed.

Since in 1870 the president in the United States acknowledged our sovereign state, Americans flocked here in numbers. In every instant the hand of fellowship has been extended to them not a single case of disagreement is on record, but with the first war note of the oppressor, we are informed that America is acting in league with the enemy. If our sister republic has no sympathy with us; if the boasted condensation of the british is to be preferred to sincerity and truth, we will no longer believe in the integrity of the American nation and her profession of Christanity we will consider empty sound.

Secretary Reitz further says that the Boers have never abused their white flag and that the Brittish murdered women and children and American subjects at Derdendort.—Times.

A UNIVERSAL CONSIDERATION.

When the day is dull and busy and the air
Is full of noise
We dream of prospects fair and far away,
Some place where all the sweetness and the blooming never cloys
And the silent hours go drifting day by day.

But a voice—'tis more like conscience—speaks in most emphatic tone
And wakens us anew to discontents.
It interrupts the dreaming and bids all our hopes be flown
With "How about the dollars and the cents?"

Oh, the king sat sadly musing of the wondrous good he'd do
When he somehow got his royal way at last.
And the jester vowed he'd wear a garb
which all the world would view
With deep respect. The motley far he'd cast.
And the tradesman said he'd be a man of fine and studious mien,
And the scholar said he'd follow chosen
bents;
But they all were set to plodding through the old familiar scene
By "How about the dollars and the cents?"

The Downfall of Brown

A Physician's Demonstration of a Social Diagnosis.

"ONE of my recreations for many years has been to discover and classify certain mental failings which cannot properly be diagnosed as diseases," said a physician at the Lotos club, "and as the result of my deductions along a special line of investigation a young acquaintance of mine worked out a revenge that was unique and married the girl of his choice. I have been tempted several times to report the case to the County Medical society, but I don't believe that it would be received with approval. Let me tell you the story, and you can determine for yourself the correctness of my deductions.

"Business called me to San Francisco eight years ago and necessitated my staying there for two years. In my boarding house the star guest was easily Miss Sally Gilt, the only daughter of a lucky Forty-niner, and a young woman with some beauty as well as wealth. Her devoted admirer was C. Knickerbocker Smith, who wrote society news for a local paper. Smith had come to the coast from New York and failed in a business venture. He was a conceited, well-dressed, rather good-looking little fellow, and the strongest point in his favor was his undoubted attachment for Miss Gilt. I was very much interested in watching the progress of his suit with Miss Gilt, when it was interrupted unexpectedly by the advent of a young lawyer named John Fred Brown. Brown had inherited some money, and had worked hard at the law, but apparently he had enjoyed no social advantages. Probably he had been too busy. At any rate, he was a man of some little importance in his way, and when it was evident that he also admired Miss Gilt the other boarders said: 'Poor Mr. Smith! He is out of it now. Mr. Brown has lots of money.' Miss Gilt was just an average girl, and she was mercenary and ambitious. I half-suspected that Smith first attracted favorable attention by running in her name in the list of 'among those present' at some fashionable reception.

"She became very kind to Brown and correspondingly chilly to Smith. The affair interested me. I had concluded that Brown was a cold-blooded selfish chap, when one fine morning he announced to us his engagement to Miss Gilt. Smith came to my room that night very much broken up.

"'If Brown were a more decent fellow, doctor, I wouldn't mind it so much,' he said, 'but I know that he has made careful inquiries about Miss Gilt's fortune before proposing. I am very fond of that girl and I had reason to believe that she was fond of me until Brown arrived. I don't know what I am going to do.'

"'Perhaps I can help you out and at the same time demonstrate one of my pet theories,' said I.

"'I don't see how it is possible,' he said.

"'If you wanted to, could you make Brown's name well known in the fashionable list without exciting his suspicion or that of your creditor?' I asked.

"'That would be easy,' he replied. 'I have been on the paper so long that my lists go as I write them. I don't like his name, though. John Fred Brown would look queer. Anyway, such notoriety as that would simply please the beast. What are you driving at?'

"I explained my theory and after some debate, Smith said that he was inclined to believe in it.

"'It sounds all right,' he said, 'and it is worth trying. If Brown isn't susceptible we can give it up. I'll change his name after it has been published two or three times to J. Fred Brown.'

That was the way the plot was planned and two nights later Mr. Brown announced that he was going to take Miss Gilt to the opening performance of a New York theatrical company. The night after this performance Brown turned up for dinner looking just a little bit haughty. His haughtiness was increased when two or three of the boarders said that they knew by their papers that Mr. Brown had been at the theater the night before. It was the first time that his name had ever been published in the fashionable list and he passed it off by saying carelessly that it was impossible to avoid the reporters in these days. I happened to know that he bought every paper in town and cut out the paragraph of names which included his own. Smith had asked every other society reporter in town to run in the name of John Fred Brown, and that was how the deed was accomplished.

I studied Brown closely during dinner, and when Smith came to my room I was able to assure him that, in my opinion, he could not fail. Brown was so pleased with the notice from the newspapers that he decided to court it again. He attended another performance, and the morning after his name was printed among the first nighter's as J. Fred Brown. Miss Gilt's name was omitted. Brown patronized her a bit the following night. He was also rather supercilious with the rest of us, and he hinted that his social engagements might interfere with his being present at dinner many nights during the season.

"Smith then settled down to work in earnest. He not only printed Brown's name among the list of those present at all first nights, but he introduced it in gatherings where J. Fred Brown was unknown. Brown got extravagant. He never missed an opening night. He went to all semipublic dinners when he was permitted to buy tickets. One night he came down to dinner so haughty that he could hardly notice Miss Gilt. Smith explained it later. In return for a favor which he had been able to do for a woman she had sent an invitation to J. Fred Brown for the opening reception of her big house. She never had heard of the man before, but she was on the outer fringe of society, and she was quite willing to entertain him. Brown spoke of the invitation casually at the table, and said that the hostess was an old friend who was very ambitious socially. He supposed that he would be bored to death, but he felt it a duty to go. I happen to know that he bought a new frock coat for the occasion, and that he was so excited about it that he never went near his office that day. He was neglecting his practice, and he was spending lots of money on clothes. He was not quite so attentive to Miss Gilt. This reception gave him an opportunity to meet other people who entertained. His name had been printed so frequently that winter that these people had a vague idea that he was a social swell and some of them invited him to call, and others invited him to receptions. J. Fred Brown was now socially launched and C. Knickerbocker Smith worked like a beaver to keep Brown's name before the public. It appeared in every list of fashionable names, and if Brown had gone to one quarter of the places where the newspapers reported him to be, he would have broken down.

"Brown took all this notice from the papers as his due. He joined two second-rate clubs. He even gave a little dinner at the best restaurant in town, and, thanks to Smith, all the details appeared in the next morning's papers. The game was very interesting. Brown was neglecting his practice, and he was attending every affair that might tempt the papers to print his name. He kept all these notices in a scrap book. The more conspicuous he became the less devoted he was to Miss Gilt. The man was badly afflicted with what I have diagnosed as newspaper mania. I had observed it in other people, and I felt a proprietary interest in Brown's case. Brown had it badly. He snubbed Miss Gilt two or three times before the other boarders, and she didn't like it. Brown's conversation was almost exclusively devoted to the society news of the day. Finally Miss Gilt announced that she had broken her engagement with him. It was not a surprise to the other boarders. Two weeks later she announced her engagement to Smith. Brown did not seem to be very much dejected then.

"Curiously enough from that date his name ceased to appear in any of the lists of those present. Brown went to the same old places, and he examined the newspapers eagerly the next morning, but his name was not used. He sent anonymous notices to the papers, and they were thrown into the waste basket. Then he tried to make up with Miss Gilt, but she wouldn't consider him at all. I had no sympathy with him. He had brought it on himself. Miss Gilt became Mrs. Knickerbocker Smith three months later, and her husband brought her to New York, where her fortune supports them both comfortably. It took Brown two years to recover from his social plunge, and he does not know to this day how Smith toppled him over. Smith was eternally grateful, and every Christmas he sends me a substantial reminder of my befriending him. I am perfectly satisfied with the case. It had demonstrated my theory that an itch for notoriety was a disease with certain people, and I have always considered it a case worthy of being preserved in medical annals."—N. Y. Sun.

John Ruskin, who was buried in Coniston churchyard, London, once expressed the wish that if during his frequent excursions in the Alps he should ever slip into a glacial crack and be killed, he should be left there with naught but the covering of ice and snow over him. The decrease in cigarette smoking is ascribed to the campaign waged against the little round white rolls by the women.

Blanchard will now have some spare time in which to practice up in hypnotism.

We are told that the estate of the late Dwight L. Moody consists principally of his library. And yet this man raised during his long and active career more money than a hundred ordinary preachers. He raised something like $300,000 a year for his schools and Bible institute alone, and within the last decade the sums passing through his hands must have amounted to several millions of dollars. That he left no personal estate is probably the best tribute to his sincerity and unselfishness in his evangelistic and educational work.

SENT TO CONGRESS.

President Transmits Report of Philippine Commission.

The Home Rule Principle, with as Few Americans in Office as Possible, Strongly Favored by Commission.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The president Friday transmitted to congress the first volume of the report of the Philippine commission. It is a volume of 264 pages, including the appendix, and is signed by Prof. Schurman, Admiral Dewey, Col. Denby and Prof. Worcester. The principal subject dealt with is the plan of government proposed by the commission, which includes a discussion of the Spanish government existing prior to the war, the various reforms desired by the Filipinos and the constitutions proposed by them, together with the conclusions and plans suggested by the commission. The report also covers many other matters connected with the social administration of the island; racial characteristics, education, secular and religious orders, the Chinese in the islands, public health, currency, etc., as well as the condition and needs of the United States in the Philippines from a naval and maritime standpoint. The second volume of the report, which will not be ready for several weeks, will contain a detailed description of the climate and natural resources of the islands. The chief interest in the report naturally centers in the plan of government proposed by the commission.

Favor Home Rule.

The commission announces itself unqualifiedly in favor of a government of the Philippines analogous to that of a territory of the United States, with a governor appointed by the president. They say it is desirable that the inhabitants of the archipelago should enjoy a large measure of home rule in local affairs, their towns to enjoy substantially the rights and privileges of towns in a territory.

The provinces should be vested with substantially the functions of a county in a territory; this system might be applied to Luzon and the Viscayan islands at once, and a beginning might be made on the coast of Mindanao. The Sulu archipelago, calling for special arrangements with the sultan, the commission says, need not be considered in this connection.

Filipino Officers.

The Filipinos could manage their own town and county affairs through their own officers, whom they could elect with no help from American officials except such as would be involved in control from the central government at Manila. The suffrage should be restricted by educational or property qualifications, or both. This system would necessitate a small body of American officials of great ability and integrity and of patience and tact in dealing with other races, and on this account the commission recommends that they should be paid high salaries. The commission says they could be called advisers or commissioners, and that one for every 250,000 natives should suffice. It would be the duty of such commissioners to report upon their work to the central government at Manila. Their main function would be to advise town and county councils in the discharge of their duties and to watch the collection of revenue and its expenditures. Our government of the Philippines, the commission insists, must be adapted to the Filipinos.

Basis for the Government.

A territorial government, it concludes, is a desideratum. The commission takes as a basis for the government proposed the territorial organization of Louisiana. The act is set forth in full. It provides for a governor and secretary of the treasury, and vests the legislative power in a council appointed annually by the president. Courts are also provided for. "This scheme of government," says the commission, "possesses, besides its intrinsic merits, the historical interest attaching to origination with the author of the declaration of independence."

Thinks Task Would Be Easy.

The commission, while not underrating the difficulty of governing the Philippines, is disposed to believe the task easier than is generally supposed. The Filipinos, they say, are of unusually promising material, possessing admirable personal and domestic virtues and being naturally peaceful, docile and deferential to constituted authority. The educated among them, though constituting a minority, they say, are far more numerous than is generally supposed, and the commission bears strong testimony to their high range of intelligence and social refinements.

These picked Filipinos will be of infinite value to the United States in the work of establishing and maintaining civil government throughout the archipelago.

Conclusions Reached.

In connection with the subject of government the commission reaches the following conclusions:

"1. The United States cannot withdraw from the Philippines. We are there and duty bids us remain. There is no escape from our responsibility to the Filipinos and to mankind for the government of the archipelago and the amelioration of the condition of its inhabitants.

"2. The Filipinos are wholly unprepared for independence, and if independence were given to them they could not maintain it."

Under the third head is included a copy of Admiral Dewey's letter to Senator Lodge, which was read in the senate the other day, denying Aguinaldo's claim that he was promised independence.

"4. There being no Philippine nation, but only a collection of different peoples, there is no general public opinion in the archipelago; but the men of property and education, who alone interest themselves in public affairs, in general recognize as indispensable American authority, guidance and protection.

"5. Congress should, at the earliest practicable time, provide for the Philippines the form of government herein recommended or another equally liberal and beneficent.

"6. Pending any action on the part of congress, the commission recommends that the president put in operation this scheme of civil government in such parts of the archipelago as are at peace.

"7. So far as the finances of the Philippines permit public education should be promptly established, and when established made free to all.

"8. The greatest care should be taken in the selection of officials for administration. They should be men of the highest character and fitness and partisan politics should be entirely separted from the government of the Philippines."

WHAT A FORMER AMERICAN SAYS.

Doubled Their Cultivated Lands and More Than Doubled Their Stock.

The following letter written by Mr. John Cummirgs of Wetaskiwin, Alberta, Canada, formerly of Washington, to a friend in the United States is only one of a hundred similar cases, and what was done by Mr. Cummings can more easily be done to-day by any good, sober and industrious farmer who chooses to make his home in the Dominion.

Dear Sir:

You want to know how I got along since I came into Northern Alberta. I am happy to inform you that I am not ashamed to tell.

We located five miles northeast of Wetaskiwin; left Farmington, Washington, on the 29th of May, driving all the way.

We had time to build our log house the first fall and to make us comfortable for the family and stock. We then built four stables 18x20 inside, so that we could put everything inside them when the cold got down to the fifties, and worked hard getting up the stable and got through dubbing on the 1st December, but to our surprise we had no use for the stables only for the milk cow and two span of horses. The balance of the horses lived on the prairie all winter and took care of themselves. The doors of two stables were left open for them to go into in a cold time, but they would not do it, but stayed out on the prairie the coldest night we had, and looked as spry as crickets.

I can go ten rods back of my house and count ten residents. I know all of their circumstances. Every one of them have doubled their cultivated land and doubled their animals, and a great deal more. All of us are comparatively out of debt and an unusually big crop to thresh and prospects of a fair price, and I expect we are as well contented lot of people as there are from Florida to the Klondike.

My son bought two pounds of twine to the acre, and when we started to bind some barley, we found that instead of taking two pounds to the acre, it was taking nearly five pounds. Then you ought to have seen him hitch up a team and make for town for 100 lbs. more. I cannot say how it will thresh. All I can say is that it is well headed, and takes an enormous amount of twine.

The man who pays cash gets no credit for it.—Philadelphia Record.

IS GOVERNOR LIND'S VETO OF THE MILLER BILL BY COURT DECISION.

A Practical Application of the Miller Bill Shown in a Test Case—Governor Lind's Efforts, Through the Railway and Warehouse Commission to Secure Just Coal Rates to the Southwest Crowned With Success—How They Would Have Fared Under the Proposed Miller Law—Other State and National Political Points of the Week—Deeper and Deeper Depths For the McKinley Administration. Aguinaldo's Appeal and Admiral Dewey's Admissions—Murder in Kentucky Fit Companion Piece to "Criminal Aggression" in the Philippines—The Week's Summary.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Feb. 5, 1900.

The most important state political event of the week—and a most important one—has been the decision in the Ramsey county district court, at the hands of Judge Bunn, recognized as one of the ablest jurists in the state, of the celebrated coal rate case, in which, through the railway and warehouse commission of the state, Governor Lind has been for a year endeavoring to secure a just and equitable rate on coal for the people of the southwestern part of the state, from Duluth. The fact that the commission ordered a reduction of the rate from $2.55 to $1.95 per ton, from Duluth to New Ulm, is widely known, as well as that the railway companies resisted, taking the case to the district court.

The court finds for the state in two points:

First, that the railway commission under the law has the power to compel railroads to establish joint tariffs when roads are so related as the St. Paul and Duluth and Minneapolis and St. Louis, in the case in point.

Second, that it had the power to establish reasonable rates for such service, and that the joint rate in question was unreasonable and exorbitant, being higher than the wheat rate.

The point of interest, aside from the removal of the injustice under which the people of this section have long suffered, is the application of the Miller bill, which Governor Lind vetoed during the last session. The manner in which Governor Lind's judgment in the veto preventing that bill to become a law is vindicated, is thus stated by Governor Lind:

"As the law now stands the decision of the commission, after a hearing, is prima facie correct, and the rate established by it just and reasonable. The burden of proof, as the court well puts it, is on the railroad company to establish the unreasonable and confiscatory character of the rate established.

"If the Miller bill had become a law, the rate established in the first instance would have stood as prima facie fair and reasonable rate—for the law authorizes the railroad companies to fix tates in the first place and that which the law authorizes to be done is presumed to be rightly done until the contrary is shown, and the burden of proof would then have rested on the state at all stages to show that the railroad company's rate was unreasonable and that the proposed rate was fair and reasonable. This the commission could not do, as all the evidence bearing on the question is in the hands of the railroad company.

"Another very important point established by the decision is that the St. Paul and Duluth railroad, or any other company, whose business originates in the state, cannot be boycotted by the other railroads. When the commission made its decision in respect to the joint rates from Duluth, the Minneapolis and St. Louis company terminated a traffic agreement with the Duluth road, which has been in force for years, and brought coal from West Superior, in Wisconsin, to supply the points affected by the decision, claiming that by making it interstate traffic it was not subject to the rates established by the state authorities. They absolutely refused to carry coal delivered to them by the St. Paul and Duluth. Under this decision they cannot persist in this course."

Commenting further, Governor Lind says:

"If I had signed the Miller bill, this decision could not have been rendered. I hope that poor Miller can now see the matter in its true light. I have never believed for a moment that he would have fathered the bill accredited to him had he known its inherent viciousness."

The brave fight Senator Pettigrew is making in the senate, to bring to the light of day such of the iniquities in the Philippine islands as the McKinley administration has thus far been able to hide, wins the approval of every true lover of liberty. His effort to have the contents of the Aguinaldo appeal to the civilized world known, and the Filipino chief's statement of his relations with American officers of the consular, navy and army service is specially commendable. We have received a copy of the appeal, as translated from the original Spanish, and every honest man who reads it will unhesitatingly confess that if one-half that is recited there is true, its publication should be prevented at all hazards, for the salvation of the administration.

The appeal is under the seal of the Philippine republic, dating from June, 1898, which succeeded the dictatorial government of which Aguinaldo was the head, which in turn came from the revolutionary government of August, 1896. Thus the Philippine government which we have overthrown, was in existence two years before the Cuban war broke out, and when Dewey arrived at Manila independence was nearly won over the Spanish. Aguinaldo gives with particularity his relations with American officers and authorities, and how at their request he came to Manila and turned the Filipino forces into active allies on both land and sea. The celebration of their Independence Day, (our Fourth), on June 12, 1898, was attended by our officers and soldiers, Dewey himself only excusing himself on account of being busy with "mail day." This was true of the adoption of the Philippine flag, which our ships saluted, and numerous other convincing incidents. Aguinaldo asserts that independence for his people was distinctly understood, known as well to Admiral Dewey, and assented to by him, as by all the rest. It is the clear deduction from all the facts, that Americans and nafives alike had no other idea until McKinley's proclamation of sovereignty dashed the Filipino hopes to earth, and precipitated the contest.

What a chapter this will be when placed before all the people, conclusive of the wickedness of the McKinley "criminal aggression." And noticeable is it also, that the "denial" which Dewey has made confirms in his own words that we are guilty of war on our "allies," for the admiral says in the Lodge letter:

"I never treated him (Aguinaldo) as an ally except to make use of him and his soldiers to assist me in my operations against the Spaniards."

What does the world say of a nation that, unprovoked, makes war on its allies!

What is there to be said of the awful tragedy in Kentucky, where as a natural sequel to overawing of the polls by troops and United States marshals, as well as by wholesale corruption in the ballot boxes, the man honestly chosen by the people, also through a test of manhood and personal courage rarely if ever equalled and never excelled, is stricken down by the assassin's rifle ball! Brave Goebel, rising on your supposed deathbed to take the oath of office, while the life-blood oozed freshly from your wounds, you have earned life and the victory you have won. Well may the Republican Pioneer Press in a burst of candor remark that this shooting of Goebel "is a severe blow to the Republican cause in Kentucky." How appropriate that the Republican rump government, bag and baggage, betook itself to the "feud county," and the mountain abode of the thugs and murderers who have been used by the party of Lincoln to again disgrace the "dark and bloody ground" of Kentucky.

Should death claim this brave spirit, well may it be said of him:

"Whether on the scaffold high
Or in the battle's van
The fittest place for man to die
Is where he dies for man."

W. J. Bryan on "Destiny": Speaking of destiny, it was the destiny of Cain to slay Abel, but it was also his destiny to wear the brand of a murderer forever afterwards.

While farmers are revelling in 50-cent wheat, and business men carefully scan their books to discover on which side of the ledger the balance stood for 1899, the Republican trusts measure their grain to the following tune of 1899 profits:

	Per cent.
Central Trust	263
Farmers' Loan and Trust	88
N. Y. Life Insurance and Trust	80
Union Trust	78
U. S. Mortgage and Trust	52
State Trust	50
U. S. Trust	47
Mercantile Trust	44
Manhattan	42½
N. Y. Security Trust	41
Continental Trust	41
Guaranty Trust	40

It is for "business" of this class that Hanna spoke, on McKinley inauguration day, 1897, when he declared "this will be a business administration." Also the same that he had in mind when, after the 1896 scare that Bryan gave him was over, he wired McKinley: "God reigns, and the Republican party still lives."

One thing is certain, regarding the use of the flag this campaign, that the G. O. P. will not wrap "Old Glory" around them as of yore. The flag will be the emblem of the Liberty party, those who would have the flag still stand, as under Lincoln, "for liberty for all men, everywhere." Let all of our friends hang out the flag. Up with the glorious old banner of the free, especially our papers!

And speaking of the "flags" in South Africa, that is a good one, in which the old Boer is represented as saying: "I know the British flag, I've seen it lots of times. It's white."

The gold reserve is now jogging along downwards at quite the Cleveland pace, standing at but little over $215,000,000, as against $252,000,000 in November. The present rate of loss approaches $1,000,000 a day, and while gold leaves, silver slowly rises, standing above the 60 point. While silver rises, so does wheat.

And to keep up the record, another big Wall street house has gone to the wall—gone to take the gold cure.

And while people go on taking the gold cure for financial ills the army of Indiana coal miners, 70,000 strong, is about to march out on strike against gold wages!

To the war in Africa, which advances the rate of interest, financiers ascribe one of the causes for the low price of wheat. Another is the McKinley war tax. The one would be removed were the United States on a financial policy of independence of Great Britain, the other, by stopping this unholy war of conquest in the Philippines.

And here is Mayor Gray of Minneapolis speaking of McKinley's secretary of state as "Little Breeches!"

And speaking of Mayor Gray, two years from now, he may cast an eye to the governor's chair. Just now he and the Minneapolis boys are attending to that second term which all hands concede the mayor will receive in reward for his excellent administration.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Prosperous.

About sixty farmers gathered in the senate chamber at the state capitol, St. Paul, to talk insurance. They represent the State Association of Township Mutual Insurance Companies, which have just closed a very prosperous year. There are 124 of these companies in Minnesota, and they carry insurance to the amount of over $100,000 at a cost averaging $1.17 per $1,000. President A. T. Stewart, of Redwood county, called the meeting together, and the following committee on constitution and by-laws was appointed: M. J. Feaney, J. H. Pettis, J. J. Sullivan, Otto Hansen, M. J. Rosenwald, A. J. Bornaux and A. Hall, R. C. Vonlehe, LeSueur county; F. J. Thoe, of Dodge, and H. W. Wadsworth, of Watonwan, were named as a committee on credentials.

High Appointment.

Joseph B. Hudson, the well known Minneapolis jeweler and art dealer, received notification from Ferdinand Peck, commissioner general for the United States to the Paris exposition of 1900, notifying him of his appointment as a judge in the "varied industry" department of the exposition. Mr. Hudson and his confreres will pass upon the artistic merits of the decorated china to be exhibited by the National League of Mineral Painters.

The appointment is a high compliment and a deserved one to Mr. Hudson, and is all the more worth while in that he had no idea that he was being considered and is still in ignorance of how his name was brought to Mr. Peck's attention.

Soldiers' Home.

The board of trustees of the soldiers' home has filed a copy of the annual report of the institution with the governor. The quartermaster's report gives the per capita cost of maintaining the grizzled heroes of a four years' war at $181.23. The home property is reported in good state of repair, with the exception of the general dining-room, which is very much in need of repairs. The product of the farm during the year amounted to nearly $600.

The total cost of maintenance was $53,160.55. The United States government paid on per capita allowance $22,376.08, and the members of the home contributed pension money amounting to $12,710.50, leaving the net cost of the institution to the state, $18,014.07.

Favor the Park.

Resolutions will be passed at the next meeting of the Hennepin and Ramsey County Medical Associations, favoring the establishment of a forest park in northern Minnesota to include the Indian reservations, Cass Lake, Leech Lake and Lake Winnibigoshish.

The associations will also make the representations to President McKinley in support of the movement. A plan has already been carried into effect by the Federation of Woman's Clubs. That body has telegraphed the president its conviction that interested opposition was at work to secure the nullification of plans for the park, and besought his influence to bring about realization of the plan for which the federation has striven.

Commercial Museum.

Should the efforts of Senator Davis, Congressman Stevens and a local committee prevail, St. Paul will be one of the nine substations of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum. The managers of the museums, who have headquarters at Philadelphia, are to locate the central points as soon as a bill in which they are interested has passed congress. The purpose of the museum is to foster trade, and congress has been asked for an appropriation of $200,000.

TO SETTLE CONTEST.

Conference Between Republican and Democratic Leaders in Kentucky —Death of Goebel.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 6.—If the agreement drawn up this morning at the conference of representatives of the republican and democratic administrations held at the Galt house in this city is accepted and carried out, the strife which has rent Kentucky for the last few weeks will be ended. The agreement was reached shortly after midnight, and arrangements were immediately made to have it drawn up and signed. This was slow work, however, and it was after two o'clock when the conferees separated.

The democrats gained nearly every point they contended for, and the republican representatives, Acting Lieut. Gov. John Marshall, Gen. Dan Lindsey and Attorney David Fairleigh, gave assurances that the agreement would be accepted by Acting Gov. Taylor.

The agreement provides that in order to leave no question as to the title of Wililam Goebel and J. C. W. Beckham to the offices of governor and lieutenant governor, respectively, the general assembly shall pass a resolution in joint assembly validating the acts on that subject since the legislature has been prevented by troops from holding its regular sessions at Frankfort. As soon as the legislature does this Beckham's title to the office of governor is not to be questioned.

The democrats grant immunity to Mr. Taylor and his associates from prosecution for treason, usurpation of office or contempt of court for what has been done since the shooting of Goebel.

These matters are to be held in abeyance until next Monday. The republican legislature is to be withdrawn from London immediately, and no filibustering or other attempts of this character is to be resorted to by the republicans to obstruct the carrying out of this agreement in the legislature.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5.—William Goebel, head of the Kentucky government organized by legislative majority in the face of bayonets, died at 6:45 o'clock Saturday evening. Public announcement of his death was not made until almost an hour later, during which interval Leut. Gov. Beckham was sworn in as governor.

Shafter and staff and the military guard arrived over the Pennsylvania road from Chicago at 7:30 in the morning. At nine o'clock a military and civic procession proceeded to the Pennsylvania depot and escorted the remains to the rotunda of the courthouse, where the casket is on view. The procession was nearly a mile in length. Among the bodies of which it was comprised was Sion S. Bass post, G. A. R., of which Gen. Lawton was a member, Harmony lodge of odd fellows, of which Gen. Lawton was at the time of his death the oldest charter survivor, and Summit City lodge, of masons, of which Gen. Lawton was a member.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.

Mr. Isaac Brock, Born in Buncombe Co., North Carolina, March 1, 1788, Says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Peruna."

Isaac Brock, a citizen of McLennan County, Texas, has lived 111 years. He now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate.

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhœa. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but in reading Dr. Hartman's books I have found out that these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"Very truly yours,

Isaac Brock.

—Rev. A. F. Thompson reports that Watertown and Montrose, both on his circuit have lately received supplies of new song books. And that the League room at Montrose has been papered and fixed up.

—Rev. C. F. Kennison, of Rockford, requests us to announce that Rev. O. R. Jenks, of Minneapolis will resume his series of services at the Swedback hall in Delano tonight. Rev. Jenks just closed a successful series of meetings at Monticello.

—In March the annual election of Village officers will be held. It is getting to be about the time to pick out the ticket. Delano contains men enough who have an interest in the prosperity and happiness of our village to fill all the places well.

—The entertainment "The Passion Play" moving pictures, in the City Hall, Tuesday evening was well attended the hall being crowded. People were pleased with the preformance. It brings to the mind vividly incidents in the history of Christ's birth, life and death that many would not get otherwise.

—T. B. Rader's horse took a trip all by himself on Tuesday. He got tired waiting by the power house so left very suddenly and made good time with the wagon over to Wash Raders; thence home, and was not yet satisfied, so ran down to the office of His Honor Mayor Lohmiller, where he quieted down.

—Preparations for the proper observance of Washington's Birthday, are being completed. Exercises will begin at 2 P. M. in the City Hall. This gives people a chance to get dinner at home. If they live far away they can dine a little early and have time to drive into town in time for the celebration. A big crowd is expected.

—The time of expiration of the five years contract for furnishing water to the railroad has nearly come. It remains to be seen whether a pumping station of their own will be established here again. If the village makes a new contract the people will doubtless be given a chance to vote as to whether or not they approve of the bargan.

—Small pox continues to be heard of, here and there, all over the United States. Most cases are uncommonly mild, but physicians most acquainted with the disease are continually warning people to be prepared by vaccination and by keeping themselves in as good health as possible in case it should assume a more virulent form.

—Yesterday morning our citizens found that a genuine blizzard had arrived, and a couple of inches of snow having the appearance of having been driven in by the wind from the Dakota prairies, was drifted over the ground or flying through the air creeping into every possible crevice it could find. Before noon the sun came out and sidewalks were cleaned.

—In response to an invitation from Mrs. Albert Johnson, twelve of Mr. Johnson's neighbors gave him a birth day surprise last Saturday evening. Social converse, games and music were the past times. A delicious lunch was spread by Mrs. Johnson to which each one did justice. At twelve o'clock good nights were said, and many kindly wishes extended to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson.

—Village officers are soon to be elected. The President should be a man of dignity and respectability; the trustees should be good sensible men, who will take an interest in the welfare of the village. The recorder should be a man competent and willing to take care of records, and always on hand to attend promptly to business. The justice should be honest, impartial and fearless. The constables should be such men as will enforce the laws as far as possible.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Delano Cemetary association was held at the office of President Catlin, Monday evening.

School Notes.

Emery Bryant has again started to school.

President Burns was a visitor of the school last Friday.

It takes ten cents to write your name in the teacher's book.

A class in Physics has started since the state examinations.

The fines on the text books, or the text books will be collected.

An entire change of seats has been made in the High School room.

Mr. J. E. Borsch and Dr. Shrader were visitors of the school yesterday.

Amiel Wiese has been absent a few days this week, helping his father pack ice.

A young man with the initials of "M. E." damaged the wall of the Laboratory to the amount of 50 cents.

Mrs Hawker and Mrs Chancellor were visitors of the Grammar room last Friday.

A number of the grammar room have seated in the high school room on account of the grammar room being too crowded.

If one of the boys who came in from the grammar room would look at his books instead of other objects in the room he would get along better.

A Social Event.

One of the pleasantest social events of the season occurred on the evening of the 25th ult. at "City Hall" Delano; the occasion being the annual ball by the Knights of Pythias.

For two weeks preceeding, all the seamsters in town were engaged in making garments for the ladies. And the tailors were kept busy cleaning and pressing old and making new suits for the gentlemen. The more economical gave up in dispair and refused to enter the competative arena, and remained at home,

There were myriads of white dresses of every variety of pattern, rich organdies the prevailing material: Now and then might be seen a black gown with garniture of white or cream, the prevailing material being crepon.

Modesty on the part of the writer constrains her from giving the names of those ladies with their dainty white and rich black gowns. The gentlemen wore the conventional suit of black, in marked contrast to the immaculate shirt front and spotless ties.

On entering, each gent was received by Messrs Fred Lindsley, McDonald, Hilderbrant and Wittman and presented with a boquet of carnations, which were appended in every variety of ways, upon the person of the recipient.

Enchanting strains of music, from Potter's Orchestra, of Minneapolis, ushered in the Grand March which was led by Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, nearly every one in the hall was compelled to yield to the influences of the number after which quadrilles, waltzes and two-steps occupied the time 'till three A. M.

At eleven-thirty a general invitation was extended to all, to repair to the lower hall and partake of a bountiful lunch such as only K. P's, can prepare.

The music was all that could be desired. At times the calling was indistinct, which was due to the fact that the callers profile was towards the audience and part of the tones was lost.

The ball was a decided social success. The unselfish kindness and marked courtesy of the K. P's. could not fail to win the admiration of their guests.

But while engaged in these pleasurable and innocent past times, let us not indulge them to the exclusion of the more material, and let us always remember the Fount of all blessings of whom it is written: "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

Growing in Popularity.

The great paper, The Minneapolis Times, has, we learn, secured for its elf the enormous special cable news service of the New York Herald. The Times seems to follow the idea that no expense must be spared in the matter of giving reliable news, and the paper's treatment of political questions has made it popular throughout the whole northwest, a popularity which is steadily growing and is deserved. 1wk.

Among our Exchanges.

Oregon Agriculturist: The number of sheep and lambs slaughtered in Chicago in 1899 was greater by a quarter of a million than the number slaughtered the previous year.

Litchfield Independent: Germany, Holland and France have already recognized the Tranyaal republic as a beligerent nation. America which should be the first to do this, still hangs back, the administration apparently being afraid of displeasing England.

Oregon Agricufturist: It is a mistake about brewers using substitute for hops in making beer. The secretary of the United States Brewers Association says no substitutes for hops are now used and he ought to know. He has also told M. L. Jones, president of the Oregon Hop Grower's Association, that hop growers ought to quit their agitaton for a national pure food law because it has a tendency to decrease the consumption of beer and thus reduce the demand for hops. He declares it to be a fact that the decrease in the consumption of beer during the last year due to agitation amounted to one million barrels. Some one might suggest to the secretary of the Brewer's Association that the earliest way to bring the agitation to a close to withdraw opposition to the passage of a national pure food law. When the law has passed no one will have anything more to say about the use of substitutes for hops in the manufacture of beer—provided the secretary of the Brewers' Association has been telling the truth and no such subsitutes are used. The secretary of the Brewers' Association takes the same view of the gullibility of hop growers that the representative of the oleo interests did of dairymen a few years ago when he endeavored to convince the latter that they were working against their interests in endeavoring to compell the sale of oleomaring for what it is. To convince them he said the manufactures of oleomargarine bought a large quanity of good butter to mix with oleo in making butterine, and, if the sale of butterine was cut off by compelling its sale as adulterated butter, the dairymen would no longer be able to sell butter to their good customers the oleo men.

County Cullings.

The Standard looks better printed on its new press.

Judge Giddings held a special term of court, at Buffalo, this week.

The Knute Nelson Bankruptcy law has caught two Wright county victims; William Henderson, Annandale, and Nicholas Frank, Delano.

Buckley for representative! That settles Knute Nelson! Everybody knows he would never raise the "race question" by voting for a Norwegian U. S. Senator.

Don't let any goldbugs bullyrag you into believing that Bryan is not to be nominated; and Bryanism to prevail in the next campaign. Don't stay away from primary elections. Be there and vote for men favorable to him. If you can't get a better man go yourself to Buffalo, as a delegate. Don't forget to instruct your delegates to vote for Bryan delegates to the state convention. Nobody represents the party principles today better than Willism Jenninga Bryan.

Conflicting statements are being circulated conserning the small-pox cases in Franklin. Dr. Hawkins, of Montrose informs us that Dr. Miller, the expert in small pox, saw the case, and Dr. Bracken, secretary of the State Board of Health, told us that he himself saw the case, and that there was no doubt about the diagnosis. People should not be thrown off their guard and expose themselves foolishly, where there is any suspicion at all. The disdisease is not likely to continue in so mild a form the year 'round. Everybody should be vaccinated as a preventative or at least a modifier of such a desease as small-pox in its usual form.

Members for the legislature should be chosen for their good common sense, and honesty. They should be elected to guard the interests of the people, to make good laws and to correct bad ones, and to aid in keeping bad laws from being enacted. The present system of choosing men because they are willing to pledge themselves to vote for Knute Nelson or some other indiyidual is all wrong. So long as the legislature is used as an electorial college for U. S. Senators so long must we expect to put up with men not especially adopted to providing us with state statutes that can be understood by half the lawyers in the state; to say nothing of other people. Let us elect good, honest, upright, patriotic men to the legislature and then will our laws grow better and so will our U. S. Senators.

C. A. Snow & Co, Patent Lawyers, opposite the United States Patent Office, Washington, D. C., who have actual clients in every city and town of the United States and Canada, report that never before in their 25 years practice has the work of the Office been so well up to date. They claim that patents can now be procured in less than half the time formerly required.

ROCKFORD.

Miss O'Connor, teacher in the Intermediate department of the school, was called to St. Paul on Thursday evening. Miss Schmidt took her place on Friday, and Miss Bessie Howard presided in the Primary department. Miss Schmidt went to the cities on Friday evening. Both returned Sunday evening.

Mr. George Bugbee, District treasurer, was a school visitor on Monday.

E F. Abbott had a visitor on Feb. 2. If his health remains good he will probably stay 21 years. He may be a miller in time.

One of our smarties went to Hanover on the first day of the week, and attempted to run the little burg, but the town didn't run worth a cent. He came home with a monstrous black eye and otherwise dilapidated. Now he talks of warrants for several Hanoverites. Better let the matter drop, Charley, you got just what you went after and ought to be satisfied: the public are.

The Critic Club held a meeting on Monday afternoon. From the discussion we learned that the subject matter or what is said as a lecture, sermon, address or speech, is not to be taken into account. The way it is said, the style, the accent, and most modern pronunciation of easy words are the only thing to be noticed and taken into account. If that is entirely what the members attend public meetings for they had much better stay at home, for they do not learn anything themselves and are of no use to the public. Public speakers should be educated and not subject to many blunders. But we did not all graduate yesterday.

The question is asked, "What do you propose for water works or for fire protection in the village?" The first proposition is to build a reservoir of stone, brick and cement, on reservoir hill at the head of Linden street, just back of the residence of I P. Harvey. The hill is probably a hundred feet higher than any building in the village. For water pump from the river, either with steam power, or by using the water power. Or sink wells on the hill and fill the reservoir by using wind mills, two or three. It may be necessary to lay iron pipe from the reservoir down Linden street to Main street, then down Main street across Cherry, Walnut, Bridge, Cedar, Elm to Plum street also a branch down Maple to Bridge street, and down Bridge to Mechanic street, and down that street two blocks or more, with hydrants at each corner and crossing, with sufficient hose to carry the water to any building in the village.

The other proposition is to have a pumping station at the mill and a water tank on the lots about where the liberty pole is, a tank something like the one at Delano, with sufficient hose to reach the principle buildings in the village. This is only a suggestion to be banished later.

The Y. P. C. E. of Rockford, gave an entertainment at G. A. R. Hall, on Monday evening, Feb'y 5, for the benefit of Thomas Steele the oldest settler in town. There was a large attendence and an interesting program was rendered. Reciepts $13.

Harry Young is getting a fine lot of Basswood bolts at his mill Tho snow did not come, so they are hauled on wagons.

The Creamery is doing big business this winter. Mr. Moores seems to have hit the nail on the head this time and the creamery is a success, and farmers, for once are satisfied.

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Council will be held on Saturday evening, Feb'y 10, at the Recorder's office.

Mr. A. W. Rankin, State Examiner of High Schools, will visit the Rockford School on Feb. 15.

Ice houses in the village and in the country are being filled. It is a fine time to harvest ice, clear as a crystal, and solid as brick. The ice cutter struck for an increase in the price of cutting, half a cent a cake: but the work goes on at the increased price.

Telephone rates are mysterious and past finding out. For instance: from Rockford to Delano 25cts; from Rockford to Minneapolis via Delano 25cts; from Delano to Minneapolis 15cts; from Delano to Rockford 30cts. Why this discrimination.

Adison Baker was calling on friends Saturday. His health is greatly improved and he is enjoying his new work very much.

Little "Johnnie" Jacobs has been quite ill but is slowly improving.

The Rockford Woolen Goods' store is closed for the season.

Florian J. Benner, while at Deer River saw Fredrick and Nora Vann. He found them enjoying life and looking forward to a bright future.

Last Tuesday evening although the thermometer marked a low temperature and the wind was blowing a gale when the hack, coming from the station passed Darrow & Guptil's store we heard a voice call out "halloo!" another, "hey there!" and still another, "wait a minute" until we counted eight female voices. The hack evidently knew what it was doing and rushed on to the hotel with May Waren and Fanny Ewing in hot pursuit. They calmed themselves however when they learned that the hack was only changing horses in preparation for the task before them.

We afterwards learn that the Ladies Literary Club was going to meet at the home of the instructor instead of the president.

After partaking of some refreshments the Club was called to order as usual and a large part of the time was spent in the study of language, pronunciation, derivation and meaning of words. The principal feature of the evening, however, was an essay on "The Little Boston Gentleman" from "The Professor at the Breckfast Table," by Mrs. Bessie Roberts. Mrs. Roberts has marked ability and as soon as she gains a little more confidence in herself, will be one of the stars of the Club.

At ten o'clock the gentle voice of Charles Pitt was heard,—"All abord," and the merry party broke up all voting a profitable and plesant evening.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 2, 1900.

The administration programme is receiving some severe jolts in Congress, and its path is getting rockier every day. This week several republican Senators went to see Mr. McKinley and requested him to draw the reciprocity treaties now before the Senate, in order to save them from formal rejection, which would not only humiliate Mr. McKinley but would advertise the difference of opinion between himand members of his party in Congress. He has also been told that the only chance the free trade section of the Porto Rico bill has to become a law is by the help of democratic votes, many democrats having expressed themselves in favor of it on general principles, although it is not likely that the consorted action in its favor will be taken by the democrats. The Republicans of the House Ways and Means Committee have reported a substitute for the administration bill for free trade with Porto Rico, which provides for a duty of 25 per cent of the present tariff on Porto Rican products. These things show that the much talked about republican harmony is a fake.

"The threat of treason will not deter us from disolosing the facts as they may come in our possession," was the defi thrown at the imperialists by Senator Pettigrew after he had been ruled out of order when trying to read quotations from a published statement made by Aguinaldo as to his relations with Admiral Dewy, and been called a traitor by Senator Hawley. Senator Lodge read a letter from Admiral Dewey denying what Aguinaldo had said. This denial of the Admiral said of Aguinaldo: "I never treated him as an ally, except to make use of him and his soldiers to assist me in my opperations against the Spaniards." That "except" is an important word. In making use of Aguinaldo and his soldiers did not Admiral Dewey make an ally of him in spirit, even if there was no actual agreement to that effect?

Senator Bacon's speech against the imperialistic policy of the administration in the Philippines was full of conservative but unanswerable arguments against imperialism, which he declared meant a standing army of 400,000 men and an annual expense of $400,000,000. He told the imperialists that "the thirst for empire is like the desire for human blood." The following extract gives a good idea of the general tenor of his speech: "The conditions which now exist, and will undoubtedly exist hereafter if we permenently retain the Philippines, makes it impossible that they can ever become a State; and to hold them as a subject colony makes necessarry a revolution in our system of government which should not be aided by anyone who is loyal to the principles upon which that system is founded. It is revolution which, while it denies liberty to other people, endangers the liberty of our own people." In answer to questions from Senator Spooner as to what this Congress could do, Mr. Bacon said it could make the same declaration regarding the Philippines that the last Congress did with reference to Cuba. Senator Bacon was followed by Senator Teller, who was the author of the Cuban resolution adopted by the last Congress, and he took occasion to express his most sincere regret that he had not included in that revolution the people of all the Spanish possessions acquired by the U. S., as well as the Cubans. This was help from an unexpected quarter, as Mr. Teller had been counted as a supporter, albeit a lukewarm one, of the retention of the Philippines.

The New York reform club, of which Hon. John De Witt Warner is president, has stirred up the advocates of the ship subsidy job by circulating a letter against it containing this sentence: "Lobbyists in the employ of the prospective beneficiaries of the bounty have already carefully 'canvassed' Congress, which means that every 'approachable' Senator and Congressman has, by some sort of a promise or bribe been 'reasoned' with and been made to see the benefit of subsidites." There was a regular circus of a time at this week's meeting of the House committee on Merchant Marine, which has charge of the subsidy bill, when Representative Grosvenor, of Ohio, chairman of the committee, read that letter.

Kentucky democrats in Congress are even more indignant at the action of Gov. Taylor in adjourning the legislature and ordering it to meet Feb. 6, at London, and declaring martial law in Frankfort, than they were at the dastardly attempted assination of Goebel. They regard it all as a part of the political game that Taylor is playing. Senator-elect Blackburn came very near voicing the sentiment of every Kentucky democrat in Congress when he said of the whole business: "The reorganization of the Militia of the State by Bradley, during the latter part of his administration, placing the military affairs of the State upon substantially a republican partisan basis; the importation of armed ruffians from the mountains into Frankfort within the last few days; their indefencible conduct there, coupled with threats of resort to violence, all pointed to the present situation."

FROM all reports from the Philippines it appears that the United States is endeavoring to show the Filipinoes the evils of civilization rather than the pure side of christian ity

AND now it is given out that Gen. Otis is to come home; that his health is not very good. We should expect he would have kind of a tired feeling, especially his hands, after having the "situation well in hand" for more than a year.

THERE seems to be quite an unanimity of opinion among republican politicians that "Uncle Loren," Morris, Heatwold, and a few more have had their share of honors; and that it is about time for them to stay at home a while and let someone else go; and the democrats are agreed.

THE Republican governor, Taylor, of Ky., refuses to sign the peace agreement between parties prepared for him. Most of the soldiers have been sent home, and military power is to be suspended by the courts. The public, especially in the Blue Grass State, await the outcome with a good deal of curiosity.

WHEN our orators and editors tell us that, in our war for humanity, against Spain, and to aid the subjects of tyrany to become free from oppression. God was on our side, and we accomplished our object with scarcely the loss of a man, we can readily see how they can expect people to believe their arguments. But when it comes to talking about God sending soldiers without Chaplains, and liquors enough to keep them drunk, to the Philippines to christianize the natives we fail to see how christians in America can believe any more in such talk, than the Filipinoes themselves do.

DEMOCRATS should hold their convention, announce their principles and nominate candidates for president and vice president at the earliest possible date. For four years they have had settled in their minds firmly, the belief that the Chicago platform of '96 was the proper thing, and for nearly two years they have been growing stronger in the belief that imperialism is wrong for the United States, while every sensible man has, for all time, been opposed to corporate greed and trust combinations as being good for only those engaged in them and a harm to the majority of the people. Then as the people know what they want they should boldly announce it to the world, and get together and carry their plans to a triumphant success by beginning in time. It is simply foolish to allow a few goldbugs, cavorting about with whitewash enough of a silvery hue to get elected delegates to conventions simply to "keep them in line," then to do all they can to assist in "knocking out Bryanism".

The voters in every precinct know who are for and who are against the people's wishes. They know who works for the individual interest; they know who labors for "the party". They know who talks free silver enough to mislead the unwary and then takes advantage, when opportunity presents, of disrupting democracy, all they can. They know who talks one way and votes another; and by holding early conventions will these double dealers receive their quietus by being left at home, where they should be. The people's preference only should be voiced at the conventions. The way to have this is for the voters to attend primary elections and see that they are properly conducted, and that men are elected to represent the people and not the politicians; men whose principles are known and who dare voice the sentiment of the people, and vote accordingly. Let the battle of ballots begin, and then the lines will be drawn, and those who are with us will be with us and those who are not will be against us. This will have the effect of weeding out the double dealers.

CARNEGIE and Frick are in the courts after each other. People are waiting to hear how mean each can paint the other.

IT is a fine thing to have friends but the fewer we have of the kind that hold our mail for four weeks, and open it, and read it before we do the better for us. This is no less true of Nations than of individuals.

FRANK L. RANDALL, of Winona, formerly a law partner of John Lind, is now superintendent of the St. Cloud Reformatory school, vice W. H. Houlton. Mr. Randall will, doubtless be a good man for the place.

REPUBLICANS have set their state convention for nominating state officers for June 28. The state convention for selection of delegates to the National convention, May 16. County conventions to be held May 9 and June 21.

JUDGE has a picture of "Democratic party" in a hammock of "ignorance", and "Uncle Sam" standing by armed with a big revolver, and exclaiming "I can see no good reason why this mule should be allowed to live." Such pictures serve one good purpose. They show to those not yet awakened to the fact the desire of designing men to turn our republic into an empire; to do away with democracy not only at home but abroad. To bnild up an empire on the remains of republics. Poland, Hungary, and many other European countries have had experience. Democrats, after looking at Judge's picture, may loose some of their "ignorance"; possibly, enough to so weaken the hamock that the Democratic mule may again get his legs in time to go on and win the prize for the people; a true democracy; a government of the people, for the people and by the people, where loaded guns want be a necessary part of the argument against "ignorance."

Increase of Gold vs. Population.

Director of the mint, Roberts, preliminary estimate of the increase of gold in 1899 over 1898 in the United States, shows a total production in 1899, of $70,694,170.

Counting our 8,000 000, in the Philippines, and millions in Cuba, Hawaian Islands, Poerto Rico, etc., to be added to our population, we are not accumulating gold very rapidly, especialey after we figure off the large amounts used for other purposes than money.

Information for Bryan.

The Democratic leaders know that Mr. Bryan can't be elected president; that he can't carry a single northern state east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac; that the western states which were deluded into the cheap money tidal wave of 1896 have nearly all fallen back to their old Republican lines, and that half a dozen of the leading states of the South would be uncertain with Bryan renominated on the Chicago platform. These facts are known to the Democratic leaders of Pennsylvania, and they should tell Mr. Bryan the truth.—Philadelphia Times (Ind. Dem.)

Does the oldest inhabitant remember when Pennsylvania ever cast her electoral votes for a democratic president?

What Would Blaine Have Done?

When one reads what Charles E. Macrum, late Council at Pretoria, has to say about the action of our so called friends, it makes one's blood boil. One of the first thoughts is what would Secretary of State James G. Blaine have done? What would Secretary Walter Q. Gresham have done? What would any true lover of freedom and of his country do? Talk about following the flag of our country through the cane brakes, hemp and ricefields of the Phillippines and hunting down innocent people at their homes and spreading Christanity and civilization! and then set down and quietly read from our now returned home, counsul at Pretoria, that: "When this mail was finally forwarded to me after Colonel Stowe, the Counsul General at Cape Town, had securred its release, I had the huniliation, as the representstive of the American government, of setting in my office in Petoria and looking upon envelopes bearing the official seal of the American Government opened and officially sealed with a sticker, notifying me that the contents had been read by the censor at Durban."

Who could have held Jim Blaine when he learned that a consul of the United States was subject to such indignities by even savages, to say nothing of the "friendly" power? Had a letter sent out by James G. Blaine as Secretary of State been opened by another than he to whom it was written, would the "friendship" be taken into consideration and the counsel have been replaced by one of his own sons? Hardly.

Is it any wonder Macrum came home? Would the people of the United States care to pay a counsel a salary to remain there and have his mail censored; his telegrams unsent, and to play second fiddle to some other power? Is it any wonder the vice counsul enlisted in the Boer army?

Macrum Has Smoked 'Em Out.

The Macrum report of affairs in South Africa has stirred up a howl among those who are favorable to an English American Alliance to the world. Last night's Dispatch in a Special from Washington says: "The State department is preparing a reply to the statement of Charles E. Macrum, late counsul at Pretoria. It will show that the department gave no instructions whatever to the American consul that would warrant his intimations that a secret alliance existed between Great Britian and the United States. The correspondence between Macrum and the department will be given, and will show that he went outside of his duties and undertook to give instructions to the department, rather than to follow out the instructions of the home government."

Went outside his duties! How far could a man get outside of his duties, when his mail came after a months delay, opened and read by foreign power?

He undertook to give instructions to the department did he? Any deportment that would allow such things to be done needs instructions. Departments of government in this country are supposed to listen to the will of the people. The right of petition is not to be denied.

The article claims that Macrum's sucessor, (a son of Secretary Hay) was sent to "South Africa to carry out the instructions of this government, one of which is said to be an offer of the friendly aid of President McKinley in bringing about a cessation of hostilities."

The department then must have concluded from the sympathy expressed in the United States, and from the remarkable success of Boer's arms, that the Boers have the popular side, or what is likely to prove to be the popular side. If we were sending our offers to help Oom Paul out of the hole, when he was perched on the highest kopji in the country, we ought to have found it out before this late date after 10,000 casualties had been inflicted on the English army.

It is claimed that a search of the records fail to show that Macrum ever reported to the department that his official mail was being regularly tampered with by the British authorities. But it is admitted that he did, "in a general way," report that mail did not reach him punctually. Was there any bossing the department in this "general way" of telling them that his mail was being tampered with. The two ends of this "Refutation" don't track. The department will probably require considerable more time to make the official refutuation public. Probably after consultation with all the partners.

"The department investigated the matter and learned that no unnecessary delay existed, and does not credit the statement that any correspondence, officially or otherwise, was opened, inspected and delayed by British authorities". That is rather a small hole to crawl out of. Those envelopes marked with the United States stamp and with the stamp of G. B., that Consul Macrum claims to have received after they had been opened, must be in evidence. It is not likely that he put them in the waste basket.

And if Consul Macrum's statements are not to be believed why did we keep him in South Africa; or give him the consulship in the first place? Surely there is something wrong right here.

The Dispatch has an editorial on the subject, and takes Governor Andrew E. Lee, of South Dakota, to task, and tries to play a regular Dakota Blizzard with him and everybody that finds fault with the proceedinngs of some of our representatives of a free government at Washington. It is of no use, this game of jumping onto Gov. Lee, Pitchfort Tillman, Seckless Simpson, or somebody else and "showing 'em up" to cover the sins of omission, and of commission going on is about played out. This government deserves men at the front, and in the rear, for that matter in whom the people have confidence. This is a peaceful government, and should cultivate peace and not war. But it should not surrender to dispotism abroad or at home. If Macrum has failed in any way to do his duty it should be clearly shown, by proper evidence, something the people can believe, but this howling Gov Lee and others don't make matters better. Those who indulge in such things are they who tend to provoke strife among our own people. Away with deceit and fraud of every kind.

Let us have honest men in all official positions; honorable, patriotic, citizens at home, and no other country will be charged with opening Uncle Sam's mail for his consuls abroad.

Railroading Patents.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

CROWNED WITH GLORY.

He's gone whom all were glad to see!
And yet, why should our souls be vext?
He's only gone across the sea
From this green island to the next.

With God's light still his face upon,
With love still shining on his way—
Out of the night into the dawn,
Out of the darkness into day.

Though seems to sink the silver star
And droop below the ocean's rim,
It shines in eastern skies afar
When all the rest are faint and dim.

It shines until the morning sun
Obscures the light of Lyra's seven;
And when we think its light is done,
'Tis shining on serene in Heaven.

He's gone whom all were glad to see!
Yet nevermore shall we be vext;
Leaving this world—some day we'll see
Him crowned with glory in the next.

A Glimpse of Polly's Art

By Leroy M. Scott.

I HAD rapped several times on the door of Polly's studio without gaining response, and was turning disappointedly away when there was a sound of movement within. I paused, the door opened, and Polly stood before me. A hideous checked apron enveloped her from chin to toes, a palette was over her left thumb, and a brush was in her teeth. On the tip of her nose there was a patch of green paint, and at this I smiled before I said a word.

She took this smile as a challenge. "Well, what are you grinning at?" she demanded. I knew at once that Polly was having an "off" day.

"At your nose," I answered, cheerfully.

"At my nose!" She took the brush out of her mouth and stared indignantly at me.

"Yes, it's green—a beautiful emerald green."

"Is that all!" Polly quickly rubbed her right sleeve across her face, thereby transforming the splotch to a green smear that extended from nose-tip to right ear. "What do I care for a little paint! But I suppose you want to come in?"

"That's what I came up for."

"I guess you'll have to, then. But do you see that sign?" She indicated with her brush the card on the door which bore the statement: "Unless on business, call after five."

"Oh, I noticed that. But this is only me."

"I can see that much. You don't suppose I'd take you for anybody else, do you? But come in, if you're going to. Don't stand there all day."

I looked at Polly and whistled, but not a line of her face relaxed. She moved out of the doorway and I walked into the room and dropped down on the couch. Polly took the seat before the easel and began dabbing viciously at the paint on her palette.

"What's the matter with you, Polly?" I asked at length. "You're off color this afternoon."

"You think so?" She turned and looked at me.

"Decidedly. Not only here"—I ran a forefinger from my nose across to my right ear—"but all over. You're out of sorts."

"Well, who wouldn't be?" she demanded, with a jerk of her head. "I've just had a time with a fat woman who has a double chin. Just like this." Polly scowled and drew in her chin until the skin beneath it lay in folds. I smiled, the mimicry left Polly's face and she was smiling, too. "And she wants to look pretty in a picture."

"Impossible," I declared.

"Not at all," corrected Polly. "That is, if you have no conscience, and a portrait painter should have none. But just look at this!" She leaned back and gazed hopelessly at the canvas. "Here I've been painting without thinking, and have worked that double chin back in. It's discouraging! I forget sometimes and paint things as they are. Next thing I'll get her mustache in—she really has one, Tom—and then I'll be ruined."

"You have high ideals," I commented.

"Ideals!" she sniffed. "Ideals, indeed! I used to have them—high ones, too. I came near starving in those days. I haven't any now, and—well, I can spend all of my money, but I'm not starving. I've learned the whole secret of portrait painting. You want to make them look handsome. Ideals are all right—"

Polly paused to rub some brown into the background.

"Yes," I prompted.

"But they won't buy hats. And what's life without hats?"

This was a poser and I admitted as much.

"Ideals are all right if you can afford the luxury," Polly continued. "I can't. Those who—"

A knock brought Polly's lecture to a sudden end. When she opened the door I heard a woman's voice, a voice that was far from soft.

"I decided to come back and take another look at that picture. I hardly think I am just satisfied with it."

"Why, of course, Mrs. Wilson. Come right in."

Polly stepped to one side, and there moved into the room, with a great rustling of silk, a short woman who probably would call herself portly, whom the advertisements of flesh-reducing compounds would call obese, and whom I, less polite than either, would call fat. Her chin was double—it would soon be triple—there were little pockets of flesh beneath her eyes, there was a marked growth of hair on her upper lip, and her nose showed a decided disinclination to adventure far from her face. I recognized the original of the portrait on which Polly was working.

She took her place in front of the easel, and, putting up her lorgnette, surveyed the painting.

"Good, don't you think?" suggested Polly.

The lorgnette came down and the lady of adiposity shook her head.

"It has some good points, yes," she admitted. "But I don't like it as a whole. It—well, it looks too common. Now, I hardly think you would say that I look common." She gazed at Polly severely through her lorgnette, and then turned her eyes back to the portrait.

"No, indeed," Polly said, with some haste. She looked at me, and I saw her lips move. "I wouldn't dare to," they said.

"When I buy a gown I buy it with the expectation that it will add something to my appearance. Why shouldn't I expect the same when I buy a picture?"

"You should," Polly agreed, giving me a look full of hopelessness.

"Just so—that's what I think. Now, don't you believe that you could—you could improve it—you could touch it up a bit in places?"

"Easily enough," said Polly. "Is there any special change you'd like to suggest?"

"I can't say I like the chin. I don't like the fullness beneath it. And the wrinkles—they look bad."

Polly eyed the picture critically. "Yes, I think they do. What kind of a chin do you think you'd prefer?"

"What kind of chin do I want? I suppose you carry a stock?" she asked, sarcastically.

"Anything you want." Polly picked up a pad of sketching paper, manipulated a pencil rapidly for a minute, then held up the pad in such a way that I, as well as Mrs. Wilson, could see the handiwork. The pencil had traced a rounded chin with just the least suggestion of matronly fullness beneath it.

"How'll that do?" asked Polly.

"Just what I want. That'll look far better. Now, don't you think you could do something of the kind for the nose?"

"You think it's too—it doesn't come out far enough?"

"Not in the picture. I hardly think my nose is as flat as you have made it." She drew herself up with ponderous majesty, and turned about on Polly. This movement brought me into her range of vision. She had glanced at me casually when she entered. She now looked at me fixedly for an instant.

"THE DIMPLES WILL COME EXTRA."

"Another painter?" she asked, in a whisper.

The question caught Polly unprepared. "Yes — no — he's a — he's a model."

"Ah, a model," she said, aloud, staring at me in a very superior fashion through her lorgnette. "He has a very good nose. I like his nose. You may give me one like it."

Polly gave a start and looked dazedly at me. Then the faintest of smiles came into her eyes. "Very well, his nose," she said. "Now, what else?"

Mrs. Wilson surveyed the picture again. "The eyes are bad. Can't you take away some of the flesh beneath them?"

"Certainly," returned Polly, with excessive politeness. "Anything else?"

"No, that's all. But you can touch it up wherever you think it can be improved. I'll come up and see it in a couple of days." She closed her lorgnette and started for the door. Polly gave me a wicked look and followed her.

"I can put some color and a couple of dimples into the cheeks, if you like," she suggested.

"What's that?" Mrs. Wilson turned and eyed Polly suspiciously. "More color and dimples!"

"Yes," returned Polly, with nothing of guile in either voice or face. "The dimples will come extra, but I won't charge you half as much for them as a good dermatologist would."

The suspicion died out of Mrs. Wilson's eyes. She could not distrust such innocence as Polly had assumed.

"I don't care for them," she said. "I don't think they'd look well."

When the door had closed behind her Polly took a stand in the center of the studio and looked wearily down on me.

"It's an awful life, isn't it?" she sighed.

"It seems so. But surely you're not going to give that woman another face."

"I'm not? Well, I just am! She's going to pay me for it, isn't she?" Polly looked almost indignant. "I suppose you wouldn't do anything of the kind?"

I shook my head.

"Well," said Polly, decidedly, "that merely shows that you don't know the first thing about portrait painting."—Chicago Journal.

Not Heart-Hungry.

"Are you one of the heart-hungry women of whom the poet talks?" asked the soulful young man.

"No," replied Mrs. Parvenu, with a decided shake of her head. "I can't say that I am. My preference is for liver and bacon."—Chicago Post.

Was a Mean Insinuation.

"Yes, I'm only 26. Ask Dr. Pellets my age if you don't believe me."

A Wisconsin minister, weary of many months' ceaseless waiting, has brought suit to recover two unpaid wedding fees. The eager bridegrooms of this modern age should remember that, while young couples may live on love, it is absolutely necessary that the minister have at least one square meal per day.

America is a great teacher. It is pointed out by a Washington correspondent that while the Coreans used to come to Washington in the quaintest of oriental garb, the Corean minister is this winter making the afternoon social rounds in a Prince Albert and striped trousers of the latest American cut.

A man who is said to have married 20 wives and was sentenced to the penitentiary by a jury in Chicago wept long and bitterly as he was led away. This incident merely goes to show the complexity of human nature. Some men would have shouted loud hosannas at the idea of escaping 20 wives, even in the seclusion of a penitentiary.

The suggestion made by Prof. Tadd, of the public school of industrial arts of Philadelphia, that all children should be taught to use each hand and arm equally well, calls to mind the fact that Gov. Stanley, of Kansas, is an expert penman, who can write with equal ease with either hand. The strangest fact about it is that his signature, signed by either hand, is identical.

The American liner Paris, which had such a narrow escape on the Manacles and was given up for lost, has at last reached the shipbuilding yard at Belfast after several additional mishaps and will there be repaired and made fit for service. The Paris has had many ups and downs, but just so long as she has one more up than down the owners are satisfied.

Sailors on the barkentine Hattie G. Dixon, out of Baltimore, refused to sleep in the forecastle because "balls of fire were seen" running loose. The ship had a cargo of phosphorus and the captain finally discovered that the rats had been rubbing up against it and making ghostly lights of themselves in a way that would have thrown the Spockosophical society into transports of delight.

The new Kearsarge, which preserves the name of the historic vessel that whipped and sank the Alabama, will be put in commission this month. The old Kearsarge was a steam sloop of war, a good vessel in her day, but if still afloat she would be almost as much out of date as the old sailing frigate Constitution or one of Nelson's three-deckers. The new Kearsarge is one of the most powerful battleships on the seas.

France is again said to have "designs on Egypt." As a matter of fact, France has wanted Egypt for over 100 years, but the mysterious workings of fate have always prevented the French from carrying out their plans for conquest of the Nile. The great Napoleon actually possessed Egypt for awhile, but even he, hard pressed by trouble elsewhere, could not retain the prize, and no Frenchman since his day has done more than talk and plan.

The legal right of a baby to yell as loud as he pleases in New York city's limits seems to have been definitely established by the holding, under heavy bail, of an old bachelor who assaulted a woman living in his flat because her infant made such vocal disturbance that he was "unable to think," and then caused her arrest as the mother and maintainer of a nuisance. The judge stood by the baby and the little fellow's right to hitch both lungs on at two a. m. seems to be definitely established.

The navy department has been notified that the Isla de Luzon—one of the Spanish warships sunk by Dewey at Manila, and raised and rebuilt by Hobson—has gone into commission at Hong-Kong. The Isla de Luzon is a 1,030-ton boat built in 1887, and is, therefore, comparatively modern. She has a speed of 16 knots and as her draft is light she will be a most efficient vessel for service in the Philippines. The dispatch adds that the Isla de Cuba and Don Juan de Austria will also be ready for active service within a very short time.

For a hundred years children have been taught that the historic Mary was a fit object for scorn and derision, because she interfered with discipline by taking her lamb to school. But, sooner or later, history justifies most pioneers and innovators. Now we are told, on no less authority than that of Dr. Edward Everett Hale, of Boston, that pet animals ought to be kept in every schoolhouse in the land. Not only lambs, but cats, dogs and rabbits should be allowed to follow their masters to school, so that the pupils may learn the lesson of kindness.

The recent bicycle show in New York has awakened a lively interest in the sport, and a study of the 1900 models shows that there have been no violent innovations in the new models, and all modifications made have met the approval of the real wheeling fraternity—not the scorchers. The handlebars have in many cases received a new twist, and the upturned sort is now more prevalent, indicating that the era of sensible riding has come, and that the humpbacked scorcher is becoming a back number. Factories report an increase of business.

"DICK" THOMPSON DEAD.

The Venerable Ex-Secretary of the Navy Passes Away at His Home in Terre Haute, Ind.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 9.—A special from Terre Haute, Ind., says that Col. Richard W. Thompson died there at his residence at 1:11 this Friday morning. He had been unconscious for more than 24 hours, only occasionally awaking from the lethargy and failing to recognize anyone, or if he did he failed to indicate it. The end was remarkably peaceful. No indication of a struggle or any suffering was apparent.

[Richard W. Thompson was born in June, 1809, in Culpeper county, Virginia. Both his grandfathers fought in the war for independence. His stepmother was Mildred Ball, a great-niece of George Washington. In 1831 young Thompson went to Indiana, taught school, was clerk in a dry goods store, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1834. That year he was elected to the Indiana house of representatives. He was reelected in 1836, and at the next election became state senator. In 1840 he was one of Harrison's electors, and the reputation he gained on the stump in the stormy campaign of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," resulted in his election to congress in 1841.

When the war broke out he supported the union, and with "War Governor" Morton was one of the conspicuous figures in Indiana during that exciting time. A recruiting camp was established near Terre Haute. Thompson was made commander of the post and it was named Camp Dick Thompson. He raised and drilled many regiments and sent them to the front. He was also provost marshal of the district. In 1867 he was appointed judge of the Eighteenth judicial district of Indiana. He also served a term as collector of internal revenue for the Terre Haute district and held other offices. In 1877 President Hayes made him secretary of the navy, and this is why he was called the "ancient mariner of the Wabash." He retired in 1881—before his full four years as secretary were up—to become chairman of the American committee of the Panama Canal company at a salary of $25,000 a year.

Col. Thompson also made his mark as an author, having published in 1887 "The Papacy and the Civil Power" and in 1888 "History of Protective Tariff Laws." Mrs. Thompson, who was Miss Harriet E. Gardiner, of Columbus, O., before marriage, died March 25, 1888.]

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 13.—The funeral of Col. R. W. Thompson occurred Monday afternoon. Many distinguished men were here from all parts of the state. Gov. Mount and the state officers, including the members of the supreme court, attended in a body.

DEATH IN A COLLISION.

Nine Persons Killed and Many Injured in a Wreck at Ford River, Mich.

Escanaba, Mich., Feb. 9.—Chicago & Northwestern passenger train No. 21, known as the Felch Mountain accommodation, which runs between this city and Metropolitan, was wrecked in a rear-end collision at Ford River switch at 6:30 Thursday night. Nine persons were killed, three are reported missing, five seriously and four slightly injured. The dead are:

W. L. Hill, Escanaba, baggageman of the accommodation train; William Dillon, Escanaba, brakeman on the accommodation train; Miss Seymour, section 6, Delta county, Michigan; Charles Martin, Escanaba, civil engineer; George R. Black, Escanaba, civil engineer; Sam Green, Negaunee, agent of the Upper Peninsula Brewing company; two unknown men; unknown woman, body charred beyond recognition.

The injured:

B. W. Brown, Escanaba, cedar merchant, believed to be fatally injured; Mrs. Seymour, section 6, burned and internally injured; Theodore Deford, Hardwood, Mich., fatally injured; Richard Roberts, Escanaba, conductor of accommodation train, leg smashed; Peter Legg, Escanaba, slightly injured; James Green, Escanaba, engineer of freight train No. 289, hurt in jumping; Cole Nee, fireman of freight train No. 289, hurt in jumping.

The Metropolitan train had stopped at the switch to take a passenger on. Owing to the dense smoke from charcoal kilns, about 100 feet from the track, the rear end of the train was enveloped in smoke and prevented the crew of the incoming freight, which was running on special time orders, from seeing the red lights on the rear of the accommodation. With the exception of Miss Seymour and S. O. Green, the bodies of those killed were burned in the wreck.

Lynched by a Mob.

Port Arthur, Tex., Feb. 12.—James Sweeney was lynched at one o'clock Sunday morning. Sweeney was a cotton foreman, and had killed Charles Crumbach, a fellow laborer, by jamming a bayonet through his neck. The crime was committed on the afternoon of February 1, in a room with no witnesses present, and is said to have resulted from a saloon fight that took place a few hours previously. Monday Sweeney was indicted for murder in the first degree. He was placed on trial at Beaumont, Tex., Friday, and Saturday night the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty." As soon as he was released Sweeney returned to Port Arthur, arriving here at 12:30 Sunday morning. He was met at the depot by a mob, marched uptown and strung up to a telephone pole without ceremony. The mob then quietly dispersed.

Will Pay His Brother's Debts.

New York, Feb. 12.—Robert Gregg, brother of Joshua Gregg, the furniture dealer doing business as Joshua Gregg & Co., and who failed Saturday, states that he will pay every dollar of his brother's debts, simply because Joshua is his brother and in spite of the fact that the furniture dealer owed him $175,000. The firm is one of the best-known in the city and was supposed to be prosperous.

Aged Indian Chief Dead.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Twine Prices.

At a meeting of the board of managers of the state prison at Stillwater it was decided to furnish binding twine to the farmers this year at cost price. The finances of the board are in excellent condition, and it was this fact which induced the managers to get along without any profits this year. The prices of the twine on board the cars at Stillwater are 12 1-2 cents a pound for manila and sisal mixed, and 10 cents a pound for pure sisal.

The prices are about three cents higher than last yer, but are very low, considering the advances in the cost of material.

The total output of the factory this year is estimated at about 7,000,000 pounds, or about two-thirds enough to supply the entire demand of the state. There will be only about 300,000 pounds of mixed manila and sisal manufactured.

The farmers are hustling to get in their applications for twine, and already some 700 or 800 applications have been received.

The Capitol Dome.

Specifications for building the new capitol dome have been prepared by Architect Cass Gilbert, and at a meeting of the commission it was decided to advertise for bids. The contractors will be allowed a month in which to examine the plans before submitting bids.

The internal diameter at the widest part of the dome is 60 feet and the external diameter over all 80 feet. The height from the ground to the top of the ball surmounting the dome is 40 feet. There are twelve groups of Corinthian columns supported by pedestals and the walls of the dome are between five and six feet in thickness. The specifications of the dome of the new capitol provide for several alternate methods of construction, and bids will be received on all.

Brings Suit.

Russell Sage has commenced a new suit to collect $8,000 on bonds issued by the village of Reeds, in Wabasha county. The new suit is brought by the United States, with Russell Sage as relator, against the township of Pepin, and asks that a tax levy to pay his claim be made. The suit is brought against the township of Pepin, inasmuch as since the original, judgment of $8,947.67 was secured against the village of Reeds on July 12, 1898, the supreme court of Minnesota has wiped out the corporate existence of that village.

Activity at Hamline.

The Hamline Oratorical Association held a meeting to decide upon a proposed change in its constitution as to how the contestants for the intercollegiate contest should be chosen. Heretofore they have been chosen from the student body as a whole; hereafter they will be chosen from the five literary societies in the college. Each society is entitled to two contestants in the preliminary from which will be chosen two who will represent Hamline in the intercollegiate. The preliminary this year is to be held Friday, March 8.

It Was No Fake.

A traveling salesman named James Larson was arrested at Redwood Falls for shooting within the city limits. Gus McGettrick was parading a horse up and down the streets offering to bet $25 that no one could place a collar on him. Larson accepted the bet, shot the animal with a Winchester and placed the collar around its neck. It is believed the charge against him will be changed to an indictable offense, as the people of the city are highly enraged over the commission of the offense by an outsider. McGettrick will ask damages.

Big Business.

The business of the United States land office at Duluth exceeds that of any government land office in the United States. For the past quarter it has exceeded $60,000. January's business was $23,500, which was an increase of $21,000 over the corresponding month of 1899. For the fiscal year to date the business has amounted to $112,000, and this is $61,000 above the receipts of the office for the entire fiscal year just preceding. There are indications that the business will increase still further.

Beat the Swindler.

Of late the mails of Winona business men have been flooded with green goods letters. B. A. Gerness received one and out of curiosity answered it. Recently he received a reply, and enclosed was a bright new dollar, which purported to be a sample of the money made. It was readily received at a local bank. The bill cost Gerness a two-cent stamp and now recipients all over the city are going up against the scheme.

A New Manager.

At a meeting of the board of managers of the St. Cloud reformatory, the resignation of W. H. Houlton, who has been superintendent for four years, was accepted, to take effect March 31. Frank L. Randall, Winona, was appointed to his place. This action is the end of a fight which has been raging for some time.

News in Brief.

Safe-blowers gained entrance to the J. H. Gregoire saloon, at Murdock, by breaking the lock on the outside of the cellar door. They drilled two holes in the safe and knocked off the combination bolt, but failed to get the safe open though it was badly sprung and rendered useless. The burglars pried open the money drawer and secured $10 to $12 in small change.

The head offices of the American Ship Building Company, are to be moved from Superior to Duluth.

MATTER OF DOUBT.

The Train Boy Knew People Pretty Well, But He Had a Guess Coming.

"One day last fall," said a well-known Montana man, "I was riding on a train in my state and got to be on pretty fair terms with the train boy by buying a few of the things he had to sell. It was not a very formal kind of a train, and when the boy had finished his rounds he came over to sit with me and 'chin a bit,' as he said. I was willing enough, as he was a sharp lad and there was nobody else to talk to, and he went right at things.

"'Do you know,' he said, 'that I can tell by looking at a man mighty near what he is. Now, there's that fellow over there in the corner; he's a Chicago drummer. I can tell him by the way he lets his money go and the flip style he has when he talks to people. And that chap over there with the silk hat on, he's a preacher from a country town, I'm dead sure, and I'll go ask him if you say so.'

"I didn't say so, because I didn't care a continental, and the boy went on with his descriptions of the people on the train. At last I asked him what he thought I was. I had on a pretty flashy suit of light stuff and was thinking I was looking pretty well, so I was willing to risk the boy's venture. He looked me over for a full minute very carefully.

"'Well,' he said, at last, 'you've got a sloo of money, but I ain't dead sure whether you are a cattleman or a gambler.'"—Washington Star.

WIT AVERTED A STORM.

The Capital Device of a Congressman to Cool His Wife's Anger.

In the seclusion of the house cloakrooms a story is being told on a western member. There are 357 men in the house. Three hundred and fifty-six are hereby released from any connection with the story. The other man—and the other man's wife—will recognize the truth of what is here recorded.

The western member went home at a very early hour in the morning. He had made a night of it with some friends. He knew that his conduct would be considered reprehensible by his better half, and so as he ascended the steps of his modest home he racked his brain for some plan to avert the lady's wrath. As he entered the hall he saw an umbrella. Instantly it occurred to him that the umbrella might be his salvation.

He carried the umbrella upstairs. Seating himself on a chair in the corner of the bedroom, he raised the rain guard over his head and then coughed loudly. His wife awoke and saw in the dim gaslight her liege lord sitting solemnly under the raised umbrella.

"What are you doing?" she asked in natural surprise.

"It is three o'clock, my dear," said he, "and I am waiting for the storm."

The congressman's ready wit saved him from a Caudle lecture. He is worrying now, however, to find an equally effective act for the next time he stays out late.—Washington Post.

A CAREFUL BRIDE.

She Didn't Give Hubby a Chance to Make Any Declaration of Devotion.

The happy pair had survived the congratulations of friends and relatives, and were being whirled rapidly towards the railway station, before the bridegroom began fairly to realize that the vision of loveliness at his side was indeed his own.

A dawning sense of what he had gone and done and of the sacred charge that was now committed to his care began to creep upon his benumbed faculties, driving the rose of health from his downy cheek and substituting therefor the pallor of haunting responsibilities.

"Darling," he whispered, softly, "it will ever be my sacred care in life to—" She interrupted him somewhat brusquely.

"Now," said she, "don't sit on your coattails that way and get them all wrinkled up, and for goodness' sake don't lay your elbow right in that dust! Heaven only knows how long it will be before you get another suit, so that you better take care of this one. Now, when we get to the station, you'd better get a couple of sandwiches in case we get hungry in the train, and two hard-boiled eggs, and don't forget a small paper of pepper and salt."—Tit-Bits.

A LESSON IN COURTESY.

Neat Rebuke Given a Haughty Woman by a Man in Working Clothes.

One afternoon a stylishly dressed woman boarded an Illinois Central train at Forty-seventh street. She sat down in the only vacant seat, beside a young workman, who was reading a book. The man wore blue overalls and carried a dinner pail. The woman drew herself together superciliously and elevated her eyebrows. In getting her ticket she dropped her purse, and the young fellow picked it up and offered it to her politely. She took it, without a word of thanks. All the way up town she fidgeted and behaved so unpleasantly that the attention of the other passengers in the car was attracted to the little drama.

When the train stopped at Randolph street the woman, in crowding past, knocked the book from the workman's hands.

"I beg your pardon," she condescended.

"Not at all, ma'am," responded the young fellow, cheerfully. "It's quite in keeping with the rest of your conduct."

And everybody thought it served her right.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"Poor old Jones, the grocer, died early this morning," said the village editor's better half.

"Huh!" exclaimed the local-opinion molder, "he's been dead for years."

"Been dead for years!" echoed the astonished wife. "Why, what do you mean?"

"Just what I said," replied the v. e. "Any man in business who doesn't advertise is a dead one."—Chicago Evening News.

BINDER TWINE

WILL BE FURNISHED MINNESOTA FREE OF COST THIS SEASON.

Statement of Prison Board Managers—McKinley's War and Republican Trusts Boost Twine and Other Prices, Wheat, of Course, Excepted—First Blow Against Imperialism Struck in Kentucky. Glimpses of the Field of State and National Politics—Twin City Notes—The Week's General Review.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Feb. 12, 1900.

By far the most important state event of the week, from the farmers' standpoint, is the action of the Stillwater prison board of managers in deciding to furnish binding twine this season at the bare cost of production in the factory. For accurate information it is well to reprint from the boards' formal notice as follows:

"During the season from Aug. 1, 1897, to Aug. 1, 1898, prices of Manila hemp ranged from 4¼ to 5c, and of sisal from 3⅝c to 5⅝c per pound. For the year 1898-1899 about 1,700,000 pounds of Manila were carried over, which cost on an average 4.35 cents per pound. The price of Manila for the same year ranged from 6⅝c to 7⅝c per pound, and the price of sisal from 6 1-16c to 7¾c per pound. For the current year, Aug. 1, 1899, to Aug. 1, 1900, the average cost of sisal purchased by us has been 9.04 per pound, delivered at Stillwater, which is a little more than double the average price of 1897 and 1898. The advance in twine oil has been about 200 per cent. In view of these facts the price established by the board of managers barely covers the cost of material, cost of manufacture and a reasonable allowance for repairs and depreciation of the plant."

It is well known that the price at which twine was sold last year yielded a small profit, exceeding $50,000. Besides recognizing that it is not designed, either in principle or policy, to make money for the state out of the twine plant, the managers have been specially moved, perhaps, by the fact that the trusts in their grip on raw fiber and on oil, have boosted the price of binding twine enormously, which, added to the continued low price of wheat, pinches that greatest of industries in this state, almost beyond endurance. This action of the board will give the farmers twine at 10 cents for pure sisal, and Manila and sisal mixed at 12½ cents per pound. The factory will not attempt to make any pure Manila this season and but a small quantity of the mixed, something like 300,000 pounds.

The total output is expected to be about 7,000,000 ponnds. As this is not one-half of the total quantity used in the state for the season, there is a rush with orders, and farmers should not delay in sending them in. Something like 1,000 orders are already listed.

An idea of the situation can be had from the following latest quotations of Minneapolis dealers for twine in car load lots:

Sisal	12¾c
Standard	13c
Manila, 600 foot	16¼c
Pure Mantia, 650 foot	16¾c

The farmers have the Standard Oil trust to thank for the boost in oil which averages above 10 cents a gallon increase for twine oil. The Philippine war has operated to increase fiber, and the trusts have done the rest. And, by the way, here is a good application of the question of "expansion" by the "conquest" route! Of course the product of Manila is much greater and the price lower when the country producing it is plunged in war, and when our soldiers are chasing the Filipinos over their islands, shooting liberty and civilization into them!

Probably every farmer who pays 5 to 6 cents per pound more this year for his twine will be very fond of the McKinleyism that is responsible for it!

Speaking of stability of prices, Otis is paying the same price for renegade Filipino guns, 30 pieces of silver, as was fixed by the rulers for Judas!

The latest news from McKinley's Sulu harem is that the Christian Endeavorers have abandoned efforts there, for the reason that they could find nothing to pin the badges to!

In Kentucky, after all, has been struck the first blow against imperialism, in the overthrow of bayonet rule established in the shadow of murder and fraud. The scheme to use the military power to establish McKinley Republicanism, looked well at the commencement, and the blood in the nostrils made ignorant men shake their head like the mangy beast of the forest, or stiffen themselves as those have done in our war against the Filipinos. It even looked well when the assassin fired his well-hidden shot, for that might bring on the desired conflict. But when death's angel hovered over the deathbed of Goebel, and when the Federal administration refused the co-operating step that with every reason had been expected, the scene changed and fear made those shiver who had been so eager at the outset.

And as this first move of imperialism in the Union has failed, so will the whole policy of the administration fail, and in that revulsion of feeling which always succeeds wicked excesses, the people will rebuke it and its tendencies by overwhelming defeat in November.

The result of Mr. Bryan's New England tour is best expressed in his own language, in a press dispatch which said that Mr. Bryan addressed not less than 45,000 people in 88 cities. Mr. Bryan said:

"The meetings have been very gratifying because they show the growth of Democratic sentiment. The trend of public opinion is away from the Republican party, and I believe each month will emphasize this opposition. The old men contrast the Republican party of today with the Republican party of Lincoln's day, and cannot but mark the difference. The young men see the field of opportunity narrowing and they recognize that Republican politics is continually adding to the advantages to aggregate wealth and lessening the chances of the young man, who only has his brain and muscle to rely upon. There is nothing but the hope of a perpetual clerkship to stimulate the young man to his utmost endeavor."

This week the hosts of these who are aroused against the dangers and aggressions of the great trusts and combines, are at Chicago perfecting a national organization to battle with those giant evils. Minnesota is represented by a number of good men who will be heard from.

What shame and disgrace, that it should be said on the floor of Parliament, that, what is the truth, America cannot officially interfere in the South African war—

"Chiefly because, being engaged in the Philippine war, she is not in a position to rebuke England as she would otherwise have done."

Who said, "Haul down our flag?" No man
Whose warm blood is American,
But, mark ye well, OUR flag must wave
O'er loosened chains, to free, to save.
And if they say it waves its folds
O'er ships with slavery in their holds,
And if they say it waves o'er lands
Where man in arms as conqueror stands,
'Tis but a false, pretentious rag—
'Tis not our flag, 'tis NOT our flag!
OUR flag must wave, where e'er it be,
For Justice, Right and Liberty!
—Professor Wilhelm Petterson, Augsburg Seminary, Minneapolis, Minn.

Governor Lind chose a farmer, E. W. Wing of Breckenridge, for the prison board, vice Dunn, time expired. Mr. Wing is a large and successful Wilkin county farmer. Being a Republican, the non-partisan character of the board is preserved, and it was deemed specially appropriate to recognize that part of the state, and the farmers.

And speaking of new appointees, friends all over the state approve Governor Lind's recognition of Major Hotchkiss, who has been called to the Soldiers' home board, and "Fighting Jack" Mullen of Wabasha, reappointed surveyor. Major Hotchkiss will undoubtedly soon know what there is in the many complaints of the soldiers' home, that have long demanded attention, but which it has been impossible to reach before now, on account of Republican manipulation.

Hon. H. T. Tolmie of Spring Valley has succeeded P. J. Smalley as secretary of the food and dairy department, under Major Bowler, in which appointment the department has not only recognized the propriety of keeping that department as much as possible in the hands of those who are most concerned in it, but it is believed has secured one who by ability and affiliation is specially qualified for the responsible position.

At last the holt of Houlton on the St. Cloud Reformatory has been broken. His successor, Hon. Frank Randall of Winona, it is believed, is specially fitted for the responsible position, and that in his selection there is every confidence of an honest and successful administration of the institution.

But in resigning Houlton took care to grab two months more salary, fixing the end of March as date of letting clear go.

State Superintendent Lewis has announced the appointments of teachers for the summer school for 1900, covering all the counties of the state. Prominent educators assert that Professor Lewis has been specially fortunate in his selections, and that the outlook is for unusually successful schools this summer. Professor Lewis is constantly adding to his reputation, as head of the state system, for ability and good judgment, and as to assiduous labors on behalf of the great interests in his charge, no man ever occupied the position who has been more devoted and untiring.

The Republican financial bill is well described as "sanctified by Wall street and blest by the British promoters."

The reductions made in the lumber rate to the southwest by the railroad and warehouse commission's recent order, saves the farmers 30 cents on every thousand feet of lumber going into that region. Such reduction commences at Fairmont, Martin county.

Anent the raising of the soft coal rate between Duluth and St. Baul, the explanation is that the Commission found the prevailing rate out of all proportion to other rates, hence permit it to be raised, showing the Commission's intention to be just and fair to all interests.

Further, on railroad matters, it seems more than likely that the railroad companies will not recognize the Commission's spirit of fairness, which has led them to consider the ordering of reduction in rates on such articles and such lines, especially in the Southwest, as are manifestly too high, but will resist the Commission's action. This may, if persisted in, present a burning, very burning issue.

A Minneapolis contributor to the Anti-Imperialist fund, signs a most patriotic letter of transmittal with the significant words, "A Former Republican." Mr. Former Republican describes a class of noble men who will be very numerous in this campaign. They will work and make sacrifices to aid in the defeat of those who have disgraced, and who will now destroy, unless it shall in the future be regenerated, the party of Lincoln, Chase and Sumner. G. Knew It Was in Lehigh.

A certain Pennsylvania Sunday school teacher was questioning her class. "Where was Christ born?" she asked of Willie. Willie pondered awhile and finally announced: "Mauch Chunk." "Mauch Chunk!" screamed the teacher. "You ought to know better than that. Why, little Georgie knows where Christ was born. Where was Christ born, Georgie?" And the treble of the four-year-old answered: "Beth-le-hem." "That's right," said the teacher. "Well," said Willie, pouting: "I knew 'twas somewhere on the Lehigh Valley railway."—Chicago Chronicle.

A WARM HOG HOUSE.

Structure Large Enough for Three Sows and Litters Described for an Inquirer's Benefit.

The accompanying cut should furnish what you wish. The size can be changed to suit your own notion. If you do not raise corn, the crib can be dispensed with and the alley can be made a little wider, with bins and boxes for bran, middlings and peas, etc.

To make warm, it should be double-boarded, with building paper between. The two partitions between the brood pens should be made to slide in like granary boards, so they may be taken out and all thrown into one room for fattening purposes. Yards can be made at back for runs. The doors opening into the alley from the pens are very convenient in changing hogs from one pen to another.

The brood pens should have a southern exposure, with a large window for each pen, made low down, so the sunshine can reach the little pigs. Notice the temporary floor in the nest part, to keep bedding dry. This can be removed when you wish to fatten hogs. The partition boards, etc., can be laid on brackets or pins above, where they will be out of the way and always handy to get when needed. The floor should slant back from the feed troughs about four inches in the 12 feet.

Don't be afraid to have plenty of windows, for hogs need lots of light. If you wish to raise early pigs and are afraid of their freezing, build a temporary house over the nest about five by six feet. This should be made tight and warm, with a door in front large enough for the sow to go in and out easily. If the weather is cold, keep this door shut at farrowing time, and when the pigs are four or five days old remove the temporary pen from over them, so they can get sunlight and exercise. Don't neglect doing this, for upon this may depend your success.—Country Gentleman.

ANIMALS HAVE SENSE.

They Respond Readily to Kindness and Are Sure to Resent Cruelty and Roughness.

The farmer cannot too fully understand that all the live stock on his farm with which he is brought in daily contact will partake more or less of his personal moods. If he kicks open the barn doors in the morning and thumps the old mare with the shovel or pitchfork to let her know that he is boss of that ranch, even the hens will be nervous and out of sorts all day. It is the placid, even tempered farmer who has docile stock. If he leaves the kitchen door for the barnyard singing "The Sweet By and By," he will find his cows placidly chewing their cuds and his hogs grunting contentedly in the morning sun.

A horse understands when he is sworn at, and it embitters a cow to threaten to break her back with a straw cutter. A pig in the pen which receives a cheery "Good morning" from the owner will fatten twice as fast as the one which climbs up to receive a blow from a club. It is so with the fowls. The farmer who puts on a benevolent, fatherly expression as he scatters the grain will find every hen doing her best that day to lay an egg to prove her gratitude and confidence, while the one who scowls and mutters and tries to knock some hen's head off with a clothes prop will find himself feared and detested.—M. Budd, in Nebraska Farmer.

ROOTS FOR LIVE STOCK.

On account of the large amount of water they contain, cows on roots are never as thirsty in winter time as they otherwise would be.

Given twice or even once a day through the latter part of the winter crisp, succulent roots form a valuable addition to the rations of milch cattle.

If roots have not been cleansed of all particles of dirt when placed in storage in the fall, they should be cleansed with plenty of water prior to feeding.

The dairyman who feeds roots to his cows in midwinter is always a wise one, no matter how plentifully his silo, hay mow and granary may be stocked.

Besides their intrinsic value to milk production, roots fill that want in a cow's diet in winter of "something green," which aids in assimilating other foods.

I have known cows to lose appetite and shrink in milk yield, following the feeding of dry roots. The earth and clay clinging to the little rootlets did the bad business.

A neighbor of mine had a cow to which he fed a bushel of turnips daily, and, although on a hay diet besides, he said she never drank any water in three weeks, although offered it daily. —George E. Newell, in American Cultivator.

ALFALFA EXPERIMENTS.

It Is Claimed Now That the Crop Can Be Profitably Grown in the Central States.

There has been frequent mention as to the importance of thoroughly testing the adaptability of alfalfa to certain soils in Missouri, Kansas and Illinois, and various instances cited where it has been grown successfully on a small scale in these states. The writer was shown recently a field near Charleston, Ill., owned by Mr. Gaiser that had produced three crops of alfalfa hay each season for several years, besides furnishing considerable pasture during the time. This field bids fair to hold well and produce better yields in the future. Another field in Sangamon county, Ill., was examined last year. It had growing upon it when seen a fine crop of hay, and the owner had cut two good crops previously that season, and the same results had been obtained the two previous years. While I do not claim that equally satisfactory results can be secured on all kinds of soil in the states named, yet I do claim that in many localities alfalfa can be grown and that it will prove a very profitable crop. If patient, painstaking experiments are made by farmers in different sections, in many instances a good stand will be secured and the results will abundantly reward those who try it, and others will be induced to do likewise. These first experiments can be made upon a small scale at very little actual cash outlay. Land with a rich porous subsoil should be selected and the soil well prepared. Low, wet or poorly drained land will not do. Neither will it grow well upon land that is underlaid with rock, especially if the rock comes near the surface.

The writer selected a plat of ground upon his farm in eastern Illinois in the spring of 1897, had it prepared by disking thoroughly crosswise and harrowing, then sowed alfalfa, which came up nicely, grew well during the summer, but a mistake was made in not cutting it several times that season, and the next spring the stand was considered too thin to leave. Yet if it had been left another season and more seed sown upon it in early spring and mowed several times during the summer, possibly it would have been a success.—Rural World.

CLEANING THE PLOW.

Directions Which Will Also Apply to Other Farm Tools Made of Iron or of Steel.

The department of agriculture thinks that having a plow clean and bright is of sufficient importance to warrant it in publishing directions for cleaning it, which will also work well for other tools of iron or steel. Slowly add one-half pint of sulphuric acid to one quart of water, handling it carefully and stirring slowly, as considerable heat will result from the mixing. When cool moisten the surface of the metal with this, and then rub dry, after which wash off with pure water. This application should clean any surface not too badly rusted, but if the tool has been long neglected it may require more than one application. After they are thoroughly cleansed we would advise a thorough coating of grease before putting away, and when they are taken out to use give them another greasing, and they will go "one horse's draft easier," as the old farmer used to say his scythe did after it had been properly whetted. Not only is it much easier for the team but for the plowman if the plow is clean and bright, as the adhering soil makes it handle hard when the plow is rusty.

How to Apply Power to the Best Advantage and Without Exhausting Man or Horses.

of oxen to the outer end of the timber and twist the stump out of the ground. It will be necessary to stand by with an ax and chop off the roots as they appear when the earth is disturbed in the twisting process. Enormous power can thus be applied to stumps, and for this reason the chains and timber must be stout.—N. Y. Tribune.

Sheep Running in Fields.

In an article from the Ohio Experiment station it is suggested that when sheep run out in the fields in the winter they destroy many insects, as well as weed seeds. There are places along the fence corners and hedgerows where the grass is too green to be burned, being thick and matted down, and the sheep will feed that closely, and any insects which are harbored there, which is such a place as many choose, are either trampled to death or left so much exposed to the weather as to cause them to perish. We usually burned such places as clean as we could to get weeds and dry brush out of the way, and then trusted the sheep to do the rest, when we kept sheep

Ensilage as Food for Horses.

As many people have an idea that ensilage is not a good food for horses, we will call attention to the fact that the Virginia Experiment station has been testing it, and they report that the trouble from its use has arisen from too much having been fed at the beginning, and as the horse likes it he is tempted to eat too much of it, as he might of green grass or clover. This is more apt to be the case when it contains a large amount of corn. When they began by feeding small quantities and increased very gradually in the amount given no injury resulted, and after they were well accustomed to its use they would not eat too heartily of it, even when given opportunity.

The Mystery of Dust at Sea.

It is a puzzling fact that the decks of sailing vessels show dust at night, even if they be washed in the morning, and no work is done during the day. This is like indigestion, which creeps on one unawares. However it comes, the only way to cure it is by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a remedy which never fails to cure dyspepsia in all its forms, as well as prevent malaria, fever and ague.

Free Speech.

Edward Everett once concluded a stately speech in congress with a long, sonorous and superbly modulated citation of a passage from Tacitus, and then took his seat. No sooner was he through than up sprang a burly member from the west. He had once been an Indian agent, and he began to pour out a vehement harangue in Choctaw. After awhile the speaker called him to order. "I don't see why my freedom of speech should be abridged," he cried; "you let the man from Massachusetts run on, and I didn't understand the first word of his lingo any better than he does mine." The scene was comical, but it struck the death knell of further classical quotations in congress.—N. Y. Telegram.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Owned It All.

John I. Blair in his earlier days owned a western railroad along the route of which he established a series of lunchrooms at which employes of the road were to be charged 50 cents and all passengers 75 cents. Mr. Blair once dined at one of these places, and, concluding his meal, laid down a half-dollar. "Hold on!" cried the cashier, "you don't belong to this road." "I know that," replied Mr. Blair, "the road belongs to me."—Chicago Chronicle.

Cleanliness in the Dairy.

Cleanliness counts in no place for more than in the dairy. The milking should be done in a clean place; all vessels used should be washed morning and night in hot water with Ivory Soap, rinsed and well aired. Milk should never be kept in a cellar with vegetables, as an unpleasant taste will be imparted. Attention to these details will insure a supply of wholesome milk and butter.

Gen. Hazen, the first head of the weather bureau in Washington, found it almost impossible to persuade the members of congress to vote for him the necessary funds with which to carry out his plans. One spring, when the appropriation had been shamefully cut down by the economy-loving chairman of the committee, Mrs. Hazen was a guest at an afternoon reception at the house of one of the cabinet members, where the most detestable and unendurable weather, untimely and unlooked for, was the topic of the moment. As Mrs. Hazen crossed the room to make her adieus she was waylaid by the chairman of the offending committee, who accosted her thus: "Well, Mrs. Hazen, is this the best your husband can do for us in the way of weather?" Mrs. Hazen looked at him with a sudden flash in her eyes, and then answered, clearly and sweetly: "Yes, Mr. Blank, the very best—for the appropriation." Sore Hands 8 Years Cured.

Pain So Intense Would Nearly Twist Fingers From Sockets. Hands Puffed Up Like a Toad. Water Ran Through Bandages to Floor. Had to Walk the Floor Until Would Fall Asleep. Fingers Would Peel Like an Onion. Doctors Could Not Cure.

Eight years ago I got sore hands, commencing with a burning sensation on my fingers and on top of the hand. When I rubbed them, you could see little white pimples. I felt like twisting my fingers out of their sockets. I had high fever, and cold chills ran over me, and so I kept it going until I was tired out. Nights, I had to walk the floor until I fell asleep. My hands peeled like an onion, the finger nails got loose, and the water ran out, and wherever there was a little pimple there the burning fire was—that happened at least ten times. I am running a blacksmith shop, horseshoeing, and I would not shut up the shop for anybody, but it was hard. My hands puffed up worse than a toad. When I drove horse nails, the water from my hands ran through the bandage, on to the floor. My customers refused to look at my hand. I had a friend take me to the doctor; he gave a solution of something to bathe my hands. I went to another doctor, I think, for a year. I found your advertisement in a Utica newspaper, and I got the CUTICURA remedies. As soon as I used them I began to gain, and after using a small quantity of them I was entirely cured. I would not take fifty dollars for a cake of CUTICURA SOAP if I could not get any more. I would not suffer any more as I did, for the whole country.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb.16, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The Ladie's Aid Society, met with Miss Mary Catlin, Wednesday afternoon.

—Presiding Elder Hingeley is to preach at the M. E. Church, Sunday evening, Feb'y 25.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fri. 11tf.

—The dime social at Mrs. Chances, Saturday, evening was well attended, and a good time enjoyed by all present.

—The thermoneter from 10 to 20 below zero several mornings this week; but the sun soon warmed things up considerable during the day.

-Ed F. Ziebarth informs us that he has sold his farm to a man near Watertown, and that he intends going to Seattle to look around and if he don't like that country he is coming back and locate in Delano.

—Spring moving has begun early this year. Mrs. Reichel goes to Minneapolis, S. D. Sturman is to occupy her residence here, and L. M. Maxfield is to move into the Green Residence vacated by Sturman.

—Rev. Kennison has been holding services in the Swedback Hall this week. Rev. Jinks did not come as he is quarantined in Minneapolis. P. C. Steffens and wife, both preachers, are to be here in a few days to assist in the work.

—The St. Cecelia Club gave another of those fine free entertainments in the City Hall, Tuesday evening. People are learning to like to spend an hour listening to music occasionally, and are thankful to the club for its efforts to entertain them.

—The Great Northern has been given till March 1, to decide whether they will contract at $30. per month with either them or the village to have the privilege of quitting on 30 days notice; or renew the old contract. They will, doubtless, take water.

—It seems too bad that a boy in his teens should be expelled, or suspended for a week or two, and loose his place in the classes there should be some way of getting along without such proceedings. But in order to get any good out of a school there must be order and obedience.

—The Polish Catholics are trying hard to get a church of their own here. It seems as if American citizens would use the language of the country so that all might understand alike, that people of one religious belief might do better together in a town of this size and not be divided on old country lines. Be all Americans.

—On Monday our Rockford correspondent informed us that the GAZETTE had not yet reached Rockford. No wonder when they have to be carried to Minneapolis and piled up there over Sunday. We are in favor of a daily mail from Delano to Rockford. Then people can get their mail when they ought to.

—Rev. A. R. Lambert, pastor of Fowler M. E. Church, Minneapolis, delivered his lecture, third of the course, on Monday evening. He had a fair sized audience, for Delano, but should have had many more. His lecture, "Some Levers of Power, or How to Get There," was well delivered and highly appreciated by all present. Should Mr. Lambert come here again we perdict that his audience would be much larger.

—Carl Hilderbrant takes exception to an item which appeared in the GAZETTE last week stating that a select party was intertained at Mr. M. E. Muckey's. There was no party at all —merely one or two friends dropped in and played crokinole.—Eagle.

That reminds us of the little boy who was caught fishing by his mother, who asked if she had not forbid him going fishing; when he replied "I ain't going fishing, I'am only catching fish".

School children ought not to be allowed to become so interested in dancing, card parties and similar amusements as to neglect their studies. In order to derive the best advantages of our schools pupils should be prompt, obedient, regular and diligent. This they cannot well do while devoting the evenings, and nights to amusements rather than to studies. This is an age when people must learn while they have an opportunity or they will fall away behind in even the commonest walks of life.

—The Washington's Birthday Association will hold its annual meeting, at the City Hall, on Thursday, Feb'y. 22, commencing at 2 P. M. Following is the Times Sets the Pace.

The Minneapolis Times has certainly made a strong move for popularity by securing the New York Herald's special cable service. This gives The Times the best service from a telegraphic news standpoint that is held by any northwestern newspaper. The new service is of great value to the readers of The Times, especially during the Boer war. And from present indications other countries than England are bound to be involved in the South African troubles, thus making the news service of greater value to the readers, as it gives to them a service equal to that enjoyed by the people of London and New York. The Times sets the pace for enterprising newspaper service in the northwest, and its latest bid for popularity is but another evidence of its leade in that direction.

County Cullings.

Andrew J Lindberg has joined the ranks of those going into bankruptcy.

Several churches throughout the county are having revival services. Monticello, Annandale, Buffalo and Delano are among the number.

Through the courtesy of the Howard Lake Herald in sending us proof sheets of the County Commissioners Proceedings we are enabled to give our readers the following synopsis of the same:

A special session was held at Buffalo, Feb'o 9 and 10. All members present.

Auctioneer's license was granted, on payment of $10, each, to C. F. Mertz and O. L. Billings.

A Committee of Johnson, Lauzer, Flannigan and Reems were appointed to examine proposed County roads between Frankfort and Otsego around south end of Rice Lake, on afternoon of March 14th. Report to be made to full board March 16.

The whole board is to meet Franklin board of Supervisors on the McKinley Bridge across Crow River to see if it can be repaired for another year's duty, on Feb'y 17, at 10 o'clock P. M.

Reports of County officers for 1899 were accepted and approved as follows:

J. C. Nugent, sherriff,...	$2738.15.
August Haffter, regester of deeds.	2675.99.
A. A. Bloon, surveyor,.....	505.90.
C. H. Vorse, clerk of court,.....	728.55.

Abatement of taxes were recommended to the State Auditor: Geo. E. Means; A. R. Snodgrass, P. H. Quinn, S. H. McGuire. Rejected S. H. Oliver.

Usual claims were allowed. Claims laid over till next meeting: J. B. Golladay, Herman Reick, R. W. Rousau, Henry Lashway, Henry Cofield and Edward Lashway.

Board adjourned to meet March, 15, 1800.

Among our Exchanges.

Sherburne County Times: Pro Boer meetings are not as fashionable as they were. It was rather too transparent a way to attack the administration and didn't fool republicans a little bit.

Minneota Mascot: Physiology teaches us that the anatomy of the hog in many ways closely resembles the human anatomy. Observation teaches us that there is sometimes a striking similarity in the disposition as well.

Waseca Herald: James J. Hill stated to a reporter last week Friday that there is no probility of a strike upon his road; but if one should be inaugurated there would be no dificulty because "for every man who quits work there would be five to take his place." And this paper was published broadcast. Did James lie or is it true that for every man who is at work there are FIVE MEN to take his place if he quits? Don't all speak at speak at once, you little echoes.

McKinley's Cousin Marries.

DENVER, Feb. 8.—Capt. Arthur S. McKinley, a first cousin of President Mc Kinley, was married at the Catholic cathedral in this city to Miss Regina Quigley, Montgomery, Davis county, Ind. Father Callahan officiated. Mr. McKinley is one of the leading cattle men of the west.—Tribune.

St. Cloud Times: There was no cheers for Aguinaldo at the Lincoln club banquet in St. Paul last night, and no word of comfort or encouragement for those who are in arms against the government.—St. Paul Dispatch, 13.

Nor were there any cheers for the gallant Boer patriots struggling bravely for liberty against the administration's ally; no words of encouragement and God speed for the republic which is battling to make the constitution of the United States the law in South Africa; there was no condemnation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which means an alliance with great Britain; no denounciation of Hanna's subsidy bill, which proposes to steal $20,000,000 from the United States treasury; no condemnation of the trusts. What was there? A meeting in the name of Lincoln, to publically reject his most cherished beliefs.

Webster as an Anti-Imperialist.

From the Wilemar Tribune we clip the following:

"Arbitary governments may have territories and distant possessions, because arbitary governments may rule them by different laws and different systems. We can do no such thing. They must be of us, part of us, or else strangers. I think I see a course adopted which is likely to turn the Constitution of the land into a deformed monster, into a curse rather than a blessing; in fact, a frame of an unequal government, not founded on popular representation, not founded on equality, but on the grossest inequality; and I think that this process will go on, or that there is danger that it will go on, until this union shall fall to pieces. I resist it, to-day and always! Whoever falters or who ever flies, I continue the contest!"—Daniel Webster in the U. S. Senate, Mar. 23, 1848.

MAPLE PLAIN.

What is the latest war news from the seat of war down in Ky., happens to be my native state (but that was a long time ago), and I am sorry to hear that such a war cyclone has struck that state but suppose it is only the switch end; or an anex to the Filipino war. I suppose the Taylor and Goebel war will make good times in Ky. It seems as if when those Ky. mountaineers arenot making whiskey they want to be killing somebody.

We have sleighing now, and farmers are improving the opportunity hauling wood, saw logs, grain, etc.

Mrs. B. Drake has gone to California for a few weeks for her health, to visit relatives etc.

The Odd Fellows Hall, the lower part of it, is now for rent, for public meetings and entertainments.

It is reported that H. C. Dicky, who was taken to the Hospital, in Minneapolis, sometime ago for treatment, is getting much better, and will soon be home.

Dr. E. A. Wright and family will move to Colfax, Wis. He thinks he has a good field there for practice. When Dr. Wright leays, Maple Plain and vicinity will be without a doctor. Will have to depend upon the patent medicine man and soup bone to pull us through, or import a Dr. from some neighboring village.

While the trusts and corporations are reaping a good harvest off the consumer, the producer is still the victim of the monopolies just how long the consumer can afford to pay the present prices for nails, lath, lumber, fence wire, glass and a hundred or more articles is a question. But it is conceded by most all that this state of things can not long exist, and when the crash comes it will bring reverse of fortune to many and hard times to others, this will be some of the fruits of a high protective tariff and forming of trusts.

There has been formed under the corporation laws of Delaware, during a little over five and a half months in 1899, a capitalization of Trusts to the amount of $262,850,000. Would ask if this is for the health of the country or for the benefit of the few, and it will be rather a sad affair when the reverse comes.

In the spring when the building season begins there will be a terrible dropping off in way of buying building material. Then the manufacturer will begin to realize that fictitious prices do not always produce wealth and fortune FARMER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9, 1900.

That English diplomacy is away ahead of English military generalship has once more been proven by the Nicaragua Canal treaty, sent to the Senate this week, which instead of being received with shouts of approval, as Mr. McKinley seemed to think it ought to be, has been met with stern protests, even from supporters of the administration. Although England is in a position where it would have agreed to almost anything proposed by this government, which is almost its only friend among the nations of the world, the English diplomats got exacly what they wanted. To reduce the treaty to every day language, England graciously agrees that we shall build the Nicaragua Canal with American money, provided that she and all other nations shall have equal use of the canal both in peace and in war and that the U. S. agrees never to fortify either end of the canal. Unless many Senators change their present attitude, this treaty will not be ratified, unless its present jug-handled features are cut out. The sentiment in both branches of Congress, regardless of party, favors the construction of the Nicaragua canal by this government, provided that we have absolute control of it, which means, of course, the right to close it to our enemies in time of war.

After all their bluff and bluster, the republican Senators are afraid of going before the country squarely on the issue of the single gold standard, and this week the majority of the Finance committee reported the old international bimetallism bamboozler as an amendment. The amendment, which merely says that the bill is not intended to place any obstacle in the way of the accomplishment of international bimetallism, is too palpable a humbug to fool any man, but it is intended to ease the consciences of such so-called republican bimetallists as senator Chandler, who was instrumental in getting the amendment reported, and to give such western silver republicans as care to take advantage of it an opportunity to sneak into the gold camp.

Representative Williams, of Miss., one of the leading democratic members of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, made a strong speech against the annexation of the Philippines, meeting the republicans on their own plane of dollars and cents and showing what poor business it would be in the end. He ridiculed the idea which political necessity has caused the republican leaders in both House and Senate to adopt-that the U. S. does not include the territories of the U. S.-and predicted its overthrow by the Supreme Court. The closing words of Mr. Williams, which were greeted with applause, follow: "I am much more opposed to annexation of the Philippines in its old historic American sense than I am to the new-fangled doctrine of imperialism. As much as I would hate to see the Declaration of Independence thrown to the winds, as much as I would hate to see the historical landmarks of Washington's Farewell Address forgotten, as much as I should hate to see the Constitution amended so that we might have subjects, I would rather change the Constitution, I would rather be relegated to the unwritten constitution of England, to the common law itself, than to admit eleven millions of barbarians like that to share and share alike with me and my children and my grandchildren in molding the destinies of this great republic, the last hope of all the ages for popular freedom and for the demonstration of the fact that man can govern himself."

Senator Caffery in a speech, showing by Constitutional law that if we keep the Philippines its inhabitants will become full-fledged citizens of the U. S., paid this high compliment to Senator Hoar: "I am glad that Massachusetts has on this floor a worthy successor of Webster and Sumner, and that he stands forth as the guardian of constitutional right and constitutional law."

The activity of those who are scheming to add to the already enormous amount of money paid by this government for pensions may be judged when Senator Gallinger, chairman of the Senate committee on Pensions, who is ultra liberal in his ideas on the subject, publicly states that if the bills now before his committee should become laws it would bankrupt the country to make the payments.

The Nicaragua Canal treaty having failed to produce any change in the strong Boer sentiment in Congress, the administration has become alarmed. It is afraid that Congress will adopt some resolution that will force it into taking some step to save the Boers from extinction before the English get troops enough on the ground to deliver a crushing blow, and in order to gain time for the English, it is allowing the impression to get out that it intends to do something in the mediatory line under The Hague treaty, which was this week ratified by the Senate, when that document becomes effective, which will not be until after ratifications have been exchanged by the signatory powers.

After an imposing military funeral, attended by all the prominent officials of the government and the greater portion of Congress, the body of Gen. Henry W. Lawton, who was recently killed in the Philippines, was buried at Arlington cemetery this afternoon.

Railroading Patents

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

The old established and well traveled line is via Sioux City, and by it you find all the most modern equipment; vestibuled trains, gas lighted, steam heated with the best Pullman SLEEPERS on night trains, and OBSERVATON PARLOR CARS with CAFE SERVICE on day trains. In fact all the little things that go to make travel comfortable are found on trains on the North-Western Line from Minneapolis and St. Paul, either to Sioux City and Omaha, or to Chicago. By the North-Western Line time and distance is also shortened to Deadwood and the Black Hills country.

DEFINITION OF THE FLAG.

Who said, "Haul down our flag?" No man
Whose warm blood is American.
But mark ye well, OUR flag must wave
O'er loosened chains, to free, to save.
And if they say it waves its folds
O'er ships with slavery in their holds,
And if they say it waves o'er lands
Where man in arms as conqueror stands
'Tis but a false, pretentious rag—
'Tis not our flag, 'tis NOT our flag!
OUR flag must wave, where e're it be,
For Justice, Right and Liberty!

—Prof. Wilhelm Peterson, Augsburg Seminary, Minneapolis, Minn.

THE Democrats in holding their National convention at Kansas City will be in the home of friends and have a fine auditorium in which to meet. In nominating men from the center of the country they will doubtless meet with the hearty approval of all.

AND now comes reports that Sec'y Gage calls Macrum an "Ass". 'Twant do You can't cover up the Lion with an asses' hide while he rifles Uncle Samuel's mail No Sir. Try some other plan. If Macrum's claims are false and his envelopes forgeries, say so. Calling names has long ago ceased to prove a case, in this country.

MACRUM, late consul to Pretoria seems likely to get the ear of the administration now, if he couldn't before. It is claimed that he sought an audience with Secretary Hay and was refused, and that McKinley had given instructions befor his arival that under no circumstances would he see him. If British authorities can tear open the mail of Uncle Sam, before it reaches his consuls, and Uncle Sam is too modest to mention it, the people of the country are not. As for the authorities blaming Macrum for going into the newspapers with his story; where else should he have gone? If Uncle Sam had stoped his pay, and sent Secretary Hay's son over to South Africa to supersede him, and would not even hear his story they certainly must have been heaping insult on injury. If Macrum's story is true, and there appears no evidence to the contrary. Of course those envelopes bearing Uncle Sam's stamp, opened, and closed with stickers with "V C." on are said to be forthcoming. Their authenticity can easily be established, and if Jim Blaine isn't Secretary of State, nor Andrew Jackson President of the United States there are enough of this kind to see that this thing dosn't go by whithwashed, slid over, while our army is out in the Philippines "shooting jack rabbits". If our servants at Washington are so derelict in their duty it is about time that the people of this country choose some public servants who will attend to their duties in a wise and dignified manner How long would any business man in America keep a clerk or office boy who brought his mail to him opened, and sealed up with somebodys stickers?' Why, members of a family don't open each other's letters, and yet Queen Victory's stickers are used to close up Uncle Sam's opened mail to his consul at Pretoria. It must stop, that's all there is to that.

It has come to a pretty pass when, in the days of the fathers, England could n't rule us as she would, that now we quietly obey her every behest. Our gold seekers in Alaska pay tribute to her or move on: our industries from beer to flour succumb to her financial interests; our orators, editors and others, many of them imported from her little island, pour forth the praises of the British Empire.

Still After Its Ghost.

The deathknell of free silver was sounded in November, 1896. The vote in the senate Thursday was merely a supplication for the repose of its soul. Peace to another dead issue.—Pioneer Press.

Why don't the g. o. p. let the dead past bury its dead? If free silver was such a terrible monster as they tried to make it out, why not let it rest in peace; and not be resurrecting its ghost so often? And then who would have supposed that the Pioneer Press would ever have admitted that free silver had a ghost, to say nothing of a "soul" to need supplications for its repose. Or does the P. P. think that the g. o. p. can make a better campaign on dead and burried issues than it can on protective tariff, or trusts, or imperialism? Maybe it is right about it if it does so think.

DR. A. A. AMES appears in the field with a big petition after the office of mayor on the Republican ticket in Minneapolis. He is a surprise to some people.

Of all the nations on earth, England is our only friend and has proven herself such very recently.—Eagle.

Does Buckley mean by her opening our mail?

What could we have done to loose the friendship of all other nations but England? It is a predicament we never were known to be in before. A bad state of affairs if Buckley's assertions are correct

UNLESS some of the important issues now before the country are settled; or men become more familiar with them, so as to know on which side they are, the parties must be wonderfully mixed up when they come to form the lines of action for the campaign. Republicans are favoring free silver, opposing protective tariff, and dead set against imperialism; while a few former Democrats are for gold standard, protective tariff and for a big army and imperialistic displays generally. The coming educational campaign will, more than likely, set most men on the side of the fence they belong on politically speaking.

Among our Exchanges.

Minneota Mascot:-Last Friday evening John W. Hoff was found lying on the road a short distance from town with his skull fractured. Dr Thordarson was summoned and the unfortunate man was taken to a neighbosing house. At last accounts he was alive although the doctor expressed grave doubts as to his recovery. It is not known just how the accident happened but it is supposed that he fell from the wagon striking on his head. This is one more lamentable occurrence that may undoubtedly be laid to the fatal glass.

TO KING ALCOHOL.

The following prepared by Jas. G. Young is an appropriate toast to His Majesty, King Alcohol:

Murderer, thief, ravisher, stealer of man's brains.

Caterer to the gallows, feeder of the jails.

Soaked in tears of widows, mothers and orphans.

Defying God and defacing His handiwork.

Daubing blood on the face of humanity.

Smearing crime on the garments of society.

Barring the way to Heaven,
Paving the way to Hell—
Curse you! Curse those who make you!
Curse those in power who allow you to exist!
Fragments of Hell hurled into the nineteenth century.
How I hate you!—
How I love you!

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 16, 1900.

The story that Gov. Roosevelt is in the field as a candidate for the republican Presidential nomination has found a sufficient number of believers among the McKinleyites to make it more important than it seemed to be when it reached Washington several days ago. It is now said that there is a Roosevelt machine and that it is plentifully supplied with money and is already dickering with the men who control delegations from the southern states to republican national conventions; that Roosevelt's positive refusal to be a candidate for Vice President and his declaration against the Nicaragua Canal treaty and in favor of absolute American control of the canal was a part of his scheme to attract the anti McKinley republicans A considerable number of in both Senate and House would be glad to see Mr. McKinley defeated for the nomination, by Roosevelt or anybody else but they have no idea of sacrificing all their official pie by announcing that fact, unless it can be shown that Roosevelt is merely making a bluff in order to force the administration to throw its influence in favor of his renomination for governor.

Representative Bell, of Colo., showed in a short speech that the claims repeatedly made by republicans, that the banks made no profits by the deposits of government money, was ridiculous. He had written to state treasuries and ascertained that they received from 1½ to 4 per cent on daily balances from the banks in which State funds were deposited, but the government did n't receive a cent of interest on the millions deposited by Secretary Gage's order in national banks Mr. Bell characterized those deposits as a crime against the people.

Senator Taliaferro, of Fla., this week made public a vigorous denial of the charge made in a New York paper, on the authority of a detective, that he had during the Spanish war been a party to a conspiracy to defraud the government through the purchase of a lot of bacon of a company of which the Senator was an officer. In addition to pronouncing the charge "a tissue of malicious falsehoods from beginning to end", Mr. Taliaferro says it was prompted by the animosity of ex-Senator Call

Senator Jones, of Nevada, whose speech against the republican gold standard bill was among the best heard, after stating that the masure was vicious from begining to end, and that it provided for a permanent increase of the bonded debt, said: "This bill places in the national banks the control of the bonded debt of the country. Whenever the banks see fit they can reduce the gold reserve below the limit and force an issuance of bonds; and this process can go on indefinately. All this in the interest of the creditor, in the interest of the bond-holders, and grievously against the interest of the people Political independence is much to be desired, but I would rather live under an absolute despotism and have financial independence than to have political independence and be financially dependent. Political independence without financial independence is only independence in name"

There seems to be something attractive in the word "subsidy" for the average republican in congress The House committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has decided by a vote of 8 to 5, in favor of the bill authorizing the landing of a tariff cable by a private company and the payment of a subsidy by the government for a period of twenty years.

Republican hints of their intention to do something that will remove the trust question from this year's campaign issues Representative Bell of Texas, to call the bluff. He did so by offering a resolution authorizing the Speaker of the House to appoint a special committee, only five members of which shall belong to one political party, to which shall be referred all bills and resolutions relating to trusts including those already introduced and now quietly sleeping in various committees Mr. Bell's resolution is now in the hands of the Committee on Rules, and the question whether there shall be any trust legislation is up to that Committee, which is dominated by Speaker Henderson.

Believing that if the isthmian canal is to be a world canal, instead of the distinctively American canal it ought to be, the world ought to chip in its share of the cost of constructing it, Representative Jefferson Levy, of N. Y., has introduced a bill, authorizing negotiations with the maritime nations asking them to contribute to the construction of the canal in proportion to the extent of their shipping tonnage.

The Senate has passed its substitute for the House gold standard bill, and now the conference committee will proceed to decide what sort of a bill is to be finally passed by both branches of Congress It is difficult to say which is the worst, the Senate or the House bill, but the chances are that the bill that will be patched up in conference will be quite as bad as either.

The Old Man and Jim

BY GERTRUDE NORTON.

Reprinted from the Ladies' Home Journal by special permission.

The old farm was most wore out,
Land so pore it wouldn't sprout
Peas, an' Jim he comes ter me.
"Guess I'll go ter town," sez he,
"Git a job thar in a store—
Farm won't pay ter work no more."
An' he went an' left his dad—
Only son the old man had.

'Twas the best, I reckon. Well,
He writ often fer a spell.
After while I didn't hear
From him more 'an once a year
Then he married—rich, it sed,
In the papers that I read—
Jim was pardner in the store;
Then he didn't write no more.

So, one day, I writ to Jim,
Sed I guessed I'd visit him,
An' I took my best clothes down,
Breshed 'em up ter go ter town;
But Jim writ ter me next day,

"HE CAME DOWN FROM TOWN NEXT DAY, PACKED MY DUDS, TUCK ME AWAY."

Sed he guessed I'd better stay—
Guessed I wouldn't like town life,
An'—it might not please his wife.
Well, I put my clothes away,
'Lowin' I would haf ter stay.
Couldn't help it ef I died—
Jist set down right thar an' cried.
So I didn't go ter town,
But jist sorter settled down
On the old farm, glad that it
Hadn't gone back on me yit.

Well, one day some chaps came down—
Brought a steam drill out from town—
Popped a hole down fer Judge Race,
Not a quarter from my place;
Struck the richest vein uv lead
In the state, the people sed;
So I guessed 'twould do no harm
Ter pop one down on my old farm.
Well, they struck it rich as gold—
Gave me twenty thousand cold
Fer a five-years' lease; an' then—
Jim he writ ter me agen;

Pottered some around his store—
Didn't haf ter work, ye see,
Jim war teckin' care uv me—
Made my old heart beat so glad—
Gave him every cent I had.

After that fer a good spell
Jim he prospered pretty well,
But the panic came on then,
Bustin' up the richest men
North an' south, an' east an' west—
Jim was busted with the rest—
Clean broke up, an' broke his dad—
Every cent the old man had.
But I laid no blame on him,
Had no fault ter find with Jim—
Didn't fret; I knowed that he
Would allus teck good care uv me.

Didn't mind much bein' pore;
Jim was clerkin' in a store,
But I soon began ter see
He was not the same ter me;

An' his wife, she 'lowed one day,
I was sorter in the way.
So I went back home once more—
Ter the old farm, and an' pore.
Diggin's had all played out now,
Farm most ruined, but somehow
I jist loved the old place yit,
An' I guessed I'd stick ter it—
Liked it better than the town,
So I kinder settled down
On the wore-out farm once more
(Lease run out the day before),
When the news was brought ter me
That the minin' company
Had struck another run uv lead,
Richer than the first, they sed.
Gave me thirty thousand more
(Lease jist like the one before)—
Couldn't help it ef I died—
Jist set down right thar an' cried.

When they planked my money down,
Thought uv Jim thar in the town—
Jim a-tollin' in the store

"WHEN THEY PLANKED MY MONEY DOWN, THOUGHT UV JIM THAR IN THE TOWN—"

Sed I must be lonesome, an'
That he couldn't understan'
Why I didn't visit him
(That began ter sound like Jim),
An' that he was comin' down
Jist ter take me back ter town;
I was gittin' old, an' he
Wanted ter teck care uv me.
(That was jist like Jim uv old.)
I fergot about my gold—
Danced a jig, jist like a boy,
Jist a b'lin' o'er with joy—
Thinkin' all the time uv Jim—
Me a-goin' ter live with him.

He came down from town next day,
Packed my duds, tuck me away,
Back ter town ter live with him.
Made my eyes grow kinder dim.
An' my old heart beat so glad—
Jim would teck care uv his dad.

Stayed with him five years or more

Awful hard an' awful pore,
An' it made my eyes grow dim
Jist ter set an' think uv him.
Well, I writ him yesterday,
An' he's comin' right away—
Comin' with his wife, sez he,
Ter live on the old farm with me.

Well, I ain' much ter philosophize,
I reckon t ain't my way,
But, teckin the matter as it lies,
I'm so constrained ter say:
That l on it's better fer me,
An' n better fer Jim,
Fer him quit teckin' care uv me,
An' le me teck care uv him.

Proving an Amendment.

Cripple Creek is still breaking the records. The output of gold in that famous district during the first month of the new year was $2,500,000.

Our weather bureau service is to be extended by the establishment of observatories in all Mexican gulf ports between Tampico and Progreso. They will be under the charge of the weather officials at Galveston, Tex.

And still science is on the move. The newly-discovered system of chilling moving freight cars by electricity generated from the axle while the car is in motion, has just proved very successful on a trial run through the southern states.

A broom with a spring is advertised by a Tennessee company, and it is added that the broom will sweep much better than the old-fashioned kind. Now if someone will invent a girl who will spring into the closet, grab the broom, and use it diligently a great problem will be solved.

It is stated by one of the Philadelphia papers that there is a man in that town who makes a good living by selling the labels of foreign hotel, railroad, steamship and express companies to people who paste them on their baggage to create the impression that they have been abroad.

The largest office building in the world is to be built this season in New York city. The land upon which the great sky scraper will be raised is worth $2,000,000 and $4,000,000 more will be eaten up in erecting the building. In order to complete the site the company was obliged to pay $260,000 for half of a 25 by 100 foot lot.

During 1899 the silk manufacturers of the United States imported $41,000,000 worth of raw silk, an increase of 50 per cent. over 1898. Silk mills have been established in 19 states, and the 750 factories are distributed in 230 towns. We used to import all such fineries, but soon we will not only supply all of the home demand, but will have silk goods to send abroad.

In a recent sermon at Central music hall in Chicago a minister boldly proclaimed that, in the first place, "there never was any Adam," and, in the second place, he did not fall. And now a judge comes along and asserts that the Washington hatchet and cherry tree story is a myth. If the doctors and judges keep on at this rate they will leave us nothing to believe in.

Both houses of the Mississippi legislature have passed a bill appropriating $80,000 for the purchase of a 10,000-acre farm upon which the state's convicts will be kept. The convicts will work the farm, and it is expected that they will not only be able to feed, clothe and house themselves with what will be earned by the farm, but that the state will make some revenue out of the system.

The twenty-seventh annual report of the New York diet kitchen shows that a great amount of good work has been done by that institution during the past year. The object of the institution is to furnish nourishing food to the sick poor. During the year four kitchens have been maintained at an aggregate expense of $7,536. With this money an immense amount of good has been done, and thousands of poor people have been helped through a sickness.

Coal famine of the most realistic variety prevails in England, and the price of the fuel has gone up to $11 a ton, while the wages of the great working class, the people who do not live in steam-heated apartments and who therefore need and use great quantities of coal, are but half what they are on this side of the ocean. All of which is calculated to make the average American feel rather happy over the fact that he lives in this great republic.

Congressman Thomas J. Bradley, of the Ninth New York (city) district, is sometimes referred to as "the old man with the polyglot cinch." His constituency includes voters of numerous nationalities and Mr. Bradley is able to address almost any voter in his district in the voter's native tongue. The congressman speaks German, French, Hebrew, Polish, Italian, Irish and Bohemian, having in this way a pull of such strength as entitles him to the nickname mentioned above.

At a poll of the voters of Mexico, out of 1,548,654 votes cast on the question of nomination, President Diaz received 1,456,482, which is practically a unanimous call. The election will take place next fall and he will be reelected by a majority of which any republican ruler might be proud. The honor was due him, for during his administration Mexico has prospered steadily. In the last six years its exports and imports have almost doubled. Its resources have increased, and from a weak power it has become a strong one.

India has long been accustomed to famine conditions, but the present state of affairs is disheartening. Already 4,000,000 persons are receiving relief, and deaths from starvation are numerous. Worst of all, India must rely largely upon her own resources. During previous seasons of famine help has been forthcoming from the English people, but they are too much wrapped up in other matters to give much thought to India. Their money is being expended for the relief of British soldiers serving in South Africa and their "folks" at home.

The commission appointed by the New York senate to investigate the prisons of that state has filed its report with the legislature. The commission presents several suggestions toward carrying out the idea that prisons should be conducted with the end in view of reforming the prisoner and not simply punishing him. They condemn any treatment that will tend to decrease self-respect, and they urge the abolition of the lock-step and the prison stripes. The commissioners hold that the prisoners should be classified upon the basis of present behavior.

The substitute for the house currency bill was passed by the United States senate on the 15th by a vote of 46 to 29. A favorable report was made on a bill for the establishment of a military post at Des Moines, Ia. In the house the judicial appropriation bill was considered, and during the debate the Philippine question and civil service reform were discussed. A resolution was introduced for information concerning charges made by ex-Consul Macrum that his official mail had been opened and read by the British censor at Durban.

Discussion of the Philippine question was resumed in the United States senate on the 16th, the bill providing a form of government for the territory of Hawaii was read and conferees on the financial bill were appointed. FRENCH REACHES KIMBERLEY

British General Relieves Beleaguered City—Boers Abandon Trenches at Magersfontein.

London, Feb. 16.—The following dispatch has been received from Lord Roberts:

"Jacobsdale, Feb. 15, 9 p. m.—French, with cavalry, mounted infantry and artillery, reached Kimberley this (Thursday) evening.

"ROBERTS."

The queen has promoted Gen. French to be major general. French, heretofore, has only ranked as a colonel in the army, with the local rank of lieutenant general.

Lieut. Col. Kekewich has been promoted colonel, for services in the defense of Kimberley.

Jacobsdal, Orange Free State, Friday, Feb. 16.—Lord Roberts' combinations for the movement of the corps dovetailed with precision, although obstacles that had not been foreseen had to be overcome. The execution of his design began at three a. m. Sunday. Gen. French rode into Kimberley Thursday afternoon, just when he was due according to the field marshal's time table, having, in four and a half days, marched 90 miles with artillery and having fought two small engagements. The relief of Kimberley was accomplished with the loss of only 50 men. Twenty thousand infantry made splendid marches under a subtropical sun and through a dust storm to hold the positions which Gen. French took.

A Daily Mail correspondent, who was with the British convoy attacked

GEN. JOHN D. P. FRENCH.
(British Commander Who Led the Troops Which Relieved Kimberley.)

by the Boers at Riet river ford, wires: "Ultimately the British abandoned the convoy, in order not to check the advance. Thus 200 wagons and 600 tons of stores fall into the hands of the Boers, though it is doubtful if they will be able to carry them away."

London, Feb. 20. — The Chieveley correspondent of the Daily News telegraphing Monday says:

"We now occupy all the hills to the right of Colenso, on this side of the Tugela, including Hlangwane, which the Boers evacuated last night (Sunday). This capture of Hlangwane hill is of great strategical importance, as the hill commands the flank of the Boer defenses at Colenso. A successful advance and the recapture of the railway may be expected."

Lourenzo Marques, Feb. 20.—A correspondent who was with the Boer forces in the attack upon Rensburg gives further particulars regarding the capture of the Wiltshires. He says:

"Commandant Peller, who arrived first, found two companies of the Wiltshires and began attacking in the open. Soon after he was joined by a body of Free Staters, and together they drove the British back from the neighboring kopjes, capturing all but three. It is impossible to say exactly how many of the British were killed and wounded, but of the 200 Wiltshires 142 were captured, and of these 44 were wounded. The suffering of the wounded from heat and thirst was intense. The burghers did their best to alleviate this, and many of the wounded were carried in blankets to Rensburg siding. At Reitfontein the British rear guard began shelling, thus compelling the federals to leave the wounded in order to repulse the attack. A federal krupp guns replied effectively to the British cannonade. The Boers lost two killed and four wounded. They now occupy all the Rensburg positions formerly occupied by the British, whose rear guard is at Rietfontein, with the federals close up."

Did Not Know.

Recently a rosy-cheeked German girl applied for a position as domestic in a well-known family. The girl learned to speak the English language in a remarkably short time, but many of the expressions did not appeal to her in the proper sense.

The telephone had a peculiar charm for the girl, and at times she would loiter about near the instrument in order to answer a call. One day there came a ring and she hastened to the 'phone and put the receiver to her ear.

"Hello," she cried.

"Hello," came back over the 'phone, "who is this?"

"How do I know?" innocently inquired the German maid, and to this day she wonders why the man at the other end laughed until he rang off.—Chicago Chronicle.

A MINNESOTA FARMER WRITES OF WESTERN CANADA.

Is Now Located There, Farms in His Neighborhood Being Taken by Former U. S. Residents.

The following extracts from a letter written to Mr. Benj. Davis, Canadian Government Agent at St. Paul, Minn., give an excellent idea of what is said of Western Canada by those who have gone there during the past two or three years.

"When we first arrived here and took up our homes on the prairie near Dalesboro, Assa., for a short time we had a fit of the 'blues,' but now all hands are settled to business, hale, hearty and contented, enjoying the finest winter we have ever seen. We have got very comfortably situated, with considerable preparation for a crop, and all hopeful. I think this is a very fine country, and if the past season's crop is not an exception, which they claim not, I believe this is going to be the Wheat Field of the West. It is filling up fast. In this township last spring there were 25 quarter-sections of land vacant and to-day there is not one; I can stand at my house and count 10 houses where there was not one last spring, with six more to go up this spring. This is only a sample of what is going on all round. We intend to build a church next summer, right close to my place, so we will be strictly in line. It would have amused you to have been here last spring. There were crowds of land-seekers, and sometimes in the spring the prairie is not very inviting, and of course lots were discontented. There was one in the crowd who jumped on me for putting a letter in the paper, only for which he never would have come here, and he was very hostile, but eventually he got a place, and to-day claims he would not take a Thousand Dollars and move out, so I am glad he is satisfied.

"Well, my dear Sir, as Arthur Finney is about to move out in March, with his family, and also one of my sons, anything you can do for them to assist them along and to make things smooth as possible, will be greatly appreciated by me. I will close for this time, and will write from time to time to let you know we are living. Drop us a few lines to let us know how things are moving in St. Paul. Yours Respectfully,

"ALEX CAMERON."

Boys are odd conglomerations, and few there are who understand the emotions that prompt their actions.

A certain little fellow had his picture taken, and when the family got the negative of it they were horrified to see the face of the boy all puffed out and the eyes bulging, and exclaimed in a body: "Why, what on earth did you do to make your face look like that?"

"Didn't do a thing," said the innocent little fellow, "but just see if I could hold my breath until the man got through takin' my picture."—Memphis Scimitar.

LITERARY REWARDS.

Wrestling Match Between Writers, in Which the Truth is Badly Strained.

"Well, if a man goes into literature he must expect his pay in something besides dollars and cents," remarked a Chicago novelist as he stroked his blond imperial.

"Yes, that's so," said a second, a big man who writes western stories and delights to have himself photographed in a picturesque felt hat and an overcoat with a cape to it.

"Now, for my 'Prairie Yarns' the best I could do was $25,000, and they haggled over that as if it had been an amateurish performance."

"They treat me the same way," said the little blond man, who has a trick of holding his head on one side. "Now for my 'Skyscraper'—magnificent piece of Chicago color, with Mrs. Seymour-Seymour in it, and the Snobs murder case, and all that, West side and North side and all that—what do you suppose I got for that? A beggarly $35,000, and I was silly enough to take it down and let the royalty go."

They looked at each other narrowly. The man who writes "Prairie Yarns" said he must be going. As the elevator descended with him swiftly he muttered:

"You never can tell one so big that that prig won't go you one better."

The little blond man laid his throbbing forehead in his hand and mused: "It takes something more than the author of 'Prairie Yarns' to feaze me."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

AN EPISODE IN BOERDOM.

For Those Readers Who Are Keeping Up with the War Literature.

An Afrikander, trekking from Schuin's Hoogte to Palapsie with a load of biltong halted by a fontein at the foot of a kloof. A Voortrekker suddenly appeared from behind a kopje, waving a vierkleur.

"Oorlog!" shouted the Voortrekker.

"Dop!" replied the Afrikander, who was a man of ready wit.

"Produce it," said the Voortrekker, "though I am no dopper."

The Afrikander's voorlooper, who was standing on the disselboom munching mealies, jumped off and started on a run toward a krantz. In jumping a sluit his foot slipped on a klip and he fell into a donga. The others, after much dop, got into a heated argument in Taal over the quickest way to the nearest dorp. One said he should take the drift over the spruit, and the other that he should pont over the pan. A zarp came along and took them both around the viel and through the poort to the laager, where they should be safe from rooineks.—N. Y. Sun.

THE ANTI-TRUSTERS

THEIR GREAT CONFERENCE HELD AT CHICAGO.

Minnesota Takes a Leading Part—Spirit, Action and Probable Political Results—Minnesota Delegates—"Rajahala, the Sula Girl," and "Mac's Been Too Long in the Chair"—Protest Against Republican Financial Bill—Conference Summary—Anti-Trust, Like Anti-Imperialist Sentiment, Solid Against the Republicans—Note and Comment of the Conference.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Feb. 19, 1900.

The second great movement, that, while non-partisan, is certain to be of great political effect and to bear, in the nature of the case, large partisan results, is the Chicago anti-trust conference of the past week. That Minnesota has borne a prominent part in both, is a tribute to the patriotic enthusiasm and sentiment for reform prevailing in the North Star state. Thus, also, while Governor Lind has been spreading good political gospel in South Dakota, laymen and colleagues have been aiding in the national work, laid out by the anti-trusters.

Like the anti-imperialist movement in October, so this anti-trust conference represents all sections of the country and all parties. The following was Minnesota's regularly accredited delegation:

From Minneapolis—E. S. Corser, Hon. S. A. Stockwell, Frank D. Larrabee, George S. Canfield, Henry L. Chaffee, Harry A. Lund, Oliver T. Erickson and Rev. S. W. Sample.

From St. Paul—Louis E. Nash, C. W. Stanley and C. J. Buell.

From Tracey—Hon. H. D. Evans.

Ignatius Donnelly, Dr. H. B. Fay and Prof. E. A. Hatch, Minneapolis, were also present, and also former residents, Prof A. B. Westrup and L. M. Ayer.

Minnesota participated fully as prominently as any other state delegation, and her delegation was larger than from almost any of the remote states. Her delegates were called to numerous important committees, while she had three set speeches assigned her, to-wit, by H. L. Chaffee, Rev. S. W. Sample and C. J. Buell. The latter chiefly presented the "Land Monopoly," and Dr. Sample spoke to the text "Monopoly Must Go." Both made deep impressions, and many were present who heard Dr. Sample's big "hit" on Imperialism in October, and all enjoyed his fire and vigor. Dr Westrup spoke for "Free Money."

Mr. Chaffee aroused interest from his prominent connection with the commercial travelers, in the fact that, personally, they have suffered so largely by trust consolidations and retrenchments. Some excerpts from his speech, which wrought the conference up to a high pitch, are these:

"With an enthusiasm worthy of a better cause, a large majority of the commercial salesmen of America, threw themselves in front of the modern car of Juggernaut, until they paved the road to prosperity for the trusts and trust promoters with the bodies of 30,000 of their own comrades!"

"If we are standing in the shadow of universal monopoly, then let it be a public rather than private monopoly."

"We need men, men who love country more than party, men who still believe in the Constitution, men who do not call commerce civilization, men who do not call conquest Christianity, men who will not talk in one breath of dividend-paying trade and franchises, and of divine destiny in the next."

"Let us Lincolize America before we Hannaize the Philippines!"

Mr. Chaffee received an invitation on the spot to go into the 1900 campaign.

Aside from Minnesotans, the trend of thought and investigation and political action is best shown by the following subjects of speeches and papers during the whole session:

Mr Harrison's welcome:

"The greatest injury from trusts is that they rob the young of opportunity and power to put themselves on the footing of manhood that Americans should possess."

"Corporation Evils," Captain Black, Chicago.

"Monopoly and Its Remedy," Governor Lee, South Dakota.

"Monopoly Not Legitimate Outgrowth of Capital, but Result of Special Privileges," Jay D. Miller.

"Direct Legislation, Application to Trust Problem," Dr. George Sherman, Detroit.

"Short-Comings of Anti-Trust Laws," T. Carl Spelling, San Francisco.

"The Battle of the Ages," F. W. Ellis-cott, Troy, Kansas.

"Money Trust, Father of All Trusts," Alex Del Mar, New York.

"How Trusts Fostered, How Destroyed," C. B. Matthews, Buffalo.

"Adequate Laws on Statute Books, Wanted—W. J. Bryan to Enforce Them," Congressman William Sulzer of New York

"Trusts and Imperialism," J. R. Sovereign, Sulphur Springs, Ark

"Menace of Monopoly," Rev Herbert S. Bigelow, Cincinnati. The same, Bolton Hall, New York.

"The New Slavery," (presenting the evils of the black list,) W. J Strong, Chicago.

"Universities Endowed by Trust Magnates," Prof. E. W. Bemis, New York.

"Mining Monopolies," John R. Commons, New York.

"National Fraternal Organizations, or Liberty Trust," W. N. Osgood, Massachusetts.

"The Single Tax," Hon. John S. Crosby, New York.

"Standard Oil Trust," Hon. Frank S. Monett, Ohio

"Non-partisanship and Socialism, the Cure," Mayor Jones, of Toledo.

"Press Monopoly and Control of Intelligence," William A Spalding, Los Angles, Cal.

"Single Tax and Government Ownership," Hon. Thomas L. Johnson, Cleveland.

"Political Action, the Remedy" (election of a president, Bryan, and a congress, Helen M. Gougar, Indiana.

"The Bankers' Trust," "Tariff as a Cause," "Hope in True Democrocy," "Hope in a President to Execute the Laws," were other topics of the league.

National officers are:

President, M. L. Lockwood, Pennsylvania.

Treasurer, C. T. Bride, District of Columbia.

Secretary, Franklyn H. Wentworth, Illinois.

Financial Secretary, W. R. Fleming, Kentucky.

Vice presidents and nucleus for organization were chosen. Minnesota's vice presidents: Hon. Charles A. Towne, Rev. S. W. Sample, Dr. Cora B. Eaton, P. M. Ringdal.

Professor Hatch, better known as the "Singing Parson" has a stunning anti-imperialist song: "Rajahala, the Slave Girl of Sulu," the chorus goes:

"Though the Stars and Stripes are above her,
Rajahala can never be free."

He sang it, and for encore, gave "O, Mac's Been Too Long in the Chair!" The parson simply took 'em by storm.

Most interesting were the reports made on industrial conditions under trust "prosperity." The general condition is not improved. For instance, Mayor Jones, of Toledo, said that his heart ached day by day from applications and appeals from men and women who begged for something to do to earn a living. Helen Gougar, of Indiana, who was a conspicuous member of the conference, stated that her door bell at her home in a trust-"prospered" town, rang from morning to night with pitiful appeals for aid, as much so at any former period. Other reports from Eastern industrial regions describe the rising tide of tramps from men discharged by the trusts from plants purchased and closed down. A number of reports described the destruction of valuable machinery and plants purchased and closed to make sure that they would not be reopened, while the employes by hundreds and by thousands are turned loose in vain search of work, These facts do not reach the general public because carefully edited out of the trust-established daily press.

And speaking of press control, Attorney General Monett described how Standard Oil had reached even the country weeklies in his state, Ohio, with a general system of "so much per line" rates. Thank God, our Minnesota press is above such subsidizing.

And speaking of the Chicago press, barely two dailies, the Chronicle and Democrat gave report and editorial in sympathy with the conference. The Record was quite fair, but in general the dailies gave but meagre space to the conference, and but the merest outline of the papers presented.

And, by the way, our Reform forces in the Northwest should know that The Chronicle is apparently quite with us even on the money question, appreciating the wickedness and danger in much of the Republican financial bill, while on all the rest of our tenets, it is making a grand fight, especially on imperialism and the trusts. The Democrat is, of course, with us in everything.

In general the "Metropolitan" reports of the conference, were about what would have been given a warm cock fight and less than to a football game in season.

The tribute to Mr. Towne was most pleasing to the Minnesota delegation. Upon his illness being made known by the delegation, resolutions of sympathy were at once adopted by a rising vote and telegraphed by the conference to Mr. Towne. The latter's eloquent reply was read at the great Auditorium meeting and received with cheers.

Speaking of personal characters and laborers, none deserve more credit than the Bowens, father and son, Hon. George S. and Hon. George E. Bowen. The elder Bowen is a patriarchal Lincoln Republican, far past the average age allotted man, but vigorous and enthusiastic for the issues of the hour. The son, the former secretary of the American Bi-metallic union, fell in a faint at the opening of the conference from exhausting labors for it. The Bowens will be entrusted with the publication of the proceedings of the conference, every paper and document, in book form, for which orders can be entrusted to this Bureau or sent direct.

Price, cloth bound, $1.00; paper 50 cents.

It was also pleasing to the Minnesotans that Judge Prentiss, remembered for his pro-Boer and anti-imperialist addresses in Minneapolis, was so prominently recognized.

For so large a body and views so diversified, there was little straying from the general thought that political action this year will be the main political relief. The absolute confidence in Byran, breaking into frequent and open expressions, were marked features. Mr. Donnelly's proposition for a new party smothered at once, was an incident. Sincere and life long Republicans present were constantly humiliated with admissions of the hopeless situation of the party of Lincoln, that it is bound hand and foot in the trust control. The gist of the whole matter probably is that the formal platform declared for presents the objects ultimately to be obtained; but there is no expectation that the Democratic party will adopt all the views expressed, but rather do the anti-trusters expect that the Reform platforms will send assurances that they aim, in good faith, in the directions sought, and then the Democracy will receive almost the united support of this new organization, as it is now practically assured that of the anti-imperialists.

The conference was well nigh unanimous that the trust of all trusts is the money trust, witnessed by the adoption by rising vote, amid cheers, of a protest against the Republican gold-standard national bank bill, and appointment of a large committee, the ablest men and women in the conference, to bear the protest to Washington. G. S. C.

Ambiguous.

An Irish cyclist was bitten on the leg by a savage bull terrier. He wrote a long complaint to the local paper, the communication closing with the sentence: "The dog, I understand, belongs to the town magistrate, who resides in the neighborhood, and is allowed to wander on the road unmuzzled, and yet he sits on the bench in judgment on others."—Philadelphia Call.

Old Surliboy—"Hullo, fellow! What are you doing here?" Rustic—"Only courtin', sir. I'se courtin' Mary." Old Surliboy—"Nonsense! What do you want a lantern for? Do you think I used one when I was a young man?" Rustic—"No, sir; I don't think as yer did, judgin' by t' missis!"—London Fun.

Words and Their Effects.

"Do you believe in the influence of single words on a person's character? Some poetical fellow has advanced the theory, you know."

"Yes, I do. There's my wife, for instance. She rises in the morning pale and listless. She picks up the morning paper. Suddenly her eye brightens, her face flushes, her whole appearance changes. A single word has wrought the miracle."

"What's the word?"

"Bargains!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

All things come to him who waits, but the fellow who hustles does not have to wait so long.—St. Louis Star.

YE EDITORS MEET.

Minneapolis Gives the Association a Warm Welcome.

C. S. Mitchell, of Alexandria, Elected President at Thirty-fourth Annual Meeting of the Minnesota Editorial Association.

The thirty-fourth annual session of the Minnesota Editorial and Publishers' Association was held in the West Hotel, in Minneapolis, beginning February 16, and closing the afternoon of the 17th. The meeting was one of the pleasantest and most profitable ever held by the association, and the members bear universal testimony to the fact that everything possible was done for their pleasure and comfort by the Minneapolis Press Club. In fact, the thought moulders had such a good time that some of the members brought to the attention of the organization a proposition that in the future less time be spent in pleasure seeking and more devoted to the business which brought them there.

The meeting was called to order by President Huntington, who, after a few well chosen remarks of congratulation, introduced Mayor Gray. Mr. Gray extended a warm welcome to the fraternity, but was sorry he could not give them the keys of the city, owing to the fact that at the last meeting of the association in Minneapolis the keys were given to President Stranton, and the city had not received the keys back. Consequently the doors of Minneapolis had not been locked against the editors and never would be as long as he (Mayor Gray) had a voice in the matter. In saying this Mayor Gray announced he represented the sentiments of all the business men of the Flour City. In regard to loss of the keys the mayor had nothing more to say. Ex-President Stanton was present but remained discreetly silent. It was learned afterward that Mr. Stanton said he could prove an alibi and as long as he could do that it remained for the other fellow (the keys) to look after his side of the case.

The mayor was roundly applauded. One of the editors was on the point of making a confession, but his "friends and coadjutors" restrained him on the ground that it would be a damaging admission and against the good of the order—that so long as they held the key to the situation "'twere folly to be wise." Mum was the word after that.

President Huntington, of the association, took advantage of the precedent established by "his honor" to read a paper—a piece of paper—on which he had jotted down a few friendly notes of warning, of advice to his brother editors as to the best ways and means of outwitting the deceitful advertisers.

About that time six big cars of the Twin City Rapid Transit Company rolled up to the Hennepin avenue entrance of the hotel and some one yelled: "All aboard for the agricultural school." Everybody got aboard. When the "con" came around some of the editors thrust a nickel at him, but he refused to take it, explaining that it "was against the rules," and that their money wasn't any good anyway. The badge was enough, he said. But some of the men on the free list—and they were used to riding gratis—were not satisfied. They seemed to think they were being imposed upon.

Upon reaching the grounds the members and their wives were taken in charge by Dean Liggett, who showed them all the varied works of the institution, after which a bountiful repast was served. After dinner came speeches and the party returned to the city. In the evening the editors and their wives made up two theater parties, at the Metropolitan and Bijou opera houses. At the Metropolitan some witnessed the performance of the Corinne Opera Company, and others saw "Through the Breakers" at the Bijou.

After the performance the editors—it being a stag party—gathered in the main dining room of the West Hotel, where they whiled away the hours until well into the morning with a social session, in which song and story were very pleasantly intermingled. Colonel A. X. Schall, president of the Press Club, was master of ceremonies, and he made the fun fast and furious.

At the second day's session the following papers were read:

Where Every Editor May Stand, A. W. Blakeley, Rochester Post-Record.

The Editor as a Business Man, J. A. Wharton, Willmar Argus.

Woman's Part in Journalism, Mrs. Franklyn W. Lee, Rush City Post.

Make-up and Type Display, John E. King, Adrian Democrat.

The Extended Influence of the Press if Rural Mail Delivery Were General Throughout Minnesota, Secretary C. P. Stein, St. Paul.

The following officers were elected:

President—C. S. Mitchell, Alexandria.

First Vice-President—W. R. Edwards, Tracy.

Second Vice-President—A. B. Allen, Battle Lake.

Third Vice-President—H. C. Miller, St. Peter.

Secretary—Charles P. Stein, St. Paul.

Treasurer—David Ramaley, St. Paul.

Executive Committee—Frank Meyst, C. C. Whitney, H. P. Hall.

During the taking of the ballot upon the presidency the fact developed that under the constitution but one vote could be cast by representatives of any one paper, and as soon as the ballot was concluded the constitution was amended so as to permit any member of the association to cast a vote and have a voice in the association affairs. The usual resolutions of thanks were returned to those who contributed to the welfare and comfort of the association.

A committee appointed to consider the address of the president reported in favor of taking up the matter of revising and codifying the laws relating to legal printing, and recommended that the executive committee use so much of the funds of the association as necessary in placing the matter before the next legislature and securing the passage of the necessaray bills.

W. R. Estes, George N. Lamphere, H. E. Hoard were appointed the committee to care for the publication of the next law supplement.

The visiting women of the association were given a reception in the afternoon in the corridors of the West Hotel, where the palm garden was a pleasant resort for the guests.

In the evening the few editors and their wives remaining in the city were entertained at the Press Club rooms with stereopticon views of the war in the Transvaal, shown by Thomas H. Russell, who gave an appropriate lecture to accompany each picture displayed.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Rat and the Elevator.

A rat's efforts to secure a breakfast caused one of the elevators in Temple Court, Minneapolis to run away and that no one was injured was due to the coolness of Elevator Attendant Alex Lundeen and the air cushions at the bottom of the shaft. The elevator became unmanageable at the ground floor and shot upwards, striking the beams in the top of the shaft. It demolished several of them, and then shot downward seven stories. The rat had attempted to secure a breakfast from one of the oil cups and when the elevator was started the rodent was caught in one of the pulley-wheels and the cable thrown off the sheave.

Republican Conventions.

According to a decision of the republican state central committee at St. Paul the basis for representation in both the state convention to send delegates to Philadelphia, and to nominate state officers will be the same as for the state convention in 1898—that is, one delegate for each 250 votes cast for President McKinley in 1896, and five delegates at large for each county. The convention to choose four delegates-at-large to the convention at Philadelphia will meet at Minneapolis, Wednesday, May 16.

The convention to nominate state officers will meet at St. Paul Thursday, June 28.

Will Shear Sheep.

The Minnesota Transfer Company has decided to build a sheep shearing plant at New Brighton, and the contract for it has already been let. A building will be erected adjoining the dipping plant, with a capacity of 1,500 sheep a day. There will be fifteen machines. In addition to the shearing plant there will be all the necessary facilities for bailing, packing, sacking and marking. It is estimated there will be 50,000 sheep to shear this coming spring. The plant will cost about $3,000 and will be ready for operation in a month.

State Banks.

Public Examiner Pope has compiled a recapitulated statement of the annual reports of state banks. The ninety-six banks represented have a capital of $4,529,700. There was charged off for losses in former years $223,497.26. Nevertheless the increased surplus amounts to $122,854.40, and the dividends to $326,534.80. This summary shows that the banking business averaged a 10 per cent profit in Minnesota last year.

The Insane.

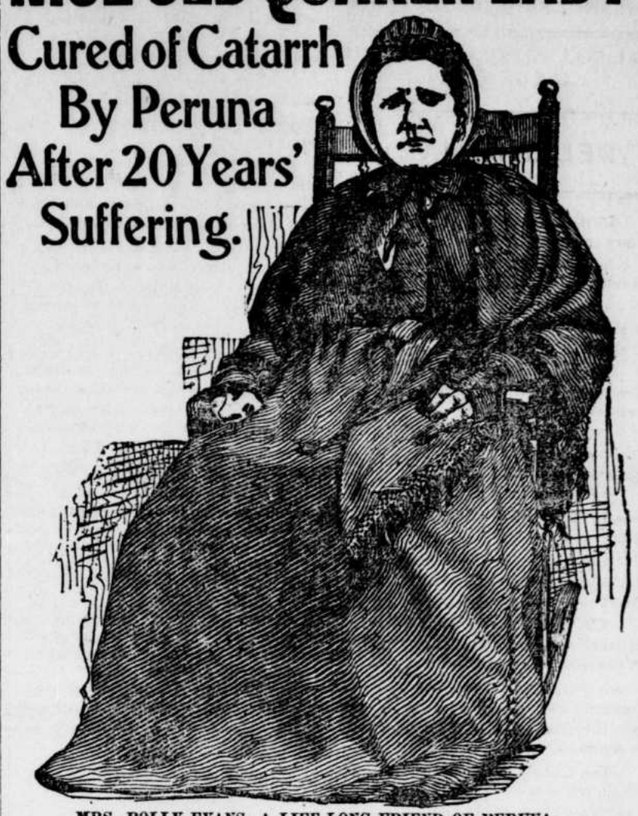
Cured of Catarrh By Peruna After 20 Years' Suffering.



MRS. POLLY EVANS, A LIFE-LONG FRIEND OF PERUNA.

"My wife (Polly J. Evans) says she feels entirely cured of systemic catarrh of twenty years' standing. She took nearly six bottles of thy excellent medicine, Peruna, as directed, and we feel very thankful to the for thy kindness and advice. She did not expect to be so well as she is now. Twelve years ago it cured her of la grippe. I want to tell thee there has been a great deal of Peruna used here last winter. Peruna does not need praising. It tells for itself. We can and do recommend it to anyone that is afflicted with catarrh."

As ever, thy friend, John Evans, South Wabash, Ind.

When catarrh has reached the chronic stage, of course it has gone beyond the reach of all local remedies. Nothing but a systemic remedy can reach it. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised to meet such cases. Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system. It does its work quietly, but surely. It cleanses the mucous membranes of the whole body. It produces regular functions. Peruna restores perfect health in a natural way.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Feb. 23, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Lent commences on the 28th of February this year.

—John Carlson, of Franklin, intends moving to Minneapolis in the spring.

—A debate once a week seems to be the regular routine of the Athletic Club.

—Sleighriding seems to be the fad this week; as sleighriding parties are out every night.

—The Foot Ball Dance proved to be quite a success a large crowd and a good time was had.

—The K. P's. celebrated the aniversary of their birth last Monday. A good time was had.

—A great number of Delanoites are under the weather lately, owing to the change in the weather's tactic's.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fri. 11tf.

—A surprise party was given the Reichel girls Tuesday evening. Games was the chief pastime and a good time is reported.

—The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church will serve lunch from four to seven o'clock Wednesday afternoon Feb. 28, at the parsonage. All are invited.

—Presiding Elder Hingely, will preach at the M. E. Church, Sunday evening. He is a fine sermonizer, as those who heard him when he was here before can testify.

—William Base has sold his farm and house in town to O. Dahlgren who will move into town April 1. Mr. Dahlgren has sold his old home to Mr. Carlson of Winsted.

—People in Minneapolis are being vaccinated and revaccinated. The quarantine regulations are being more strictly enforced in an endeavor to stamp out small-pox.

—The M. W. A. seem to be flourishing. It looks as if the society would become the leading insurance company in this section of the country. They keep taking in new members.

—A progressive cinch party was held at Miss Mollie Maxfield's in honor of her cousin, Miss Anna Maxfield who has been visiting her cousin Mollie in this place. Quite a number of young people were present, and report a good time.

—The topic of the Epworth League was on Temperance, the meeting was well attended, and most everybody had something to say on the subject. The League comences at 6:30 everybody come early and get a front seat next Sunday night.

—Sunday afternoon the roof, on the kitchen near the chimney, of the old Gleason house, caught fire but was quickly extinguished by the aid of the neighbors without alarming the town. Mr Bullen's family were still living their prior to their departure on Monday.

—James O'Leary canvassed our village this week and secured a fine lot of advertisements. He is going to other towns as far as Cokato, and then issue his paper. He informs us that his former partners and old chums, have withdrawn from the firm and it is now James H. O'Leary alone. His former associates are to visit Europe this summer.

—The bull headed Eagle is kicking against the laws of the land again. This time it takes exceptions to the suggestions of the state board of health that fumigation of the single house in Franklin, where small pox has been quarantined, would probably be cheaper if done by a person prepared and familiar with such disinfections. This would be reasonable to any one not "bull headed" as it would be cheaper and safer to have one house and family thoroughly disinfected, than to run the slightest risk, and then to alleviate fears call in a "cinch party" or hold a "reception." The safest way to not have small pox is to thoroughly quarantine and disenfect. In Albert Lea they learned this valuable lesson at the cost of killing an officer who was trying to enforce the law. Such "roasts" as the Eagle gives the State Board of Health are unwarranted. She must be curring sympathy of the tax payers. If she should catch the small pox wouldn't she make the feathers fly though?

—The Washington's Birthday Association, of Delano held its annual celebration on Thursday. The City Hall was crowded, many standing in the hallway. The programme was announced was unusually long. But as several numbers were not responded to, there was enough to make a about two hours' session of what as pronounced by all, one of the most patriotic meetings yet held by the association.

The programme as rendered was as follows, comencing at 2 p. m.:

PROGRAMME.

Music:—America: the audience.

—The A.C. church continues to have revival meetings each evening at Swedback's hall.

--Geo. P. Schaffer is expecting a large assortment of the finest spring goods of the season this week.

--The Syndicate papers publish this week a notice of delinquent taxes. Look over one and see if you owe the county anything.

--Several lumberjacks have returned from the woods recently. They report typhoid fever among the men and came home, they claim, to escape it.

--The village council have closed a running contract with the G. N. to supply water for engines at Delano for $25 per month, the contract to be voided by either side on 30 days notice.

--Town Clerk Ziebarth, of Franklin, informed us this A. M. that he understood that the premises of W. F. Wandersee, which has been under quarantine for small pox for several weeks, was yesterday fumigated. This, it is hoped, will end the small pox scare in Franklin.

—Quite a number of the lady friends of Mrs. W. J. Coffin gathered at the family home and gave her a most pleasant surprize last Saturday night, it being a birthday. The invading party came well supplied with edibles, and left several tokens in the way of useful articles to remind Mrs. Coffin of the esteem and friendship in which she is held by her friends and acquaintances --Pioneer, Ida Grove, Iowa.

Mrs. W. J.'s Delano friends are pleased to hear from her and to know that the friends in her new home use her so well.

Personal.

Clark Sturman transacted business at Buffalo Monday.

Chas. Baker departed for Winona this week for a vacation.

Miss Maggie Steffes has returned from a short visit to St. Louis.

Miss Emma Welse, of Minneapolis, is spending a few days at home.

Miss Flannigan, of Buffalo, is visiting her friend, Mrs. C. H. Green.

Miss Anna Maxfield, of Kensington, visited Delano friends this week.

Rev. Thompson and Dr. Catlin drove over to the County Seat on business Monday.

Dr. Hawkins, of Montrose, made a professional visit in Delano Monday afternoon.

Miss Mattie Lowe starts Monday for Colfax Wis., where she will visit with relatives.

Mrs. Thos. Reichel will move to Minneapolis next week to make her home for awhile.

W. F. Parslow starts next week for Hankinson, N. D., where he will work for the Soo.

Miss Mamie Fautch, who is employed at Waverly, visited old friends in Delano this week.

Miss Stella Davis, who's term of school at Silver Creek has closed, returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dahlgren, of Independence, drove into church several times this week.

Miss Anna Erwig, of Annandale, is spending a couple of weeks with friends and relatives in Delano.

Henry Bock, Joe Merriman and Base, drove to Lake Beeb e Tuesday on a fishing excursion.

Geo. Coffin is home spending a few days with his parents. He is well pleased with his school work this year.

T. B. Rader and A. L. Mealey accompanied the butter makers of Minnesota to Lincoln, Nebraska, this week.

J. P. Bernick, of Minneapolis, is in our village. After a few more days in the city he expects to become a Delanoite once more.

School Notes

Blanche Rader was absent Monday.

The Caesar class remained after school last Tuesday.

There was no school yesterday in remembrance of George Washington's birthday.

Miss Addie Wittman was excused from school last Wednesday on account of sickness.

The High School and Grammar rooms were given a lecture on matrimony. What next?

The scholars that went to the masquerade ball last week had a little extra work after school.

Miss Katie Frank has been chosen to fill the vacancy of Miss Mollie Maxfield and Miss Blanche Rader as organist.

Some of the seats have been elevated for the convenience of some of the "large pupils" in the High School room, making the seats of a uniform size.

One of the High School boys was obliged to go home yesterday on account of chilblains which he contracted while hunting rabbits the night before.

For all those having text books, and who destroy them by writing or drawing on the pages will probably have to pay the full cost of booke destroyed at the end of the year.

Owing to the lateness of the literary week befor last a motion was made and seconded to adjourn, and carried by the pupils before the program was finished although the critic's report was heard before the pupils disbanded.

One of the pupils, expelled last week, will probably be greatly benefited with the week's vacation, and will now, undoubtedly, be able to carry on his school work until the end of the term without any injurious results.

List of Patents

County Cullings.

Quarterly conference will be held Saturday afternoon, Feb. 24, at 2 P.M. at Montrose M. E. church, P.E. Hingely to preside.

Clerk of Court Vorse is issuing certicates to Health Officers and Town Clerks for Births and Deaths reported for 1899, and Auditor Swanberg is supplying new books for registering the same in future.

Bro. French of the Monticello Times having affirmed that he will not be a candidate for the legislature, the Herald seems to take it for granted that Bro. Buckley will be a candidate, and says, "We do not know of anyone more capable." There are many people in Cokato who would like to see Mr. Buckley given a show on some elective candidacy.—Enterprise.

It seems that the yellow metal democrats of Buffalo did not succeed in securing the Journal plant at Buffalo. But that it has gone Republican by a large majority. "They that are not for us are against us," has again been verified. If a man believes in gold standard, protective tariff, trusts, imperialism and a few more of the poor man's oppressers let him vote, as he believes, straight Republican and not be parading, like a "wolf in sheep's clothing," as a democrat, opposed to Bryan and Bryanism". If he is a Democrat let him be a Democrat. and let him support party principles and help elect men who believe in the people and in the people's rights.

ROCKFORD.

The Village Counsel met at the Recorder's office, Feb'y 10. After the usual business they appointed A. A. Farnham and George Elliott, Judges of election and B. Matteson Clerk, for the village election, which will be held at Centennial Hotel. A village caucus will be held at the same place, on Monday, March 5, at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of nominating candidates for village officers.

The lecture of A. W. Rrnkin, at G A R. Hall, Thursday evening, subject: "Formative Influences", was altogether on educational matters, and was well worth listening to.

He visited the schools Friday and yesterday wrote as follows:

Minneapolis, Feb'y 17. 1900.

D. R. FARNHAM, ROCKFORD, Minn.

Sir: I spent an hour in your schools vesterday and found it in excellent shape, take it altogether. I have not seen so good a school in Rockford; the pupils are orderly and still do not seem to be oppressed. The work is going on well.

D. R. Thompson, C. M. Johnson and D. R. Farnham went to the city, on the Soo, to represent this school district before the Board of Hennepin County Commissioners, in the matter of the petition of Sam Thompson, to be set off to Dist. No. 76, Hennepin county. After a somewhat lengthy talk the matter was adjourned to Monday, March, 5.

"Did not know it was loaded", so says Roy Bugbee. "He snapped it for fun" and it went off in earnst, on Monday evening when his 22 caliber pistol hit him in the middle of his finger and stopped in the middle of his hand. Dr. Murray had to cut away considerable to find it. Roy says that he will burn up that pistol as soon as he gets home, and that will be the end of his pistol craze.

Miss O'Connor, the intermediate teacher is being visited by her mother from St. Paul.

Mr. George Elliott is sick, Dr. Murray says that it is quite a serious case of lung and throat trouble.

Deputy Sheriff Anderson was here today looking after the delinquent tax lands, owned by A. J. Finnigan. many pieces the owners say that they did not know anything about delinquent taxes; qut they have been hunted up for, lo, these many years.

And now the logs begin to roll. Both sawmills are running. And the wood begins to move, but there does not seem to be a large stock on hand. It looks pretty scarce about the R. R. station.

Another dance and raffle at the hall last Friday evening.

A little more snow is wanted to make good sleighing.

Miss Schmidt, our primary teacher, went to M'p'lis Friday evening where she will meet a sister who is on her wedding tour.

Geo. Flordia and his sister, Mrs. Fuller and daughters, Belle Jacobs and Chester Johnson attended the masquerade ball, at Delano last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Prior is on the sick list.

Mr. Rankin was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Prior. We consider it an honor to be the host of such a man. His very presence is an inspiration to any one.

The A. O. U. W. Lodge must be flourishing, Charles Bugbee, Don Ames Elwin Guptil, George Vale, George Cook and Sam Thompson were initiated at their last meeting, while several delinquent members were reinstated. After the session closed refreshments were served.

A friend of ours who visited the school last week says, "I was in the intermediate department for a whole hour last week and didn't hear one word of talking back". This surely is an improvement. If parents could only realize how much they might help the school by making their children mind, it seems as if they would put more force in that direction. And what a benefit to the boys and girls themselves!

MAPLE PLAIN.

How many times have you written 1899 instead of 1900 during the last month and a half it has happened to us a good many times. Perhaps the next generation may become familiar with writing 1900.

February has given us some cold weather and the sleighing has been quite good for ten days or two weeks.

Quite a good many logs are coming into O. Stymers saw mill. Farmers are using more native lumber of late, can't afford to pay such a high price for pine lumber with a high protective tariff as an appendege.

Julius Hardt, O. Styner and R. M. Mills are in Minneapolis as witneses on the Bryant vs. Bryant law suit.

Rev. P. C. Steffens, of Minneapolis, preached at A. C. Church, Armstrong, last Sunday Rev. Kennison the pastor being at Delano engaged in a protracted effort at that place. Rev. Steffens is a young man just beginning the work as a minister and from all outward appearences promises well.

The Spiritualists meetings held at Maple Plain last week by Mr. and Mrs G. W. Kates were largely attended. Have not learned whether they made any converts or not.

The Annual Town meetings will be here in a few weeks.

Sugar making in this part of the country is a thing of the past, but it would come in in good plav just now when the farmer has to pay so high for that luxury. And the question comes up can the sugar beat industury of the United States proper compete with the sugar industry of the Islands now annexed or to be annexed to the United States, where they employ breechclout labor for raising and manufacturing refined sugar, it seems to me that the manufacturers of the States proper will have to pull up their plants and look for greener pastures, will the consumer get his sugar any cheeper it does not look that way now, he will be compelled to pay the freight while the other fellow pockets the ducats.

The financial or currency bill has passed the United States Senate by a strict party vote. When this becomes a law and is in full force, then they will have the key to the situation and who will be able to wrest it from their hands. Its victims will be legion, it will know no mercy, all will share alike in its cruelty. The youth in its innocence and beauty will suffer, and those of mature years full of strength and vigor will be compelled to meet the requirements of the money sharks for who this law was created, it was created for their bennefit and self aggrandizement. But the worst is to come it has for its victim the aged and decrepit with white and hoary locks who have for many score years been saving up a small pittance, whereby they might in old age, have enough to live on, keep them out of the poor house while they live, and out of the potters field when they die. But this single gold standard is no charitable institution; it brings neither repentence nor salvation; but, for filthy lucer it strikes the youth, the middle aged, the old and decrepit, also the feeble minded, and by one swoop of this gigantic monster it can lay low all who attempt to stand against it.

The monied men say we demand of you for your obligations gold, both principal and interest and you will have to pay a premium on the gold to get it. This gold standard law may be a good thing for some people to live by, but I hardly think it just the thing to die by. FARMER.

County Seat News.

The Treasurer and his able assistant S. W. Junkin are more than usually busy making out tax receipts. They are accommidating and sell them at from 4cts apeace to as high as you care to go. But they do the sizeing up of your pile and you have to pay their price.

Politics is said to be very quiet, but was buzzing about in most of the corners of the court house like a swarm of bees hunting for the sweetest spots. Assistant Auditor Reinmuth appears to be getting into the best running condition. It will require a pretty good democrat to beat him next fall, if he runs for Auditor.

The irrepressible voice of Tim Desmond the Bryan Democrat, was to be heard as he argued for his chosen candidate for president. He was somewhere in town.

Judge Woolley appears a little the worse for wear and has several assistants very busy at work in his office. Possibly making his last will and testament before retiring next fall from the position he has so long occupied at the court house.

Superintendent Lee, of Annandale, was at the political headquarters, the county commissioner's room. He seems as frisky, and even more anxious to enter the race for a third term than he did for either of his other terms.

Sheriff Nugent, was, also, at political headquarters, the Auditors room, "Of course on business."

Landlord Shattar's dinners are as much in demand as ever, and fully as palitable while the music is enjoyed by late as well as by early comers.

Editor Saylor, formerly of the Howard Lake Herald has purchased the Journal plant from Mrs Narcissa B. Eaton, and the paper will, we presume, advocate the cause of McKinley henceforth. The office is being sealed and repaired and things will, doubtless soon put on metropolitan airs.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

REPRESENTATIVES Fletcher and Heatwold voted against the Porto Rico tariff bill. The pressure from Minneapolis was more than even Uncle Loren could resist.

SENATORS to be elected by the people seems to be gaining ground. Why not when such times as Clark, Quay and Hanna have had, keep coming to the front? The people would like good pure men for Senators.

IN commenting on the conference committee's report of a new finance law, the Pioneer Press sums up by saying "The rest of the bill is straight business. The Amendment (international bimetallism) is sneaking and cowardly doughface politics."

THE Anoka Herald evidently thinks spelling a man's name without caps and spaces a good way to make him look little, and tries it on Sam Langum. He should have profited by his fellow townsman's efforts with "jack lind". But some people don't seem to learn anything.

TELEGRAMS say that "Great Britain has announced her purpose to censor official all as well as private cablegrams sent to international representatives, at Pretoria". G. B evidently thinks she is the whole machine. Of what use can "sonny" Hay be in Pretoria if all "Papa" Hay's mail to him is to be inspected?

THE aspirant for the republican nomination for Congress from the 6th Minnesota district, J. Adam Bede, has a timely article on "Who Is Civilized?" in his January, 1900, Budget. He concludes the article in a very sensible fashion and says of the Boers that they: "under all of the rules recognized by civilized governments are and of a right ought to be, a free and independent state."

PRESIDENT McKINLEY is right about allowing the products of Porto Rico to come to America free. If that island is a part of the United States its inhabitants should be placed on an equilibrium with the people in commercial affairs at once. It is a shame to prohibit their products from our shores by a protective tariff. Let the President be as firm when he is right, as he has been when he was not, some times.

Admiral Dewey's Prize Money.

If the g. o. p. keeps right along they will, doubtless, succeed in establishing the fact that they either lied a lot about Admiral Dewey before, or are doing so now. they paraded as facts that he stole a march on the superior fleet of the Spanish at Manila, and licked them awfully: consequently was a great man, About that time too, we were led to believe, as were the Filipinoes, that Americans wanted to free all oppressed peoples, especially from Spainsh tyranny. And Aguinaldo, Dewey and other notes men of the Filipino and American armies were working together to the end that especialy the Philippine Islands, would, in future govern themselves. When things had, under Providence, come out about sight, presto! change! and the United States claimed to have conquered the islands from Spain, when all she had taken, and that with Filipino help, was the harbor and Manila. The Filipinoes themselves haveing driven the Spanards from the remainder, of the land. Admiral Dewey was heralded as the hero of the day, and as having achieved a wonderful victory. Then it was announced that the United States had for $20,000,000 purchased of Spain, the Philippine Islands,! after just having conquered them? And they have been engaged ever since in keeping the "situation well in hand," and now comes the awful news that the United States court of claims to day rendered a decision on the claim of Admiral Dewey for prize money on account of the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila harbor. The court decided against the Admiral's contention that the enemy's force was superior to his and awarded him $9,570.

Was, then ,Admiral Dewey's achevement an insignificant affair after all; or is it political policy to have people think so now? Or, have the poweres that would be, grown tired of their "Oriental possessions" so soon, and prize them less than they did two years ago.

ACCORDING to Gage, Macrums an "Ass." He is a little hard on Hay.

MRS. DANIELS, wife of Dr. A. W. Daniels, of St. Peter, died, March 1.

MINNESOTIANS are said to be in Washington this week beginning on political prospects. Towne and Lind are among them.

THE G. A. R. encampment, at Minneapolis, this week, elected as Department Commander, Ex Lieut. Gov. Gideon S. Ives, of St. Peter.

THE English evidently don't consider Africa subdued. They have 56.600 more men booked to be there in May.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY favors bimetallism; and free trade among the people flooting the American flag, but climbs onto th) g. o. p, bandway on as it goes by.

COL. W. S. KING, of Minneapolis, died, Saturday, Feb'y 24, aged 71 years. He was a Member of Congress from our district while we were a part of the old 4th district.

SENATOR KNUTE NELSON has got back to his old love, free trade. He knows his constituents don't believe in tariff between Porto Rico and the States' even if some of the trusts do want it.

"NINETY per cent of all marriages proye unhappy." announced Prof. William Graham Sumner, head of the Yale department of social science, to the senior class, the other day."

Wonder if Prof. Sumner was happier before marriage; or if he is an old bachelor?

AFTER the terrible battle that has been raging for days, between English and Boer armies in the Transvaal, the Boer forces with their commander surrendered.. And now we learn that Lord Roberts had 45,000 men and Cronje something less than 4,000 Cronje seems to get the most praise for having held out for so long against such odds.

FREE trade between Porto Rico and the United States is just as reasonable as it is between Jersy City and New York --Eagle.

Of course it is. But don't be in a hurr Bickley. Just re-elect Page Morris and perhaps he can get the 15 percent tarriff clause to include New York and Jersey City next term. He said he'd "go to Congress a Republican and come back a Republican."

"WE want a representative in Congress who will hold up the President's hands," said Page Morris a couple a years ago, and now we have a representative there trying to equalize the prices of lumber and sugar, by voting a tariff on products of what is claimed United States territory, while President McKinley advises sticking by the constitution in that matter.

Rev. J. S. Montgomery of Minneapolis was not cast in the same mold as Parson Riley. He offered the toast: "The United States; bounded on the north by the aurora borealis; on the south by the procession of the equinoxes; on the east by the rising sun; and on the west by the day of judgment."--Anoka Herald.

From the expansive ideas of some it seems as if the Rev. might have safely added, from the bottem most foundation of heaven to the bottom most foundation of hell.

SEVERAL rank Republican, protective tariff papers are howling awfully about the advance in prices of paper, caused by protective tariff on paper pulp. It hurts them, in their business. They don't seem to sympathize with other businesses But "what's sause for the goose, is sauce for the gander" and they ought not to advocate screwing up the price of lumber, nails, glass and everything elese while they whine for their own business We believe in "epual rights for all, and special privileges for none." Take your medicine boys or advocate a reduction in tariff all along the line. An income tax would hit us better, and let the fellows that have the wealth contribute their share to Uncle Sam's support.

Whose a Republican?

"If I'm elected I'll go to Congress a Republican and come back a Republican" said our representative Page Morris, when he spoke here during the east campaign. Then why don't he vote for no tariff between the different parts of the United States? Or isn't Porto Rico a part of our country? Or doesn't President McKinley know what Republicanism is any more?

Why not William Henry?

If Van Saint had been nominated two years ago, the people of Minnesota would not have been humiliated by the spectatle of their governor refusing common courtesy to the president of the United States on the occasion of his visit last fall.—Aitkin Republican.

William Henry is noted for his especially polite introductions of speakers, and would have doubtless enjoyed very much the exquisite pleasure of speaking from the same platform as did the President, and probably would have done the job as well as Van would.

McKINLEY has more sense and more sand than all the rest of the politicians in Woshington.—Eagle.

Yes, he knew enough to climb onto the protective chariot as it passed. But Buckley needs another week, to get his eyes open to the fact that the "protective principle must and will be preserved."

THE more that leaks out about Lord Robert's victory over Gen. Cronje the smaller it looks, 45,000 men with 60 canons raining lydite and other missles into an untenable position occupied by 8,000 Boers, was the way before taken. After taken, it is less than 4,000 Boers, with half a dozen or so cannons, and only 8 killed by the terrific cannonading of the English.

"Convention Meet."

"It is a wonder it didn't occur to Mr. Bryan to have the convention meet in Frankfort Ky."—Hot Tamles Dispatch.

Is it any greater wonder than that President McKinley didn't have his meet in one of the Londons?

Page Morris Republicanism.

"We want a representative in congress who will hold up the President's hands."

If I'm elected I'll go to congress a Republican and come back a Republican."

President McKinley recommends free trade with Porto Rico; Representative Morris of the 6th Dist, votes against it.

Be on Guard.

"Charles E. Macrum, late 'Envoy Extraordinary' at Pretoria, has discovered a secret treaty between the Administration and England, and Cholly Towne has unearthed a plot whereby McKinley is to be declared Emperor. Great Caesar! what is this country coming to?"—Sherbune county Times.

Isn't it about time to be on guard? when England can open Uncle Sam's mail to his consuls, and then openly announce that she will censor all cable grams, it look's as if it was about time to ask "What is this country coming to"? To England of course.

Yale Professor Says Many Ideals Are Shattered.

Declares in a Lecture That Ninety Per Cent. of All Marriages Prove Unhappy—Ideals Never Realized.

"Ninety per cent. of all marriages prove unhappy," announced Prof. William Graham Sumner, head of the Yale department of social science, to the senior class, the other day.

Prof. Sumner was delivering a lecture on "The Family, Population, and Marriage," when he made a sweeping statement that "love and romance die out with the sound of the wedding bells. The novelist takes the hero and heroine to the altar and leaves them to fight it out."

"In the strictest sense marriage is an ideal thing that has never been realized. Vicissitudes act on the couple and change them, and not more than ten per cent. realize their ideal. That is to say that not more than ten per cent. of married people at the end of their lives, looking back, can honestly say that they have realized all of the happiness and all of the ideals they started out in the married life with.

"People to-day connect marriage and religion, the women especially feeling a desire for religious sanction. Hence, they think that the marriage ceremony is marriage. From societology we hold that the ceremony is not marriage, the marriage ceremony being an afterthought. It was not adopted until the sixteenth century.

"The poetry of the marriage ideal ends with the ceremony, too often," he said. "Most young men marry because they think it is right and that it is time for them to do so. They fail to find their ideal many times. And most often they fail to realize their ideal in the married life. Furthermore, the marriage ceremony nowadays is often too much a matter of show.

"Marriage was based on the struggle for existence. It was a cooperation between man and woman to make a living on the plan that working together in cooperation against a common antagonist they could do better than each of them working separately against the same antagonist.

"The marriage relation has been subjected to idealization. It was at first gross, but has become idealized, and has entered the great field of poetry and romance."

RESENTS PASTOR'S VIEWS.

Millionaire Huntington Refuses to Attend Church Because Rector Holds Anti-Trust Opinions.

Collis P. Huntington and his family have left St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, at Westchester, N. Y. He does not agree with the rector, Dr. F. M. Clendennin, who has radical views about trusts and the money power. St. Peter's church is one of the oldest parishes in this part of the country. The rector has antagonized many of the fashionable parishioners, and those who now attend his church are largely villagers, not blessed with any large amount of this world's goods.

The rector also made an attack on saloons. Out on the Pacific coast Collis P. Huntington's Southern Pacific Railroad company operates bars at pleasure resorts. They pay large dividends, and the railroad magnate does not approve of prohibition ideas for a public that has money to spend.

"I have not been in St. Peter's church," said Mr. Huntington, "for something like two years. I am not in accord with Mr. Clendennin. I did not know that he had been lecturing against trusts. I did know considerable of what he was doing four or five years ago, but for the last two years I have known very little of his doings."

"There has been no serious disagreement between Mr. Huntington and myself," says the rector. "I have not been talking against trusts and the money power. It is possible that some of the leisure class do not like my teachings, but I always regarded Mr. Huntington as being very democratic. Only a few days ago he sent me some money for the poor of the parish."

REFUSES PROFFERED HONOR.

Admiral Sampson Declines Presidency of a College—His Reasons for So Doing.

Admiral Sampson has been offered the presidency of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but has declined it. Upon being asked to make public his reasons for declining he said:

"These should be evident. It would mean my leaving the service with which I have been so long identified and entering upon a new life, for which I am probably less fitted than for the one which I now hold. While I appreciate the honor conferred upon me, and while, as a matter of fact, such a change would mean an increase in salary, at my time the change is not to be thought of."

Not Yet Entirely Germanized.

Even at this late date a number of the men of Alsace and Lorraine oppose service in the German army. In the 99 districts of Metz 89 persons on January 1 were before the court on this account.

AN ECCENTRIC ORDER

"Holy Ghost and Us" Society Organized at Boston.

Its Members Pledged to Go Out Into the World to Preach the Gospel Without Money.

Boston has got down to practical religion. The "Holy Ghost and Us society" is creating a sensation, and men, women and children are casting all their worldly belongings at the feet of F. W. Sandford, leader of the movement, and going out into the world to preach the Gospel without money and without knowing where their food or clothes or shelter is coming from.

What Mr. Sandford offers is a religion stripped of formality, dignity, and creeds.

The "Holy Ghost and Us society" makes no hesitation about cursing all creeds and denominations alike. That the ministers and the press of Boston have risen against this intruder does not affect Mr. Sandford in the least.

"The Holy Ghost and Us," he said, when asked to explain the motive for the society's eccentric name, "stands for a combination that owns and moves heaven and earth.

"To us, the beings who inhabit the earth, and the Holy Ghost, the living and present representative of God, there is nothing the earth can refuse to yield. Why should people work and take their minds from spiritual things when the Holy Ghost, who is just as real and actual a living man as any of us, yet vested with supernatural power, stands here in our midst ready to provide us with a living?"

"But everyone who works does not find a living coming so easily," was suggested.

"Then it's because they have not made friends with the Holy Ghost. If you will make His acquaintance you will find that you won't have to work for a living, but that He will be at your elbow ready to provide for every need—from food and drink and clothes and shelter to your car fares."

ATHEISM BRINGS TO JAIL.

New York Father Who Refuses to Send His Boy to School Because He There Learns About God.

Carl S. Bitner was a prisoner in the Morrisania police court, New York, the other day because he persisted in refusing to send his boy Carl, 12 years old, to the public schools so long as anything about God shall be taught in the religious exercises. Magistrate Deuel commanded him to send the boy to school, and Bitner said that he would do so with the proviso that the boy should be allowed to leave the room whenever religious exercises are held.

On December 8 Miss Margaret Marvin, a teacher in school No. 62, gave as a dictation exercise an extract from Longfellow:

Let us do our work well, both the unseen and the seen—
Make the house where God may dwell beautiful, entire and clean.

Carl Bitner was in the class, and he wrote the lines correctly, but left out the word "God." The teacher thought he had done so unintentionally, and asked him to write it over. He did so, but again left out the same word. She called him up and asked him why he left the word out. The boy replied that his father forbade him to speak or write the word, as there was no such thing. The teacher took him to Mr. Silver, the principal, who sent him home with a note.

In court Bitner said that this was the third time he had been compelled to take his children away from the public schools because the teachers insisted on religious teaching.

SILK SPIDERS IN VENEZUELA.

A Report from Consul Plumacher Shows Great Possibilities of a New Industry.

Consul Plumacher, of Maraicabo, under date of December 26, reports to the state department that large silk-spinning spiders are found in the palm trees of Venezuela. Some produce white, some yellow silks. The consul understands that the silk has been made into handkerchiefs. A copy of the report, together with a specimen of silk which accompanied it, was referred to the department of agriculture. Under date of January 27, the Entomologist says that silk produced in this way cannot be made valuable commercially, because of the troublesome necessity of keeping the spiders separated to prevent their devouring each other. Their food being insects, this also involves considerable labor in supplying them. Attempts to utilize the silk of a Madagascar spider of the same species some years ago resulted in the discovery that the product was more expensive than ordinary silk.

Hymen's Knot Tied in a Tree.

A Louisville bride had peculiar notions about weddings and she had made up her mind to have her marriage different from the ordinary ceremonial. There were to be no attendants except the maid of honor, the bride's sister, and at the appointed hour the family congregated about a large gnarly tree, the oldest growing on the country place where the alfresco service was to take place. At the same time the bride and groom, maid of honor and the clergyman came from the house, and when they reached the tree they climbed it and the ceremony was performed amid the foliage of the lower branches.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23, 1900.

The Democratic National Committee, which met in Washington this week, to name the time and place for holding the National Convention, did not please everybody, but they came about as near to it as any committee ever did. In the very nature of things such decisions must always cause some personal disappointments, but the rank and file are pleased with both city and date, and better pleased with the reports of the members of the committee on the steadily increasing brightness of democratic prospects.

Democratic speeches against the Porto Rico tariff bill have made it clear that the democratic construction of the Constitution as it applies, or should apply to Porto Rico, is the proper one, and is upheld by the contentions of a long line of statesmen as well as by decisions of the Supreme Court. So many good speeches have been made by democrats that it seems unjust to mention any particular one without mentioning others, but the following words of Representative Swanson condenses what was said in other words by a number of them and is given as showing the line of democratic argument: "If Congress shall govern the Territories and new possessions without the constitutional limitations, it will create a Congressional despotism precisely similar to that claimed by Great Britain at the time of the Revolutionary War. The power claimed to enact this bill is precisely the power that was claimed by the British Parliament for the enactment of the stamp act. The present bill, denying, as it does, to the inhabitants of all Territories and new possessions any of the rights of citizens and imposing heavy penalties on them, will have a tendency to give new life to the insurrection in the Philippine Islands and make the inhabitants have little faith receiving justice from this country. The passage of the pending bill will end the history of the empire." The republicans have called a caucus for the purpose of whipping the republican opponents of the bill into line.

The fact should not be lost sight of that it was republican objection that knocked out the proposition to set a day for the consideration of the Hepburn Nicaragua Canal bill by the House. After asking Mr. Heburn whether there was anything in the bill recognizing the existence of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and being assured that there was not, Representative Richardson, the democratic leader, stated that there was no objection on the democratic side to setting a time to take up the bill. Then Representative Payne objected.

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee is now ready for work, having this week elected the following officers: Chairman, Representative James D Richardson, of Tenn.; Secretary, Hon. James Kerr, of Pa.; Treasurer, Mr. James L. Norris, of Washington; Sergeant-at-arms, Mr. George Rae, of Texas. Headquarters will be opened in Washington in a few days

Col. Denby, who was a member of the old Philippine Commission, has declined appointment as a democratic member of the new commission, and Gen. Luke E. Wright, of Tenn., has been appointed.

Representative Richardson has pointed out a way to curb the trusts, under recent decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court. He has offered two resolutions, one prohibiting the transportation of sugar owned by the sugar trust and the other prohibiting the transportation of wood pulp and printing paper owned by the paper trust, until the Interstate Commerce Commission are satisfied that the prices charged for such articles will not yield the manufacturers thereof a net profit of more than 4 per cent.

Recognizing that this Congress is inclined to be favorable to schemes for grabbing public money, a gang of Washington speculators have revived the scheme to sell the government the unprofitable marshy ground south of Pennsylvania Avenue, from the Capitol to the Treasury, as sites for contemplated public buildings, and are busy working up support for it in both branches of Congress, and some Senators and Representatives have already been caught by their talk about the necessity of beautifying the Avenue connecting the Capitol and the Treasury. The jobbers in bond this scheme are only thinking of making a connection between the Treasury and their pockets, and the constituents of the Congressmen who support the scheme would do well to advise them to beware of their danger

An amusing feature of the debate in the House on the Porto Rico tariff bill was the rather broad hint of Representative Bromwell, of Ohio, who spoke against the bill but said he would vote for it if the substitute providing for free trade was not carried, to Mr. McKinley to let the members of his party in the House known whether he had changed his mind since he recommended, in his annual message, free trade for Porto Rico. He said it was the duty of Mr. McKinley to notify Congress if he had changed his mind on this question.

Alaska begins to knock at the territorial door with considerable earnestness. It has been American soil 33 years, and feels that it ought to have a delegate in congress to set forth its resources.

If the Florida orange crop is killed this year by the cold, as seems possible from reports, it will be the third time within ten years, and the event may be looked upon as a reasonably trustworthy sign that the region is not adapted to orange growing.

Three men who had formerly been newspaper reporters in Albany, N. Y., became members of the cabinet. Daniel Manning, Daniel S. Lamont and Charles Emory Smith less than 25 years ago sat side by side reporting the proceedings of the New York legislature.

William Colombe, an Indian and a private in the Fourth United States cavalry in the Philippines, has written a letter to the superintendent of the Carlisle Indian school, of which institution he is a graduate, saying that he shot and killed the Filipino sharpshooter who shot Gen. Lawton.

The recent sale of an art collection in New York brings out the fact that within 12 months nearly $400,000 has been paid out by Americans for the work of American painters. This is encouraging, and shows that patrons of art are basing their selections on the merit of the work and not on the fact that it was done by foreign artists.

While traveling through the Philippines a government geologist reports that his ship passed over a stretch of water whereon there writhed 50,000,000 snakes, of a golden yellow color, with checkerboard patterns done in black and green. The eminent scientist neglects to give any accompanying analysis of the alcoholic beverages sold in the Philippines.

Ruckstuhl, the great New York sculptor, has a scheme to crown the famous Palisades with a stone monument 600 feet high. Itself 600 feet high, and resting on a cliff equally high, the top of the monument would be higher by 200 feet than the Eiffel tower. The idea is to give the monument a practical as well as ornamental use, and use it for a water tower and lighthouse.

It is officially announced from St. Petersburg that the first section of the Trans-Balkan division of the Siberian railway has been completed, and that by the middle of the summer there will be through communication between St. Petersburg and Vladivostock, a distance of 6,372 miles. It is estimated that it will take 24 days to make the run. Russia is a country of magnificent distances.

The retirement of Susan B. Anthony from the presidency of the National Woman Suffrage association is calling forth a fund of interesting incidents and stories of her life. It is recalled that in 1872 Miss Anthony was arrested for attempting to vote for president. Her action was intended to test the amendment, and she attempted to force the election judges to accept her ballot. Miss Anthony was arrested and fined, but she never paid the fine.

A German agrarian paper has figured it out that the one inspector at the Armour packing works, by working ten hours a day, "can examine just one hog a minute" for export, and concludes that such an examination "must often be careless." Evidently the editor in question has never visited Chicago's stock yards. When a living porker can be passed through all the necessary stages and emerge as sausage inside of three minutes, one minute for inspection seems amply sufficient.

A recent orator in an Indiana town grew enthusiastic in his eulogy of the American flag, climaxing his peroration with the startling statement that "The American flag, gentlemen and ladies, now floats from New York to the Philippines, from the Klondike to Porto Rico, and from Havana to Cuba!" This was almost equal to another orator in the same town who declared that a certain sewer, objected to as not large enough for the territory it was expected to drain, was "amply sufficient enough to hold all the water it could contain."

The agricultural experiment station work which has proved of the greatest practical value to the agricultural interests of the United States is likely to be extended to the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has asked congress to appropriate $15,000 for Hawaii, $10,000 for the Philippines and $5,000 for Porto Rico in order to establish experiment stations on these islands. He believes that even these small appropriations will accomplish a great deal of good on account of the present lack of knowledge among the natives.

Perhaps in no other country of the world are judges and courts treated with more respect than in England, and there are few, if any, that have a higher standard in the judiciary as to morals and ability. The outward respect may not be material to the dignity of the just judge and of his court, but without such form there is generally a falling off in respect for law itself. The Bar association of Chicago has introduced an innovation on established customs by providing that lawyers shall rise as the judge enters and remain standing until he is seated.

CRONJE SURRENDERS

The Boer Commander Finally Lays Down His Arms.

Capitulation Occurs at Dawn on the Anniversary of the Famous Majuba Hill Battle—Terms Unconditional.

London, Feb. 27.—It is officially announced that Gen. Cronje surrendered unconditionally at dawn this morning.

Roberts Tells the Story.

London, Feb. 27.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Paardeberg, Feb. 27, 7:45 a. m.—Gen. Cronje and all of his force capitulated unconditionally at daylight and is now a prisoner in my camp. The strength of his force will be communicated later. I hope that her majesty's government will consider this event satisfactory, occurring as it does on the anniversary of Majuba."

To Dispute Roberts' Advance.

London, Feb. 27.—The Boers are assembling an army near Bloemfontein, with which to dispute the invasion of Lord Roberts. This intelligence comes from Pretoria by way of Lourenzo Marques. The commandoes are described as "hastening from all quarters of the republics." No estimate is made of their numbers, but the withdrawal of the Boers from most of the places where they have been in contact with the British except the district near Ladysmith may raise their resisting force to 30,000 men. This figure assumes that the Boers have between 60,000 and 70,000 men in the field.

Gen. Buller on Saturday faced the last and strongest positions of the Boers who bar his way to Ladysmith. The strenuous fighting indicates a battle between armies, rather than rear guard actions protecting a retreat. On Thursday and Friday he lost 43 officers killed and wounded, representing probably a total loss of from 400 to 500.

Boers Concentrating.

London, Feb. 27.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Lourenzo Marques, dated Friday, February 23, says:

"It is reported here that 5,000 burghers have left Ladysmith for the Free State. The Boers are concentrating their forces 30 miles outside of Bloemfontein and the Free State government is moving to Winburg. Reenforcements from all parts are passing through Bloemfontein hourly. President Steyn has telegraphed President Kruger that Lord Roberts is within a few hours of Bloemfontein and he urges that every male, irrespective of nationality, should be commandeered.

Steyn Favors Peace.

"President Steyn is said to favor peace. The Boer general who was in command at Colenso sent a message to President Kruger saying that he had been smashed up there and recommending overtures for peace. The burghers at Mafeking are also reported to have sent word to Kruger that they would rather defend their own farms than fight elsewhere."

British Driven Off.

Boer Head Laager, Natal, Friday, Feb. 23.—Yesterday the British crossed the Tugela in large numbers, with cannon and over 60 wagons. They attacked the Ermelo and Middle burghers' commandoes, but were forced to retreat under a heavy mauser fire. A renewed attempt to storm the Ermelo men was made this morning, but the British were again driven off. The fighting continues. The British losses were very heavy. Eight ambulances were employed in collecting the dead and wounded. The generals report that the commandoes are fighting bravely. Ladysmith fired a few shells this morning at our outposts till silenced by Long Tom.

Powder Mill Explodes.

Milwaukee, Feb. 26.—A Sentinel special from Platteville, Wis., says: The Platteville powder mills were wrecked by an explosion Saturday afternoon, killing three men and badly injuring another. The dead are: Thomas Bass, William Rottiger and Fred Genthe. H. S. Beck, machinist, of Bethlehem, who was in one of the presses, was thrown against the machinery and badly hurt, but he will recover. The cylinder mill exploded first, and this was followed by the two presses, the shock being heard for miles around The mixing mill took fire and was burned to the ground. Several of the other buildings were badly wrecked.

Gen. McNulta Dead.

Washington, Feb. 23.—Gen. John McNulta, of Chicago, well known throughout the west because of his identification with the receiverships of railroads and other great corporations, died suddenly here shortly after six o'clock Thursday night in his apartments at the Hamilton house, of angina pectoris, aged about 60 years. He had been apparently in the best of health during the day and had returned to the hotel only a short time before he was stricken. Medical aid was hastily summoned, but it was evident to the physician that his case was a hopeless one, and he died within an hour after the attack.

Taylor is plaintiff in a similar suit against Beckham and others. By the agreement Judge Field will try the consolidated suits.

Republicans Refuse to Give Up.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 27.—The state contest board Monday afternoon awarded certificates of election to all of the democratic contestants for minor state offices. Immediately afterward the contestants were sworn in and repaired to the state house in a body, where they made a formal demand on the republican incumbents for possession of the offices, but the demands were not acceded to.

TRUST GOES UNDER.

Inability to Float Its Securities Causes Flour Combine to Collapse.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 27.—The flour mill trust has collapsed. With less than $1,000 in cash on hand and with liabilities of nearly $15,000,000, the United States Milling company, the big combine that was formed less than a year ago, went into the hands of receivers. Judge James G. Jenkins appointed as receivers Daniel Thomas, of New York; Albert C. Loring, of Minneapolis, and Charles L. Kimball, of Summit, N. J. These appointments were originally made in New Jersey last Saturday, but were suppressed until they could be confirmed here by Judge Jenkins. The receivers are required to file a bond of $25,000 each, and are ordered to take an inventory within 60 days. The creditors are given until September 1 in which to file their claims.

The collapse of the company is due to the inability of the company to float its securities on the open market.

The United States Milling company was formed with a capital stock of $25,000,000 on April 27, 1899, having secured control of the following flour milling property:

In Milwaukee—The Daisy and Faist-Kraus mills.

In Superior—The Lake Superior, the Anchor and the Listmann mills.

In West Superior—The Grand Republic, the Freeman and the Minkota mills.

In Minneapolis—The Excelsior, the Standard and St. Anthony mills, together with 95 per cent. of the capital stock of the Northwestern Consolidated Milling company which operates and owns five big flour mills.

In Duluth—The Imperial and the Constructed Terminal elevators.

In New York state—The Syracuse mills, the Baldwinsville mills, the Urban mill.

In New Jersey—Ninety-five per cent. of the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling company, which operates and owns four large mills.

TO USE LAWTON'S SCHEME.

Before His Death He Had Worked Out Plan to Create Force of Native Police.

Washington, Feb. 26. — Before his death, and after giving much thought to the subject, Gen. Lawton had worked out a plan for the maintenance of order in the Philippines, after the close of actual war, which had been submitted to Gen. Otis, and is presumably the plan which will commend itself to the war department when the time comes to replace the regular troops by other forces competent to preserve order.

Gen. Lawton's idea was to create a force of native police, whose officers, at first in all grades, and finally, as conditions improve, in the upper grades alone, shall all be Americans. Some such force as this is now successfully applied in Cuba by Gen. Wood under the cognomen of rural police. Owing to the racial differences among the inhabitants of the Philippines, it was Gen. Lawton's idea that there would be no difficulty in securing police who should be proof against disloyalty in the districts, apart from those of their nativity, to which they might be assigned. That this theory was well-founded is indicated by the successful use of the Macabebe tribe by Gen. Lawton himself, and by Gen. Young later on in his chase after Aguinaldo in the north of Luzon. The natives, by their acquaintance with the country, and the inhabitants, would be of great assistance in running down lawbreakers. Because of the similarity of feature and figure of the Tagals, the American troops have had great difficulty in distinguishing one individual from another; in telling friend from foe.

Five Killed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 26.—A special to the Courier from Geneva says: Shortly after midnight Saturday night the midnight express on the Lehigh Valley railroad struck a carriage containing seven persons at Tuttles Crossing, about 25 miles east from Rochester, instantly killing five of the occupants, fatally injuring another and badly bruising the other. All were members of a family.

The dead are: Mrs. Amy Smith, 48 years old; Bert Smith, 23 years old; Miss Miranda Smith, 24 years old; Glee Smith, 14 years old; Catherine Smith, aged eight years.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

Cumberland, Wis., Feb. 27.—Fire broke out in the big department store of the Beaver Dam Lumber company and before it was under control had materially damaged the entire building, including the opera hall, located on the second floor. A stock of over $30,000 of general merchandise was thrown in the street in great confusion and damaged. The building was insured for $5,000 and the stock for $20,000, which will cover the loss.

Famous Architect Dead.

London, Feb. 26.—William Butterfield, the celebrated architect, is dead in his eighty-sixth year. He first attained distinction by the introduction of color into ecclesiastical and domestic buildings by the help of bricks, marble and mosaic. Among the structures built after his designs are the cathedral at Melbourne, St. Augustine college at Canterbury and Baliol college chapel, Oxford.

Uses a Locomotive on Runners.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 24.—The H. C. Akley Lumber company has introduced successfully in its lumber camp north of Grand Rapids a locomotive on runners which pulls a train of from ten to fifteen sleds laden with logs at a rate of from five to six miles an hour. The innovation seems destined to revolutionize methods in lumber camps inaccessible to railroads or logging streams.

Scarcity of Laborers.

Milwaukee, Feb. 26.—Labor agents here say there is a scarcity of labor such as has not been known for years. It is almost impossible to get men for work in the northern woods, where the wages are $30 a month. At Fort Benton, Mont., the Great Northern railroad is building a cut-off and it has been found impossible to supply all the men wanted on the work.

Date Is Changed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 2.—A new date for the prohibition state convention was selected Monday. The convention will be held May 1 and 2, one week after the republican state convention. The time originally chosen, April 23 and 24, was changed because it conflicted with the republican convention dates.

For Wireless Steering.

An English invention for steering any craft, whether submerged or otherwise, by means of an ether wave on the wireless telegraph principle has been perfected. In naval war it is expected to make the torpedo boat almost infallible. In this respect it will equal the great American dyspepsia cure—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters—which never fails to cure constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, malaria fever and ague. Everyone needs it and all druggists sell it.

A Competent Defense.

The homeliest man in congress is Eddy, of Minnesota. He rather glories in the distinction of ugliness, especially as all his other characteristics are enviable. During his last campaign the enemies of Mr. Eddy charged him with being double-faced. He met the charge in a manner that disarmed all criticism. "Great heavens," said Mr. Eddy to his audience, "do you think that if I had two faces I would wear the one I am showing you now?"—Argonaut.

TO MEET STEAMSHIPS.

A New Service by the New York Central Railroad.

George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, has added a steamship bureau to the equipment of the passenger service of the road. He has engaged Captains Louis Ingwersen and F. A. G. Schultze to superintend the bureau, and one of their duties will be to meet all incoming trans-Atlantic and the principal coastwise steamships to assist passengers who wish to leave the city via the Vanderbilt system. Capt. Ingwersen will have charge of the American, Cunard, White Star, Atlantic Transport, Wilson, Anchor and Allan-State lines, and Capt. Schultze has been assigned to the North-German Lloyd, Hamburg-American, French, Rotterdam, Red Star and Thingvalla lines.

They will meet all incoming steamships, and will be prepared to furnish railway tickets, parlor and sleeping car accommodations and to assist passengers with their baggage and check it to points on the line of the railroad, after it has been passed by the customs inspectors. They will also furnish passengers with cabs operated by the railroad company, and furnish time tables and general information to passengers. The two men have also been directed to assist passengers who come to this city with a view of going abroad, and such passengers will be met at the Grand Central Station on incoming trains and conducted to the steamship. Their baggage will be attended to, and steamship tickets can be procured in advance by communicating with Mr. Daniels.—From the New York Commercial Advertiser.

"COME TO TAW,"

SAYS THE RAILROAD COMMISSION TO THE RAILROADS OF THE STATE,

And Show That Rates Are Not Unjust. Beginning of Real Reforms by the Reorganized Grain and Warehouse Board. The Commission's Position That Southwestern Grain Rates Are Too High, and Other Rates Discriminative—First Move of the Kind in the History of the Commission—Other State Note and Comment—Points on National Politics—Bryan and Caldwell Likely to Be the Ticket.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Feb. 26, 1900.

Taking up further reforms by the grain and warehouse commission, that body, now for the first time in Reform control, has made the first move in the history of the commission to call the railroads into court on a general examination of their rates. That important points are involved is shown in the fact that every southwestern road responded, its officials accompanied by a great array of legal counsel. While a short postponement was granted the roads for preparation, the following may be relied on as the position taken by the commission:

First, that the general grain rates for the southwestern part of the state are too high.

Second, that the general merchandise rates, where they differ at local stations from the rates given to terminal points, in favor of the latter, are unjustifiable; that the rates between rural points, except when terminals are in question, should be on approximately the same basis as the terminal rates. At present more favorable rates are given from the cities to small places, than from stations to the cities, or between local stations.

The commission holding as above, will exercise its authority under the law to enforce such view, unless the roads can show reason why it should not do so, the burden of proof being on the companies.

The importance of the move, therefore cannot be overstated. What must be thought of the past administration, ever since the life of the commission, under Republican administration, that no such move has been made before?

Changes of classifications are also the source of other serious burdens on shippers which will now be carefully gone into, an important case having been raised by complaint of Mayor Currier of Mankato, where freight on candy product was raised by changing from third to second rate. The commission invites any other complaints of the kind, during the present week, which will have attention along with the Mankato case. Such should be addressed to Hon. P. M. Ringdal, chairman of the board, St. Paul.

Current New York market reports continue to speak well for Minnesota wheat and Minnesota grades. The quotations for Feb. 21 were;

No 1 Hard (Duluth) 81¾
No. 1 Northern (Duluth)..... 80
No. 2 (Red)..... 77¾

Last year No. 2 Red sold above Duluth No. 1 Northern. Such "ruin" of Minnesota grades is the kind that is welcome to the producers of good grain.

Surveyor General B. J. Mosier of Stillwater, accompanied by J. J. Eighten, is off for an extended trip to old Mexico. Dairy Commissioner Bowler and Assistant White represented Minnesota at the National Buttermakers' convention at Lincoln, and Minnesota brings home all prizes worth having. Surveyor General Corser of Minneapolis attended the Chicago antitrust conference, as well as the meeting of the Peoples party national committee and also the Democratic national committee meeting at Washington. Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessey is back from the East and, having got after some of the insurance concerns, found to be remiss in dues to the state, he brought back some $3,000 to add to Minnesota's strong box.

Iowa's legislature has been wrestling with the proposition to abolish the office of state printer and binder. Is there danger of northward march of the reform, so as to trouble our genial Bureau friend, Colonel Whitney?

And speaking of state matters, it is a cold day up north when the state cruisers are not able to land $10,000 or so of trespass on timber.

And speaking of Mayor Gray's administration of Minneapolis, enough bad people cannot be found in the Flour city to pay for keeping a fire in the jail stove. Another term, at this rate, and the city lockup can be dispensed with altogether. This kind of administration is a good thing to keep. Eh, Doctor Ames?

And at this time Doctor Ames' nomination by the Republicans seems assured. Imagine the predicament of the G. O. P. (good old party, with accent on the "good.")

It has taken 1,000 pages of type-written matter to record all the bad things said on trial, of a Hennepin county Republican office holder. The bad things unrecorded would exhaust the paper mills. The question is what are the people going to do about it? Will the reform forces fritter away their chances this year, or so act as to take all the offices in order that the people may learn the extent to which they have been robbed? Let the people so act as that they may be able to see all the books.

And of the other Twin City politics, the Democrats are day by day more confident of winning in St. Paul this spring, with the probability of Humphrey Barton as the successful mayor.

Minnesota sentiment is unquestionably in favor of national planks this year in favor of election of senators by direct vote of the people. Three events that have brought this sentiment into crystalization have been, first, the corruption and bossism by which Hanna secured his election in Ohio, the Quay case in Pennsylvania, and the Montana nastiness. Each case smelled to heaven, with a double back action stink in the last case.

National Chairman Jones asserts his conviction that the Democratic platform will contain such a plank.

From his Eastern tour Mr. Bryan went southward, going as far as Tampa, Fla. It has been the same old story everywhere of enthusiasm, and constantly repeated expressions of love and confidence on the part of the masses of the people.

Reports of Mr. Bryan's eastern trip that manage to filter through the news monopoly, show that he has no longer found there an "enemy's" country, but that he was received by all classes and conditions with the same enthusiasm that follows him elsewhere.

Senator Davis in his New York address declared that "No administration that the people will ever vote into power, will evacuate the Philippine islands." Well, the administration that the people will soon vote into power, will make the best job they can of the mess that Davis-McKinley has made of it. It will give the people self government as far as possible, and if we had had an American administration we would never have made a war of conquest in the Philippines; and there would even now be a promising republic there, its flag, under American protection, kissing the morning and evening sun of hope for its people, a beacon light for other struggling, aspiring people in the Orient. Instead, what have we? A conquered, or soon to be conquered people, hating us with the same hatred that has been given Spain for one hundred years.

And as to Davis-McKinley progress in the Philippines, we are just at the stage of military executions on the luneta at Manila. Filipinos now caught with arms in their hands are to be marched out before the American firing squad, just as in Spanish rule. And what are these people slain for? For what Spain slew them. For fighting for liberty and self government.

And so, after all, we may not keep the Island of Sulu. But our flag is there; who, then, will haul it down? Who said that where the flag was once raised it should never come down? The gopites.

Sioux Falls captured the Peoples Party national convention which will be called for May. The call for Minnesota's convention will be shortly issued by Chairman F. H. Clarke.

Monopolies created by law can and should be abolished by law. Such was the keynote of the recent Chicago conference. "And it rings true," says Public.

"What the trusts have done is to obstruct competition. It is sometimes argued that in them competition has culminated. But that is a mistake. They have not ridden into power upon a wave of competition, but by means of legalized privileges. Make competition free today, and trusts would begin to disintegrate tomorrow."

If the mantle of Lincoln has fallen upon McKinley, it is a case of the Jackal in the Lion's hide.

Alas what a change in the observance of Washington's birthday in this year, 1900. Fewer than usual have been the observances, doubtless from the fact that the Republican party, embracing substantially one-half of the people, finds itself arrayed, by an unpatriotic and un-American administration, against so many of the principles taught by Washington. Where can Republicans gather, without facing the warnings of Washington in his farewell address?

And the same is specially true of Lincoln's birthday, for Lincoln's speeches and writings come up in scores of instances to condemn the administration of the party that he led.

On the other hand Democrats and other partisans opposed to present Republican tendencies, have taken greater interest than ever in both observances, and looking up to the whole line of illustrious Americans who taught what true Democracy stands for, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, all of whom we honor, under the leadership of their worthy successor, W. J. Bryan.

How ridiculous this howl about Macrum's opened letters, when this Pro-British Republican administration has this country all plastered over with "V. R." Up with "U S." Down with "V. R."

With the Populist convention at Sioux Falls, and the Democratic at Kansas City, the Northwest is strictly in it

A Small Boy's Sarcasm.

Aunt Jane wanted to study, but little Willie wanted to ask questions. After answering a few, auntie told Willie not to talk or make a noise. There was a dead silence on Willie's part for a moment, then in a plaintive voice he said:

"I s'pose you don't mind me thinking? You can't hear the thinking machine going, can you?"—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

For the Holiday Trade.

"What!" she exclaimed, "you want $2.50 for this? Why, when I priced the same thing here a month ago it was only $2.20."

"Very likely," replied the honest salesman. "That was before we began our marked-down sale for the holidays."—Chicago Post.

Equality of the Sexes.

Woman certainly stands at last upon a footing more nearly equal with that of man. For instance, she may no longer gain entree into the column of the purely literary magazines by merely murdering somebody, but has, as has her brother, to go in search of the north pole, or to ride many consecutive centuries upon a bicycle, etc.—Boston Journal.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Y. M. C. A.

The state convention of the Y. M. C. A. closed at Winona.

The chief feature of the morning session was the taking of pledges for funds to carry on the state work. International Secretary F. B. Smith took charge, and inside of an hour $2,000 of the required $5,000 had been promised. This is double the amount pledged at any state convention since 1892. Of this $1,350 was in personal pledges. The different associations gave as follows: Winona, $200; Minneapolis, $200; Two Harbors, $30; Duluth, $100; Mankato, $10; Agricultural College, $10; Carlton College, $25; Hamline University, $20; Macalester, $15; Mankato Normal, $10; Parker College, $5; State University, $20; St. Paul College, $5.

An Historic Cane.

J. C. Hull, of Minneapolis, an old veteran, has just completed a peculiar looking cane upon which he has been engaged the past four months.

Mr. Hull served with the 13th Wisconsin cavalry during the civil war, and the many articles and utensils of cavalry use have been engraved on the cane in spiral formation. Mr. Hull took a piece of Havana wood, and the work was done with an ordinary jackknife.

The head of the cane is a deer's hoof, and in this has been placed a 25-cent piece which Mr. Hull found in the streets of Washington the day President Lincoln was assassinated. The cane was completed Lincoln's birthday, this year.

Mary Thomas.

Mrs. Mary Thomas is in request by the war department and the St. Paul postoffice.

Several letters have been received from the war department for her, but cannot be delivered because she cannot be located.

The war department writes to the postmaster that Henry Thomas, corporal of Co. B, 25th United States volunteer infantry, now in the Philippines, made arrangements to have a portion of his pay turned over to Mrs. Mary Thomas, presumably his wife or mother, and the letter now in the postoffice contains a voucher for this money.

A Big Deal.

Unless the unexpected happens, one of the largest mining deals negotiated in a long time will be consummated within a few days and the National Steel Company will acquire two of the most valuable iron ore properties in St. Louis county, the Spruce and Cloquet mines at Eveleth. The Spruce mine is controlled by the Spruce Mining Company, of which M. P. Kimberly, of Pittsburg, is the principal owner, and the National Steel Company has practically closed a deal for the lease of it and the Cloquet mine for a consideration of approximately $1,100,000.

Enforce the Laws.

The movement inaugurated last summer in the interest of better government and the enforcement of laws, has culminated in the organization of the Detroit League for the Enforcement of Laws and Ordinances. The league will nominate a ticket pledged to the enforcement of all state laws and village ordinances, and to the issuance of no liquor license for less than $1,000. On that issue the village election, which will be held March 13, will be hotly contested.

At the buttermakers' meeting at Lincoln, Neb., Minnesota won the sweepstakes prize, also first prize in separator class and gathered cream class.

Amid the whirl of social rounds in Minneapolis a vaccination party took first place.

The death rate in Duluth last month was 1 to 1,000 of the population, while the birth rate was 1.6. There were a few deaths from typhoid fever, mostly cases brought to local hospitals from the ranges.

Three men were arrested at Hawley charged with blind pigging.

J. K. Messelt attempted to board a train at Erskine and fell between the cars, but was fortunate in escaping with the loss of only a few toes.

Andrew Anderson, formerly a student in the St. Cloud normal, has gone insane in the Philippines.

S. S. Parr, for eleven years superintendent of the St. Cloud city schools, died of Bright's disease.

J. P. Johnson, a wood sawyer, was accidentally killed on the railroad tracks in St. Paul. Johnson was walking along the track toward his home, and stepped onto another track to get out of the way of an engine.

Frank Peterson, a section boss near Duluth, was nearly killed by a maniac.

The loss to the Winona school building was about $1,800.

H. Stong, a shipper of grain from the country, has entered complaint with the governor on the state grain inspection. Mr. Stong holds that the inspection is untrustworthy. He says that wheat which last year was graded No. 1 hard can now only be sold as No. 1 and No. 2 northern.

Wesley Methodist church, of Minneapolis, liquidated in ninety minutes its debt of $20,500, which had been standing for a number of years. Within the time stated just $23,600.10, in subscriptions of from $5,000 down to 10 cents, was raised, leaving a surplus of $3,100.10.

KANSAS CITY WINS

Democratic Convention Will Meet There July 4—Milwaukee the Other Contestant.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The next national democratic convention will be held at Kansas City, Mo., July 4. This was the decision of the democratic national committee, which met at the Hotel Raleigh Thursday to fix the time and place for holding the convention. Milwaukee was the only other city which competed for the honor of entertaining the convention, and the poor showing she made when the vote was taken (the result being Kansas City, 40, Milwaukee, 9) caused general surprise. The claims of the rival cities as to hotel accommodations, railroad and telegraphic facilities were presented in open session by representatives of each city, and subsequently in executive session. Gov. W. J. Stone, on behalf of Kansas City, and National Committeeman E. C. Wall, on behalf of Milwaukee, explained the financial inducements which the city he represented was willing to make. Each offered the committee $50,000, but in addition Kansas City was willing to furnish hotel accommodations for the members of the committee and the hall with decorations and music free of expense to the committee. One of Milwaukee's strongest arguments was the political effect which the holding of the convention in that city would have upon the German-American voters, who were represented to the committee as wavering in their allegiance to the republican party.

It seemed to be taken for granted by at least two speakers that Bryan would be renominated, and that the Chicago platform, in substance would be reaffirmed. Opposition to trusts, expansion and imperialism, together with every mention of Bryan and the Chicago platform, aroused enthusiasm, but during the open session of the committee there was no allusion to the issue of free silver.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Yielding of Prices in Materials Is Considered to Be of Benefit to the Country.

New York, Feb. 24.—R. G. Dun & Co's weekly review of trade says: "Prices in materials are yielding. If not the best news possible for some speculators, it is the best that could come for the country, since industries could not long prosper without reaction from the extreme prices caused by actual or supposed scarcity of materials last year. Some help comes from new iron furnaces that have opened or approach completion; some from the famine in India, which sends hither shiploads of hides; some from the much increased stocks of sheep, which have weathered the winter and some from the opening of new iron, zinc and copper mines. The causes are many, but the revision of quotations gives promise of greater activity in all the chief industries.

"The great iron industry has been embarrassed by prices for pig and billets which were no longer sustained by the gradually yielding prices of products. Considerable transactions are now reported at Philadelphia $1 to $1.50 per ton below recent quotations; at Pittsburgh 20,000 tons bessemer have been sold and 75,000 tons billets, both iron and steel being reported one dollar per ton lower.

"Failures in three weeks have been $7,241,220, against $7,129,750 last year, and $7,253,429 in 1898, but in the previous years they exceeded $10,000,000. Manufacturing were $2,856,536 against $3,643,864 last year, and trading were $3,822,930 against $3,237,472 last year. Failures for the week have been in the United States 201 against 191 last year, and 33 in Canada against 40 last year."

The father could do nothing but watch the boy die. About an hour later he reached home.

Big Lumber Deal.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 26.—A special from Ashland, Wis., says W. H. Gilbert has just sold three blocks of timber for an aggregate of $65,000. The price averaged $5.56 an acre. He has also sold to Mills, Gray, Carlton & Co., of Cleveland, O., 60,000,000 feet of manufactured lumber for about $850,000.

A Disastrous Blaze.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 27.—At one o'clock this (Tuesday) morning fire was discovered in Wilson's billiard hall, Maine street, Clarion, Pa., and in a short time an entire block of business buildings was destroyed. CELESTIAL CHAFF.

The Pointed Retort of a Small But Smart Mongolian to an American Schoolmate.

The young daughter of a former Philadelphian is a schoolmate of little Wu, the son of the Chinese ambassador at Washington. During a recent visit here she often talked about the little celestial, and told tales about him that seemed to indicate that little Wu at times gently guys his Christian schoolmates. "He is awfully cute," she said, "and speaks very correct English. He's just my age, yet he's ahead of me. What he likes best to eat, he says, is milhi. That is young mice, dipped in honey and swallowed raw. A horrible thing, isn't it? But Wu says that milhi aren't half so squashy and slimy as raw oysters. His mother's feet are so tiny that she can hardly walk at all. She is pushed about in a wheeled chair. I asked Wu once if he didn't think it was cruel to torture the Chinese ladies' feet like that. He said: 'Virginia, my papa says that whenever any person asks me that question I must make the following reply: "It is not more cruel than for American ladies to torture their waists in steel corsets until their noses are beet red and their shapes like an hour glass." Then he gave a loud laugh and walked away with his little hands in the pockets of his baggy brocade trousers. He looks awfully grave and funny."—Philadelphia Press.

Hard on the Doorkeeper.

On the opening day of the session of the Fifty-sixth congress, a tall, gaunt man, shambling of gait, with "high-water" trousers, a slouched hat mashed in any old way, and an overcoat that needed brushing, presented himself at the center door of the house of representatives. He started to walk right in, but was stopped by one of the doorkeepers, who said to him, testily: "Say, don't you know you can't go in there?" "No, I didn't know it, my friend," thought I could," he said, mildly. "Nobody but members allowed in to-day." "Well, I'm a member; Congressman Cushman, of Washington." "Oh! I beg your pardon; walk right in." As Mr. Cushman strode into the hall the astonished doorkeeper looked after him for a moment, and then, turning to his assistant on the door, said: "Say, Bill, did you see that? Well, after that I ain't got the nerve to stop anything."—Criterion.

Getting to the Front.

Whatever your idea of its politics—and it don't seem to bave any to hurt—The Minneapolis Times—as a newspaper—is certainly getting to the front. Colonel Haskell seems to be at the head of a metropolitan daily-with all the news-there is to be had. The Times announces and keeps its word-that the Times in addition to its extensive Associated Press reports, has arranged, and is publishing every morning the New York Daily Herald's cable reports. There is no bluster about this-the Times is doing it.

St. Peter Free Press: Mr. Macrum's statement fell like a bomb shell into a camp and parties that heretofore were inclined to make fun at his expense now admit that for the present he has succeeded in putting the administration on the defensive,

St. Cloud Times: In justification of our seizure of the Philippines, Senator Davis, in his Jersey City Lincoln day address, quoted the words of Napoleon I. when he placed the iron crown of Italy upon his head. Who would have dreamed two years ago that Napolion would be held up to Americans for our molation.

Democrats should hold their convention, announce their principles and nominate candidates for president and vice president at the earliest possible date.—Buffalo Gazette.

How on earth can they tell what they will have to oppose until after the Rebublicans have first pointed out the road to progress and prosperty? Do you think the Democrats are mind readers?—Midway News.

MAPLE PLAIN.

Its neither sleighing nor wheeling; and this makes it bad for those who have hauling to do.

28th of this month is G. A. R encampment in Minneapolis. W. S. Yokley will represent Gorden Granger Post, of Maple Plain. All post comanders are also entitled to a seat in the encampment.

That youug blizzard we had here last week was a reminder of olden times. we got it fresh from the North Pole.

It is reported on good authority that the different schools in our town are being conducted under good discipline; and that they are in a prosperous condition. It is thought the Armstrong school rather large for one teacher there being some fifty scholars.

Many of the Independence people attended the meeting of the Washingtons Birthday Association at Delano, last Thursday. The crowd was large; and all say they had a good time. Dr T. J. Catlin was elected President for the ensuing year. There was also an Executive committee appointed. J. D. Young was elected Vice-President. It is intended to make this a lasting association.

Died in Minneapolis one day last week at his son's of infirmity and old age, Enoch Cleveland, aged about 80 years. Funeral at Presbyterian church, Maple Plain last Saturday, at one o'clock p. m., Rev. William Campbell officiating. For many years Mr. Cleveland was a resident of our town; living at Armstrong and Maple Plain. His wife died a number of years ago.

We farmers are anxiously awaiting the return of spring, when vissions of prosperity will rise before us; when the lion and the unicorn and the orang-outang shall lie down together, and the eagle and the monkey shall feed together "and water shall brake out, and streams in the dessert" and we shall sleep under one covering the high protective and blanket trust. O, what a gathering that will be. FARMER.

County Cullings.

John Louesiana, an old settler and an old soldier, who lived in the Kreidler neighborhood died this week. He was burried Thursday.

Editor Buckley announces as candidates from Cokato four sons and a berg, and concludes he is froze out. "Discretion is the better part of valor."

The judge of bullheads, small-pox, health officers, Sweeds and School Ma'ams who is so busy superintending the weekly flight of the Old Bird, has concluded,—since hearing of the desire that his royal highness run for an elective office, entertained by the Scandinavians about Cokato,—to "sincerely thank the editorial brothern who have so kindly mentioned the editor of the Eagle as an available candidate for the legislature, we assure them that there is no legislative bee buzzing in our bonnet."

Political hucksters or county precint heelers have come out earlier than the crows this spring. It is surprising to note with what degree of intelligence these political fore runners are surveying the lines for fences for those who are comming after them, and yet have been before them. What would the people do anyway unless some one more intelligent than they came and instructed them how to select delegates and who to vote for. Surely a county could not exist without them and therefore these missionaries are always welcome to such a belated and downtrodden cummunity as ours.—Nit.-Cokato Enterprise.

From the Sherburne County Star-News we learn that "The Supervisor of Census for the 6th district (Editor Dare) has received from Washington the approved plan of enumeration districts, and about the first of April will forward to the department, applications of candidates for enumerators. In a few days, test schedules will be sent out to applicants, and the accurate filling out of these will determins the success of the applicant. The test schedules and application will be forwarded with each name sent in."

The 6th district is divided into 326 districts comprising 20 counties and the Indian reservations. Wright county is ot have 29 enumerators.

Among our Exchanges.

County Line: The Hanna McKinley war in the Philippines goes merrily although "all armed resistance" was "at an end" long ago. A peculiar state of affairs, truly.

Minneapolis Democrat: Do the American people realize that to ratify the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is to recognize Great Britian as our suzereign? By it we give her the right to oversee our treaties with independent countries, which is exactly what she claims in reference to the Bores.

LeSueur Sentinel: Just why Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Philippines when pacified, should not be allowed territorial representation in congress, is not quite clear. If our expansionist friends will please give us their status, and tell us why part of our territory is to be denied this sort of represntation, we shall feel infinitely obliged.

Norwood Times: There is little doupt but what we are driviug Yankee notions into the heads of the dusky Filipino children by making them study lessons at school in the American fashion, and Americanizing the older generation of the city of Manila by increasing the number of grog shops from three club houses to 400 saloons.

Litchfield News Ledger: It seems a little funny, don't it? After sending an expensive commission to Hawaii to find out what sort of a government was needed there, the politician turns that commission's report down and hands out a mess that will provide more fat jobs to the square inch. Verily the politician is foxy when the opportunity presents itself.

No Luncheon.

New York, Feb. 26.—A dispatch to the World from London says: Owing to the opposition of the non conformist clergymen and laymen, the luncheon at which Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was to preside in connection with the Wesleyan celebration has been abandoned. This was decided at a meeting called by the president of the Wesleyan conference.—Dispateh.

Must have England's Consent.

Alton Democrat: The republicans tell us we couldn't have succeeded in licking Spain without England's consent, that we can't meditate in Africa without England's consent, that we can't remonetize silver without England's consent and that we can't dig the Nicaragua canal without England's consent. And yet the administration says it isn't the servant of England! It seems that what's our's is England's and what's England's is her own. We are very much in the position of the old man whose shrewish wife chased him under the bed with the broom because he failed to say our farm and our money instead of my farm, etc., and likewise failed to ask her consent when he wished to do anything. After he had been under the bed for an hour or so he stuck his head out and asked in a meek and lowly voice. "Dearest, may we put on our Sunday pants?" When we want to lick our enemies, coin our money, uphold our liberty or dig our canal we crawl out from under the international bed and ask England's consent. Bah! —Ida county Pioneer, (Iowa).

Sophomore and Freshman War at the "U".

There have been some very uproarious, exciting and entertaining times down here at the University the past two or three days. The old saving "When the cat is away the mice will play," is interpreted something like this: "When the president is out of sight the students will fight." Prexy is on a vacation in Florida, and the Freshmen and Sophomores are on the war path after the latest and most approved fashion.

The feeling between the two classes has been somewhat strained during the whole year on account of the Freshmen taking all the athletic events; cain rush, foot ball game, etc., last fall. It hurts the Sophomores every time they think of it, and the freshmen are correspondingly proud. Affairs were brought to a crisis Friday noon when the freshmen attempted to kidnap the sophomore class president.

The sophomores were to have a class party in a fraternity house that evening, and the freshmen thought to impose fresh indiginity upon them by getting off with their president so he could not attend. They also intended to give him a penitentiary hair cut. Before drill a party of then with a carriage drove up in front of the Armory building and when the unsuspecting Mr. Carr came up they seized him and hustled him into a seat and attempted to drive him off, and would have succeeded in their plan but for the intervention of a freshman, who belongs to the same fraternity as the president does. He jumped onto the horses and held them while the sophomores ran to the rescue and released their president, after partly demolishing the carrage. There was a little blood shed but nothing serious. The freshman who held the horses received some heavy blows in the solar plexus and had one of his hands pretty badly bitten.

The sophmore went on with the preparations for their party and placed a guard over the refreshments, but did not take any special precautions at the fraternity house where the affair was to take place. Some freshmen went there just after dark and put a lot of sulphur in the furnace and threw pepper all over the floor and cushions, so a person couldn't move around without filling the air full of pepper dust After this they caught a poor sophomore and notched his hair all up with a pair of shears. The sophs had their party, but didn't have much fun, so a number of them got together and went to the room of the freshman class president, in a private house on Fourth St. and 16th Ave., busted in his door, took him out and started over town The fresnmen, hearing the news started in pursuit and overtook them on Washington Ave. bridge, where a lively skirmish took place—a few casualities but no mortalities—and the president was rescued.

Saturday during drill, and all afternoon, during the interscholastic meet which took place in the armory between high schools of the state who wished to enter, there were half a dozen policemen present for the preservation of the peace.

Last night the freshmen held their class party in one end of the armory and there was fighting galore. Although there were a number of policemen present they could do nothing more than prevent distruction of property. As soon as the sophomores heard the freshmen were to have their party they commenced planning to brake it up. The first thing they did; Saturday morning, they wrote an invitation and handed it to one of the professors who makes announcements in chapel, inviting everyone of all classes and departments to attend But at night when the freshmen commenced going, the fun began. A big crowd of sophomores separated into groups and watched for freshmen. Everyone they caught they gave a scrubby haircut, took their collars and ties, and even in some cases hacked up the girls' hair.

About nine o'clock the whole party gathered around the armory building determined on making the affair a complete fizzle. They tried to break in but were beaten back by the freshmen who captured a half doz sophs and gave them haircuts of various fantastic designs. They then tried to smoke 'em out with sulphur but did not succeed. Finally several of them gained access to the building secretly, and cut the electric wire, thus putting out all of the lights, but the freshmen got candles and went on with the programme. The sophs finally made a rush and about twenty got into the lower hall and started up stairs after the refreshments, but their leader, a sophmore medic was knocked senseless and the rest driven out with pails of ice water and chairs, etc. After this defeat they withdrew and left the freshmen in peace, but the party did not last long as the whole evening had been spent in fighting. This morning things are rather warm and there is liable to be more trouble in the near future.

The interscholastic meet, held in the armory drill hall yesterday afternoon was a good success, especially for the St Paul Central High school, as they were easy winners. The gallery was crowded with students and friends of the High Schools represented. An accident occurred in the pole vault. Stillwater took third place and Minneapolis East Side High and St. Paul Central were tied for first place. The East Side lad raised the vault to 9ft 9in and the St. Paul representative missed but tried again when he fell on his arm and dislocated it at the elbow. That was the only accident, the rest of the events passing off smothly.

"As a hare panteth after the living spring"
Man's soul longeth for the Almighty King.
Thou, who pierced the gloom of night,
And commanded o'er all, "Let there be light,"
Thou, garnished the heavens with wisdom's hand,
Space, heigth, dpeth, blessed thou sea and land,
And watcheth in mercy the sparrow's fall,
Thy right hand of mercy is o'er them all.
Made thou man for earth; in image thine.
He gathers the fruit, husbands the vine,
He walks in God's vinyard: sleeps in sweet peace;
Rests from his labors; God gives the increase.
He reapeth the earth, guideth the plow.
He earneth his bread, by the sweat of his brow.
He guideth the ship, that sails from afar.
He leadeth an army and planneth for war.

When England's sun sinks slow'y to rest,
And bars of fading sunlight lay low in the west:
Stars look down on troubled night.
Wings of morn lift the curtains of light,
And the moon waxes low, with its sweet pale face,
Her warriors arise their swords to replace.
Earth slowly robes in her garb of morning bright
And England's sun looks down on a sadder sight.

"Long live the Queen" is the theme of their song.
As the tide of her years have rolled along,
From the love of her youth to her queenly years
Through shade and shine, through smiles and tears.
On the shrine of their love Victoria weeps
And the sable of grief around her creeps.

The tramp of the war horse is heard from afar.
O'er troubled sea comes the sound of war,
From British guns fly shot and shell;
From the ranks of their brave, to the silent knell.
Forward! On! They rise to fall in cannon's breath,
Through storm of lead to paleness of death.
From kings and princes, to the dark plumed knight;
From sire and son, to the coming fight,
From maiden sweet, and her quiet grace.
Through the mists of battle to her soldier's face.
From lords and sovereigns, to savage frown,
From glistening robe, to tattered gown,
From halls of wealth to the home of the poor,
From the land of the Shamrock to the sullen Boer,
There is war and rumors of war.
Give back once more her peaceful land
Guard her love with heaven's hand
From hamlet sweet, to war-lit hill
Lift thy voice, and peace, be still.

'America 'tis of thee," most beautiful land,
Liberty is thy motto; sweet freedom thy band.
Clasping together thy true, and thy good,
Entwining around true sisterhood.
Justice, is thy strong arm; truth, is thy might.
God, is thy watchword; onward, thy right.
Ring, old liberty bell; sweat Puritan strain,
Ring out thy sweat voice; oh, ring once again;
Ring out thy truths, twixt earth and the blue,
"Ring out the false, ring in the true,"
Let the hills rejoice, and valleys sing.
Ring on, dear bell; oh, ever ring, ring, ring.
Bless womankind that giveth bread,
Let all mankind by God's spirit be led.
Fraud, strife, envy, and hate; away with foolish clan.
Pursue, possess, defend true American plan,
Bid inhumanity from man depart.
Strike he, who breaks good woman's heart,
Give noble man, true woman's love;
Sift down life's blessing from above,
From wings of morn, to setting of sun,
O'er all our land, "Thy will be done".

Railroading Patents.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C. A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,830 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

REPORTS are current that the reason that the Charleson sunk near our oriental possession was drunkenness. And yet the army canteen continues to do business.

W. H. EUSTIS used to tell us, in his political speeches, that the penetentiary was peopled with democrats, in very large majority. But it is only recently that the Majority has begun to be reflected in the Mirror.

WHEN the g. o. p. went off on a tangent and left Hon. C. A. Towne, he could consistently stick to his belief in the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver and vote with the Democrats. But now when nearby all the party leaders have deserted poor Page Morris where oh where is he at?

THE Polish patriot heir to the throne of Poland John Sobieski, who is an eloquent temperance orator, has written his "Life Story and Personal Reminiscences" The book will be sold for $1 50, and will be an interesting one J. L. Douthit and sons, Publishers, Shelbyville, Ill.

IT is getting to be somewhat fashionable for public men to announce their standing on the issue of the day. For instance Ex Senator Gorman wants if distinctly understood that "I am a Democrat" Who would have thought it? Senator Davis exclaims "I am a Republican," and yet he feels afraid his constituents wont think so, unless he tells them. There are others. They should take warning from the example of David B Hill. He jumped his political job shouting "I am a Democrat."

Our Costly Colonies.

The Philippine war has now been going on for more than a year. It has cost many men, and much money, to carry it on. And now, in the second year, we are told that "secret" societies exist among the natives, and that they are planning a bigger uprisin than ever.

Cuba is considerable "trouble" to Uncle Sam, Porto Rico people are starving with the products of their country piled up awaiting Congress' pleasure to admit it free of duty, or te let it rot on their own wharves.

Tariff is a Tax.

"Tariff is a Tax" Even the blind old Eagle can see that much when it comes to paying a tariff on products from Porto Rico, and then handing the money back to Porto Rico to run her government with. "The consumer pays the tariff, and in this case we would be the consumer, of the products, while favorite officials sent out from Washington to administer affairs in Porto Rico would get the money. Porto Rico don't want that kind of alms, and the American people don' want that kind of tariff.

Republicans Have Flopped Again.

While C. A. Towne represented the 6th district in Congress the republicans flopped from bimetallist to gold standardites. Then Hon Page Morris took up the burden and promised to "go to Congress a republican and come back a republican". And now the g. o. p. has flopped again, several times for them to espouse any cause that points to empire, and while Congressman Morris eloquently speaks and zealously works for protective tariff with Porto Rico the party flops

Better Read the Constitution.

Constitution, Art. 1, Sec. 8: The Congress shall have Power

To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imports and Excise, to pay the debts and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States;

When our United State Senators and members of Congress and even the Chief Executive of our Nation so far forget the Constitution, they are sworn to uphold and defend, as to want to levy a tariff on goods from Porto Rico to the States; or to propose that the Constitution be dealt out in parcels to suit purchasers instead of being given as a whole to our new possessions, it is about time, they take an evening off and read over the Constitution.

THE Sixth Congressional District sent a representative to Congress "to hold up the President's hands". The job seems to be too big for him.

ALL the bosh about the Vice Presidential candidate should come from an Eastern state, looks small to us. What we want is the best man in the party, regardless of where he hails from, for President, and so near his equal as can be found for Vice President Location is noting; good men everything.

GREAT is the hustling among g. o. p. politicians to crawl from under the ruins they have pulled down about their ears. President McKinley didn't want a tariff with Porto Rico, himself, C. K. Davis is in favor of free trade, Knute Nelson, ditto, Page Morris was working with the Republican leaders. None of 'em thought it was the right thing.

HON. C. K DAVIS is out with an idea! It is that our flag don't carry with it the Constitution of our Country! But that Congress has the power to hoist the flag, and dole out to our colonial possessions a little bit of the Constitution at a time. Just the same as has been claimed before, that by certain proceedings a little bit of Constitution at a time, could be taken away from those born, reared and who now live under that cherished document.

IF reports of British rejoicing over the avenging of Majuba Hill" by the capture of Gen. Cronje and his brave little band of Boers, is correct, it is hard to see how any one can believe the Lord is on the side of such doings. It is reported that drunkenness was indulged in extensively by the "Civilized" Britain We hear, on the other hand, of no drinking; but a continual praying to the Almighty God to deliver them from their enemies, and give them peace and happiness, by the Boers.

CONGRESSMAN MORRIS has had a pretty hard job, "holding the President'shands up", but with Congressmen Heatwold and Fletcher, and Senators Davis and Nelson and ex-Senator Washburn, ex Candidate for Governor W. H. Eustis, and numerous other against him up to date, he appears to have succeeded in keeping him in the republican harness, on the "protective principle", for Porto Rico. Page said: "I'll go to Congress a republican and come back a republican", and it looks now as if he was bound to do it. And to stay back when he comes back too.

HOW queer, Jas. A. Wharton now of the Willmar Argus, who helped elect C. A. Towne to Congress and than helped Page Morris to beat him, so as to help "hold up the hands of McKinley," says: "Page Morris will have to enter the district on his return home through the back door. He voted wrong on the Puerto Rican tariff bill." Buckley, of the, Eagle, talked much like that last week. But this week has been led to conclude: "Well, as matters turn out, Page Morris doesn't seem to be any slouch of a Republican, after all." How long before Wharton will say "ditto"?

Blessing in Disguise.

We have heard of blessings in disguise. Our Expansion friends have been howling for more than a year about our blessing of islands of the sea "providentialy thrown under our care." They have extoled the islands, the people their captors, their purchasers, and even the slavers of the inhabitanas that had the temerity to say they would like to continue to possess what they had inherited from their fathers for generations. Some of us failed to recognize the blssing when it was announced that we were the possessors. But now the rays of daylight begin to appear. If this grasping out after other people's goods, and lands, and liberties, is to be the rapids through which the g. o. p. boat must try to steer the end is inevitable, and plain to all. And the people, when they are called upon to elect, will choose another croft, and crew, and a commander who is more to their way of thinking, and acting The whole grasping policy of the gold bug party has been distasteful to many who have run with the machine, hoping for better things. "International bimetallism" has been held out to keep a few in line; "Benevolent assimilation" has caught some, christianizing our neighbors has the sympathy of Bishops, while bottled beer, and the army canteen, catches the brewer. But things have too many, and too large loopholes to longer hide from the people that power! wealth! Empire! is the object all along the line. The people yet have the power. It has not enterily slipped from their grasp and next November, will be ready to vote for life, liberty and the puriust of happines, and to unmask some of the "blessings in disguise."

UNATTAINED.

We cannot reach the goal we would,
In life's short day;
So many chilling barriers rise
Athwart our way;
The thorns so prick our feet, and seek
Our steps to stay.

The strength wherewith we fain would climb
We oft must spend
In mere endurance of the load
The hour doth send.
What wonder if we fail and sink
Long ere the end!

Ah, well our Master judgeth not
By labors done,
By distant vantage ground attained,
Or fair height won.
He judgeth truly when He comes
At set of sun.

The heart's intent He pondereth,
Nor doth forget
How sore the cords of circumstance
May bind and fret.
Enough for Him if one sure way
Our face is set.

SPANISH LOVE

LISTEN!

I stand here holding my very breath as that sweet, wild strain floats out to me.

It is the same maddening waltz picked on a guitar accompanied by the tinkling of a mandolin that we waltzed to on those happy nights of the past.

The music of the guitar brings it all back to me with a sudden rush of bitterness.

One year ago to-night he and I waltzed together for the last time.

It was a glorious night, with a full southern moon hanging high in the far away sky. The flowers sent up a hundred sweet odors from their dewy petals, seeming to invite us to a ramble among them. The low sighings of a guitar were wafted to us on the balmy breezes, and he told me again the same story I had listened to so often, yet it became sweeter at each telling, as we glided through that mazy dance.

The hot blood surges through my veins and I seem to hear once more his tender voice and feel the hot breath fanning my face as he tells his love so low and appealing. No one can understand my feelings as we drifted on through that soothing yet maddening waltz in the silvery, tempting light of the moon.

I loved him when I first saw him there among the roses. He was so different from our men; so young, boyish and handsome. He was a rich young Englishman, and I feared that he would not love me, only a little Spanish girl, but my deep love was drawing him on, and some day I hoped that he would be mine.

A year ago to-night we were at a ball, and after the first delicious waltz he left me, saying that he would come back soon, and when he did return a woman was leaning on his arm. She was of the delicate type of English girl, with languid blue eyes, brownish gold hair and perfect complexion. I thought her lovely, but so cold. no emotion whatever, even while leaning on him.

How glad I am that I can feel, even if it be only pain!

He introduced her to me as a friend who happened to stop over in her travels, and I wandered aimlessly around, leaving him to enjoy his friend's company.

Finally I stepped behind some large palms which formed a screen, and sat thinking of him. I was so happy and trusting in the security of his love. Suddenly I heard some one talking on the other side of the palms, and hearing my own name I listened. How can I believe what I hear.

"Yes, my love, these Spanish girls are fine to flirt with. They can love with an intensity that would set some men on fire, and I admit that I have quite enjoyed it all, but you know, my darling, that I am true to you deep down in my heart, and I should have forgotten how to make love without some one to practice with, and she was the prettiest of the lot. You must not be jealous."

"No, Frederick, I am not jealous. It is not that, but she loves you and it is wicked of you to flirt with her. Every flash of the glorious eyes and every smile of the crimson lips are for you. Here is a deep passion that she cannot overcome easily."

Oh, if she could only have known how easily I had overcome it. How easy he had made it for me!

The hot southern blood that rushes through my veins is even now burning with as intense hatred as with love an hour ago. As I stand there watching and listening, no one knows the pain that is tearing in my heart. Involuntarily I clutch the tiny dagger that is concealed in my dress. Oh, how quickly my love had been killed!

They move away and begin the dance—the dance that should have been mine. I still crouch behind the palms, my mind in such a tumult I scarcely know what I am doing.

She is gone now; gone with his kiss upon her lips. I saw them as he told her "Au revoir" on the other side of those same palms. He is looking and inquiring for me. I hear him say I must have gone home. I know where he will go to find me.

Slipping from my hiding place, I run swiftly yet silently on to our trysting place. My guitar, the one he gave me, lies on a rustic seat; I pick it up, and my purpose grows stronger. Hearing a footstep, I look up and see him coming toward me with outstretched hands and smiling face.

"Ah, Zazella, my queen, why did you—"

"Hush!" I cry; "how dare you say that to me after all I saw, all I heard, to-night? You start back, you wonder? Do you think I am going to let you live to love her, while I am forsaken? Never!"

I go closer to him as I speak; I see the smile leave his handsome face and a baffled look take its place. That one look is the last touch to my already blazing anger.

"I will kill you!" I cry, my voice choking with suppressed fury.

"I should have known better than to trust anyone with a taint of Spanish blood, not to think of a full-blooded one," he muttered, turning away.

I could not bear either love or country insulted, and maddened beyond endurance, I sprang after him, and as he turned his white face toward me again I plunged the shining dagger into his heart. I drew it out quickly as he gasped the one word, "Zazella!" and and fell to the ground.

I stand holding the tiny dagger, dripping with his blood! It fascinates me; holds me spellbound. I cannot remove my eyes from it as the blood drips slowly onto the ground.

He will never tell her of his love again! The thought fills me with a wild, exulting joy, and I am happy. Then I stoop and kiss the upturned face, kiss the already cold lips; fiercely, passionately, I kiss the wound.

The thought comes to me like lightning. "What if I am discovered?" I turn and flee to my own chamber, where I carefully remove all traces of blood, then go to the window and look out. The scene before me is one of exquisite beauty. I can hear the music and lights sparkling back where the merry party is still dancing. The flowers seem more fragrant than ever; the little fountain throws its silvery spray far up and falls back with a musical splash, and there, lying near it, is the body of the man I have just killed.

I cannot see him lying half-buried in the tall grass, but still I know he is there with wild white face in the moonlight. How peaceful everything is! How different from the tumult that rages in my breast!

Throwing myself on the floor by the window I try to think. I cannot describe my thoughts. They are bitter, yet there seems to be a fierce pride in my heart at the thought that he can never love her again. Finally the horror and crime overcome me, and I pray as never human prayed before.

"Oh God, what have I done? Have I in my mad jealousy cut off the life of the man I love? Oh God, forgive! forgive! forgive! Holy mother intercede for me!"

I kneel there clasping my beads and the little cross close to my aching heart, in a dumb, blind way, until the sun, peeping over the line of hazy blue hills in the distance, reminds me that I must do something, yet I dare not move. The pain at my heart is maddening; my breath comes in short gasps; I fear detection, yet hardly care. Why should I care? He is gone and I can never be happy again.

I throw myself on my couch to try and collect my wandering thoughts and rest. My mind seems slipping from me and I fall asleep and do not awake until the sun is sinking.

I go out on the balcony and they tell me he has been found, murdered. I am calm and collected, showing no emotion, indeed I feel none. Don Lucas has been accused of it. He is my rejected lover and has been heard to threaten Frederick. My heart gives a joyous bound. Yes, let him suffer for it. He hated Frederick and I hate him.

Gathering a lot of crimson passion flowers I go to where they have placed my love. The room is silent and lone, and I slip in and put the flowers over the wound. Then kneeling down by him I again pray, though silently, for forgiveness for the deed, and for feeling glad that Lucas is accused.

When I raise my eyes she, the fair creature he loved, is watching me. Coming toward me she holds out her hands, but I draw back. She says softly:

"Don't be afraid of me. I am your friend, and—and we both loved him."

She takes my hot hand in her cool one, kissing back the damp hair from my brow, and my heart goes strangely out to her. She lays a bunch of pure white flowers on his breast.

"These flowers indicate the different natures of our love," she said.

"Yes," I answer, "red is for passionate love, anguish, sin and crime; white is the symbol of purity, devotion, truth."

She looks at me in a strange, puzzled way, and I press her hand, then turn and leave her alone with her love—and mine. When I reach the little fountain I pause a moment in sad meditation. A lad glides up to me and cautiously hands me a note. Recognizing Don Lucas' writing I hastily break the seal.

"Zazella, I know all; I saw all, but you shall never suffer. In this way I prove my love for you, but I will not suffer at the hands of others for it. Rather than that I shall kill myself. Farewell!"

Strangely enough, they were both buried over there side by side, and I care for both graves alike, planting passion flowers on both. and I can see the marble gleaming now in the moonlight among the dark green ivy relieved by its crimson border. Those are fitting emblems for both.—Columbian.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 2, 1900.

The republican leaders of the House are still shaking from the fright given them by their narrow escape fom a humiliating defeat on the Poro Rico tariff bill. The figurative sack cloth and ashes of Ash Wednesday came very near to being real for them on that day. They amended the bill by reducing the tariff from 25 to 15 per cent, which Representative Berry aptly said merely changed the crime from grand to petty larceny, and by limiting its opperation to two years, wich was an acknowledgement that the whole principle of the bill was a one, and then they could not get the votes needed to pass it without resorting to every known form of political bull-dozing and cajolery. Had the republicans of the House voted their real sentiments, the bill would have been defeated by more than two-thirds vote instead of being passed by a vote of 172 to 161. The Constitutional question involved in this bill will not down. It will be heard when the bill is taken up in the Senate, and it will be heard all during the coming Presidential campaign, and like other great questions, will never be settled until it is settled right.

Senator Aldrich explained the gold standard bill agreed upon by the Conference Committee, to the Senate, but he did not attempt the impossible task of defending the measure, which ought to be officially entitled "A bill to put money in the pockets of the rich at the expense of the poor."

Within 24 hours of the time that the House was passing the bill to rob the poor Porto Ricans by imposing a duty upon the products they have to sell the Senate was taking the first step towards making Hawaii a State, by passing the bill providing a territorial government for Hawaii. If there is any logical reason for making this unjust distinction between prosperous Hawaii and half-starved Porto Rico, it has been carefully concealed from the public.

The House Military Committee has endorsed two pet schemes of the administration to provide promotion for favorites that to give the Adjutant General of the army the rank, pay and allowances of major general, which will be in the nature of a reward to Gen Corbin for his subserviency to Alger, and his underhanded attacks upon Gen. Miles, his superior officer and that authorizing the President to select a retired brigadier general for promotion to major general, which is intended to give Gen Shafter the difference between the pay and emoluments a brigadier general and a major general, retired, as a reward for the Cuban campaign, the greater part of which he spent lying in a hammock. "Funny" old world.

Representative Bailey, of Texas made the closing speech on the democratic side against the Porto Rico tariff bill, and it was a powerful plea for the maintenance of the Constitution as its framers intended it to be maintained. His last words, which were recived with uproarious applause by the democrats and the occupants of the galleries, were: "When emotional states men were asking who would haul down the flag, I dared to say that I would take it down from any place where the Constitution could not follow it. Do you desire to present the anomaly of a government restrained by the constitution in one quarter of the globe, and possessed of a despotic power in the rest of the world? How long is the Constitution to shield us and our children if its protection is withheld from the humblest inhabitant? Let me borrow the words of Lincoln: 'This republic cannot endure onehalf free and one half slave'. We must all be citizens, or in time we must all be subjects. I did not want to assimilate these alien and inferior races, and I pray God to deliver us from the task. But if you will take them, they must share our destiny with us."

The bill providing for the ship subsidy job has been favorably reported to the Senate. The report which was made on the bill will be widely circulated by the republicans for the purpose of trying to create a public sentiment for the $200,000,000 job, but it is very doubtful whether they will try to push the bill through until after the Presidential election, as word has been passed around among the republicans in Congress to keep the total of appropriations made at this session of Congress down as much as possible, with the understanding that the money can safely be made to fly at the next session, which will not be held until after the Presidential election.

Of course, the disagreeable weather in Washington had nothing to do with the departure for Cuba, via Florida, of Secretary Root, He is going to make an "official inspection" of Cuban ports, using a government transport after he reaches Tampa. What part his wife, son and daughter, who accompanied him, are to take in the "official inspection" is a question which he may be able to answer. To some persons this trip looks like a winter junket for his family at public expense.

Democrats Would Impeach Sec. Hay.

Washington, March 7.—(Times Special)—Unless the house committee on rules acts upon the resolutions for an investigation of charges made by Former Consul Macrum within two days, proceedings for the impeachment of Secretary Hay will be begun by the democrats. The authority for the statement is Representative Wheeler of Kentucky, who introduced the original resolutions. Speaking of the matter to-day he said.

"The republicans are trying to smother the resolutions and they will not be permitted to do so. The proof offered is so conclusive that an investigation cannot be evaded. I have been informed that Secretary Hay had the president to bring pressure to bear upon Speaker Henderson to hold up the rule for the investigation. He will not be permitted to do this. I have conferred with the democratic leaders and we have decided to begin impeachment proceedings if the resolution is smothered. The committee will be allowed two days more. Unless action is taken, the impeachment will be commenced. The parliamentary law in a case like this is clear and concise The proceedings cannot be clocked and they will be pushed to the end."

The captain of the Infanta Maria Teresa in the fight off Santiago asserts in his official report to his government that the percentage of hits by American gunners was 100 per cent. greater than the estimates made by the American experts, and he certainly was in a position to know.

Dan Rice, who died in Long Branch the other day, was noted as a circus clown, and it is stated that one time he drew an annual salary of $27,000 from Barnum's circus. He first played clown in 1844, and the fathers and grandfathers of to-day are few who have not seen him.

Johnson H. Bennett, aged 80, and Mary Ann Farley, aged 78, were married at High Ridge, N. J., a few days ago. The blushing pair drove home in a sleigh drawn by a horse which is somewhere about 35 years old, but which is still lively and ready to run away on slight provocation.

A correspondent at Kimberley during the siege recorded in his diary that "The mules slaughtered are pronounced superior to horseflesh." Whether this is really true or stated on the pinciple of saying nothing but good concerning the dead, it is about the first generous word ever spoken for the mule.

Prof. Dewar has been experimenting and trying to kill the bacteria of typhoid fever, diphtheria, cholera and other diseases with extreme cold, liquid air being used for the purpose. A temperature of 190 degrees below zero has failed to have any effect on the bacteria in 24 hours. No wonder the little scoundrels give us such a "hot time."

In these days but little is escaping the eye of the ingenious Yankee. He has now found several ways in which to use the pine needles of southern Oregon. The pine needles are first boiled and then run through wooden rollers, thus making pine needle oil, which is supposed to have valuable medicinal properties. What is left of the needle is then used for upholstering purposes. It is stated that insect pests cannot live in furniture that has been upholstered with the needles.

We know but little about our own country. A letter from Capt. Leary, U. S. A., now governor general of Guam island, U. S. A., says that all of the houses there are built upon posts four or five feet high, so that there will be a thorough circulation of air underneath to do away with all danger of dampness. All of the utensils used by the people are home-made, but all of their clothing comes from Japan. The principal articles of food are rice, cocoanuts and cakes made from the flour of the nut of a palm.

Prof. Sumner, of Yale university, certainly stirred up a hornets' nest when he declared in a recent lecture at that institution of learning that 90 per cent. of the marriages of the present day turn out unhappily. Ever since that unfortunate statement the professor has been flooded with communications, the writers of which are decidedly vigorous in their contradiction of Prof. Sumner's assertion. It is evident from this that there are some persons who take the professor seriously. It's a great pity.

The Marconi system of wireless telegraphy will be used on the mail steamers crossing the English channel between Dover and Calais, and also on the mail steamers between Folkestone and Boulogne. The vessels will have communication with either the English or the French shore, and will never be beyond communications with the shore. No messages will be accepted from the public, and the service will be for the company's benefit and for the protection of lives and property. And yet two or three years ago such a thing as wireless telegraphy was unheard of.

Five hundred old bronze and brass cannon purchased in Cuba by American speculators and brought to this country to supply the demand for war relics will have to pay a duty of 45 per cent. They come under the head of manufactures of metal. The speculation, therefore, is not likely to prove a very profitable one, but little sympathy will be wasted upon the speculators, for the reason that the latter proposed to sell as relics of the Spanish war guns that were never used in the war, but which had been condemned long before as obsolete.

Although the father of Miss Edith L. Smith, of New York, who was married in Binghamton to Frank T. Mercereau, has been dead for several weeks, it was his voice that pronounced the marriage ceremony. Rev. Mr. Smith was taken suddenly ill while the bride was in the south and died before her return. Before his death he recited the marriage service into the phonograph used. The bride and bridegroom answered the questions that came like a spirit voice from the machine and the spectators were strangely affected. A similar marriage has never occurred.

VICTORY FOR GEN. BRABANT.

Meets with Complete Success in Cape Colony—Gen. Gatacre Occupies Stromberg.

Dordrecht, March 6.—Gen. Brabant has scored a complete victory. The Boers are in full retreat with their guns and wagons, and are being pursued.

Sterkstroom, March 6.—Gen. Gatacre entered Stormberg unopposed Monday. The Boers destroyed the railway approach, but the station is intact.

London, March 6.—Mafeking is to be relieved as soon as the British force already on the way to Kimberley can raise the siege. This force is described vaguely as "strong." Fresh intelligence as to what Lord Roberts is doing has ceased again. This silence is taken to mean that something has happened or is about to happen.

Osfontein, March 6.—The Boer position has now been fairly located as about four miles to the British front and extending about eight miles. The Boer right consists of a high, long mountain on the north side of the river, which Gen. French shelled. Apparently the space between the mountain and the river has been entrenched. South of the river the Boer lines cover more ground. A few days ago their left rested on the high kopjes standing in the middle of the plain. They have now been extended two miles further south, while six small kopjes stand in the plain between the center and the left and between the center and the river and form a ridge behind which the Boers move unseen. The weakness of the whole position, however, is that it can easily be turned in either direction. The country is flat and water abounds, the recent rains having nearly filled all the dams.

"Gen. Clements reports that his advanced troops hold Achtertang and that railway communication would be opened to Joubert's Siding to-day. The enemy is still in force at Norvals Pont bridge.

"Gen. Gatacre telegraphs that the number of Boers at Stormberg is daily diminishing.

"Col. Baden-Powell reports that all was well at Mafeking on February 15, and that the enemy's activity was being met everywhere by equal activity on the part of the defenders.

"The position is unchanged at Osfontein, except that frequent heavy showers have materially improved grazing, to the benefit of the horses and transport animals."

WORK OF THE STORM.

Elevated Trains Tied Up in Chicago for a Time—Wintry Blasts at Other Points.

Chicago, March 6.—All elevated trains in Chicago were tied up for two hours Monday night by the sleet-storm as effectively as if the entire working force of the three roads had gone on a strike. It was the first absolute surrender to the elements of all the elevated lines since they began carrying passengers.

Special dispatches show that the storm extended generally over the lake region from Detroit westward and spread over Iowa and the northern half of Illinois. In southern Michigan the snow, including that which fell last week, is now three feet on the level. At Muskegon several railroad trains are reported helpless in the snow. From Wisconsin eight inches of snow is reported at La Crosse. At Joliet, Ill., street cars were delayed. In Iowa the storm prevailed generally over the state. Fruit trees near Burlington were much damaged by sleet. Six inches of snow and sleet fell at Des Moines.

FOR ABSOLUTE FREE TRADE

Senator Davis Presents an Amendment to the Porto Rican Bill—Also Proposes New Section.

Washington, March 6.—Senator Davis, of Minnesota, Monday offered an amendment to the Porto Rican bill in the senate. Its effect is to have the tariff laws of the United States applied to Porto Rico upon foreign imports, but allows absolute free trade between the United States and Porto Rico.

He also proposes a new section, as follows:

"For the purposes of this act, the following provisions of the constitution of the United States are hereby extended and made applicable to Porto Rico:

"The congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes, duties, imposts and excises, to pay the debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States; but all duties, imposts and excises shall be uniform throughout the United States.

"No capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken.

"No tax or duty shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of one state over those of another; nor shall vessels bound to or from one state be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in another."

The amendment is as follows:

"And it is hereby enacted that all duties, imposts and excises imposed or levied, laid or collected by congress upon Porto Rico or any products or business thereof or in relation to said Porto Rico shall be uniform with all duties, imposts and excises laid and collected throughout the United States.

"That no capitation or other direct tax shall be laid by congress in or upon Porto Rico unless in proportion to the census or enumeration directed to be taken by the constitution;

"That no tax or duty shall be laid on articles exported from Porto Rico;

"That no preference shall be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of Porto Rico over those of any state of the union, nor shall vessels bound to or from Porto Rico be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in any state of the union;

"Nor shall any preference be given by any regulation of commerce or revenue to the ports of any state of the union over those of Porto Rico, nor shall vessels bound to or from the ports of any state of the union be obliged to enter, clear or pay duties in any port of Porto Rico."

Senator Davis says his amendment speaks for itself. It extends the constitution over Porto Rico, and by so doing implies that it cannot be extended to the Philippines or other territories except by legislative action.

Archbishop Hennessy Dead.

Dubuque, Ia., March 5.—Archbishop Hennessy died at 2:25 p. m. Sunday. In March of last year the archbishop was first stricken with partial paralysis of the brain. Though for days at the point of death, he recovered, and was well until the evening of February 15, when he was again stricken. Friday night he was seized with another stroke, and though the attendants expected death every moment, he rallied slightly, and when Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, arrived Sunday morning he showed signs of recognition, though unable to speak. He then began to sink and passed away quietly and without a sign of pain.

REPORT ON TRUSTS.

Preliminary Statement from the Industrial Commission Submitted to Congress.

Washington, March 2.—The industrial commission Thursday submitted to congress a preliminary report on trusts and industrial combinations together with testimony, review of evidence, charts, showing effects of prices, etc. The commission makes the following recommendations based on such information as it now has:

Promoters and organizers of corporations or industrial combinations which look to the public to purchase or deal in their stocks or securities should be required to furnish full details in regard to their business necessary for safe and intelligent investment. Any prospectus which fails to give this information or which gives false information should be held legally responsible. The nature of the business together with the powers of the various officers should be expressed in the certificates of incorporation, which should be open to inspection. The directors or trustees should be required to report to the members of such corporation its financial condition in reasonable detail; to give members access to records of directors' meetings or otherwise and to furnish them before annual meetings with lists of members, with their addressess and their several holdings, and to provide in whatever other ways may be named in the certificate of incorporation means whereby the members may prevent the misuse of their property by directors or trustees.

It is recommended that the larger corporations should be required to publish annually a properly audited report, showing in reasonable detail their assets and liabilities, with profit or loss; such report and audit to be under oath and to be subject to government inspection. With regard to the interstate commerce commission, it is recommended that it be given authority not only to prescribe the methods of keeping accounts of railroads and to demand reports in such detail as it may require, but also to inspect and audit such accounts; that the decisions of the commission be made operative at a day fixed in the decisions and to remain so unless reversed by the United States on appeal; that the commission be authorized to prescribe classifications of freight articles, and to make rules and regulations for freight transportation throughout the United States, and that penalties for violations of the interstate commerce act should be appropriate fines against the carrier and not imprisonment of officials.

Commissioner Lorimer states that he concurs in all the recommendations, but withholds his judgment on transportation corporations until testimony now being compiled by the commission is submitted to congress with recommendations. Commissioner Clarke concurs in all recommendations except that he believes rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission should not go into effect in case of appeal until affirmed by court and that trial on appeal should be expedited.

OPERATIONS IN LUZON.

Success of Gen. Bates' Expedition—A Number of Towns Occupied—Some Fighting.

Manila, March 6.—Gen. Bates' expedition to southern Luzon, consisting of the Fortieth and Forty-fifth regiments, a total of 2,300 men, has occupied Nueva Caceres, province of South Camarines; Daet, province of North Camarines, and the neighboring smaller towns. The enemy resisted at one point and two Americans were killed, including Lieut. John B. Galleher, of the Fortieth regiment.

On February 20 the expedition arrived at San Miguel bay, landed, and in three columns immediately pushed inland, converging upon Nueva Caceres, and attempting to control the enemy's routes to retreat.

At Libmanan, north of Nueva Caceres, the enemy was concealed in the rice field and resisted a battalion of the Fortieth regiment which engaged them at close quarters with bayonets. After 40 minutes' fighting the enemy fled and Libmanan was occupied. The Americans buried 64 of the enemy, whose total loss in killed and wounded is estimated at 140.

Our Increase of Insanity.

Much discussion has been aroused lately by the alarming increase of insanity. Our high rate of living is the cause assigned. In the rush for money, both men and women neglect their bodies until the breakdown comes. The best way to preserve health is by a faithful use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. By curing all stomach ills, this remedy prevents nervous breakdown. It is also an excellent medicine for constipation, dyspepsia and biliousness.

CONDEMNATION

ALMOST UNIVERSAL, OF MINNESOTA CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION,

For Its Action on Porto Rico Tariff. Heatwole and Fletcher Also Fall, for Both Condemn Their Party—A Pretty "Kettle of Fish"—Eyes Now on Knute Nelson—Outlook for Sweeping Rebuke to Republicanism This Fall—State and National Political Points—Peoples Party State Convention—"A. B. C." Ticket and Campaign—Twin City Point and Pointers—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, March 5, 1900.

Almost sensational has been the effect of the divided action of the Minnesota Republican delegation in the lower house of congress, on the Porto Rico tariff bill passed under McKinley whip and spur last Wednesday. Centering in the Twin Cities, but rapidly spreading throughout the state, the feeling has been that of condemnation, almost without exception. Previous to the final vote the wires were hot to Washington, Minneapolis taking the lead, in efforts of the people there to hold Congressman Fletcher down to vote against the bill.

In St. Paul the feeling was that Stevens would follow the trust orders, whatever they were, as was the result. In the nearer portions of the third district, the gaff was thrown into the gentle Joel, because he stood out against party dictation. Thus, as is the case with most of the current issues, the glaring inconsistencies of the Republican party were made continually more apparent. In a word it was the case of being "between the devil and the deep sea." If the delegation stood by the people, and voted against the bill, it condemned the party, and if the delegation followed the Hanna orders, as promulgated, carried out and explained by Tawney, it slapped the people in the face. In the final result Heatwole and Fletcher slapped the party, and the remaining five slapped the people, who will proceed to swipe them off the face of the political earth, if signs are not misleading.

If Twin City Republican curses were "deep" rather than "loud," the declarations from the country were along the line expressed by State Auditor Dunn's paper, the Princeton Union, which, even anticipating the possibility of just what has happened, declared that it would never advocate the election of one of the roosters who should disregard the advice of McKinley and do the bidding of the trusts—just what they have done, but with McKinley's "advice and consent." From the Duluth district it is conceded even by Morris' friends, that he has sealed his doom, and the same with Eddy of the seventh. The scalp lifters will also be after the hair of Schoolmaster McCleary. As to Tawney he probably relies on his high position with the administration and his consequent power, to help him out. Further as to Heatwole, the friends of Frank Wilson claim that they have a "puddin'" in defeating Joel for re-nomination. But inside talk is that Joel will recognize the inevitable and try for the gubernatorial nomination, hoping to do Van Sant by the strength of the anti-administration sentiment in the state.

And so it is a merry "kettle of fish."

Congressman Heatwole's endorsement of the Democratic position ought to commend him to his people instead of subject him to intrigue for his defeat, for the reason that the position is right. What inducement is there to our public servants to do right, if when they do so they receive the reverse of commendation. But possibly it has been done on the quibble that Republicans have gone wrong only 15 per cent. That was a stunning statement that Mr. Heatwole is alleged to have made to President McKinley, that a question ought to be 100 per cent right, and not 15 per cent right, and that if the tariff is wrong, it is as wrong in principle for two years as for 50. Joel stood out on this question, but where will he be at when before the people he appeals to them to stand by that 15 per cent party?

And Congressman Fletcher's troubles are pitiful. The foxy old "guy," as one of the leading Republicans of Hennepin who has labored for years to defeat him dubs him, took no position until assured that the 15 per cent bill was sure of passage, and then squared himself at home, as he thinks, by voting against the bill. The cute Uncle Loren has "squared" nothing. By voting against the bill he simply condemns his party, piling up the indictments the people have against it and which they will see to it that Your Uncle Loren has to face in this campaign. But, Fletcher's statement shows that he approved the 15 per cent wrong, and only voted no because so hardly pressed from home. In short it is another "h-ll of a fix" for Your Uncle.

As to the delegation as a whole, Eddy, Morris (Little Pagey), Tawney (whipper snapper), dunderhead McCleary, and Heatwole and Fletcher, isn't Minnesota proud of the whole trust serving list? Won't it be a delight to see the people throw the gaffs into each next November? There should be no question about the election of a complete congressional delegation by the reform forces—the American anti-monopolist forces.

The unanimity of the important suggestion of Judge Caldwell as the candidate for the American forces for vice president, is a striking incident of the national situation. Judge Caldwell was wanted for the same position with Bryan in 1896, by a very large and earnest element in the Democratic convention, but it gave way to the miserable makeshift of locality and class interest talk, on the idea now about to be thoroughly exploded, that the ticket must straddle from east to west, and recognize the capitalistic class.

And speaking of "American forces," that is a specially appropriate campaign designation for the combined opposition to Hannaism that will be put up under the leadership of Bryan. Our forces are American in opposition to war of conquest, and destruction of republics, in the Philippines; in our adherence to the doctrines of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution; in advocacy of a financial policy for Americans, and for the interests of all her people; in bearing sympathy with the South Africans struggling against English oppression, plunder and conquest; in demanding the abolition of government by injunction, and governments by the trusts for the trusts and of the trusts; and finally, American is applicable because already, under such patriotic impulses, the American flag is to fly as our emblem of political success. Hurrah for the American Forces!

If the American ticket should be Bryan and Caldwell, it might be called the "A. B. C." ticket, and everybody could understand it.

The flour mill trust has gone to pieces, but only temporarily; is merely spitting on its hands to get a better hold. Incidentally the dupes who placed their money in the trust stock will be squeezed out and the slick geesers who stay in get the cream. Meanwhile the thousands of men out of employment by the consolidations of which these failures are an incident, will have time to reflect on the beauties of Republican gold standard administration.

And the growth of trusts goes on at the same rate as formerly. In January New Jersey chartered $70,000,000, West Virginia $55,000,000, Delaware $12,000,000, and other trust favoring states $66,000,000; total for January, $203,000,000, against $200,000,000 all told in December. The grand total now exceeds 600 trust corporations, with capital of $10,000,000,000, which the people must pay dividends on, water and all.

If flour trust has not yet paid there are plenty of the trusts which have. American Steel and Wire declares a dividend of 7 per cent on its $40,000,000 preferred stock, and has left of 1899 earnings enough for 18 per cent on its common stock of $50,000,000. Standard Oil has just declared a 25 per cent quarterly dividend on its capital of $100,000,000, which rate will duplicate its capital in a single year's profits. Standard Oil raked in $25,000,000 profits from raising oil 3 cents per gallon recently.

And speaking of Bryan's now almost certain election, the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, which opposed him in 1896, gives the figures of Bryan's tremendous and constantly increasing strength, which we thus summarize:

In 1893, '94 and '95 the Democrats lost every Northern state, and were defeated in six Southern states. Bryan on the Chicago platform, the adoption of which sent one-third of his delegates out to sulk, or secretly oppose him, carried all the states that remained Democratic in 1895, and gained eleven states, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, North Carolina, Tennessee, Washington and Wyoming and, with a few hundred votes more, would have had all of Kentucky and California, of which he received one electoral vote in each. He cut the Republican majorities in Indiana and Ohio down one-half or more, and carried Kansas by 13,000 when the Republicans had carried it by 70,000 the year before. This year Bryan will have the cordial and enthusiastic support of his reunited party, and the allies will be recruited by thousands on thousands of Republicans leaving their party on account of imperialism, the reign of the trusts, and the surrender of their party body and breeches to the money power in the gold standard banking bill.

And while Standard Oil boosts kerosene, the match trust commences to use cross-grained wood in order that matches may break on being scratched and increase the consumption. But the farmer goes right along enjoying his 50 cent wheat, while barb wire, binding twine, nails, lumber and all else that he needs is boosted under Republican administration.

Hurray for the McKinley trust administration! Barb wire and kerosene up, wheat and cotton down!

The best estimates obtainable, as to the traveling men affected by the trusts, are that the number laid off in 1899 exceeded 150,000. At the low average of $200 per month—and the trust salesmen doubtless averaged twice that, salary and expenses—this means a loss of $360,000,000 to traveling men, railroads, hotels, etc., which sum goes to trust presidents at salaries equal to that of the president of the United States, and to pay immense dividends on real and watered stocks.

The week's biggest chunk of Twin City "prosperity" has been the sale under the hammer, of the celebrated Guaranty Loan building, Minneapolis. Costing, land and building, up into the millions, it brought at foreclosure sale, rising of $570,000, the amount of accrued claims under the mortgage. The ownership is said to be between Thomas Lowry and one of the New York banks, who it is said will redeem. But what of the part they do not "redeem," representing the people's thousands on thousands, the shrinkage in property values, and the dollars wrung from people in the Menage swindles? Echo answers what.

On account of the low price of wheat, Senator Knute Nelson has introduced a bill to increase Surveyor General Warner's salary! During all the years of great labors in that office, the pay has been sufficient, but now that the surveys are being completed, and the work of the office next to nothing, the pay must go up. That's like it—is simply Hannacratic, not to say Nelsonian—for Senator Knute is very fond of caring for the poor (political) farmer. And, besides if there ever was a real poor such "farmer" it is Eli S. G. S. C.

Mrs. Smith—Yes, but that is not so ridiculous as the man they call a "teller" in a bank. He won't tell you anything. I asked one the other day how much money Mr. Jones had on deposit, and he just laughed at me.—Collier's Weekly.

The other day a man walked up to the cashier's desk in a large stockbroking concern and asked for a pen to indorse a note. To his disgust, the pen sputtered, blotting his signature, and he threw it aside with the popular exclamation:

"Hair on it."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

G. A. R. Encampment.

The G. A. R. encampment department of Minnesota, for 1900, held at Minneapolis, was well attended and the session harmonious. The following officers were elected:

Department Commander—G. S. Ives, St. Peter.

Senior Vice-Commander—William H. Harries, Caledonia.

Junior Vice-Commander—G. H. Bullard, Wadena.

Medical Director—R. O. Craig, Janesville.

The memorial committee presented memorials on the death of Past Commanders A. Barto and E. C. Babb, which were adopted by rising votes.

The encampment did a graceful thing when it decided that the dead of the Spanish war shall be included in all future Memorial day exercises in this state.

Commander Searle was the recipient of a handsome diamond badge, John Day Smith making the presentation on behalf of the department members. The retiring commander made an appropriate speech in response.

The next encampment will be held at St. Paul, in February, 1901.

County Auditors.

The County Auditors' association of Minnesota held its annual meeting in St. Paul and appointed a committee to draft a measure revising, systematizing and simplifying the tax laws of the state.

It was argued that there is a great need of speedy revision of the laws and that if the laws were reformed and then enforced a great stride would be made toward more just and equitable assessment and taxation.

Taxation was the sole topic of discussion at the meeting. The annual election resulted as follows: President, John Gleason, Polk county; vice president, W. R. Johnson, Ramsey county; secretary, E. J. Miller, Big Stone county; treasurer, L. M. Stevens, Becker county.

School Money.

The March apportionment of school funds amounting to $400,000 was completed by Auditor Dunn and State Superintendent Lewis. The total school population eligible to aid, as given by county superintendents, is 326,000. Distribution is made on a basis of $1.25 per pupil, and this year's apportionment is the largest ever made in Minnesota. Last year's distribution was on a basis of 90 cents per pupil, and it was 10 cents lower the previous year.

In October another apportionment will be made, and will aggregate in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars. The money apportioned was derived from the sale of school lands and interest on bonds owned by the school fund and earnings of school land certificates.

A Quiet Sale.

It was only a quiet little foreclosure sale in the sheriff's office in Minneapolis, with only one bidder and one bid, such as are of daily occurrence at the court house, but in some respects it was one of the notable sales in the history of the city, for the property included the Guaranty Loan building, the largest and finest office building in Minneapolis. It went for $547,515.05, and everything from the machinery in the sub-basement to the flagstaff on the tower was included.

Death at a Dance.

A Sunday night dance at the residence of Frank Homarnik, near Little Falls, came to a sad end. Charles Bergstrom, a young man who had been participating in the festivities, left the floor while a dance was in progress and sat down and in less than a minute fell from his chair dead. The doctor pronounced the cause of death heart failure due to excitement and the exertion of dancing.

Township Mutuals.

Township mutual reports loom up larger than State Commissioner O'Shaughnessy supposed they would. He has completed a tabulation of 126 companies.

They had at risk $110,000,000 insurance last year, against $98,000,000 the year before. Their losses were $153,666, and their expenses were $46,926. They collected a little more than $215,000 in all.

State Cash.

At the close of business Feb. 28, the state treasury had $1,367,891.66 to its credit. Since the end of January, the receipts of the office have been close to $1,000,000. The Great Northern paid $250,000 to apply on its gross earnings tax. The university also paid $12,493.74. The Milwaukee paid a gross earnings tax balance of $20,129.65, and the Great Western put up $17,789.17.

POSTED ON FINANCE.

At Least That Was the Impression She Gave Her Sister Club Members.

"It is simply impossible to keep posted on everything," said a club woman to a Daughter of the American Revolution.

"Yes, indeed, it is," admitted the D. A. R. "But sometimes, if you are not quite posted, you can wriggle out of a difficult situation without seeming so very ignorant. For example, I was just saved by my presence of mind at a D. A. R. meeting the other day. Prof. Sparks, of the university, you know, read a lovely paper on 'Governeur Morris, Financier of the American Revolution.'

"'Who is this Governeur Morris?' said a friend of mine from the Fortnightly club. 'Seems to me I never heard of him.'

"There were half a dozen women around, and I was frightfully embarrassed. I never had heard of Governeur Morris, either, but, you know, a D. A. R. is supposed to know all those things.

"'O, don't you remember?' I said. 'Morris was the man who financed the government and borrowed a lot of money to do it.'

"'Thank you,' said my friend from the Fortnightly.

"Now, the fact is, you know, dear," continued the D. A. R., "I really knew nothing of it whatever, except that Prof. Sparks' subject said that the man had financed the government, and I knew if he did that he must have had to borrow a lot of money."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

"The next prize package I drew was a plain omelette. I fought shy of it and said I was waiting for the real solid dishes."

Could Change His Mind.

Prof. Hendershott is well known in Pittsburgh as a man of affable temper, and it is rare that he shows even impatience. One day while traveling on a suburban trolley car to call on a friend, he asked the conductor to transfer him to the city street cars at a certain point. Soon afterward the car stopped and he was surprised to see outside the very friend he was seeking. He started to leave the car, when the conductor accosted him. "You can't change for your car here," he said, brusquely. The professor passed him, taking no notice. "Can't change cars here, I tell you," snapped the conductor again. The professor, deep in conversation with his friend, merely waved his hand to signify that the car might go on without him. "Here," cried the man in brass buttons, angrily, "don't I tell you that you can't change cars at this place?" Then the good old professor answered with severity: "But I can change my mind at this station, can't I?"—Golden Days.

Map Puzzle Educator.

Is Iowa as large as Maine? Which is the Pan Handle State? What state is bounded by four straight lines? These and many other questions relating to the geography of our own country answered by the map puzzle sent out by the Chicago Great Western Railway. It is a dissected map of the United States printed on heavy cardboard and the puzzle consists in putting the pieces together so as to form a complete map. It will be found interesting and instructive to old people as well as young. It will be sent to our readers sending 10 cents to F. H. Lord, G. P. and T. A., Chicago Great Western Railway, Chicago, Ill., mark envelope "Puzzle Department."

The International & Great Northern railway are sending out a map of Texas, Mexico and surrounding territory that is an excellent production of the map engraver's art, both artistically and geographically. The map is made on an unusually large scale, and is as near perfect as to details as it is possible to make it. Mr. D. J. Price, general passenger and ticket agent of the system, at Palestine, Texas, is sending copies of this map to anyone who asks for it and encloses seven cents in stamps to pay postage.

A NOTED JUDGE SAVED BY PERUNA.

Had Catarrh Nine Years---All Doctors Failed.

HON. GEORGE KERSTEN, OF CHICAGO.

Hon. Geo. Kersten, a well-known Justice of the Peace, of Chicago, says:

"I was afflicted with catarrh for nine years. My catarrh was located chiefly in my head. I tried many remedies without avail. I applied to several doctors, but they were not able to cure me. I learned of the remedy, Peruna, through the daily newspapers. After taking the remedy for 18 weeks I was entirely cured. I consider my cure permanent, as it has been two and a half years since I was cured."

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Peruna is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Peruna not only cures catarrh, but prevents it.

All families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book entitled "Winter Catarrh." This book consists of seven lectures on catarrh and la grippe delivered at The Hartman Sanitarium. It contains the latest information on the treatment of catarrhal diseases. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Mar. 9, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Read the GAZETTE adds.

—Don't forget the social at the City Hall tonight.

—A new floor was laid in the Depot office last week.

—Tuesday, March 13, 1900, is election day for town and village election.

—The Junior Journal Club will give a dime social in the City Hall tonight.

—For election tickets call at the GAZETEE office, all orders promptly filled.

—Nearly everyone enjoyed the pleasant exercise last Tuesday morning.

—The weather and roads being favorable a good fair is expected tomorrow.

—The Delano Creamery will now be run by Dave Ribel, with Claus Johnson Assistant.

—Tonight the Journal Junior Club will give a dime social at the city hall. Everybody invited.

—The Advent protracted meetings were closed last Sunday the work will be continued in Rockford.

—A Peoples caucus is to be held at the City Hall, Monday night, at 7:30. Everybody invited to be present.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fri. 11tf.

—The McKinley bridge is being repaired an I put in good order for spring travel. It needed repairing badly.

—A large party took a sleighride to Rockford Wednesday evening, to attend the Advent Protracted meetings.

—The Supervisors of Franklin met Tuesday, at the office of Cleark Ziebarth and closed up their years financial affairs.

—Saturday evening the counsel met at their room and transacted all business brought befor them, and finished their work for the year.

—Blaine Wright enjoyed a swift ride on the sidewalk last Tuesday. About every time there is good sleighing we hear from Blaine.

—A few loads of dry wood that had remained at home waiting for good roads, and some sawlogs, found their way to town this week. So much for snow.

—The mail route from Delano to Rockford and return daily, has been re-established. This is something that has been sadly missed for quite a while.

—Last Monday evening snow began to fall and continued to cover the earth with its beauty until early Tuesday morning. This is the first real snow of any consequence for some time.

—On Tuesday morning, March 6, our citizens turnde out enmasse, for the first time this winter, to enjoy a good snow shoveling. About six inches of the beautiful had come down during the night, making the best sleighing of the season.

—Everybody is cordially invited to attend the services of the Y. M. C. A. Sunday March 11. Morning services will be held at both the Methodist and Presbyterian churches, a men's meeting will be held at the city hall in the afternoon, and a general mass meeting at the city hall at 7:30 p. m.

—Store keepers should not leave barrels of merchandise on the side walks, during the night, to call attention to the line of stock carried, as the nightwatchman is the only person who abruptly comes in contact with such a forceable advertisement, and cultivates a habit of skining his leg every nigh after moon down; but, should advertise in the GAZETTE, a paper which is carried into every home in this section of the county.

—The Programme of the Y. M. C. A. for Sunday, March 11, is as follows:

Prayer meeting at M. E. Church, 9:00 a. m. Preaching at Presbyterian and M. E. Churches 10:30 a. m. Meeting for men only, City Hall, 3:30 p. m. E. L. and C. E. at the M. E. and Presbyterian Churches, 6:30 p. m. Grand Rally, at City Hall, 7:30. Good singers are among the six young men from the State and Hamline Universities. Everyone is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

—We had hoped that it would not be further necessary to allude to the recent small-pox cases in Franklin. But on Tuesday Emil Wandersee, who was the first to be taken down and who has recently recovered, and been released from quarantine, called on us, and requested us to say that there was a mistake about his father and mother having the small pox, as was published on authority of the Health Officer, of Franklin a few weeks ago. He says they only had grippe. As none of the cases were severe enough to cause the family to seek medical assistance after the diagnosis of the first cases was made, and the cases being very mild, not being much marked of course it is hard for people who have always believed small-pox necessarily a very severe and a fatal disease to think that it was small-pox. But the history of the disease in the United States, where there has been many hundreds of cases within a couple of years, is very much like those occuring in Minnesota, very mild.

—We learn from this week's Eagle that it now has a "Constant Reader".

—A Lodge of Modern Brotherhood of America was organized here last week.

—Jim Hill needs a new sign "No Smoking Allowed" in the ladies waiting room at the depot.

—Litchfield has free rural mail delivery. Why can,t Delano have some such modern improvements?

—The Orientals are to hold a session, and initiate a large class in the City Hall next Tuesday evining.

—It is claimed by some, that the most prominent men in town are not always sure of being elected to office.

—Miss Mary T. Reichel went to St. Paul, Thursday afternoon, to order a supply of spring and summer goods for the millinery store.

—Look over the Financial Statement of the Village of Delano in another column and see what has been done during the last year.

—Notice are prosted for a citizen's caucus, at the City Hall, Saturday, March 9, at 1 P M to nominate a ticket for town officers for Franklin town.

—W. D. Albeitz has moved into the building next to Conzet's hardware store. J. W. Peterson's agricultural machinery taking the place formerly occuppied by Albeitz.

—Tim Gleeson, of Minneapolis, has sold his residence property here to Ed F. Ziebarth, who recently sold his farm. Ed will occupy the place at once and become a Delanoite.

—Fred Kespohl has returned from Dultuh. He has taken J. W. McDonald's insurance business. McDonald going onto the road organizing Modern Brotherhood of America lodges.

—Delano's G. A. R. post holds daily meetings at 11 a. m., at the Post Office. Eight or ten old soldiers meet, and discuss the Boer war, and other up to date questions, occasionally touching on the way it was in the sixties.

—Fred Strauch wishes the public to know that he has purchased and moved to his place the old Skooksberg house, and fitted it up for a broom factory. Also, employed Conrad Albrecht, an experienced broommaker; and is now ready to supply customers. Home enterprises should be patronized.

—Printing paper is getting high. Combines and trusts are getting to control things so that most people are made to the enriching of the rich. We have not raised on subscription price. But we see much is being said about doing so by some papers. If all delinquents would pay up, it would help tide over the tough places.

—Last Friday evening a number of friends gathered at the residence of Peter Carlson to give him a goodbye party before he and his family leave for Sweden Mr. S's. old home. Several presents were made to the different members of the family as mementoes Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson will return to Sweeden with them. All have the good wishes of many Delano friends.

—Soon after 5 o'clock, this morning the sound of the fire bells called the citizens together to witness the burning of the Delano Roller Mills, owned and operated by Johnson Bros. The fire caught in the rear of the building and was under considerable headway when discovered. No one seens to know just how the fire stared. The fire companies were soon on hand and for a shor time it looked as if but small loss would result. But suddenly the flames shot up anew, and soon, the building was consumed. There was some insurance carried. We have not learned whether or not the mill will be rebuilt. It is altogether likely that Delano will not long be without a mill.

—This morning Times telegram claims that J. J. Hill owns controlling interests in no less than five daily papers, among them, the Globe, Pioneer Press and Tribune. We have had suspicious for sometime that he was controling the Eagle—the Delano Eagle.

A short time ago the Eagle started a story which the republicans sheets have been copying, to the effect that "All the idle men who used to be loofing around, glad to take a job at 1.25 a day now have steady employment at twice that sum." We think this is "exaggeration." We understand section men on the G. N. are not getting over $1.25 per day. The Eagle clamed a few weeks ago to be employing 20 hands. Wonder how many of them are receiving those prosperous wages."

A Week of Prayer.

A week of prayer will begin in all Methodist churches of the country March 24. It has been discovered that the membership of the Methodist church is less than it was two years ago, and the bishops have decided to bring the matter directly befor the people to decide.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Damning Our Wards.

The Wine and Spirit Gazette states that the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association of St. Louis, recently closed contracts for a large exportation of American beer to the Philippines and to South Africa. Under these contracts 150,000 bottles will be shipped weekly to Manila and 400,000 monthly to Cape Town. Adolphus Busch has been a Democrat, but when in Washington lately he called upon President McKinley, upon the latter's invitation, the St. Louis papers said, and on his return put himself on record as in favor of Mr. McKinley's expansion policy. He certainly has several stout reasons for doing so. Our Christian president seems to be succeeding very well so far in hitching both bishops and brewers to his triumphal chariot. -Backbone.

Backbone:—A missionary in Liberia writes that he is only waiting for some one to take his place there, to himself come home and take the platform against the liquor traffic. He says: "I can do Africa more good warring against the liquor traffic here than I can preching and teaching the gospel there. Africa, with the simple gospel of Jesus is saved, but Africa with rum is eternally lost; for the few missionaries that can survive there cannot overcome the effect of the river of strong drink that is being poured into the country."

Constituents are Masters.

"At the request of the leaders of the house and of the president," said Mr. Morris, "I voted for the Puerto Rican tariff bill. Right in the face of this, Senator Dayis, who is supposed to be standing by the administration, comes along with his free trade Puerto Rican amendment. It is a move that will defeat me and render the condition in Minneasota very serious. I am completely discouraged."—Times.

County Cullings.

Township and village officers are to be elected next Tuesday, March 13. If our friends in each precinct would be kind enough to mail us a list of officers elected we will try to publish a full list for the county next Friday. Get the best men in your precinct if possible.

Hon. Nathan Warner, was agreeably surprised last Sunday by the appearance of his children who had come to his farm home, to have a family gathering, and bring their birthday offerings on the occasion of his having arrived at the alloted limit of man's life, three score and ten. Mr. Warner is now living on borrowed time.

Don't stay away from caucuses and next Tuesday's eleetion, and then go about abusing the Village or Township officers for a year. If you attend all meetings and do your best to get good officers and fail, you will probably feel better about it than you will to learn that the "poor sticks" were elected by one or two majority which you could easily have turned for a good officer.

There being no criminal cases on the calendar for the spring term of Court, in Anoka County, the Commisioners have dispensed with the calling of a grand jury.—Howard Lake Herald.

It must be its not justice them Anoka fellows want. That's where Judge Giddings lives, when he is at home.

Sami-Pox Epidemic.

JACKSON Miss., March 7.—An official report made to the Hinds county board of supervisors to day reveals an appalling state of affairs in the Jonesville neighborhood in the southern part of the county. The community is literally honeycombed with smallpox of the most virulent and loathsome form and diring the past six weeks nearly one hundred deaths have occured. On sone days the death rate has been so large that it was impossible to secure coffin and rude caskets were made from rails. Whole familes have been wiped out of existence and of several large families only one or two children are left.—Pioneer Press.

IF I CAN LIVE.

If I can live
To make some pale face brighter, and to give
A second luster to some tear dimmed eye,
Or e'en impart
One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or cheer some way worn soul in passing by,

If I can lend
A strong hand to the fallen, or defend
The straight against a single envious strain,
My life though bare,
Perhaps, of much that even'th dear and fair
To us of earth, will not have been in vain.

The purest joy,
Most near to heaven, far from earth's alloy,
Is bidding cloud give way to sun and shine
And twill be well
If on that day of days the angels tell
Of me, she did her best, for one of Thine.
—Helen Hunt Jackson.

Agreeably Surprised.

Five hundred wage earners in one of the large Mills of Paterson, N. J., were agreeably surprised last week when pay day came. Instead of one envelope they received two. In one envelope was the surprise in the shape of the usual pay and a 5 per cent. increase; in the other the explanation. This was simply that the Company now finds itself able to keep its promise of sharing any prosperity which might come to it with its workers; that trade had improved and a 5 per cent. advance was made possible. The advance, of which there had been no intimation whatever, caused much rejoicing.—American Economist, Feb 23, 1900

Isn't a 5 per cent raise on wages rather a small share of prosperity for the laborer when compared with the great rise in prices on the articles he makes, or that he uses in his family? Wouldn't it be a much more agreeable suprise if the rise in wages would be a little nearer what the rise in prices of commodities are?

Republican Argument.

The fusionists are going to drop the free Silver questions until after they have saved the country from the grasp of imperialism.—Sherburne County Times.

The above is a fair specimen of the misleading argument advanced by g. o. p. organs. Where did the Times get its notion that "the fusionists are going to drop the free silver question"? They certainly never learned it by reading any of Bryan's speeches, and Bryan seems bound to be the fusionist candidate, on the Chicago platform with anti-trust and anti-imperialism planks, added. The newspapers should be honest and give their readers facts, and not fictions, for political arguments. Of course we know that the present incumbent was understood to favor bimetallism, until the time to nominate a candidate for President; then, to run on a platform containing a plank in favor of bimetallism with international agreement; that he has been accepting Hannaism ever since as Senator Davis would have the new territories accept our constitution; or as the fellow cut off the dog's tail, a small piece every day, so it wouldn't hurt so much; but no body, except in such squibs as the above from the Sherburne County Times, ever accuses Mr. Bryan of wavering or tottering on his Chicago platform. Why, the very tenacity with which he adhers to the Chicago platform is what makes him grow in favor with the people as a presidential candidate. The people are heartily sick and tired of vascillating servants at the head of the government. They would prefer a President who will stand by his convictions of what is right and what is wrong; and who believes, every day in the year, in equal rights for all and special privileges for none; who don't write messages favoring free trade, and advise Congressman to vote for a tariff between different parts of what they claim as our country. They would feel more comfortable with a stable government, a government that don't furnish so many surprises, and find so many loopholes in our old constitution.

IT IS said that Gen. Otis has ordered a thousand pairs of handcuffs and leg bands sent to him, at Manila, to be used in restraining the insane soldiers in that country! Is it any wonder it is so hard to get soldiers with such prospects stareing them in the face? And after having kept those who were patriotic enough to enlist to free Spain's subjects from tyranny all summer, against thir wishes, after their time had expired, we are prepared to belief that there is enough going on in the Philippines under the U. S. protection to make this demand for irons seem excusable. While our soldiers were fighting for humanity and freedom God prospered and protected them and their's; but when guns were turned against those they freed God seems to have taken the other side the horses and mules shipped failed to arrrive and now irons are asked for. Are the men crazy, or are those who asked them to give their lives in that far away land troubled with a sevore attack of Empireomania.

Among our Exchanges.

Aitkins Age (Rep:) Th vote of Congressman Page Morris on the Porto Rican tarsff bull has not improved his chanyes for a re nomniation.

Minneapolis Democrat: what has become of Otis? With an army as large as that yet engaged on the British side in South Africa, he has for months, reported nothing but lists of killed and wounded. For all the information sent by him, the war migh be at a standstill.

Minneapolis Democrat: Local politicians must not run away with the idea that the national campaign will altogether swallow up local issues this fall. The Democrat party stands for decent and honest candidates and will insist on them no matter how hot the national election may be.

THE Saint Cloud Journal Press (Rep.) says: "The Republican congressman who voted for the Porto Rico bill are doing too much explaining. If they will remember that silence is golden, and brace up the senators to let Porto Rico in on the ground floor and under the constitution, all will be forgiven." If silence is "golden" most of the republican papers of the state must, judging from the howling they are doing, have joined the silverites.

Litchfield Independent: The Rev. Charles A. Crane of East Boston is credited with this: Washington was not up on destiny. The "pent up Utica" here between the seas was big enough for him. But he lived in the day of small things. He never dreamed of shooting the Gospel into men by wholesale. He was content to see the sway of moral ideas. He only fought for liberty. If he had been seized with a fit of benevolent assimilation when he had George III flat on his back in the eighth round, what a glorious country we might have had. Still, it makes me somewhat suspicious to hear never a boast of the Mexican war. If Washington had been properly proud of his country, and had kept his eye upon his star, he might have annexed the whole western Continent, the circumjacent seas and the outlying islands, and he who doubts that he had a right to do all these things is guilty of treason.

Prohibition Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 8. (Special).—This city will entertain the State Prohibition Convention, which will meet in, Century Hall on the 20th and 21st of this month.

It is claimed that there is unusual interest and enthusiasm among the cold water people in this year of grace. They point to the "canteen" agitation and the expansion of the liquor interests in our new possessions, as potent factors in rousing public apathy, touching the evils of the liquor traffic. The secretary of the State Committee, who has been spending considerable time in the field, is very confident that this convention will be the most representative ever held in the state. In confirmation of this opinion, he produces statistics to show that people of this state have given financial support to the work far beyond any record of previous history.

The business of the convention will be the nomination of the State and congressional and electoral tickets, and election of delegates to be present at the National Convention in Chicago to be held in June, and the election of the State Central Committee.

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, National Chairman, will be present both days and adress the convention. The evening sessions will be in the nature of public rallies, to which the general public will be invited, and where the tenets of the party will be discussed by the leading representatives in attendance.

Reduced rates have been granted by all the railroads of the state on the certificate plan. Those desiring to avail themselves of these rates will buy a first class ticket to Minneapolis, securing a certificate of purchase, which, after execution by a representative of the roads at the convention on the 21st, will entitle them to return on the payment of one-third the regular fare. These tickets will be on sale on March 17, 18, 19, and 20, and good returning from the 21st to the 24th, inclusive.

A HIDDEN LIGHT.

My Uncle Jim's a wonder;
He would know jest what to do
In a military crisis—
Say, another Waterloo.
He could figure in a minute
How his side might win the day
And get out with banners flyin'—
But none ever came his way.

In political transactions
He has foresight rare and keen.
He would know what string to pull at
As he stood behind the scene.
In a "coo-dy-tah," I tell you,
Genius! That's what he'd display,
Changin' all the face of hist'ry—
But none ever came his way.

An' as fur financeerin',
That is where his talent shines;
He knows how folks should handle
Railroad pools an' banks an' mines.
Puttin' through big undertakin's
Seems to him a pastime gay.
He could fix 'em in a jiffy—
But none ever came his way.

Uncle Jim is livin' quiet
In his house behind the hill,
An' the world goes on without him
Missin' all his brains and skill.
War, diplomacy, finances
Would have felt his master sway
Had occasion only offered—
But none ever came his way.

UNCLE PETER

By Kennett F. Harris.

THERE is a cheery old gentleman living in a western suburb who is wont to boast of the number of friends he has.

"Everybody likes me," he says, in his open, candid way, "and of course it's natural that they should. There ain't no good reason why they shouldn't like me, is there?"

Of course the person interrogated says there is no good reason and the old gentleman, recognizing in this an added tribute to his popularity, is much gratified.

"The only enemies I ever had were the people I've lent money to," he resumes. "Now, you're a friend of mine and I like you, just the same as you like me; but if you was to ask me to lend you $50 I'd tell you to go plum to Jericho—then I'd keep your friendship. S'posen I should lend you $50. Do you know what'd happen then? No, you don't need to tell me you'd pay it back promptly, just the way you said you would. I know all about that. No, sir!

"Well, mebbe you would and mebbe you wouldn't. Anyway, I ain't going to resk it. You're my friend now and it's the way I tell you: The only enemies I ever had in my life was people I lent money to."

It is the opinion of a nephew that the old gentleman never lent a copper penny in his life and that he is merely theorizing when he talks of the quenching effect of loans upon the sacred frame of friendship. At the same time he concedes that it is more than likely that his relation is right.

"I've given him the opportunity to verify his position in a practical way," said the nephew, one day. "But that was only when I was in a tight place.

WHERE HE COULD WATCH IT.

He said he would love to do it, but he wasn't going to lose the affection of his pet sister's only boy on account of a few paltry, dirty dollars. I told him that I would insert an 'unwavering affection' clause in the note along with the interest and waiver of exemptions, but he couldn't see it. On the whole I'm glad he didn't. I went to a man who advertised that he assisted people of delicate sensibilities and cultured instincts. I didn't quite see what my instincts and sensibilities had to do with the case, but it seemed to me that I hit the requirements anyway, and I went to him.

"He soaked it to my delicate sensibilities at the rate of about 15 per cent. a month, and he made it rather unpleasant for me. He could raise the goose flesh on a man's cultured instincts beyond anybody I ever went up against, but after all I don't believe he was a marker to what Uncle Peter would be if a man owed him anything. I can imagine a man cherishing undying enmity toward Uncle Peter about 30 days after he had touched him for a five—supposing such a thing possible. You've heard father tell about the hoe, haven't you?"

The father of the nephew tells about the hoe quite frequently—or, rather, he begins to tell about it. His love for the venerable Uncle Peter has not been dimmed by any sordid squabble over borrowed money any more than has that of his son, but it has been chipped at the edges in some other way apparently.

It appears that when Uncle Peter's beard was of a virile sandiness and long before his farm was surveyed and platted into town lots, with duly dedicated streets and alleys running along the rutabaga and cauliflower rows, he owned a hoe.

Speaking of the cauliflower reminds the nephew's father of the time Uncle Peter's hired man, Lem Jackson, was digging potatoes and threw some clods into the wagon along with the tubers. He says that Uncle Peter threw the clods out again and exhorted Lem to be more particular and even to take time to knock off any dirt that might stick to "them taturs."

"I paid $25 an acre for that dirt, Lem," he remonstrated. "Not only that, but I've spent a matter of $85 more for fertilizers since I took the place. What you throw into that there wagon don't do nobody no good. It don't hold it's shape long enough to pass fer a tatur and get paid for as sich; it jist grinds up inter dust and shakes out of the wagon on the road to town."

Lem retorted: "Uncle Peter, don't you reckon you git even on that with what mud you bring in off the road in wet weather?"

The hoe had been bought at the store where the pleasant and umbrageous town of Lombard now is. When it was new Uncle Peter used to treat it like a fine-tempered razor. He never allowed a hired man to use it, and he used to bring it in with him from the field at noon and stand it up in the kitchen, where he could watch it while he ate his dinner. When the year's work was done he would give it a coat of axle grease to protect it from rust and then would lock it up in the toolshed.

In course of time, however, the hoe grew dull, and Uncle Peter had to take a file to it. After the third filing he let Lem Jackson take it to hill up the beans, and Lem got tired and leaned on it too heavily.

Uncle Peter took it very had. He told Lem he would just as soon have had him haul off and slap him in the face. The hired man offered to pay for the hoe, and Uncle Peter said that was the least he could do. He held back $1.65 of Lem's wages, figuring 15 cents for wagon hauling from Lombard. Then he nailed up the fracture in the handle and swathed it with wire, and, handing it to Lem, told him to use it more carefully in future.

"I dunno but I ought to charge you fer my time a-fixin' it," remarked Uncle Peter.

The hired man said he'd like to know how he made that out, and "accordin' to the way he figgered the hoe belonged ter him."

"I ain't a-goin' to argyer with you about it," said Uncle Peter, with dignity. "The hoe's mine. I bought an' paid fer it. If it was your's I'd still be entitled to charge you for repairs, but I didn't say that I would charge you. I only said I ought to charge you—and so I ought. By gum! I b'lieve I will charge you."

"When you get a man that'll do things like that you've got a mighty mean man," said Uncle Peter's brother-in-law.

"I used to pity his women folks," he continued. "He had a right nice wife, and as saving as a woman need be—but she wasn't saving enough for Peter. He'd go nosing around in the pantry and figuring with them on the laundry soap, and he'd pick up a scrap of something or another that he didn't think ought to be thrown out and pack it back into the house and say: 'See here, M'rier; these blamed spen'thrift ways of yours had ought to be quit.' At the same time he never got mad or mean before company. When there was company at the house, his wife told my wife once, she used to sit and just look at him and wonder if it could be that she was mistaken about him after all."

About this time something usually occurs to break the thread of the narrative. It seems to work the same way with the nephew, so that a nobody in the suburb has ever heard the story of the hoe in its fullness. Both father and son start in good faith, but the temptation to digress is too much for them. They cannot resist telling about the time that Uncle Peter insisted on the utilization of the water in which Aunt Maria boiled the potatoes—how he insisted that potato soup was a palatable and nutritious article of diet, and would by no means be convinced that it was at least necessary to peel the potatoes before boiling them, holding the peeling of potatoes to be sinful waste. A hundred instances of their relation's frugality tempt them to dally in side paths from the straight and beaten track. The hoe has been filed down to a stub since it was last delivered to the hired man, and there is a rumor that a man in the subdivision named Wheeler was told that a neighbor came by night and borrowed it, but beyond that is nothing but the most vague surmise. It is agreed, however, that Uncle Peter is a pleasant, chatty old man. In fact, he seems to be liked outside of his family.—Chicago Daily Record.

A Candid Publisher.

In the recent death of J. Schabelitz, the famous Zurich publisher and author, the world of art and letters has lost one of its extraordinary characters. He was a shrewd business man, an excellent linguist, a skillful writer, and probably the most savage publisher who ever lived. When he accepted the famous memoirs of Count von Arnim, he wrote on the postal card, with the acceptance, the proviso: "I reserve the right to correct your infernally bad grammar." To an aspiring poet who had submitted manuscript he answered by postal card: "I refuse to be disgraced by printing your doggerel. I don't return the copy because you didn't inclose enough postage. If you will send it, with the price of this card, I will send it to you, but I don't think the stuff is worth the expense on your part." One of his postal cards to a novelist read about as follows: "For Heaven's sake, come and take away the unnamable mass of paper you left here for me to look at." An ambitious historian was crushed by the following, written, like all his correspondence, upon a postal card: "You are making the mistake of your life. You don't want to study history. You want to learn how to write."—Saturday Evening Post.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 9, 1900.

Uneasiness reigns in the McKinley camp for various reasons and especially because of a rumor that Ben. Harrison, who has been jumping all over the republican wabbling on the Porto Rico tariff question, is going to be boomed as an anti-McKinley and anti-English republican candidate for the Presidential nomination. The story, as it comes to Washington, is that Harrison is sure of the Indiana vote in the convention to start with; that he is reasonably sure of the Minnesota vote and has more than a fighting chance to get the Michigan vote, if Mr. McKinley continues his present pro-English attitude towards the war in South Africa, and has supporters in many other states. It is too soon to say how much there is in this alleged Harrison boom, but he isn't the sort of man to say or do anything without an object, and it is difficult to see what other object he can have in trumping the McKinley policy, as he has been doing recently, than to try to get the Presidential nomination for himself.

When Mr. McKinley signs the gold standard bill, which will make the rich richer and the poor poorer, which was passed in the Senate and House this week, as reported from the Conference committee, he will cancel one of the heavy obligations he incurred to the moneyed interests of the country during his campaign for election to the Presidency.

Senator Lodge is usually a good talker, although always radical in his ideas, but he couldn't do himself justice in his speech in favor of the bill giving Mr. McKinley authority to govern the Philippines as he pleases, which ought properly to be called: A bill making William McKinley Czar of the Philippines. It is not easy to tell the Senate that it should give one man autocratic power over the lives and fortunes of millions of the poor devils who were bought and sold without their concent. If Congress ever passes this bill the people of this country will sorely regret it.

Senator Kyle, of S. Dakota, who attends the republican caucuses and votes with that party on all questions involving politics, dodged the gold standard bill by absenting himself without having secured a pair, when the vote was taken on the report of the Conference Committee on the gold standard bill. The report was, of course, adopted. The vote which passed the Senate several weeks ago.

Senator Hoar has given notice of his intention to offer an amendment to the Diplomatic and Consular appropriation bill, providing for the payment of $250,000 to Liliuokalani, formely Queen of the Hawaiian Islands. This amendment is likely to be strongly opposed, as it should be. The dusky ex queen has spent the greater portion of her time in Washington for several years past and has made no secret of her motive-lobbying for a Congressional appropriation in her behalf.

Although officially announced by the Navy Department that the reason Admiral Watson has been detached from the command of the Asiatic station and ordered home and Admiral Remey ordered to proceed to Manila and take command of the Asiatic Station, is that Watson's health is bad, it is known that there are other and more important reasons for the change. Watson has had trouble with the Bureau of Navigation, and has had such a stormy time with the officers under him that he was several months ago temporarily relieved from the command of the fleet, for the purpose of allowing things to cool down a little, but the order relieving him was not made public either in Washington or Manila.

The attempts of republicans to shift responsibility for the disgraceful exhibition given the country by the passing of the Porto Rican bill by the House would be amusing if the matter were not too serious to laugh over. The wrangling among republican Senators over the bill, which is now before the Senate, has almost reached the fighting stage. A caucus is to be held to try to patch up matters by amending the bill to the extent necessary to get the votes to put it through the Senate. The sugar and tobacco trusts, which are credited with having compelled the republicans to make this disgusting exhibition, are said to have let it become known among republican Senators that they have no objection to an amendments that may be made to the bill so long as the tariff on Porto Rican tobacco and sugar is not disturbed, and if they don't object Mr. McKinley won't.

Senator Mason is stirring things up in the Senate again. He wants the committee on Foreign Relations discharged from further consideration of his resolutions containing an expression of the sympathy of the Senate for the Boers, which has been in its hands since December 6, and he says he is going to keep on hammering at it until something is done to give the Senate an opportunity to vote on the question. He says the Senate would adopt the resolutions if a vote could be taken.

Advices from Alaska are to the effect that a fine vein of coal has been found near Dawson City. In view of the fact that coal sells for $125 per ton there we would as soon mine for coal as for the yellow metal.

Daniel Webster thought it a useless experiment to try to reclaim the territory west of the Missouri river. In that same territory, at the present time, there are probably 50 post offices named in his honor.

The Vanderbilt university, at Nashville, now boasts of two grandsons of Li Hung Chang as students. They are Ti and Yi Sung, young men of some 21 years of age, who expect to spend four or five years studying in this country.

Now comes the news that Brussels is to have a world's fair in 1905. The fair will be in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of Belgian independence. This coming century seems destined to be noted for world's fairs.

The national conventions of the various political parties will meet in this order: The two factions of the populists will meet May 9, the "middle of the roaders" in Cincinnati, and the fusionists in Sioux Falls; the republicans meet in Philadelphia June 19; the prohibitionists in Chicago June 27, and the democrats in Kansas City July 4.

It is the purpose of the authorities to hold municipal elections in Cuba in May. An educational test is made a qualification for voters, but all those who were soldiers in the Cuban army will be permitted to vote. If the outcome of such municipal governments is satisfactory the transfer of the government of the island to the Cubans will follow.

Chief Washakie, of the Shoshones, is dead. This good old Indian lived to the age of 93 and never raised a hand against the white man. For this very reason his name will soon be forgotten and will not even be mentioned in histories of a generation hence, while the names of fighters like Philip, Pontiac and Sitting Bull will hold their place and fame forever.

The largest reading room for periodical literature in the world has been opened to the public in the departments of the new Congressional library in Washington. There are files there for 648 daily newspapers. The library is now receiving over 500 dailies, and expects the list to soon increase to the limit. One can go to this room and read the latest daily paper from any city of any importance.

Mrs. Mary A. Mott, of Brooklyn, N. Y., has applied for legal permission to adopt Charles H. Crane as her son. He is 26 years old, and as there is no precedent for the adoption of an adult legislative action may be necessary. Mr. Crane was engaged to Mrs. Mott's only daughter, who died on the eve of her wedding day, and the mother wishes to leave him her fortune of $250,000.

Pennsylvania has been represented in congress by three representatives successively who have been entitled to rank because of continuous length of service as "fathers of the house." The first of these was Representative Kelley, of "pig-iron" celebrity, the second Representative O'Neill, and the third Representative Harmer, who has just died in Philadelphia after serving his district in congress without interruption since 1871.

It is, perhaps, one of the favorable signs of the times that women still indulge in that airy form of industry which is called fancy work. They do not carry this labor to the point that the women of long ago brought it. They have passed the "crewel" stage and the quilting era, and, happily, they have emerged from the pathological condition that found expression in crazy quilts. But even some large-brained women still have their bits of embroidery with which to while away "odd moments," and are the little linen scrap called a doily.

The Roman Pontiff, Leo XIII., celebrated his ninetieth birthday recently. He has reached an age in advance of that of any of his predecessors. For 25 years, at least, he has given evidence of "declining health," and his physical collapse and death have been predicted once or twice in every six months since he ascended the papal throne. Those who are closest to him, however, report that, although he is delicate, he is enjoying as good health now as at any time since he entered the vatican. Mentally he is said to be as sound and strong as he was 50 years ago.

It is a remarkable fact that this is the fortieth war in which England has been involved during the reign of Queen Victoria. There has been one war against Russia, three against Afghanistan, four against China, two against the Sikhs, three against the Kaffirs, nine in India, three against Burmah, three against Ashanti, one with Abyssinia, one with Persia, one with the Zulus, one with the Basutos, one in Egypt, one in Zanzibar, three in the Soudan, one against the Matebeles and two against the Boers. The English lion is not a very peaceful animal.

AN ALL-DAY BATTLE.

Boers Stubbornly Resisting Advance of Roberts—Engagement at Driefontein.

Driefontein, Orange Free State, March 12.—Broadwood's cavalry brigade, advancing on Bloemfontein, unexpectedly found the Boers in a strong position in the Driefontein kopjes Saturday. Gen. Kelly-Kenny's division arriving, severe fighting ensued. The Boers resisted stubbornly, but were driven from their center position, leaving a number of dead and 40 prisoners. During the fighting, in which five regiments took part, with artillery, the Boers, though forced from their center position, clung tenaciously to the other kopjes, shelling the British freely with three guns and two vicker-maxims. The British cavalry began to turn the Boer position, but night fell before the movement was completed. The Boers retired during the night.

London, March 12.—A dispatch to the war office from Lord Roberts dated Driefontein, March 11, says:

"The enemy opposed us throughout yesterday's march, and from their intimate knowledge of the country, gave us considerable trouble. Owing, however, to the admirable conduct of the troops, the enemy were unable to prevent us reaching our destination. The brunt of the fighting fell on Gen. Kelly-Kenny's divisions, two battalions of which, the Welsh and Essex, turned the Boers out of two strong positions at the point of the bayonet.

"I cannot get the precise number of casualties before I march, but will communicate it as soon as possible. The Boers suffered heavily, 102 of their dead being left on the ground. We captured about 20 prisoners."

London, March 12.—The British reported casualties up to this date are as follows: Killed, 2,418; wounded, 8,747; died of disease, 1,029; missing, 3,483; total, 15,677.

London, March 13.—Lord Roberts is making a very rapid advance, and he is again misleading the Boers by continuing the advance southward instead of through the flat country due east of Aasvogel kop. He will probably seize the railway south of Bloemfontein, and, although another battle is possible, it is more likely that the Boers are only endeavoring to delay his advance until all the rolling stock of the railway and the stores and troops from the Orange river district can be gotten away north.

Venters Vlei Orange Free State, March 13.—The British forces which, since the fighting at Dreifontein, have been marching rapidly hither, have turned the Boer position. Our cavalry are ahead. The Boers were reported Monday morning about 12,000 strong, with 18 guns in position on a range of kopjes commanding the direct road to Bloemfontein, which is distant 15 miles.

London, March 13.—The subscription lists for the khakis, otherwise the British war loan of £30,000,000, closed for the town Monday night and will close for the country to-day. It is understood that the loan was covered 20 times.

APPEALS FOR MEDIATION.

President Kruger Asks McKinley to Bring About Peace—Appeal to Powers.

Pretoria, March 13.—President Kruger has appealed for the intervention of the United States to stop the war. This appeal has been transmitted through Mr. Adelbert S. Hay, the American consul, and the representatives of other powers at Pretoria have been requested to urge on their governments joint action in the interests of peace. Consul Hay as yet has received no reply from the state department at Washington. President Kruger, who is anxiously awaiting one, believes the delay is due to the efforts of the United States government to persuade Lord Salisbury to consent to a cessation of hostilities. President Kruger does not expect forcible intervention by the United States. His appeal to President McKinley is for mediation, and he relies on the public sentiment of the American people to prompt the president to make a favorable response.

The Hague, March 13. — It is learned from a reliable source that President Kruger, through the consuls at Pretoria, has appealed for the intervention of the great powers in the Transvaal war and has also appealed to the governments of Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.

Durban, March 13.—The Transvaal having appealed to Germany for mediation or intervention in the war with Great Britain, Germany has replied that she declines to interfere, as she is in no way concerned in the conflict.

Death in a Tenement Fire.

New York, March 13.—Fourteen persons lost their lives, two persons were seriously injured and many others slightly burned in a fire in Newark, N. J., Monday morning. The firemen, after the flames had been subdued, took 13 bodies from the ruins, and while they were thus engaged another victim of the fire died in the city hospital. One family was wiped out completely, and of another only the father lives and he is in the city hospital, where, it is believed, he will die.

A Sad Affair.

Antigo, Wis., March 13.—While Bernhard Wendorf and his 15-year-old son, Otto, were loading logs at Neva, near Antigo, the grabhook flew back, striking the boy on the head, killing him instantly. The frantic father carried the boy's body home, a distance of two miles. He seemed to blame himself for his son's death, and his mind giving way under the strain he took paris green and died Monday.

Safe Was Empty.

Huron, S. D., March 13.—The safe of the Bank of Hitchcock, which was destroyed by fire Friday night, was opened Monday, and to the surprise of bank officials and others but little money was found. Cashier Wilson says that about $11,000 in cash was in the safe when the bank closed business Friday evening, and it is now believed the safe was rifled and the building fired by thieves.

Many Firms Burned Out.

Redfield, Ia., March 12.—Fire Sunday morning at one o'clock broke out in the business portion of this town and completely wiped out all the business houses on the south side of Main street, and was not under control until four o'clock. The loss is estimated at about $20,000, only partially covered by insurance. Thirteen firms were burned out.

FIRST PAPER ISSUED.

Experiment of Rev. Mr. Sheldon to Publish a Christian Daily for a Week.

Topeka, Kan., March 13. — The "main purpose of the paper will be to influence its readers to seek first the Kingdom of God."

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, who on Monday assumed editorial and business control of the Daily Capital, which he will retain one week, makes this announcement this morning in his editorial leader outlining his policy.

The first item on the first page is a prayer written by Bishop John A. Vincent, of the Methodist Episcopal church. It is as follows:

"A morning prayer and resolution: 'I will try this day to live a simple, sincere, serene life; repelling every thought of discontent, self-seeking and anxiety; cultivating magnanimity, self-control and the habit of silence; practicing economy, cheerfulness and helpfulness.

"'And as I cannot in my own strength do this, or even with a hope of success attempt it, I look to Thee, O Lord, my Father in Jesus Christ, my Saviour, and ask for the gift of the Holy Spirit.'"

A notable feature of the paper is the method of handling advertisements. They are banished from the news and editorial pages and are bunched in places reserved for them. The censorship here is even more rigorous than in the news columns, and a large quantity of this class of matter has already been cut out, including all relating to patent medicines. The familiar corset advertisements of the magazines, accompanied by cuts, have sought in vain for space. No retail advertisements from Kansas City or other out-of-town tradesmen will be accepted, Mr. Sheldon holding that this would be an injustice to home merchants. The $20 suit of clothes for $14.75 style of advertising is also barred.

The Capital appears with a radical change in style and make-up. Practically the only feature that is familiar to its regular readers is the title headline. The first page, for instance, ordinarily devoted exclusively to telegraph news, has not a line of the current news of the day. Instead the page is given up to discussions on what Mr. Sheldon considers the most important questions now before the world.

IS MORE PEACEFUL.

The Situation in Kentucky Not Quite So Warlike—A Few, However, Still Fear Trouble.

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—The situation in Frankfort shows a radical improvement. Public excitement, worked up to the highest pitch by the arrest of Secretary of State Powers, Capt. Davis and the others accused of complicity in the assassination of Gov. Goebel, and by rumors among the republicans that by hastily-organized militia Gov. Beckham was to attempt to take possession of the state buildings or arrest Gov. Taylor, and among the democrats that the state militia would attempt to arrest Gov. Beckham, died away almost entirely when it became evident that neither side had any intention of initiating hostilities. Nevertheless great uneasiness still exists, especially among the republicans. Democratic leaders do not deny the reports that further arrests will be made in connection with the Goebel assassination.

Louisville, Ky., March 12.—A decision sustaining the contention of the democrats that the legislature is the tribunal designated by the constitution for the determination of contests for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor was handed down in the circuit court Saturday morning by Judge Fields. The republicans will appeal the case to the state court of appeals and if the decision there is against them will try to get a hearing before the United States supreme court.

Debs Finally Yields.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—The national convention of the social democratic party adjourned Friday afternoon after having nominated Eugene V. Debs, of Indiana, for president and Job Harriman, of California, for vice president. After many hours of firm refusal of the nomination Mr. Debs was finally prevailed upon to yield and at noon Friday he was escorted into the convention hall by a committee and there accepted the nomination in a moving speech.

A Public Hanging.

Beaumont, Tex., March 10. — Anthony Hopkins was hanged here Friday in the presence of 5,000 people, who took up a collection of $100 for his mother and sent it with the remains to her in Waco. In 1896 Hopkins killed Paul Hurst, for which crime he was tried and acquitted. Soon after that Hopkins killed his wife, and on Friday suffered the penalty for her murder.

Willing to Accept.

Sioux City, Ia., March 12.—John G. Wooley, of Chicago, who is considered the probable nominee for president by the prohibition party this year, passed through Sioux City en route from South Dakota to Kansas City. While here he said that if the presidential nomination was tendered him he would not again refuse it and would make as hard a fight to win as possible.

An Eight Club Circuit.

New York, March 9.—The National Baseball league for the season of 1900 will have an eight-club circuit. This announcement was made at the Fifth Avenue hotel Thursday evening when the league meeting adjourned. President Young said the verbal agreement for an eight-club circuit had been unanimous.

Flood Causes Damage.

Havana, Ill., March 13.—The Sangamon river is flooding the bottom lands along its course. Hundreds of families are homeless, and property has been washed away. Stock that was turned out perished, as nothing could swim in such a current. Many tenants have lost all their property.

To Avoid Paying Tax.

Cincinnati, March 10. — Cincinnati distillers will export large quantities of whisky soon to avoid paying revenue tax of $1.10. This bonded whisky has almost reached the time when immunity from the tax expires. To save placing this on the market the whisky is being prepared for export.

TRADE SITUATION.

Situation as Viewed by Dun—Says Volume of Business Is Smaller.

New York, March 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "A certain hesitation in business, with shrinkage in its volume, is not unusual nor unnatural at this season. It is not necessarily disheartening, therefore, if business is no longer as large in volume as ever, but falls behind that of February or January or of the corresponding week last year. Strikes in building trades or of machinists and others at Chicago, affect many industries and the wages of 50,000 hands. The remarkable rise in cotton has apparently met the expected reaction which tends for the time to repress business. A few great corporations are striving to hold prices without regard to present demand, hoping that the needs of the consumers may prevent reaction and renew the rise of last year. Wide differences of opinion also exist regarding the effects of monetary action by congress. Special causes are not needed to account for some pause after a year of unprecedented buying. That such trade could not continue without a pause, was evident, and there is not the excessive speculation which threatened monetary trouble a year ago.

"Estimates of wheat in farmers' hands March 1, 164,000,000 bushels, according to the American Agriculturalist, do not indicate a lack of supply this year, for with 54,000,000 bushels in visible stocks there is in sight nearly as much as a year ago, when foreign demands were extraordinary, and yet the crop year ended with over 33,000,000 bushels in visible supply. This year net exports in seven months, flour included, have been 111,221,835 bushels, against 149,916,497 last year, and in February enough to make about 125,000,000 bushels, against 168,000,000 bushels last year, with no indications of a future foreign demand approaching that of last year from March 1 to July 1. Returns as to condition of winter wheat are also satisfactory. But of late prices have been very low, and have advanced this week nearly three cents for spot and one cent for May options.

"Failures last week were in amount $3,452,827, manufacturing, $1,118,651, and trading, $2,161,211. Failures for the week have been 205 in the United States, against 132 last year, and 33 in Canada, against 37 last year."

CALL FOR AID.

Filipinos Harass Appari So Strongly That Gens. Young and Hood Request Help.

Manila, March 10.—Gens. Young and Hood are asking for reenforcements and a battalion of the Forty-eighth regiment has been sent to Aparri. Other troops will follow. The rebels recently persistently attacked Aparri for several hours, but were finally driven away. Details of the affair are lacking. The rebels are holding reunions in the province of North Ilocos, and the red Katipunan cross, symbolic of resistance, is again appearing among the natives. It is believed that the insurgent generals, Tinio and Flores, have been driven by Gen. Young into Gen. Hood's territory south of Aparri. The fact that Gen. Young is unable, owing to lack of troops, to maintain garrisons in all the towns occupied has had a bad effect on the natives.

The liberated priests from New Caceres report that the insurgents killed 68 Chinamen and 40 Spaniards at the town of Calabanga.

A St. Louis Wife Murderer Who Was to Have Been Hanged Monday Takes Poison in His Cell.

St. Louis, March 9.—Frank B. Callaway, under sentence for murder in the four courts jail, committed suicide about midnight by taking poison. Callaway shot and killed his wife in a big department store eight months ago. The murder was a very sensational one, the store being crowded with customers at the time. Callaway was to have paid the penalty of his crime on Monday next. He informed his cellmate of his intention to take the poison, and enjoined secrecy by producing a razor and threatening to cut his cellmate's throat and then his own. The threat had the desired effect.

A SAD TRAGEDY.

While Temporarily Insane an Aged Lady Kills Her Husband in Joliet, Ill.

Joliet, Ill., March 12.—Mrs. John Gallagher, 50 years old, while in a fit of temporary insanity Saturday night, arose from bed, procured a razor and returned to the bedroom, where she cut her husband's throat from ear to ear. He died before the police arrived on the scene. The demented woman is now confined in jail. Two small children were sleeping in an adjoining room, but were not molested. After committing the shocking murder, Mrs. Gallagher went to a neighbor's house in her night clothes saturated with blood and told them of her deed.

Drowned.

St. Paul, Minn., March 12.—A Chamberlain special to the Pioneer Press says: Harry Beck, an old resident, while attempting to cross the Missouri river on the ice, broke through and was drowned. He made a desperate fight for life, hanging on to the ice for fully one hour and a half waiting for assistance, but finally became exhausted and passed under the ice.

Three Sons Drowned.

St. Louis, March 9.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Champaign, Ill., says that three sons of Jacob Zeigler, a farmer, living north of there, fell through the ice in a creek and drowned while looking for stovewood. The bodies of the children, all of whom are less than nine years of age, have not been recovered.

Killed Her Brother-in-Law.

Sioux City, Ia., March 12.—Christ Bauer was murdered by Ernest Meyers, his brother-in-law, 30 miles east of here Saturday night. Both men are farmers. Bauer met his death in defending his mother, with whom Meyers had picked a quarrel. Meyers had been drinking.

Aged Actor Dead.

New York, March 12.—John Z. Little, the actor, is dead in Brooklyn, aged 62 years. He was a native of Philadelphia and was at one time manager of a theater in Chicago. He toured the whole United States with his company, producing "Around the World in Ninety Days."

Killed a Burglar.

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—A. C. Moffet, cashier of the First state bank at Waverly, Ill., shot and instantly killed a negro burglar in his bedroom early Sunday morning. A quantity of stolen valuables was found on the body of the dead man.

SMALLPOX DISTRIBUTORS.

How the Germs Are Nurtured and the Disease Is Spread.

It would seem that people will never learn to be careful. The recent alarming spread of that dire epidemic, smallpox, throughout different sections of the country has been traced by physicians and sanitarians in many instances directly to the moldy and rotting layers of paper and paste which cover the walls of many houses. The practice of laying layer after layer of paper on a wall, using common flour paste, is especially calculated to create homes for disease germs. People could not do more to effect such a result if they tried. The rotting vegetable matter affords caves from which are ready to dart forth the infection at every opportunity. There is no excuse for this practice, as walls and ceilings can be coated with a pure, cleanly and sanitary material like Alabastine, for instance, at no greater expense. Alabastine is a rock-base cement, which incorporates itself with the wall or ceiling. It is easily applied, comes ready to mix with cold water, requires no washing or scraping before renewing or retinting, is beautiful, long-lasting and safe.

For walls that have been infected, nothing is equal to Alabastine as a disinfectant to render them pure and clean and the rooms once more habitable.

He Dealt in His Dream.

"May you take this lesson home with you to-night, dear friends," concluded the preacher at the end of a very long and wearisome sermon. "And may its spiritual truths sink into your hearts and lives to the end that your souls may experience salvation. We will now bow our heads in prayer. Deacon White, will you lead?"

There was no response.

"Deacon White," this time in a louder voice. "Deacon White, will you lead?"

Still no response. It was evident that the good deacon was slumbering. The preacher made a third appeal and raised his voice to a pitch that succeeded in waking the drowsy man.

"Deacon White, will you please lead?"

The deacon rubbed his eyes and opened them wonderingly.

"Is it my lead? No—I just dealt."—Detroit Free Press.

CONSTERNATION

HAS FALLEN ON THE G. O. P., STATE AND NATION.

The Porto Rican Tariff Bill Opens the Eyes of the People to the Grip of the Trusts on the Hanna-McKinley Party, and Makes Clear That We Are on the Road to Imperialism — Universal Condemnation From the State Republican Press—Flippety-Flop McKinley — How the Puerto Rico "Lightning" Affects the State Situation—The Minnesota Delegation in Sack-cloth and Ashes — Other State and National Politics of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, March 12, 1900.

The wave of condemnation of the Minnesota Republican delegation, for its course on the Porto Rican bill, has been followed by consternation among Republican leaders and press over the situation. This is the case: The majority of the delegation simply followed the party leadership, yielding to the president himself. The latter dragged the leaders into support of the bill, when he himself was on record with a message to congress declaring for free trade for the island. Condemnation of the delegation, therefore, is condemnation of the president, as the head of the party. Thus all Minnesota can be said to be in revolt against the national party. Where in the world will this lead to in the campaign, is the inquiry? And so the whole party in the state is in consternation, which is best indicated by the comment of the G. O. P. state press, which has not until now awoke to the real situation, or to where the imperialism they have been quietly acquiescing in logically leads to. From the summaries below, it will be seen that the Republican press is almost a unit with our reform press on this subject. We condense comment as follows:

Cambridge Press: Congressman Tawney has made a political fool of himself.

New Ulm Journal: The Second district will call McCleary to account for his vote.

Litchfield Review: We thought Porto Rico had become a part of the United States. Then, why discriminate?

Rush City Post: The Porto Rican tariff bill will not strengthen the Republican party.

Marshall Republican: These mammoth trusts don't need any more favors, and votes at their dictation are against the best interests of this country.

Preston Times: Congress is playing into the hands of the trusts instead of crushing them, and making campaign material for the Democrats at a furious rate.

Glenwood Herald: It is difficult to see how the Republicans could have been guilty of so clumsy a piece of politics.

Henderson Review: The Porto Rican mess and shipping subsidy will make the old Republican band wagon squeak. More statesmanship and less trust influence in Washington is wanted.

St. Charles Union: The tariff is wrong for it might with equal justice apply to the different states.

Madelia Messenger: Porto Rico should be considered as one of our own and no tariff laid on her products.

Minneapolis Register: The 15 per cent tariff is in favor of certain private interests and against the spirit of the American people.

Winnebago City Press-News: McCleary has played from the start to finish the sneak act. That he is owned by the trusts is self evident.

Aitkin Republican: It is apparent that the Republican leaders have made a mistake.

Owatonna Chronicle: There may be good reasons for the bill, but there are certainly good reasons against it.

Goodhue County News, simply quotes President McKinley's own declaration that it is our plain duty to impose no tariff.

Vermillion Journal: The 15 per cent tariff bill is a disgrace to the party which gave it birth, and if passed will make a gaping wound in this administration.

Farmington Tribune: No defense can be given the Republicans, and the Democrats have been given a strong argument to use in the coming campaign.

Albert Lea Tribune: We have not been able to find a Republican in Albert Lea who is not opposed to Tawney in this instance.

Morris Tribune: The bill is a direct repudiation of fundamental Republican principles.

Mankato Free Press: The Republican leaders have made a mistake and are entirely at sea as to the sentiment of the people.

Ortonville Herald-Star: The people are right and the Republican congressmen are wrong.

Ortonville Journal: The members voting for the bill should hear something drop with a dull, sickening thud when they come before the people for re-election.

Windom Reporter: The members seem willing to be whipped into line to help the sugar and tobacco trusts to grind the people of this country. This makes the issue between the trusts and an imperialist policy and an expansion policy on the other hand.

Princeton Union: Tawney belittled himself when he impugned the motive of Congressman Littlefield for opposing the bill.

Alexandria Post-News: We hope the fight will be kept up against the committees' dictum.

As to the delegation, the week has but accentuated the situation individually. Commencing with Tawney, punishment is promised him doubly severe as the pliant tool of the trusts, to whip the others into line. That he will be laid out cold is everywhere conceded. Poor Schoolmaster McCleary is marked for a worse skinning than ever he gave obstreperous lad in school. He may not even be re-nominated. Stevens in the Fourth, has the quasi-support, at least the tolerance of the two, home organs, and may have to be slain at the polls. Little Pagey Morris in the Sixth, concedes in Washington that he cannot be returned and the last word from him was that unless he changed his mind he would not even be a candidate for renomination. As to Eddy, he has wrapped himself in the sheet of self-complacency and may keep on thinking that he is it, until election.

The latest regarding Heatwole is that he expects the nomination for governor on the promise, said to have come from Hennepin county, that he could win by 60,000! The spectacle of the lovely Joel running on a platform condemning his party and excoriating the president is amusing to say the least.

Apropos of the Heatwole ambition, the question is where does the great steamboat captain come in, and what are his views on the Porto Rico bill? Is he for the bill, in defiance of the people, or will he run on an anti-McKinley platform? Or will Captain Van have been so closely confined to his steamboating by that time, that he will not have heard of the Porto Rican question? Maybe he will be visiting in Wisconsin, as he was at the time of the pro-Boer meeting and unable to respond.

The McKinley flippety-flop on Porto Rico, recalls his record for inconsistency and juggling.

Take the silver question. In congress and on the stump he constantly supported silver legislation, saying in one speech:

"You are setting up gold, the money of the rich, and you are destroying silver, the money of the poor, you are destroying one of our precious metals, one of our own products, destroying silver and enhancing the price of gold. You are determined to contract the circulating medium, limit the volume of money among the people, make money scarce and therefore dear."

In another he said: "I want the fullest use of both metals, I want the double standard."

What does he do as president?

Advocates and signs a law fixing go'd as the only standard, making silver mere token money to be redeemed in gold, retiring the greenbacks that saved the nation's life and cost no interest, in fact a law which changes our whole system into a perpetual gold bond debt, increasing the special privileges of the national banks into whose hands is surrendered complete control of the circulating medium.

What did he say as president of the policy of this country toward those peoples, which might fall under our care by our war against Spain? He said in his message to congress April 11th, 1898:

"I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of; that by our code of morals would be criminal aggression."

What did McKinley do in the Philippines!

He listened to the corporation siren whispering to him to seize those islands that they might have the trade and he the glory; permitted the soldiers of the Philippine republic fighting for independence to join with us as our allies; used Aguinaldo's leadership and means against the Spaniards, and permitted our soldiers then to make a war of extermination against those allies. This he has relentlessly followed up until the Filipino republic is well nigh exterminated, when he doubles his "criminal aggression" by exterminating as bandits, Filipinos caught fighting for liberty and independence.

Finally, what did McKinley say, as to the status of the Porto Ricans, as to taxation, under the benign protection of the flag?

He said in his message to congress only last December:

"The markets of the United States should be opened up to her products. Our plain duty is to abolish all customs tariffs between the United States and Porto Rico, and give her products free access to our markets."

What did he do?

He had a free trade bill framed for the committee of ways and means. Then the American tobacco and sugar trusts took a had at the administration bat, and lo, through his war officer Root the bill was changed to a 25 per cent duty, for which McKinley labored and brow beat members for votes, and later, under the stress of public condemnation, that reduced the rate to 15 per cent, sand-bagged enough Republican members of the house to squeeze the bill through by the aid of two renegade sugar truster Democrats from the South.

The sum total stamps William McKinley as the most vacillating, insincere and hypocritical occupant of the White House that has ever been called to the head of this sovereign people.

Governor Lind on Thursday evening last fulfilled an honored invitation to address the divinity students of Ausberg seminary, Minneapolis, in response to the injunction to talk politics, made by President Sverdrup, making some very pertinent allusions to the history of Norway and Sweden. Those countries had never been invaded and conquered. The governor spoke of the Boer war, and of American sympathy with the Boers, but had to confess ourselves estopped from saying much, considering our course toward the Filipinos. If we had finished the Spanish war as we began, the governor said, it would have been one of the grandest in history. Whenever our flag stood for government without the "consent of the governed," it was nothing more than a rag. The dangers of militarism were commented on, and the fact pointed out that the United States is now spending more for armament than for bread.

Governor Lind is to deliver the anniversary address on Norwegian day, May 17, as well as on St. Patrick's day.

Much of Governor Lind's time is occupied in hearing and noting complaints against Republican officeholders. The long drawn out case of the Itasca county commissioners is closed. The commissioners resigned to escape removal. In the Hennepin county register of deeds case the officer, Metcalf, is removed, having been found guilty. "And there are others." G. S. C.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Capitol Dome.

The state capitol commission opened bids for the construction of the great dome for the new capitol.

The lowest figures were presented by the Butler-Ryan company of St. Paul, which has the contract of the superstructure of the new building. The varying specifications were made so as to permit comparisons of different conditions that the greatest economy might be practiced. The lowest of the St. Paul firm's bids was $276,101, which is $19,000 less than the lowest tender made by the other two contractors—George J. Grant, St. Paul, and Norcross Bros., Worcester, Mass. The contract was awarded to the Butler-Ryan company.

Will Not Appeal.

The state will not appeal from the adverse decision of United States District Judge Lochren in the case brought to invalidate the swamp land grant of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, but will proceed within the next 30 or 60 days to fill its grant and close the whole transaction.

This decision was reached at a conference between Gov. Lind and Auditor Dunn. The matter is one that rests entirely with them, and their decision is final.

The matter has been pending several years. The grant was made in 1875, extended in 1878, and confirmed in 1883, the constitution having been amended in 1881 to forbid any further grant of swamp lands to railroads.

A Valuable Find.

R. F. McClelland, of Princeton, a pine land cruiser of the state auditor's office, reported a find in the southeast corner of Cook county that will net the state about $10,000. It consists of a large quantity of railroad ties and poles cut from state lands without permission. It was piled on the lake shore awaiting shipment. The timber was cut by a number of contractors for a Chicago firm. Those who produced it have no option in the case but to pay whalever the state demands, and Auditor Dunn is holding it until such has been done.

Appointments.

Governor Lind appointed Jacob Laux a trustee of the Soldiers' Home to succeed George N. Lavaque; J. W. Hull and Matt Winkle were appointed members of the horseshoers' board of examiners; William McQuaid was made a state barber examiner; George T. McQuaillan was appointed state commissioner at Portland, Me.; John Brouwer-Ancher of Minneapolis was appointed delegate to the national pure food and drug convention to be held in Washington, D. C.

Sale of School Lands.

State Auditor Dunn has fixed the dates for April sales of state school lands as follows:

April 9, 10 a. m.—Montevideo, Chippewa county.

April 9, 4 p. m.—Ortonville, BigStone county.

April 10—Wheaton, Traverse county.

April 12—Morris, Stevens county.

April 13—Benson, Swift county.

April 16—Glenwood, Pope county.

April 17—Elbow Lake, Grant county.

April 18—Alexandria, Douglas county

Fire in State Hospital.

About 3 o'clock one morning fire was discovered in the laundry building of the state hospital, which was completely gutted by the flames. The St. Peter fire department was summoned and hurried to the assistance of the hospital department and prevented the spread of the fire to the hospital proper, with which the laundry is connected. Twenty-six of the laundry girls, who slept in the building, lost nearly all of their personal effects. The loss is estimated at $15,000.

ODDS AND ENDS OF EARTH.

There Are Many Regions of the Globe Yet Unknown to Civilized Men.

Young men with a taste for travel, adventure and discovery have been lately in the state of mind indulged in by Alexander, who sat down and wept because there were no more worlds to conquer. For the comfort and edification of such Henry M. Stanley, the distinguished ex-traveler, publishes an article on the odds and ends of earth, which are still left open, or rather closed, for exploration, and which, with industry and economy, could be made to yield something to the traveler.

Mr. Stanley begins with the continent of Africa, which still offers certain parcels of ground, one of them 700 miles long and 50 miles wide, which have never been thoroughly explored or, indeed, explored at all. Besides the work of original exploration there is in Africa an immense amount of supplementary exploration to be done. There are mountains 15,000 feet high to be climbed and written up in detail. These mountains all have names which may be found in any good central African lexicon. The great African lakes, all discovered since 1850, are konwn only, as it were, in outline. Their depth or their altitude above the sea level is unknown as yet. The Nile has a few more sources yet to be discovered and so has the Congo. There are believed to be active volcanoes in Africa which have never yet been studied by white men. There are scattered around in the forests and mountains of Africa whole tribes who have never seen a white face. These are all to be looked up.

Besides Africa, the continent of South America offers great tracts of almost unknown country. An American steamer occasionally ascends the Amazon, but the vast forest on the head waters of that stream—its tributaries themselves great rivers—is still a mystery. The great chain of the Andes has been crossed in many places, but has not been traversed lengthwise. A great part of the Andean Cordillera is completely unknown, says Mr. Stanley, both as to its topography and geology.

The Cape and Cairo railroad has been spoken of as depending on circumstances, but one great explorer's railroad is open for business already. It is the great trans-Siberian all through route from one side of Asia to the other. South of this road lies one-fifth of the continent of Asia, stretching away to the Himalayas, which is good and fruitful ground for the explorer.

Thus Africa, South America and Asia are yet to be explored in large sections. The arctic regions still present their hidden attractions and the traveler may still seek them, cheered on by the hope of freezing and starvation.—Kansas City Globe.

Followed His Instructions.

"In editing copy remember to cut out all superfluous words," said the managing editor to the new copy-reader. "Very often there are many words such as 'still,' 'but' and the like used in a way not only useless but absolutely bad. Now, remember and knock 'em out." Not long afterward the copyreader was editing a short story sent from a fishing resort up north. The copyreader never went fishing in his life and didn't know one piscatorial term from another. In the copy he found "the men finally quit still fishing and began trolling." He remembered very distinctly the instructions of the managing editor about "still" and such words and with one sweep of the blue pencil obliterated "still." The men to whom the story referred were rather surprised to read in the account of their fishing expedition in the paper that "they finally quit fishing and began trolling."—Chicago Chronicle.

NOT UP IN THE CLASSICS.

A Congressman Who Was in the Dark as to Title and Colophon.

A certain member of the house of representatives, nameless here forever more, met a newspaper correspondent in the lobby the other day and mysteriously invited him to his committee room. The correspondent cast a chew of tobacco out of his mouth in anticipation, and followed the statesman to the seclusion of the place designated.

"Say," said the member, looking about carefully to see that only the two of them were present, "I want to ask you a question in confidence."

"Oh," responded the correspondent in a tone of disappointment, "is that what you wanted?"

"Yes; and if you can give me the information I am after you will do me a great favor."

"All right," said the correspondent, recovering his wonted spirits, though the other kind were lacking, "what is it? Go ahead with your rat killing."

"Well," began the member in a manner reminding one of the preface to a book, "I had one of the boys look over a speech I am going to make, just to see what he thought of it and make a suggestion or two to improve it, if necessary, and he's got something into it that I'm not up to."

"What is it?" asked the correspondent, as the member hesitated.

"Well, I'm fairly well up on the Bible, and when I come across the sentence 'anywhere from Dan to Beersheba,' I know what it means well enough, and also know about Dan and the other one. I had that in the speech, but he said it was a chestnut by this time, and it would sound more tony and abreast of the times and literary culture to change it from 'Title to Colophon,' and I told him 'all right,' but didn't let on. Now, you are a friend of mine, and I want to ask you about this. As I said, I'm up on the Bible, but I don't know the classical busness a little bit, and while I can kind of catch on to Title, I'd like to know who in thunder Colophon was. Do you know?"

The correspondent explained, and the member saw to it that his cast-out chew of tobacco was not wasted.—N. Y. Sun.

Our Nation's Wealth.

Gold and silver are poured abundantly into the lap of the nation, but our material wealth and strength is rather in iron, the most useful of all metals, just as the wealth of a human being lies in a useful stomach. If you have overworked yours until it is disabled, try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will relieve the clogged bowels, improve the appetite and cure constipation and dyspepsia, biliousness, liver and kidney disease.

New Translation of R. S. V. P.

A clergyman entering upon the charge of a new living not far from London resolved to invite all his parishoners to an "at home" in order to make their acquaintance, and accordingly sent out cards to that effect. A district visitor calling at one of the houses was at once accosted in this way: "Oh, miss, I have been wanting so much to see you, for my neighbor and I have got an invitation card, but we are so puzzled about the four big letters in the corner. She says they mean: 'Reply soon, victuals provided,' but now you will be able to tell us."—Chicago Chronicle.

The above illustration shows one of the mammoth buildings occupied by the great Mail Order House of the John M. Smyth Company of Chicago.

For one-third of a century this Company has been in business. Beginning in a small way they supplied their neighbors in the near-by towns, each year widening their field. They are now selling merchandise direct to the consumer at wholesale prices throughout the United States.

Some years ago they began supplying their customers with an illustrated catalogue. As the business expanded they were obliged to increase the size of this catalogue, until to-day it exceeds 1,000 illustrated pages, quoting the lowest wholesale prices on everything to Eat, Wear and Use. By a superior process of color photography they illustrate many of their goods in natural colors, bringing out the rich color value of curtains, carpets, draperies, and the latest designs in wall papers, etc., thus enabling the customer hundreds of miles distant to select goods at his own fireside, knowing by the description, illustration and price the class of goods he may expect.

This feature of their business is becoming more and more popular each year, for it not only saves long and tiresome railroad journeys but is a great time saver. It leaves out the profit of the jobbing house, the retailer, the expensive commercial traveler, the general agent, the sub-agent, and thus eliminates from one to four profits, saving this amount for the consumer. In short, it is a great wholesale store brought to the home. The mammoth catalogue referred to is a 20th century dictionary of economy.

The illustration above shows the recent building added to this great enterprise.

The success of this Company seems incredible, considering the fact that they have advertised so little. Their spirit of fairness and industry is the secret of this wonderful success. The quantity of goods they require in some lines enables them to handle train loads of merchandise secured at the lowest possible cost and freight rate.

When goods in the rough are coming from the mills and factories in the East, the lake steamers are pressed into service at a freight expense which is but little in advance of the iron ore rates.

NOT THAT KIND OF A CAKE.

It Looked Suggestive of a Wedding But Was Intended for a Different Purpose.

An East end car was loaded down with shoppers, mostly women, for it was in the middle of the afternoon. Conversation was proceeding at a great rate. It was like a pink tea or a session of the sewing circle. But all at once a hush fell over the fair chatterers. A negro lad entered, bearing in his arms an immense cake, three or four decks high, and frosted over from pit to dome, as they say of a theater. There was a profusion of flowers by way of decoration, and delicate traceries of gauzy lace completed the embellishments. The cake was so large that the negro could scarcely carry it.

The cake told the whole story of the wedding, the bridesmaids, the orange flowers, the flower girls and the banquet afterward. Every feminine heart in that street car was a-flutter as its owner gazed speechlessly upon the evidence of a wedding to be.

Finally, when the car stopped to let on another passenger and everything was very still, one lady took courage to ask the negro where the wedding was going to be.

"Whut weddin'?" asked the negro, his eyes protruding.

"The wedding that cake is for."

"Dis ain't no weddin' cake."

"No?"

"No'm. Dis yeres er cake walk cake."

There was a smile that reached from one end of the car to the other, and very soon conversation was resumed as before.—Memphis Scimitar.

"You—you were in the late war?" he queried of the man who had been telling about the battle of Santiago.

"Certainly," was the reply.

"And you marched and suffered and fought and was a hero?"

"No, sir; nothing of the kind. I simply landed at Santiago; decimated the ranks of the enemy, forced him to surrender, and then brought about the end of the war."

"I had pains through my bowels, headache, and backache, felt tired and sleepy all the time, was troubled with the whites. I followed your advice, took your Vegetable Compound, and it did me lots of good. I now have a baby girl. I certainly believe I would have miscarried had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had a very easy time; was sick only a short time. I think your medicine is a godsend to women in the condition in which I was. DELANO, FRIDAY, Mar. 16, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—C. M. Conzet has a large working mare for sale; 4 year old.

—There has an impression got abroad in the land that the Eagle has changed her drinks.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River st., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fri. 11tf.

—Conzet & Darrow still have 2 set of those heavy work harness which will be sold at the old price. For cash at those prices.

—Now is the time to feed your chickens international poultry food; for sale by Conzet & Darrow, Delano & Rockford.

—Rev. Cunningham, of Breckinridge, is assisting Rev. Thomson, in a series of meetings at the M. E. church this week. He began Monday to hold meetings all week out Saturday evening. Good results are being obtained.

—Several have responded to the call to pay in their subscriptions to the Parsonage painting fund, before April 1. If enough is paid in to warrant the trustees expect to let the job on Monday April 2. The subscription list is in care of Secretary.

—Some of our citizens are terribly slow about handing in reports of births and deaths occuring in their families The laws make it obligatory to do so within 10 days, under penalty of from $5. to $25. If the Constable calls to collect the fine don't be surprised.

—About 100 voters were out to the caucus on Monday evening and placed in nomination for village officers the following ticket:

For President. John Lohmiller. For Trustees, H. C. Bock. A. E. Johnson. A. G. Jones: Recorder, L. M. Maxfield; Treasure, L. P. Propst; Assessor, Valentine Eppel; Justice of the Peace, O. L. Billings.

--Being but one ticket in the field some of our best citizens thought it not worth while to go to the trouble of voting. Two tickets in the field, gives people a choice and brings voters to polls. It is altogether likely that another year will find two caucus, and two tickets.

--A long felt want has been well satisfied this week. A respectable, highwater walk from the G. N. depot to the town pump has been made. If the R. R. authorities will keep the cars from standing in the way, patrons will, doubtless, be more pleased when they arrive at the depot.

—Election day was quiet for two elections being held at once. The village election was held in the council room: The township of Franklin in the City Hall. There was but one printed ticket, at either place, though some scratching was done, and other names inserted. The caucus tickens were elected.

—At the Town of Franklin caucus on Saturday, the ticket nominated was: For Supervisors, John O. Turngren. Chairman, Joseph Bauman. George Sutton; Town Clerk, William Ziebarth; Assessor, William Sturman, Jr; Treasure, Henry, Schwerin; Justice of the Peace, F. F. Chancellor, John O. Turngren; Constable Albert Yorczik, Henry Hellman.

—Y. M. C. A. day in Delano was one of the biggest days of its kind our town has ever had. The published programme was well carried out, and a woman's meeting at 3:30 p. m held at the Presbyterian church, more than advertised. The afternoon meeting, for men only, was well attended and a lively interest manifested. The grand rally at the City Hall in the evening, was well attended and everybody well pleased. Several announced their intentions to lead better lifes. The band of students, Peter Hanson, F. B Guthrie, J. E. Guthrie of the State "U" and Frank Drill, and Vernon McCombs, of Hamline "U" is a very strong one, and under the leadership of H. P. Goddard, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Minneapolis, did some effective work while here.

County Cullings.

Editor Schmidt, of the Waverly Tribune, was knocked down, and had his face considerably bruised by Barney McGuire, at Waverly, last Sunday. McGuire was taken in charge by Sheriff Nugent and deputies.

We had thought better things of Mr. Lamson, but may be that new press has put him into the "upper crust" This week in an article on the Saturday evening caucus, his Standard "advocates the electing of two sets of candidates for office at one convention and says: The minority are entitled to the privilege of exercising their choice of candidates at an election and where two sets of officers are placed on a ticket at a union caucus there is no occasion for on independent ticket and the public's afforded an opportunity to exercise a choice and as a rule better officers will be secured and those elected will feel that they have the support of a majority of the voters of the village." Seems as if the Standard had joined the ring. Why have a caucus at all? Just let Lamson get out two tickets and the voters do the rest.

Democrats, as usual in Wright county are laying low and wailing for the Republicans to make some weak nominations so that they can "take advantage" of them. And when convention time comes around instead of having the best material the party affords nominated for every office pick up some "Tarbox" or something that will thoroughly disgust every honest democrat and cause him to stay at home or vote for another man. Such democracy has been played in this county long enough. If the democrats have no man fit to fill an office let them make no nomination. But if they have men in whom they have confidence let them help get them before the people and get them elected.

Some People Gossip.

"It takes all kinds of people to make a world" is an old saying; and a large share of the population of different places, is made up of people, who gossip. There are some people who cannot live unless they have the privilege of gossiping. It is one of the lowest habits a person can form.

Some people who gossip, talk about the clothes of a neighbor, or one of whom they are jealous. Others about the way these people carry themselves, while others say degrading things about them. People who gossip are generally people who have faults and know it, and want to put everyone else on an equal with themselves

Some people will gossip about the faults of another, when they themselves have the same faults, only they may be more prominent in the orther person.

There are some people who meet certain afternoons in the week at a neighbor's house, each having his little bit of gossip to tell. Then some of the others will repeat it, adding a little bit more to it; so it will be more interesting. Story is started. Some women will let their children go uncared for, while they go to a neighbor's to gossip, in all probability about some woman who they say does not care for her children. Many men and women spoil their lives by gossip; so kind friends beware. C.

MAPLE PLAIN.

Millions for war but nothing for compromise so say the administration in regard to the war against the Filipinos in the Philippine Islands and also says England in regards to the war in South Africa.

We are not under sacrificial offerings as in times of old but now are we under grace, the shedding of blood does not atone for the sins of a nation. It is supposed that the leading nations of the world were under strict christian discipline but if filling these poor Filipinos full of led and rotgut whiskey is the way to civilize and christianize a forlorn race of people, then I have misjudged the meaning or definition of the words christianize and civilize. It has always been the avowed principle of their government, that war for subjugation and conquest was among. We paid Spain $20,000,000 dollars for the Philippine Islands but Spain could not deliver the goods. And we (the United States of America) attempted by strategy and force of arms, with Milwaukee beer as an accompaniment to subjugate that farway people and to establish a rule of government over them without their consent. This does not agree with the declaration, to principles as established by our forefathers when they held the Tea party in Boston harbor, in 1773. Our flage was intended to be the greatest emblem of liberty that was ever unfurled to the breeze. And so it is and we should not desecrate it by flying it where it does not belong.

If this war against the Filipinos was intended for the benefit of the Standard Oil Company, the iron manufacturer, the ship building industury, the money changer, all trusts and combinations, then on with the dance; let joy be unconfined. But if its intention was for civilization and christian liberty, then we would say to the Congress of the United States, for shame and for reprosch stop it; for it will neither make us great or powerful. Neither will other nations call us blessed on account of it.

It was the ambition of Alexander The Great to conquer the world by force of arms. And he done it in a little less than twelve years But at last died in a bacchanalian feast.

Napoleon was afflicted in the same way but lost his power at the plains of Waterioo, and he died an exile.—Too much power will distroy individuals, and nations as well in time. It would seem it has been the policy of this Administration to establish a military oligarchy, that is have the people ruled by a few, but this cannot be accomplished without much difficulty only the other day Senator Scott introduced in Congress a joint resolution empowering the President to exercise all military, civil and judicial power, in the Philippines, through such persons as he may select to protect the inhabitants of the said islands, in the full, fair, and free enjoyment of their liberty, property and religion, until Congress otherwise provides. Mark the language he uses in this resolution, it would seem by the reading of it, this fellow had just broke loose from the crazy house, or was on his way there. How can he expect the President of the United States to do what he recommends, while our armies are fighting them and destroying their properity and depriving them of their rights and liberty. When the war is over and peace restored in the Philippines then it might do to make such a recommendation to the president; but it certainly can do no good while our armies are there for no other purpose than to kill, and to destroy property.

I think perhaps the present congress might be noted for strong constitution for longevity, rather than for brains. The are more issues, and different popinions in regard to politics in this country than its people can digest or comperhend: too superflous. Everybody wants a brass band and a torch-light procession of his own or he is not satisfied.

In a few months we are to have a Presidential election this by Constitution comes every four years. And the pnople are kept in confusion from one Presidential election to another, there should be some way to stop this. It detracts the people's attention from the main duties of life. And every fellow thinks himself a politician. If it was thought best to change the constitution of the United States at all, we would say that the president should serve but one term, making it 6 years, this we think would save a good deal of confusion in politics. Many of our congressmen talk about civilizing the Filipinos. Why not civilize some of our people, here at home: the mountaineers of Eastern Ky. where they produce nothing but a little corn, bacon and moonshine whiskey and have for their pedigree the history of their forefathers. Yes in Ky. they have had a political war the Republicans on one side and the Democrats on the other as to whose right it was to reign and at present Kentucky is blessed with two governors. The man who killed Gobel more than a month ago has not been found yet There is $100,000 offered for his scalp. This looks strange. The trouble is the man is not wanted. They have had that poor Hartland Whittaker up before the great Sanhedrim at Frankfort, Ky., for the shooting of Governor Gobel, and I beleive the fellow knows as much about the shooting of Goebl as does a heathen god. But the Judge let him go until the April Grand Jury without bail, in the courts of Minnesota, this would not have been rulable if he had robbed a ten cent counter. And Jack Chinn has brought suit against Mrs. Kate M. Banta for damage to his character in way of libel for $25,000 saying it was he, Jack Chinn, that shot Gobe. —(Next).

I object some to the words in the constitution where it says: "Congress has a right to declare war, raise armies, create navies, & etc. This should be done only by a two thirds vote of all the states A fool Congress can get us into war most any time whether justly or unjustly and create an army and a big navy at their will and the people must pay the freight. But should things continue at this break neck speed the forming of trusts, combinations, corporations, and the extravigant dealing in bonds and stocks by the money changers it will only be a question of time when the rest of us fellows will have to depend upon the ravens to feed us as did Elijah in the wilderness when he had to flee from that wicked woman Jazebel.

It would seem the republican party was short on for timber for vice-president. What's the matter with Booker T. Washington, or Frank Wheaton for vice-president? They could represent the Afro American race in this country from the Archipelago to the RioGrand. As the republican party has advertised themselves as their avowed intention to do so much for a forlorn race of people why not give these fellows a chance? FARMER.

THE FEET OF THE YOUNG MEN.

BY MARY AUSTIN.

Where the nations sat in council, scarlet robe and purple hem,
From the four-went ways of travel came the poor of God to them;
Came the blind of right and reason, came the halt of rule and law,
Came the feeble, feckless peoples, crying dole of all they saw.

"Lo, to you God giveth bread,
Break a crust to us," they said,
"We have eaten fruit of bondage to the core;"
"Take and eat," the nations cried,
"Here is freedom;" but they lied,
And the young men's feet were at the door.

"All we know of truth to God-ward all we can of love beside,
All our good sword arm hath won us," quoth the nations; but they lied,
Bid them wait upon the scarlet, puppet to the purple hem—
As they delt with hungry peoples, so the Lord hath dealt with them.

They have felt the threshing flail,
They have passed beyond the pale,
To the limbo of lost empires, gone before,
They are stricken in their pride,
They are dead because they lied—
And the young men's feet are at the door.

Though your word shall run with power, and your arm reach over seas,
Yet the questioning bolt shall find you if you keep not faith with these;
Lest you be at one with Egypt, lest you lie as Rome lies now
In the potter's field of empires, mint and cumin, keep the vow.

Keep the truth your father's made,
Lest your children grow afraid,
Lest you hear the captive's mothers weeping sore—
There is little worth beside—
They are dead because they lied,
And the young men's feet are at the door.

Railroading Patents.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the latter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent. 16.

WISHES.

Do you wish the world were better?
Let me tel you what to do.
Set a watch upon your actions,
Keep the m always straight and true.
Rid you mind of selfish motives,
Let your thoughts be clean and high.
You can make a little Eden
Of the sphere you occupy.

Do you wish the world were wiser?
Well suppose you make a start.
By accumulating wisdom
In the scrap-books of your heart.
Do not waste one page on folly;
Live to learn and learn to live
If you want to give men knowledge
You must get it, ere you give it.

Do you wish the world were happy?
Then remember day by day
Just to scatter seeds of kindness
As you pass along the way.
For the pleasures of the many
May be oftimes traced to one.
As the hand that plants the acorn,
Shelters armies from the sun.

THE Prohibition convention to be held in Minneapolis, March, 20 and 21, is announced as the biggest one yet. Temperance people are making quite a stir.

THE Aitkin Age in discussing Republican possibilities for nominee for Congress in the Sixth district says of William L. Windom of Duluth: "Windom is doing considerable talking but people do not pay much attention to his candidacy". That's the trouble with the g. o. p. just now, it has no time for old fashioned Windom, Garfield, Blaine or Abe Lincoln Republicanism. But they persist in picking up renegade democrats like Page Morris, J. Adam Bede and such. Old fashioned honest, pure politics is better than the Marcus Aurelius Hanna kind.

THE Minneapolis Tribune in a special from Washington says Congressman Morris has returned from Minnesota and is entirely satisfied that he will be renominated and re-elected. When asked if he would run on a free trade platform for Porto Rico, he replied "I will run on a republican platform." This gives the g. o. p. another chance to flop around to get in position to catch the most succors it can, and still Page will be with them. He said he would "go to Congress a Republican and come home a Republican". There is nothing like honesty and in order to be shure to keep his word it looks as if Page don't dare to commit himself to principles, but simply stay with the party and let her go where she pleases.

THE Minneapolis Times, of Saturday, publishes an interesting letter from an army officer in the Philippines. He, among other things, says: "It seems to me that the time has arrived for starting a civil government for these people, whose condition would immediately be improved in every way thereby". He advocates the appointment of Gen. McAuthur as a man especially fitted for Military Governor. He also says: "Generally speaking, the Filipinos are industrious, domestic, fond of their families and homes, and are far from warlike tendencies." He thinks the longer his suggestions are not followed out, the worse things will be, which is not speaking very highly of the present management of affairs in the Phillippines.

Wants and Precedents.

"Pennsylvania does not want Quay and the Senate will have to reverse the precedents of a century in order to seat him. But neither fact seems to make much difference to that august body."—Minneapolis Democrat.

What do people's wants and precedents of a hundred years matter to this Senate? Whether the people live in Puerto Rico, the Philippines or Pennsylvania must they not be on an equality in the eyes of the Senate and of Boss Hanna. After the tariff on Puerto Rico's products is fixed can't Quay help establish a tariff on coal from Pennsylvania to all other states, giving Ohio men a better chance?

Worth Considering.

The St. Peter Journal takes a slap at Lind for declaring that with the fires at St. Peter and St Cloud the state is much richer by not having carried its own insurance. An officer connected with the St. Peter state hospital informed the writer that the St. Peter institution had paid over $80,000 in premiums since the big fire and was of the opinion that Mr. Lind was eminently right in his view that the state should carry its own insurance. But pehaps even the officers opinions are not as good as the authority who takes Mr. Lind to task.—St. Peter Herald.

When we go to the cities and visit the finest buildings and learn that they are the property of insurance companies. And call in at some of the finest furnished offices; and see some of the finest dressed people, living off of fat salaries and learn that insurance companies are keeping them up we are led to think that some body is paying out a large ammount of money without returns. And where some body is getting on so marvelously it is plain that some are footing the bills. If people would put by the amount each year that they pay for insurance, and invest it in some safe business; or even put it out at interest, in a safe place, they would soon be surprised to find what a snug sum they had accumulated, and would join Gov. Lind in his belief that the State had better carry its own insurance.

Among our Exchanges.

The Broad Axe: Without equality of rights there is no liberty. Equality before the law is the essence of liberty and is hateful only to tyrants.

Duluth Herald: With Mr. Windom an active candidate for congressional honors, Judge Morris will have to fight for the delegation from this county.

Le Sueur Sentinel: With the American generals "Young" and "Wood" calling for reinforcements; with the enemy besieging several posts, and with the reports of frequent and quite heavy fighting there, the administration claim that the war in the Philippines is over, seems a little mixed.

Minnesota Muscat: The Congressman who voted for the Puerto Rican tariff are frantically shouting that only one side of the question has been touched upon and when the other side is considered, their action will be justified. Well, supposing they touch upon the other side a while. They have failed to do so, so far.

Sherburne County Times: It is stated that Congressman Morris will soon explain his position and give his constituents his reasons for voting for the Porto Rico bill. He may be able to satisfy the district that he took the proper course, and one that would justify a renomination, but just now it looks dubious for Mr. Morris.

Five little men in a big place, all from Minnesota, are busy explaining how it happened that they voted to shut the door in the face of the poor inhabitants of Puerto Rico. When congress adjourns, they had better take a trip somewhere awhile to give the people a chance to forget that they are living, instead of coming home to annoy them.—Le Sueur Sentinel.

Minneapolis Democrat: David B. Hill, it is said, is going to the Democratic convention with his satchel full of bricks destined for Mr. Bryan, whom he thinks he can defeat for the nomination. Here's to you Dave! You won't win, but you will put a spice into the proceedings and wake up the party to efforts that can not be balanced by the Republican ratification feast at Philadelphia.

Senator Davis, Nelson and all of Minnesota's Towner congress are now jumping over themselves to get on to the Heatwole band wagon in time to be reckoned with those who are more solicitous of the interests of the people than the trusts on the Porto Rican tariff bill. Joel should be congratulated for his foresightedness and honesty in this measure without regard to party.—Norwood Times.

St. Peter Herald: The Macrum incident appears to be closed. No more serious charge has been preferred against the administration than the one which Macrum makes. He declared that official letters of the U. S. government had been opened by English officers and he follows it up with the charge of a secret alliance. The government makes no investigation of the first charge and only a quasi denial of the second and turns it all off by the statement that Macrum was only a boy. Wm. Pitt was only a boy when he was made prime minister of England. Napoleon was only a boy when he shot down the sections with a whiff of grape shot and was only a boy when he made Russia, Austria, and Purssia sue for peace. This boy business doesn't go down. Mr Macrum's charges are those of an official of the U. S. government and are entitled to something more than a sneer. Running an administration is not much fun it must be admitted but there are an unusual number of unpleasant things said of the present one.

A THANKSGIVING.

God, I thank Thee for the strength with which I make my fight;
I had been conquered, aye and crushed, but for Thy might.
I am not wholly overcome, I bow and bless Thy name;
I stood and waited for the strength, and lo! it came.

God, I thank Thee that while tests of truth found me untrue,
I have been faithful to my duty in a few,
That, though my failures sicken me, I realize my blame
And have enough sincerity to suffer shame.

God, I thank Thee for my failures; terrible their truth;
But they taught me self-control, although they took my youth.
I thank Thee that I still can struggle, still believe and try,
And that my faith in human nature did not die.

God, I thank Thee that the conflict could not make me cold;
That my pulses leap as quickly as of old,
That my sympathies still lead me, and though worldly wise,
That I still can look about me with kind eyes.

God, I thank Thee, through my tears I still can see the stars;
There is of music in my soul a few sweet bars;
With gratitude which has survived the sordid grind and strife.
Oh, God, I thank Thee for the love which glorifies my life!

—Minnie McArthur Laing, in N. Y. Tribune.

The Test of Love

OF ALL the noble rivers that go bounding to the sea, none is more splendid than the Columbia. Its pine-clad banks give a majestic setting for its silver stream. But why should it be called silver? At times it is the deepest green—deeper and more luminous than the heart of a jewel. There are hours when its cascades have a thousand colors, like mother-of-pearl. There are dawns, after the mist has lifted, when the broad surface of the river above the cascades is actually saffron or burnished gold.

Barbara Merriden knew it in every mood, and loved it whether it was somber with storm, or sullen in the harsh autumn days, or scintillating under the July sunshine. She was as much at home upon the river as on the land; and the firm earth, with all its comfort and beauty, could never give her the joy that she felt when the current took her boat in its strong embrace.

She went to the river in her sorrowful moments as well as in her happy ones. She fled to it as a friend. When George Caxton told her that he loved her, she ran to the river to tell it of the blessing that had come into her life. But, some way, she did not feel the ecstasy that she had expected to. The pleasure in her heart did not rise to meet the splendor of water and sky and shore. She had often looked forward to this hour as the crowning joy of her life. But with grief she discovered that the song of nature had a higher note than the love lyric of her heart.

Perhaps it was because the hour had been too long expected. George Caxton and Barbara Merriden had gone to school together. They knew every event of each other's lives. They had always been attached to each other. George had never thought of any other girl with emotion, and Barbara had long felt that she was destined to be his wife. She had said yes to his earnest question with gratitude and happiness, yet now, in the mystic hour by the river, with the sun shedding its last exquisite glow upon an unreal world, she felt a weariness of spirit at the moderation of her joy.

She was turning from the beautiful river, humiliated at the inadequacy of her own emotions, when she saw walking among the pines, with eyes fixed upon the distant glory of the sky, a young man whom she had never seen before. He did not see her till she was close by him, and then he looked with a start at the face of the girl, spiritual and exquisite with its deep emotional experience. He stopped and looked at her, rapt, as if she had been some recently embodied soul, created for this wondrous hour, and she stopped, too, enchanted by the eloquence of his face. When he spoke it was to say something remarkable:

"It is always mysterious and fearfully beautiful in these woods?" he asked.

"It is always beautiful here," she said, speaking as if in a dream. "And sometimes it seems unreal, and like—like a phantom world—as it does tonight."

Never before in her life had she spoken in the way that she desired. It was her habit to frame her speech in commonplace words.

"I should like to walk out on that golden water," he went on. "It seems as if it might bear one up, does it not?"

Barara had a fancy, and indulged herself in it.

"It will bear up anyone whose heart is light," she smiled. "But, mind you, it must have no care at all. It must be as light as ether."

"Would it bear you up?" he asked.

She shook her head mournfully, and he said in a voice that moved her: "And I should sink like a stone." It seemed impossible for them to part while that witch light gleamed upon their enchanted wood, and when the shadows grew gray they became a part of them—like shadows they faded from each other's sight.

That night when Barbara went about her duties and afterward when she lay in her bed she found herself happy with the elate and trimphant happiness of which she had dreamed. George Caxton, her promised lover, seemed a part of the work-a-day world. Her thought turned away from him in spite of her efforts to be loyal.

She felt sure she would meet the stranger again in the woods, and she did, many times. He was a writer by vocation. He even confessed to being a poet. He was not well, he said. The city had worn on him. So he came home for a long rest there among the pines. His name was Cecil Underwood.

Barbara found it impossible to resist the charm of his personality. He seemed to make the whole world over for her. In vain she struggled to remember the truth and patience and strength of her betrothed. He was too well known to her to be seen through a glamour. With austere serenity he insisted upon an early marriage day. He refused, apparently, to feel any jealousy at the constant companionship of his sweetheart and Cecil Underwood. And Barbara was angry at him for this, too.

"He has no sensibility," she said to herself.

One wild day when the wind cried through the tree tops and the waters lashed along as if in stress of pain, Cecil Underwood came to her in an imperative mood.

"You must come walking with me," he said. "The day expresses me. I have to speak of the torment of my heart and I will keep still no longer even at your bidding."

Barbara went out with him. They walked under the pines whose roar filled the world with their lamentings. They were silent, conscious of the storm within their souls, says the Chicago Tribune.

"Let us take a boat," said Barbara, when they reached the river.

"No, no," he protested, but she seemed not to hear him and untied her skiff and leaped into it.

"Come," she said. He hesitated, but followed. As the little boat felt the lift of the waves the pain in her heart seemed to lighten, and she let the current carry her along unconscious of the passage of time. Suddenly Cecil cried out:

"The rapids, Barbara! The rapids! See where you have taken us!". She glanced behind her. It was true that the tossing white mane of the water horses was not more than half a mile away and the boat was quivering in the pull of their great power. Barbara smiled a little—it would not matter to her so much, she reflected, if her great problem was to be solved that way. But still, it was cowardly to die. She set her fine young strength to a resistance, rowing up stream and inclining the boat toward the southern shore. So absorbed was she in the task that she did not notice the man with her until she heard him crying with wild importunities to his Maker:

"Row, Barbara, row! Row girl!" Then, looking at him, she saw his face was corpse-white and quivering with fear, and the next moment he sank, an inert heap, at the bottom of the boat.

"Get up," she commanded, "and take the tiller! Get up instantly!" He obeyed dimly, shaking and sick with terror.

Barbara bent to her heavy task and made, by means of brave efforts, a little headway. But the wild horses plunged on and dragged her at their heels. She was almost on the verge of yielding to their relentless strength when a boat shot out from the bank. It came toward the quaking skiff with magnificent momentum. Barbara recognized the occupant at once. It was George Caxton. A hideous humiliation filled her soul. She was almost tempted to yield to that tugging of the wild horses. She looked at the half-fainting, praying creature beside her and then at the approaching man. And a moment of Gethsemane came to her. Then, white and courageous, she renewed her efforts. A moment later a line was thrown to her. She made it secure. Then she in her boat and George Caxton in his began a struggle against the powers of the river, in which they soon conquered.

George helped the trembling Cecil to shore, but Barbara leaped lightly to land and stood there smiling strangely.

"I am thankful with a great thankfulness that I owe my life to you, George," she said. "It is a privilege."

She held out her hand to the other man.

"Good-by," she whispered.

"Pity me! Pity me!" he cried.

"I do," she responded. "Good-by."

He went slowly under the pines, walking feebly like a man who is old and ill. George looked after him with commiserating eyes, but Barbara was relentless.

"Give me your arm," she said, with tender graciousness, "we will walk home together, George."

Why Wasps Don't Sit.

"I know why wasps never sit down, mamma," said little George.

"Why is it, dear?" asked his mother.

"Because," was the reply, "they have pins in their coat tails and are afraid to."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16, 1900.

Mr. McKinley's alleged tender to England of the good offices of this government towards bringing about peace between England and the two South African republics which England is slowly but surely crushing out of existence was nothing more than the attempt of a frightened politician to bamboozle the voters of this country who have been openly expressing sympathy for the fight for life that the citizens of those republics are making. In fact, there has been no tender of the good offices of this government. All that was done was to forward a cablegram from the presidents of the South African republics to the English government, through the U. S. Embassy in London. There was no word of comment from this government, although Mr. McKinley knows that the right sort of a message from him would result in saving the existence of those republics. The message from the South African governments was not even dignified by being presented by the U. S. Ambassador to England, that official being off on a pleasure jaunt; it was presented by one of his secretaries. It was because of the bad showing that would have been made that Mr. McKinley took advantage of his right and refused to furnish the Senate with copies of all correspondence with Great Britain and the South African republics, which were asked for by the resolution offered by Senator Allen and adopted.

After wrangling and fighting for nearly a week and holding two caucuses the republican Senators have patched up a sort of agreement on the Porto Rico bill. A bill appropriating $2,000,000 for the immediate relief of the Porto Ricans is to be passed at once, and the debate upon the old bill is to be continued indefinitely. Senator Davis stated in caucus that if the republicans did not give Porto Rico free trade Mr. McKinley would lose the electoral vote of Minnesota, and Senator Beveridge made a similar statement as to Indiana.

Representative Sulzer, of New York, believes that the various stories of complaints of American citizens resident in the Transvaal of the treatment of themselves and other foreigners are fakes circulated to stop the increase of Boer sympathy in this country, and to prove his belief to be correct he has offered a resolution in the House calling on the State Department for copies of all letters received from citizens of the U. S. resident in the South African Republic from January 1, 1892 to the present time.

Having got their gold standard bill beyond the reach of those republican Senators who still claim to be bimetallists, the republicans were very frank in acknowledging the effect the new law will have. For instance, Representative Overstreet, who was in charge of the bill when it finally passed the House, said, in reply to a question of Representative Williams, of Ill., as to whether the clause of the law making bonds payable in gold would prevent their being paid in silver, if international bimetallism should in the furture be secured: "The bonds could be paid in gold. This bill holds out not the slightest hope of international bimetallism under present conditions. I say frankly that this bill will make it practically and absolutely impossible ever to have international bimetallism at the rate of 16 to 1". That fully exposes the hypocrisy of those republican Senators who stated when it was before the Senate that the bill contained nothing that would stand in the way of international bimetallism.

Senator Butler, of N. C., found it necessary while making a personal statement refuting the allegations that he was not in favor of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 to call Senator Aldrich, of R. I., a liar—his exact words being, "The Senator from R. I. makes a statement that is not true." At the same time Senator Allen, of Nebr., made a statement concerning the numerous stories about his having lost faith in free coinage, in which he said: "I now want to repeat and I want the Public Printer to put it in black type so that it may stand as a permanent record of my position, that I am a firm believer, as I have always been, in the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 by this country alone and of not waiting for its reception by any other country."

The Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee has opened headquarters and started the work of the campaign. Secretary Kerr, who is in charge, says the prospect for electing a democratic House is becoming brighter every day and the same thing has been publicly said by prominent republicans.

It was perfectly fitting that Mr. McKinley should give the gold pen which Representative Overstreet bought for him to use in signing the gold standard bill to Mr. H. H. Hanna, of Indianapolis, who was the head of the bankers lobby, which pushed the gold standard bill from start to finish.

Senator Turner, of Washington, made an able speech this week, bristling with legal argument showing that the Constitution necessarily followed the flag into all the possessions of the U. S. He challenged any Senator to produce a single decision of the Supreme Court holding it to be necessary that the Constitution should be extended by act of Congress over acquired territory.

If anybody wants to open a liquor saloon in the town of Marshfield, Mass., he can do so upon paying $1,000,000 for his license, that being the fee prescribed by the local officials.

The post office department predicts that within another five years the farmers in most sections of the country will be brought within easy reach of a daily and free delivery of mail.

As an example of wifely duty it would be hard to duplicate the story of how a Nebraska woman went all the way to California in order to give testimony that allowed her husband a divorce.

Education costs $450,000,000 a year in the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany. It is gratifying to know that the United States spends three-sevenths of the whole amount and leads with an educational per capita of $2.67.

It is stated that from 40,000 to 50,000 from the country flock into the city of New York every year with the intention of making that city the scene of their life's labor. Within a very few weeks 99 out of every hundred of them wish they were "back with the old folks again."

A walking stick which Speaker Henderson usually carries with him was made from a tree which grew on the battlefield of Corinth, where he was wounded during the civil war. It was given to him by Congressman John B. Allen, who fought in the same battle on the confederate side.

A young Chicago man advertised in a matrimonial paper for a wife, and his sister happened to advertise in the same paper for a husband, both using assumed names. Then came the time for the exchange of photographs, and the discovery that the family was burdened with two foolish children.

Some people would ask a starving man for his last crust. When the widow of Gen. Lawton arrived in San Francisco she received several hundred letters from persons begging for loans and gifts from the fund raised to pay off the mortgage on her home, and to take care of herself and children.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson says the climate and soil of Hawaii are ideal for the raising of rubber trees, and he proposes to make the experiment on a large scale. As the United States imports every year nearly $30,000,000 worth of rubber, the raising of it in one of our possessions would be a great saving.

They have genuine "old-fashioned snowstorms" up in Alaska. The superintendent of the White Pass & Yukon railroad measured the snowfall during December at various points on the line, and the record was found to be as follows: Glacier, 90 inches; White Pass, 55 inches; Fraser, 42 inches, and Log Cabin, 74 inches.

A "hall of fame" where the names of great Americans will be inscribed is to be erected on the Hudson under the care of the University of New York. The fact that a candidate must have been dead at least ten years will prevent a good deal of disappointment on the part of some who fancy that they are later Washingtons, Lincolns and Jeffersons.

The possibilities of manufacturing verbs of nouns is shown in the following strictly legitimate sentence: "He was coppered and heavily ironed while hiding beside a wooden knoll eating a lunch of tin goods." The newspaper account of the capture was leaded, and the correspondent padded the account by saying the officer who collared the prisoner clubbed him heavily.

The friends of advanced education, who are recommending now that the art of self-defense shall be taken up in the public schools, are probably impelled by the consideration that if boxing be added to some of the other fads a school teacher here and there may have an opportunity of giving some of the pupils the licking they deserve, without running the risk of dismissal for violating the law against corporal punishment.

The taxpayers of Guilford, Conn., are enjoying some of the blessings of the millennium. The town has voted to levy no tax for the present year. For several years it has got along with a ten-mill tax. Now for a twelvemonth it will get along without any. The people of taxridden municipalities will envy those of Guilford, who, for a whole year, will enjoy immunity from those woes of city life, the tax assessor and collector. How it has managed to get rid of these burdens is not stated, but such information would be valuable.

Miss Karlene Theresa Ashbridge, daughter of the mayor of Philadelphia, was married recently and all her papa's henchmen were bidden to attend. Five thousand of them came, each, as in duty bound, bearing a wedding gift. As a result, the fair young woman, now Mrs. Armstrong, has a few less than 30 dozen silver spoons, 13 diamond brooches, 202 pepper and salt boxes, and enough additional jewelry and silverware to stock a department store. She also has 98 clocks, 97 mirrors, two pianos and 11 writing desks which her father's constituents contributed.

Gen. Shafter does not agree with the view of some military critics that the day has passed when strong defensive positions held by troops armed with modern rifles can be carried by direct assault. He says the Americans had precisely these conditions to contend with in the battle of El Caney, in the Santiago campaign, yet they drove the Spaniards out of a seemingly impregnable position. He adds, however, that the Americans were not ordered up in masses, and did not fire in the air in volleys, but got there the best way they could.

Manila, March 19. — Gen. Otis considers Manila the most troublesome center in the situation to-day. The insurgent junta here, in conjunction with that in Hong-Kong, is growing active. The military authorities have been forced to put a stop to Mabini's intercouse with the public. The local and foreign press considers his recent utterances calculated to incite Filipinos to a continued revolt and prejudicial to American control.

It will be seen from the accompanying map that the British still have a long and hard road to travel before reaching Pretoria. Plumer and Baden-Powell are only about 170 miles to the west, but they are not in a position to do anything but hold their own. Gen. Roberts, with the main army at Bloemfontein and Kimberley, is 250 miles away, with some exceedingly difficult territory between him and the Boer capital. Much of the country in the northern part of the Orange Free State and the southern part of the South African Republic is as rough as the "Bad Lands" of our own country, and is therefore admirably suited to Boer methods of defensive warfare.

In the province of Albay the insurgents have ceased harassing the Americans, owing, it is reported, to a lack of ammunition, but they continue ravaging the country by burning and looting. The natives are tiring of this sort of thing and threaten to turn against the marauders. Already the townspeople of Legaspi, Albay and Donzol are slowly returning to their homes.

Gen. Kobbe has opened 20 ports in the southern part of Luzon and in the islands of Samar and Leyte, the result of which is to stimulate trade there, although only temporarily, as the country opened is nonproductive and apparently nonconsuming. Owing to the political conditions of the last 12 months products accumulated during the blockade. These will be shipped to Manila and then the ports will be empty.

To Save the Trees.

Washington, March 16.—With a view to the preservation of the trees and shrubbery in the island of Porto Rico, Gov. Gen. Davis has issued an order prohibiting the felling or cutting of any trees, shrubbery, or any living wood within the public domain on the island. All concessions and grants that have heretofore been issued authorizing the felling of trees and other shrubbery on public lands are revoked.

Woman Killed by a Woman.

Chicago, March 20.—Annie Strother, night cashier in Swan's restaurant, 150 Twenty-second street, was shot and almost instantly killed by an unidentified woman shortly before one o'clock this morning. After emptying her revolver at the cashier the assailant thrust the weapon into her pocket and walked out of the place, making her escape. Jealousy, it is supposed, was the motive in the shooting.

Death of Gen. Harnden.

Madison, Wis., March 19.—Gen. Henry Harnden, department commander of the G. A. R., who had been critically ill in this city for several days, died at 7:10 Saturday night of pneumonia. He had a brilliant military record, and commanded the detachment that effected the capture of Jeff Davis.

To Allow Filipinos to Enlist.

Washington, March 19. — The adjutant general received a telegram Saturday from Gen. Otis asking authority to allow Filipinos to enlist as members of the regimental bands in the Philippines. The request will be granted as a matter of policy.

French-Eversole feud. They made their appearance in Frankfort shortly before Mr. Goebel was killed and disappeared directly after the assassination. They boarded with a woman named Pittman, and a receipt was given for their board, which was paid by one of the men now in jail, and this receipt is in the hands of the Goebel attorneys.

Sergt. Golden, in his confession, the full text of which cannot be secured, says that Hockersmith and Combs were in the room from which the shot was fired, and that both were ready, so that should the first miss Goebel the second would try. Combs is accused of firing the fatal shot.

"Open Door" Policy in Danger.

Shanghai, March 16.—The American association has telegraphed to the United States government Thursday that the attitude of the empress dowager towards the reformers will upset the "open door" policy. They also say rebellion and anarchy are expected, to the detriment of foreign interests, and advocate prompt concerted action on the part of the powers. The China association will appeal to the British minister, Sir Claude MacDonald, on the same subject.

Can't Reduce Fares.

Detroit, Mich., March 20. — Judge Swan, in the United States district court, Monday rendered a decision which destroys the validity of an ordinance passed some months since by the city council, requiring the street railway companies to reduce rates of fare to three cents. The court says there is nothing in the charter of the city which authorizes such an ordinance, and allows an injunction to restrain the city from enforcing it.

Charged with Conspiracy.

Lansing, Mich., March 16.—Attorney General Oren squarely charges certain agents and officers of the Henderson-Ames company of Kalamazoo, which made the purchase and subsequent sale of military supplies which were the subject of grand jury investigation, with entering into a conspiracy with ex-Quartermaster General White to defraud the state and divide the profits.

Indiana Farmer's Crime.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 16.—Alfred Gregory, a farmer near Winslow, Pike county, at ten o'clock Thursday night killed his wife and himself. They leave six children. Gregory was butchering hogs, and wanted his wife to heat water. She went visiting, and after brooding over the matter all day he committed the deed.

PORTO RICANS STARVING.

Gen. Davis Sends Word That He Will Need 500 Tons of Provisions Every Week.

Washington, March 20. — Adjt. Gen. Corbin received a cable message Monday from Gen. Davis, commanding the department of Porto Rico, saying that the condition of the inhabitants of Porto Rico is distressing and the suffering so general and widespread over the island that he will require at least 500 tons of food supplies weekly until further notice in proportions of 4-7 rice, 2-7 beans and 1-14 each of bacon and confish. Arrangements are being made in the subsistence and quartermaster general's departments to meet this requisition as promptly and regularly as possible.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 20.—A large gathering of 10,000 people, headed by the San Juan chamber of commerce, assembled at the palace of the governor general Monday to submit a petition with reference to the needs of the island. The deputation selected to present it was received, in the absence of Gen. Davis, who was indisposed, by Lieut. Col. Hall, adjutant general. On behalf of Gen. Davis, Lieut. Col. Hall expressed pleasure at seeing so many people who were interested in a question of such importance, and assured them that Porto Rico would receive justice. An account of the proceedings will be transmitted to Washington. The crowd was orderly, and dispersed without confusion, amid "vivas" for the United States and the governor general.

A NEGRO ACCUSED.

Lexington, Ky., March 20.—It is learned that the negro spoken of as being accused of shooting William Goebel is "Tallow Dick" Combs, of Beattyville. His companion is "Black Hockersmith," of Winchester. These negroes figured conspicuously in the

AIMED AT TRUSTS.

Joint Resolution Proposing an Amendment to Constitution Introduced in House.

Washington, March 16.—Representative Ray, of New York, chairman of the house committee on judiciary and at the head of a special subcommittee on trusts, Thursday introduced the following joint resolution, proposing an amendment to the constitution:

"Resolved, etc., That the following article be proposed to the legislatures of the several states as an amendment to the constitution of the United States:

"Article 16—The congress shall have power to regulate and repress monopolies and combinations, to create and dissolve corporations and dispose of their property: to make laws necessary and properly for the execution of the foregoing powers. Such powers may be exercised by the several states in any manner not in conflict with the laws of the United States."

Washington, March 16.—The District of Columbia appropriation bill carrying $6,608,378 was passed by the house Thursday and also a bill granting the abandoned Fort Hays Military reservation to the state of Kansas for experimental station and normal school purposes.

Washington, March 17.—After a debate, at times spirited, extending over parts of two days, the senate on Friday passed the Porto Rican relief appropriation bill. As passed the measure carries $2,095,000, the president being authorized to use that sum "for public education, public works and other governmental and public purposes," in Porto Rico. Senator Allen (Neb.) offered an amendment to the bill declaring that the constitution extends over Porto Rico by its own force, but it was lost by the decisive vote of 36 to 17. Senator Jones (Ark.) withdrew a free trade amendment offered by him and that proposition, therefore, did not reach a vote. Other efforts to amend the bill were fruitless.

INFLUENCE NOT FELT.

Passage of the Currency Measure Has Not as Yet Perceptibly Affected Business Situation.

New York, March 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The new monetary act which was signed and took effect on Wednesday has not affected business perceptibly as yet. Designed as a barrier against future harm, it was by some expected to have immediate influence through provisions regarding bank circulation. While $2,100,000 will be added to New York circulation, the increase thus far indicated will be mainly interior, affecting the chief monetary centers only by lessening reliance upon them when more currency is wanted.

"The grain movement is fading in importance. Corn exports have been in two weeks only 5,497,102 bushels, against 7,126,553 last year, though prior to March 132,982,623 bushels were exported, against 99,854,984 last year. The wheat movement is falling behind rather less than it has been in recent weeks, owing partly to large Pacific shipments. Atlantic exports in two weeks have been 3,069,454 bushels, flour included, against 6,229,473 last year, and Pacific exports 2,568,077 bushels, against 1,427,376 bushels last year. While government estimates of wheat in farmers' hands shows a sufficient quantity with visible supply to meet besides all home requirements as large foreign demand as those of last year, and yet leave a large surplus, there is no reason to expect that last year's foreign demand will be equaled. The price advanced 1⅝c for the week, and corn advanced 2½c.

"Failures for the week have been 198 in the United States, against 189 last year, and 23 in Canada, against 30 last year."

ARBOR DAY.

Gov. Tanner Names April 27 as a Day for Planting Trees, Shrubbery and Vines.

Springfield, Ill., March 16.—Gov. Tanner has issued a proclamation designating Friday, April 27, as "Arbor day," a day for planting trees, shrubbery and vines. He especially requests the authorities in charge of the common schools and other educational institutions to "take steps for such an observance of the day as will improve the public property under their charge, extend the general knowledge of the economic importance of tree planting and contribute toward the moral and aesthetic uplifting of the youth of Illinois."

St. Patrick's Day Observed.

London, March 19.—Shamrock day promises to vie with Primrose day in the hearts of the people, judging from the enthusiasm with which, for the first time in the history of the nation, loyalists all over the United Kingdom celebrated, and everywhere the green was conspicuous. From Windsor castle, where the queen observed the day by wearing a sprig of genuine four-leaved shamrock, to the East end of the slums of London, where the ragged urchin gloried in his morsel of green weed, nearly everyone sported something in the shape of a green favor.

Perished by Fire.

Alfred, N. Y., March 19.—Two sons of Eugene Ferrin, aged respectively nine and three years, were burned to death in the Ferrin farmhouse in McHenry valley, near this village, Sunday. Mr. Ferrin rescued his wife and two of the children, but was driven back by the flames and badly burned in a vain attempt to save the two that perished.

Ex-Banker Dreyer Sentenced.

Chicago, March 16.—After an exhaustive review of the evidence Judge Waterman denied the motion for a new trial for former Banker Edward S. Dreyer and sentenced him to the penitentiary on the verdict of the jury. A motion in arrest of judgment was overruled and Dreyer went to jail.

Warship Ordered to Taku.

Washington, March 17.—Secretary Long has cabled instructions to Admiral Watson, at Cavite, to send a warship to Taku, China, at the mouth of the Tieho river, to look after American missionary interests that are threatened. He has left the selection of the ship to Admiral Watson.

Monument Unveiled.

Key West, Fla., March 16.—The unveiling of the monument dedicated by citizens of Key West to the heroes of the battleship Maine, who died in Havana, February 15, 1898, and who were buried here, took place Thursday afternoon. Over 10,000 people were present.

The Deweys Go South.

Washington, March 19.—Admiral and Mrs. Dewey left here Sunday night for a trip south. They expect to visit Savannah, Macon, St. Augustine, Jacksonville and Palm Beach. The admiral and Mrs. Dewey probably will not return to the city until the latter part of next month.

New Use for Wireless Telegraphy.

Wireless telegraphy has had a new demonstration for usefulness by the captain of a lightship, who used it after ordinary signals had failed to notify the shore authorities of danger. In a like manner Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the famous dyspepsia cure, acts when all other medicines fail. Its superiority is quickly felt in the renewal of strength. It regulates the bowels, improves the appetite, and cures indigestion. Try it.

Went to Sleep Quickly.

The mother of a little three-year-old had been away from home overnight, and on her return asked:

"And how did my little girl get to sleep last night without mamma?"

"Oh," she replied, "papa twied to sing to me like 'ou does an' I dis went to sleep weal twick so I touldn't hear him."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MARCHING ON

GOES THE G. O. P., TO "IMPERIAL DESTINY" AND TRUST SUBSERVIENCY.

Day by Day It Is Being Made Plainer to the People—Porto Rico Case and Increasing G. O. P. Dilemma—The People Greatly Aroused—The Week's Political Drift—People's Party State Convention to Select National Delegates — State Points — Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, March 19, 1900.

During the past week locally, as well as nationally, almost the sole topic has been Porto Rico, and the flood of light it has thrown upon Republican imperialism and subserviency to the monopolistic influences. That the G. O. P. goes marching on to both with banners flying, and a weak president at the head of the column, the whole country can plainly see.

The unmasking of imperialism in its real essence, and in the fixing of which upon this country no man is more responsible than Minnesota's senior senator, is make most clear by Louis F. Post in Chicago Public, commenting on Senator Davis' trimming and efforts to point a way out of the G. O. P. dilemma, Davis, says Public, has taken care to make it appear that his proposed free trade with Porto Rico is not that the Porto Ricans have gained any rights under our constitution, but in the strict interests of imperialism, "is a mere concession of imperial grace." The object, says Public, would be obvious, if Davis did not declare it. He would have congress on Record that the Constitution has no force outside the Union except as congress declares it applicable. That effected, the next step is that outside of such extensions of constitutional power made at will by congress, neither Porto Ricans nor Filipinos can receive constitutional protection. The language of Senator Davis himself is: "My amendment extends the Constitution over Porto Rico, and by so doing implies that it cannot be extended to the Philippines or other territories except by act of congress."

"At last," as Public well says, "American imperialism is unmasked."

Apropos, there are indications that a large element among state Republicans, is coming to the conclusion that the Davis way is the best way out of their wilderness of dilemmas. It has been the comment among prominent state Republicans as they have come and gone during the past week. The idea seems to be that they find the charge of imperialism in its mildest form, as here expressed, and in the language of one of the most prominent of such Republicans, they "are in the soup anyhow" on national questions, and that would be the least difficult to meet.

And, speaking of Republicans, there are multiplying numbers of them up in arms against their "free trade," 15 per cent national leadership at Washington. Some of them do not care who knows how they feel. One such is ex-representative J. C. Flynn of Little Falls, the Sixth district Republican wheelhorse, who informed the writer that he had never been much of an imperialist anyhow, and this new situation was more than he could stomach. And he said, "Have Bryan let the silver question alone and he will be elected."

And still another, is ex-City Health Physician Dr. Kelly of Minneapolis, who informs his friends openly that he is done with the imperialism party. And there are indeed others.

And while the whole country is aroused at the Porto Rican imperialism, the congressional investigation into the militarism in the Idaho "bull pen" outrages is developing little less destructive immunition against the administration. It is the opinion of the great commoner, W. W. Erwin, that the Idaho militarism is alone sufficient to win the coming fight.

And now that the British have about completed the destruction of the two republics in South Africa, when the contest was prolonged to an impossibility that England would listen to a word of intervention, McKinley the First offers the good offices of this country to stop the fray. The United States could have saved the South African republics and not risked a man nor a dollar, the same that a just and honorable course toward the Filipinos would have saved a republic to that liberty loving people, and saved us thousands of lives and multiplied millions of dollars.

And, speaking of the Philippines, recruits are now going forward to take the places of the thousands wiped out there by disease and bullets, and the many more that are maniacs from the exposure and hardships of that equatorial clime. Handcuffs for the latter and coffins for the increasing numbers of dead are the chief, in fact about the only present important items of "trade" with that portion of our "colonies."

The manner in which general business is opening this spring is shown by the last Chicago bank statement available. Comparing the weeks ending March 10 for 1899 and 1900, in every single instance 1900 is behind. In loans, the decrease is $7,650,000, and $6,200,000 in deposits, while the cash means is nearly $12,000,000 less; and while the clearings are nearly $5,000,000 less, the week's balances are $8,000,000 behind. When it is considered that the natural increase of business under ordinary conditions is large, this actual loss is emphasized.

And speaking of business, there are indications that the far east is getting a good bellyfull of the present policy. Thus in the Minneapolis public library, the current issue of the Providence (Rhode Island) Journal, contained something like 30 notices of foreclosure sales.

Some very distinguished state Republicans are in danger of incurring the brand of "traitor" for their leaning towards the "antis." One such is ex-Speaker Lee of Todd county, whose intimates assert that he is near to the revolt line.

And they do say that the distinguished chairman of the Republican state committee, Judge Steele, is a rank free trader on the Porto Rican question. However, the distinguished editor-in-chief of the Minneapolis Tribune, Major Shaw, is an out and out 15 per cent tariff man. Thus widely do the goppite wiseacres differ at this time.

And speaking of the Minneapolis Tribune, one of its editorial staff, one of the ablest of its staff, Ralph W. Wheelock, has been called to South Dakota to take charge of the Republican press bureau that has been established to oppose the rising tide in favor of Senator Pettigrew. Considering that Mr. Wheelock is known to his int mates as for Bryan, it is hard to see how he can be expected to get up much anti-Pettigrew steam.

Emphasizing the interests in the reform which the grain and warehouse commission is endeavoring to accomplish in lowering rates in the southwestern portion of the state, all the leading farmers of Blue Earth county have filed with the commission complaint of the rates in force on grain, which they claim are from 2 to 3 cents higher than they should be to correspond with other sections of the state. The people are thoroughly in earnest for this reform, and will heartily co-operate to secure it and approve those who labor to that end.

During last week Judge Lochren of the federal court heard the suit of ex-County Attorney Frank M. Nye against the Western Union Telegraph company for $50,000 damages for carrying a telegram, in the regular course of business, in which the charge was made that Nye sold out, in the campaign of 1896, when he had been an ardent silver man. The defense brought out with considerable particularity, Mr. Nye's ardent support of the Bryan cause up to a certain moment when he turned tail and returned to the G. O. P. fold, and as to Mr. Nye's reputation for political integrity on that account. A feature was the giving to the jury of the speeches Mr. Nye made in the silver cause, which at the time made him famous all over the state. His part in inducing John Lind to be the candidate that year was also detailed, with many other thrilling allusions to the historic campaign.

A New South Wales cablegram says that the government has proclaimed St. Patrick's Day as a public holiday in honor of the Irish soldiers in South Africa. On which side?

The Peoples party fires the first gun in the presidential campaign, in its convention to select delegates to Sioux Falls, which will meet at Minneapolis May 2, with every prospect, judging from the committee meeting, of a wise and harmonious action. Minnesota Populists aim at having a splendid delegation.

We have received the following from a political opponent of Governor Lind residing in Anoka county, who is yet just enough to speak fairly of the state asylum, and thus in rebuke of those who for personal pique and spite have abused the governor for his action in that matter. The writer says:

"If you could see how comfortable the state's wards are housed and appear since brought here, and hear what I have heard regarding their improved condition, you would feel like commending Governor Lind's course as I do, and I am sure I speak the sentiments of many, and they are not otherwise of his political sentiments, either."

The terrible power of the corporations on which the Republicans will rely in the coming election, was well shown at the anti-trust conference, in a report made on the extent to which individuals are employed by the corporations. This report placed the large combines in the country at 600, with capital stock, watered and otherwise, of $10,000,000,000! This power will largely be at the command of the trust party. Added to these are thousands on thousands of corporations, like those controlling transportation, with immense numbers of men in their employ. In fact the report referred to, estimated that fully one-half of all the labor employed by the non-agricultural interests are in such corporate employ! When fear is expressed as to the result it must be on but one assumption, to-wit, that Americans are to be bought, coerced or influenced, as they were in 1896. For one we do not fear it. But it is a terrible power to combat.

Speaking of imperialism and royalty, ex-Attorney General Moses E. Clapp is credited with calling attention to the fact that not all foreign titles have been gobbled up by aspiring as well as perspiring Americans. There is, for instance, the title of Lord High Boot Jack to the Crown in England, not at present in much use. Authorities may differ as to its status, but General Clapp says the fact is that the patrimony belonging to it was wiped out; that at a time when the title was regarded so near the throne that it was ordered that the remains of the last duke be interred in Westminster, the expense, amounting to four millions, paralyzed the dukedom. Would it not be well for the Minnesota British Federation club to give the matter attention?

At last accounts Carver county's Republican treasurer had not squared up that little defalcation. At last accounts, however, Hennepin county's Republican register of deeds had been removed from office for malfeasance. These things are very very bad, for a great moral party like the G. O. P.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Suffocated.

Fire destroyed the Hennepin block in Minneapolis, and Mrs. Carrie Crawford, colored, perished from suffocation. Mrs. Crawford, with her child and her aged father-in-law, Isaac Crawford, lived on the fourth floor at the rear of No. 325. The man succeeded in making his way out of the building, but the young woman became excited and went to the windows facing the alley at the rear. Surrounded by flames and smoke she screamed for help while a crowd of terror-stricken people watched her peril.

Finally ladders were placed and Fireman Berwin reached the top and secured the boy which the mother had placed on the ledge of the window. Then he descended as rapidly as possible and made another ascent to the top to save the poor mother.

However, she had dropped back into the maelstrom of fire and flame as soon as she saw that her child was safe. Bravely risking his own life. Berwin attempted to reach the prostrate woman, but he was driven back and compelled to leave her.

Killed by Dynamite.

Axel Cederberg was killed by a dynamite explosion in St. Paul, and his brother Charles, narrowly escaped death. The men were engaged in heating a dynamite stick to be used in blowing out a stump, which was in the way of their excavation. They built a small fire and placed in it several pieces of rock. On top they laid a piece of sheet iron, and on this, buried in the small heaps of sand, they placed the dynamite. At last he informed his brother that all was in readiness and took the dynamite from the sand. But the explosive was warmer than he thought, and the stick burned his hand and he dropped it, causing a terrible explosion.

Alex was blown ten feet and instantly killed, while Charles was badly shaken up. The explosion was heard all over the Midway district.

A Humane Move.

The Minneapolis Humane Society, with other similar organizations, is much aroused over a bill introduced in congress to amend the existing law regarding the transportation of stock. The present law prohibits the carrying of livestock in the ordinary stock cars more than twenty-eight hours without unloading the animals and allowing them to feed. This law, of course, does not apply to improved cars in which the stock are fed and watered regularly. The law has stood for twenty years and has met the approval of all societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. The amendment proposes to lengthen the time limit to forty hours, and consequently the humane society objects to its passage.

Contracts to be Let.

The state normal board will hold its next regular meeting at Winona. A. T. Ankeny, president of the board, says the most important business will be to award the contract for the new normal school building at Duluth. The appropriation is $75,000 and six bids out of eight received by the building committee are under that amount. In addition to the ordinary routine business, the members will carefully inspect the school and its buildings.

News in Brief.

The athletic board of control, state university, is in receipt of the formal acceptance of Dr. Henry L. Williams, Philadelphia, as athletic director. By this act, the Minnesota institution has secured a man perhaps unexcelled in his particular line.

John Newman, a chopper in one of Bagley's camps in Beltrami county, was fatally injured by a falling tree.

Mrs. Fred Schastag committed suicide by drowning herself in a well, near Mankato. She had formerly been an inmate in the St. Peter asylum.

About 100 of the hopelessly insane male patients were removed from the St. Peter asylum to the new institution at Anoka.

The Soldiers' Home officials reported to the state auditor, receipts $2,857.76, from the pension money of inmates for the quarter ending Jan. 4 last.

It is reported upon good authority that the Northern Pacific railroad will soon dispose of all its lands in the state to a syndicate.

REPRESENTS HIS VIEWS.

Platform Adopted by Nebraska Democrats in Convention at Lincoln Approved by Mr. Bryan.

Lincoln, Neb., March 20. — In effect William J. Bryan announced Monday night to the democratic party in convention here and to the nation at large the platform which he considers the best for the democratic party, and practically upon which he desires to stand if nominated at the Kansas City convention. The resolutions adopted are as follows:

They indorse the Chicago platform, favor income tax and popular election of United States senators, oppose government by injunction and the black list, and favor arbitration of labor disputes, declare for municipal ownership of municipal franchises, favor initiative and referendum, liberal pensions to deserving soldiers and their dependts, and construction and fortification of the Nicaragua canal by the United States, condemn the Dingley tariff law, pledge unceasing warfare against all trusts, demand unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, without waiting for the consent of any other nation, the retention of greenbacks, and retirement of national bank notes, recommend a more effective law against trusts, while denouncing the administration for failing to enforce the present law; demand stringent legislation, both state and national, for the controlling of monopolies; condemn the Porto Rican tariff bill, oppose wars of conquest and colonial possessions, assert that the constitution follows the flag and denounce the doctrine that an executive or a congress, created and limited by the constitution, can exercise lawful authority beyond that constitution or in violation of it; favor giving to the Filipinos a stable form of government, independence, and protection from outside interference; oppose militarism and a large standing army, express sympathy with the Boers in their struggle with Great Britain.

The platform is practically the creation of Mr. Bryan. He did not write it personally, but he was consulted concerning it, and before it was read to the convention he had approved of it throughout.

Mr. Bryan's speech before the democratic convention dealt almost entirely with the three questions which he has been discussing in various parts of the country—the money question, the trust question and imperialism.

DEATH OF MAUD S.

Famous Trotter Long Known as the Queen of the Turf Is No More.

New York, March 19.—Old Maud S. is dead. The grand old trotting mare, aged 25 years, passed away at the farm of John H. Schults, near Port Chester, Saturday, and she is to have a funeral such as becomes an animal of her breeding, station and performances. She was queen of the trotting turf in the days of the high-wheel sulky, and no horse hitched to the style of vehicle has ever beaten her record of 2:08¾ on a regulation track. Alix (2:03¾), Nancy Hanks (2:04), Director (2:05¼), Arion (2:07¾), and others have done wonders with the pneumatic sulky, and have monopolized the attention of the latter-day devotees of harness racing, but the old-timers refuse to admit their performances were greater than that of Maud S. Her owner, the late Robert Bonner, maintained until the last that she was the greatest trotter that ever put foot on a track.

Mr. Vanderbilt, her owner, sold Maud S. to his friend, Robert Bonner, for $40,000, knowing she would always be accorded the best of treatment, and never allowed to race for money. She was put in the hands of W. W. Bair, who reduced her record to 2:09¾. Then the late John Murphy took her and she did still better, trotting a mile in 2:09¼ at Lexington, and later in 2:08¾ at Cleveland. Maud S. was retired absolutely in 1886.

PASSED AWAY.

Death of Ex-Congressman Bingham, of Ohio—Brief Sketch of His Career.

Cadiz, O., March 20. — Hon. John A. Bingham died at his home in Cadiz Monday morning, aged 85 years. He had been in ill health, the result of old age, for some time, and his death was not unexpected. Two daughters survive him.

[Judge Bingham was a noted orator. He served eight terms in congress from the Sixteenth Ohio district, and was minister to Japan from 1872 to 1885. He was judge advocate of the court which sat in the impeachment proceedings against President Johnson, and as judge advocate sentenced Mrs. Surratt for conspiracy in the murder of Lincoln. He was the author of the first section of the Fourteenth amendment to the constitution. During his public career he was a leader in the national councils of the republican party and was a close friend of Lincoln and Stanton. He was voted a pension by congress in recognition of his distinguished service to the country.]

Manila Census Taken.

Washington, March 19.—A census of the city of Manila, taken by the sanitary corps of the city, has been received at the war department. It shows the population of the city proper, not including the suburbs or the residents of houseboats, convents or seminaries, to be, approximately, 150,000. The work of enumeration was exceedingly difficult, the natives showing a strong dislike to answering questions, and the census is therefore not as accurate as it might be.

New York, March 20.—All grades of refined sugars were advanced five cents per 100 pounds by the American Sugar Refining company Monday. There was also advance in the pound price of raw sugars. The advance is said to have resulted from the increased demand for the product during the past week.

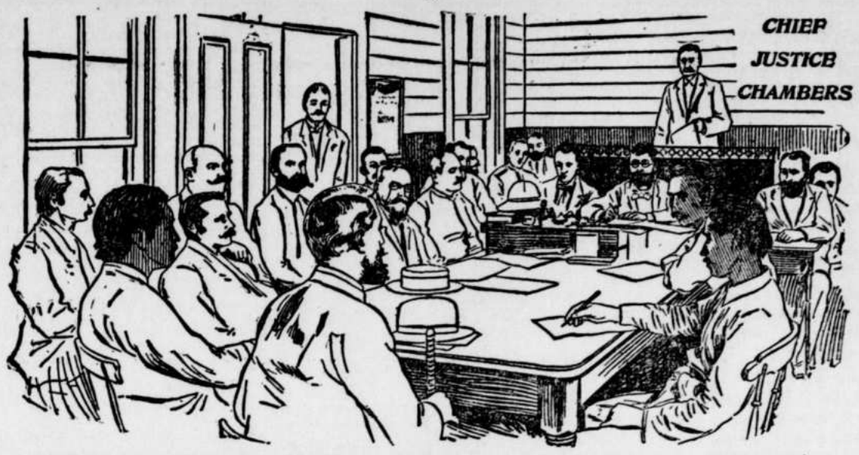
The Chief Justice of Samoa Says Peruna is The Very Best Catarrh Cure.



Court Room Scene where Judge Chambers maintained the supremacy of the United States in Samoa.

In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., Chief Justice Chambers says the following of Peruna:

"I have tried one bottle of Peruna, and I can truthfully say it is one of the best tonics I ever used, and I take pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers who are in need of a good medicine. I can recommend it as one of the very best remedies for catarrh."

THE PLACE FOR A POOR MAN.

Alameda, N. W. T., Canada, Dec. 22nd, 1899.

Mr. B. Davies, Canadian Government Agent, St. Paul, Minn.:

Dear Sir—As I promised you about two years ago that at some future time I would let you know what I thought of Western Canada and the chances of a poor man making a start and supporting a family at same time, so will write a few facts concerning my own experience the past 21 months, and what I have done, any able-bodied man can do, provided he will work.

I left Traverse country, March 20th, 1898, landed in Alameda at noon the 21st, with $3.55 in my pocket, a stranger and among strangers, and when my family came in Oct., 1898, my wife had nearly $10, or barely enough to pay freight on her stove, sewing-machine and clothes and beds. I commenced work March 28th, also made entry for homestead same day (the man I started work for loaning me $15 to pay entrance fee), and I have earned or at least received $478.10 in wages since then, and have been idle at least 2 months of the 21 since I came. The homestead I took had 12 acres broke by a former occupant. I paid $20 to have it replowed in July, '98, and the seed wheat for it cost me $8.25. I let it to a neighbor for ½ in elevator clear of all expense except the seed, and this fall I received $70.10 for my part of the crops off of the 12 acres, so my total receipts the past 21 months has been $548.10, and my expenses besides living for self and family have been as follows:

Entrance fee ($5.00 being paid for cancellation)	$ 15.00
Summer fallowing 12 acres	20.00
Seed for same	8.25
Cost of house, besides my own labor on same	75.85
20 acres of breaking and double discing same	60.00
	$179.10
My half of wheat	70.10
Net expense on homestead	$109.00

We moved on our homestead July 10th, 1899, have 32 acres in good shape for crops in 1900. My wife joins with me in sending best wishes to you and yours.

You can truly say to any poor man who pays a big rent to get a farm (somebody else's land) or works for wages to support a family, that I have personally tried both in Minnesota and tried hard to make a success of it, but found to my sorrow that after working hard a poor living was all I could get out of it, and after nearly 2 years of Western Canadian life I will say that I am very thankful to you for helping me to decide to try it in Canada.

Yours respectfully,
W. H. KINKADE.

Backaches of Women

are wearying beyond description and they indicate real trouble somewhere.

Efforts to bear the dull pain are heroic, but they do not overcome it and the backaches continue until the cause is removed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetble Compound

does this more certainly than any other medicine. It has been doing it for thirty years. It is a woman's medicine for woman's ills. It has done much for the health of American women. Read the grateful letters from women constantly appearing in this paper.

ALABASTINE Is a durable and natural coating for walls and ceilings, made ready for use by mixing with cold water. It is a cement that goes through a process of setting, hardens with age, and can be coated and recoated without washing off its old coats before renewing. Alabastine is made in white and fourteen beautiful tints. It is put up in five-pound packages in dry form, with complete directions on every package.

ALABASTINE Should not be confounded with kalsomines, as it is entirely different from all the various kalsomines on the market, being durable and not stuck on the wall with glue. Alabastine customers should avoid getting cheap kalsomines under different names, by insisting on having the goods in packages properly labeled. They should reject all imitations. There is nothing "just as good."

ALABASTINE

Prevents much sickness, particularly throat and lung difficulties, attributable to unsanitary coatings on walls. It has been recommended in a paper published by the Michigan State Board of Health on account of its sanitary features; which paper strongly condemned kalsomines. Alabastine can be used on either plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas, and any one can brush it on. It admits of radical changes from wall paper decorations, thus securing at reasonable expense the latest and best effects. Alabastine is manufactured by the

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO

DELANO DIARY

--A couple Imigrant trains went west over the Great Northern.

--Mrs. J. D. Young says Phil Martin is good Samaritan, at Young's farm this week.

—Roads are a little muddy in places, but uncommonty good for the season of the year.

—A few days more like we're having and the seeders will be heard in the land once again.

—The McKinley bridge has been repaired and Mr. Sproul says it is good for several years yet.

—Base ball season have nearly arrived some of the young men enjoying a "catch" last night.

-Numerous cases of Grippe in its various farms have kept many of our citszens indoors this week.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursay and Fri. 11tf.

—The High School boys under the lead of Principal Carelton are arranging for a gymnasium in the school building. A step in the righ derection.

—Read "From California," by Hon. B. F. Christlieb, in another column. How he would enjoy our fine spring weather, if he was at home, at Long Lake.

—Spring must be coming. Yesterday Muckenhirn's who were going after a load of manure from Jones' barn broke through the ice on the river, with an empty wagon.

—Johnson Bros are handeling the, Buffalo Flour in exchange for wheat in the old Roosen opera house opposite the Round Elevator. And will handle Brand & Shorts for the convience of their patrons.

—Delano will, in near future, most likely have a hundred barrel flour mill, located on the track, and be prepared to manufacture all the wheat that can be got here, into flour and feed. That's business. One business helps many others.

—The series of meetings that were held for a couple of weeks in the M. E. church closed last night, and Rev. Cunningham returned home to Breckinridge. Rev. C. is a very effective worker, as the interest in the meetings and the results show. Quite a number have started to lead better lives. May the Lord help them.

—Quite a large and enthusiatic meeting was held at the City Hall, Monday, at 2 p. m. to talk over the prospects of building a new flour mill. It seems to be the opinion of Johnson Bros., that the best paying mill and the one to best satisfy the community would be a 100 barrel mill, which could buy all the wheat that comes to this market, grind and take care of it, and have brand and shorts to meet the local demand. They would prefer a new location nearer the R. R. for convenience in shipping. Most of those present seemed to think that such a mill would be what would please them. A vote to get the expression of the people was to the effect that Johnson Bros. go on and build such a mill.

From present indications Delano will have one of the best 100 barrel mills in the country in time to take care of the wheat crop this fall. The unanimity with which the large number of farmers and others present fell in with Messrs Johnson's propositions speaks very highly of the esteem in which they are held by those who have lived by them, and transacted business with them for years.

MAPLE PLAIN.

The crows and blue jays have called up spring. But it does not come very fast for some reason. Perhaps it's waiting for McKinley's prosperity to fully develop.

Maple Plain now has two Doctors, ready and equipped for business.

Our town meeting was not largely represented this spring. Every voter in the town should have been there and seen to the voting of money, etc. When next fall's election comes around about every one of these absentees will be at the polls saving I must represent my party and stand by it; or it may go down. Oh! what a calamity that would be. The country would be lost. But an annual town meeting is of no importance.

Most of us have read the five books of Moses, but lately a fellow comes out with two more, 6th and 7th books of Moses, do not know where he got them, perhaps dug them up on some mountain, same as Jo Smith dug up the book of Mormons. I do not expect we are in posession of all the writings of Moses, but whether these are genuine this fellow advertises or not. I have my doubts. Hardly think he will make a success of his advertisement—for the Porto Rican Bill is ahead of him.

It would seem that in many instances injustice is being dealt out in large quanities while justice comes in small doses.

ROCKFORD.

The new or re-established mail route between Delano and Rockford does not seem to please the Eagle man. The mail route was not established to particularly benefit Delano, Rockford or any other town or village, or contractor, or mail carrier; but for the public good. On the Rockford, Hanover, St. Michaels route, the mail leaves Rockford at 6 o'clock, a. m. and arrives at St. Michaels Station in time to connect with the midday trains on the G. N. R. R. going east and west. The mail arrives at 2:30 p. m.; the Delano mail leaves Rockford at 2:45 p. m., in time to connect with the evening train on the G. N. R. R. going east and west, and leaves Delano so as to connect with the evening trains on the Soo R. R. going east and west. On Thursdays the Eagle, Herald, Tribune and other west side county papers can be sent to subscribers in the east and north part of the county at least one day and often two days ahead of what has been the time. Now if the Eagle man will publish, what he thinks will be an improvement on the present schedule of runing time on the two mail routes; and would accommodate the public without any regard to the wishes or wants of any one particular village the change to his perfect schedule can be made very readily and easily; and no doubt everybody will be satisfied.

There does not seem to be the amount of business done in the village as usual. It may be on account of no snow or bad travelling. But there seems to be something deeper than bad roads. Last fall several farmers partially made arrangements to build this spring. At least a dozen in this town and Greenwood have given it up, as one farmer said last week: "I will live in a log house ten years longer before I will pay double price for lumber and other building material." Two years ago a bill of lumber and other building material was put in at $265, today the same bill cost $405. No I will wait awhile, while farm products do not sell for quite as much as they did two years ago what is wanted on the farm costs about 40 per cent more. This may be prosperity for the manufacturer, the merchant the banker and trader; but the laborer, the mechanic and the farmer can't see it in that light when looking closely at their own affairs. The Dingley tariff overdid the thing in that $2 duty on pine lumber: not a cent paid into the national treasury, but countless millions into the pockets of lumber gods. The ballot boxes in the Northwest next November will not be made of white pine.

The use or sale of intoxicating liquors is one of the live questions of today, and will be for sometime in the future. After many and repeated trials during the present fifty years to prohibit the sale, the evil is still with us, and has to be looked squarely in the face, and the question will be shall we still try to prohibit, or try to regulate. No license, is not prohibition here by a long way. The persons engaged in selling whiskey and beer and other intoxicants are the most earnest opponents of license, and have been for years; they work with the prohibs and the W. C. T. U. for a week or ten days before the annual election, then sell to anybody and everybody, minors and drunkards, old and young, night and day and Sunday, and there is no law to regulate them by voting and working against license they can put the profit into their own pockets, instead of paying a part into the village treasury and the rabid prohibitionist thinks that he has fulfilled his whole duty to the public, when he has voted no on the license question and shuts his eyes to all that has been done in that line until the next election.

From California.

(By Hon. B. F. Christlieb).

Mr. Editor: In your issue of Jan. 12 you remark that I do not brag on any fine weather in California, my reply to that suggestion is, that fine weather is such a common place matter here that people do not think of it only as a matter of commensuration when they learn that Eastern people are suffering from severe weather and blizzards in their respective localities, when the weather here at the same time is warm and balmy as spring or summer; or when they learn that Minnesota is on its good behavior, furnishing its most delightful weather; then we think of our fine weather as a comparison of the weather in the two localities, but in the matter of weather I think that Minnesota is one of the most erratic places on the continent, runing to extremes either way, pleasent or extremely severe.

It may be added however that the inhabitants of Southern California would prefer to have less fine weather and more of a variety especially of kinds that contain more moisture than the fine weather of Southern California. In my last communication to the GAZETTE about June 1898, I alluded to the shortage of rainfall and would now state that the two years between Sept. 1, 1897, and Sept. 1, 1899 were very dry years in Southern California. The supply of feed for animals was short and in order to save them from starving many animals were sold and slaughtered, and herds were driven off to distant localities for pasturage. During the season of 1898 and 1999 the rainfall was more abundant in Northern and Centeral California but little of that rainfall reached Southern California. The latter locality having desert characteristics, against which its inhabitants are at last learning that they will have to make provisions.

Fruit growing however has been a fair success during these dry years through the irrigation facalities already provided and increased as it became apparent that there was a protracted droth in the country. The people of Southern California are now learning that they cannot depend on the skies for moisture to raise crops but must avail themselves of the great subterian flow of water existing beneath their deserts and mountains, this great supply of water being accumulated from the great rain and snow falls deposited on the numerous high and extensive mountain rainges of California and being absorbed by these masses of earth forms subteranean streams, and in Southern California this subteranean supply can be reached at the depth ranging from 100 to 1000 feet.

The season beginning with Sept. 1, 1899 has been much more promising in an abundant rainfall. The rainfall since Sept. 1st, has not been abundant but is distributing itself in quanities and intervals that has caused the crops to grow nicely and continue to do so. So the people are hopeful. Fruit growing is now a success here, but people attempt to raise feed on tracts where there is no irrigating facilities depending on rain to grow the crops; but if the rain fails to come, the crop "ausgespielt". Regular farmers, grain and feed growers, locate themselves on what they call "wet lands" which contain moisture for a time and with the addition of wells, windmills water being found at no great depth, they manage to raise good crops of feed for animals.

Mr. Editor I will only add a few words more to state that the City of Los Angeles in spite of drowths, is a growing city. Capital is coming here and is building fine business blocks and residences. The business blocks are not sky scrapers. Large spaces of what was formerly rancher lands are being built up with fine residences. It would seem that people are coming here for climate and these new residences which are tastily built and provided with lawns and water, trees and sidewalks, seem too find immediate purchasers. There is probably an effort made to keep out undesirable inhabitants. The buildings are completed previous to being sold, being disposed of much like merchandise over a counter.

The mining industries still exist here with a greater amount of capital invested than ever. The Petroleum oil industry is becoming very extensive throughout California. Of Los Angeles and its prospects and its industries, I may have more to say later, especially the petrolium which is developing to such an extent that California can be regarded as one of the large oil producing states

St. Paul Dispatch: It remained for Carl Schurz to make the most original and unique proposition upon which to call the scattered factions of democracy together and unite them in common cause against the republicans. The passage of the financial bill, says Mr. Schurz, insures the safety in perpetuity of the gold standard, and even the election of Bryan could not endanger it. Threfore, argues the great refugee, the thing for all democrats to do is to get together and support the nominee of the democratic convention, even though the nominee be the arch enemy of the gold standard and the retained attorney of the silver cause.

MANILA editors are feeling their Otis.

A FEW years ago the g. o. p. in Minnesota succeeded in having many voters cast a ballot in favor of disfranchising themselves. Now they are trying to make them believe they should pay a tariff on sugar and tabacco from Puerto Rico, in order to raise money to pay the favored sons appointed to hold office in that island.

NOW THAT the repnblicans claim that they have settled the gold standard question past all possible antangonists, for at least a few years, the gold bug democrats, as is pointed out by Carl Schurz, can have nothing more to do than to join with the Bryan Democrats in electing to the offices of the country men in sympathy with democratic principles.

THE hand writing on the wall seems to read that McKinley, Morris and others who are "Republicans," when they go to Washington, and "Republicans" when they come back again, are growing rathertire some to the rank and file of the g. o. p. of Lincoln, who still have some respect for the Constitution of the United States of America and who are Americans all the time. It looks as if the administration succeeds in nominating itself for another term, it would hardly be able to get re-elected next November. There's something wrong in the g. o. p. and it must be purified or perish.

REPUBLICAN statesmen are having a terrible time explaining, and trying to pull the wool over the eyes of their constituents, while they vote for a tariff on goods from one part of the land over which floats the stars and stripes, to another part under the same emblem. Even Page Morris is credited with trying to make the Duluth folks believe they didn't know so much about such matters as he did, and when they were wiser grown they would applaud his vote. Hasn't this country had a constitution longer than it has had Page Morris? And isn't the constitution about as wise and as up to date as is the Duluth Congressman? and can't every schoolboy read for himself what was intended by the founders of our nation? was it ever intended that we holst our flag where our Constitution couldn't be lived up to? Does any one believe it was ever intended to levy tariff between our states or territories; or between any peoples living under the protection of our starry banner? Isn't one man in America or any of its country as good as any other live man? Page Morris will have to grow to be as old as the constitution before he can make the people of the Sixth Congressional District of Minneasota believe it is to their interests or to the interests of the United States to establish any such precident as levying tariff on goods between the peoples living in different parts of the United States. And if Porto Rico is not a part of our country Page had better let the Porto Ricans levy their own tariffs, the same as other foreigners do.

THOSE ignorant constituents of Page Morris, at Duluth, ought to vote for Hon. C. A. Towne. His politics are plainer, and more easily understood.

WHAT is the use of expanding just now if it requires an army of 60,000 or 70,000 thousand men and a navy to chase the people around in the Philippines and to keep their president at home; and a tariff for our citizens to pay on products from Puerto Rico to pay officers sent out to govern the country. Wouldn't coming generations thank us more for a good, peaceful country with its debts paid than for what we are getting them?

A Long While Yet.

Yes, there is some fighting in the Philippines yet, guerillo warfare exclusively. But don't be in a hurry. Make a little allowance for the difficulty of the case. The aborigines of the Louisiana purchase were not suppressed in a year or two. In fact, from the time that Jefferson made that famous trade with Napoleon until "Old Bug" killed his last American soldier at Leech Lake, nineteen months ago, ninety-five years elapsed. Unless you are a Democart you will not get excited because a war that was begun Febuary 4, 1899, is not finished up yet.

Are we, then, to expect ninety three years and ten months more of war in the Philippines? What an encouraging outlook for those who grow rich while others hunt for Filipinos. Posterity deserves a likelier heritage.

Page Morris Explains.

In explaining his vote on the Puerto Rician tariff bill, to his constituents at Duluth, Congressman Page Morris, according to the Anoka Herald said:

"Another objection was that this bill was prompted by, and is in the interest of the sugar and tobacco trusts. It would seem that the smallest acquaintance with the facts should show the utter groundlessness of this assertion. The business of the sugar trusts is the refining of sugar, and its raw material is raw sugar. The business of the tobacco trust is the manufacturing of chewing tobacco, cigars and cigaretes, and its raw material is leaf tobacco. The sugar trust has to get most of its raw material from outside the United States, only about one-tenth of what they refine being produced in the United Stated. It must then be to the interest of both of these trusts to have both of these raw materials come into the United States free of duty. So far as I have been able to ascertain the facts, the sugar trust and the tobacco trust have been moving heaven and earth to have no duties at all, and the beet sugar interest, represented by Mr Oxnard, has been equally diligent in trying to have a full Dingley rate retained on sugar. From the best information attainable it appears that there is now held in Puerto Rico, waiting the action of congress in this matter, about 3,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and about 15,000 tons of sugar. Most of this tobacco and sugar has passed out of the hands of the producers and is now held by speculators or by these trusts. At 15 per cent of the Dingley rate this tobacco and sugar, when brought to this country, would have to pay duties amounting to between $240,000 and $250,000. If no duty is charged it will pay nothing. So that under the bill as it is passed, the people of Puerto Rico would get nothing, and these speculators and trusts would have to pay it, while under free trade the people of Puerto Rico would get nothing and these speculators and trusts would be released from having to pay this large amount. In other words, the removing of the fifteen per cent Dingley rate would make a present to these speculators and trusts of nearly $250,000, and would deprive the people of Puerto Rico of that amount of revenue."

If the trusts as Mr. Morris says, are favorable to no tariff on raw material for manufacturing sugar and tobacco products, it is because they can be brought from Puerto Rico cheaper than they can be produced in this country. If that is a fact, why not let the millions of the United States have the little advantage to be derived from difference in price, and at the same time pay the Puerto Rician for his labor and products. If, as the Congressman says, the trusts would have to pay $240,000 or $250,000 tariff now on what thes have on hand, this is for but one year, while the law would hang on for years, most likely. Besides does Mr. Morris think the sugar and tobacco trusts would fail to tax up the thousands of dollars paid out for tariff, to the consumers of their manufactured goods?

Minnesota people have learned by experience who pays the tariff; even the $2 on lumber, of which the government gets little if any bennefit.

THE Democratic National convention at Kansas City, promises to be a notable meeting. Thousands of admirers of Bryan and Bryanism will attend; and the inspiration received there will permeate every nook and corner of our country, until the whole is with the leven of good, safe government, and men will rise and vote their honest beliefs and once more place the government under the guidance and direction of the Constitution of our nation.

In view of the high rates for money prevailing it is evident that AN INFLATION OF GOOD MONEY IS BADLY NEEDED BY THE COUNTRY. There is little if any danger that the banks will issue MORE MONEY THAN IS NEEDED.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Explanation Wanted

Carlton County Vidette: The Republicans say that the sugar and tobacco trusts will pay the Porto Rico duties. How's that? We thought they told us that it was the foreigner who paid the tariff taxes a few years ago.—Duluth Herald.

Of Course He Will

By Wire From Kansas City, March 28.

W. J. Bryan may be required by the Nebraska delegation to attend the national convention in July. A delegation from Nebraska that has just selected elaborate quarters at the Coates House of Nebraska Democrats discussed the appropriateness of his coming. M. C. Harrington, of North Platte, is quoted as saying: "This idea about the candidate for president staying at home is old fogyism."

As a result of an informal talk, the concencus of the delegation's opinion was that Mr Bryan ought to be notified as soon as he is nominated and take a train for Kansas City immediately, making an adress before the convention that would inaugurate the campaign.—Minneapolis Tribune.

War Maniacs.

Some of our Canadian and English subscribers have written us more or less abusive letters because we have denounced the course pursued in South Africa by the British government inspired by Cecil Rhodes. We never had any doubt that whenever the English government wanted to go to war and spill the blood of its people in distant countries for the benefit of its privileged classes that a host of foolish jingoes, who could expect no benefit from victory, would rush up Splon Kop or some other kop and fling their lives away in a cause they do not understand. Some people think that when their country undertakes a war, whether right or wrong, it is the duty of all to turn in and help. If it be a defensive war that may be true but if it be an aggressive war or a war for invasion that is absolutely not true. If it were true then all an administration would have to do to perpetuate itself in power would be to precipitate a war, and, whether right or wrong, citizens would be bound to aid the war and when it was successful reward the administration by making its tenure of office permanent, as in the case of Julius Caesar and Bonaparte.

It is wonderful how men are influenced against their own interests. Like the swine in the parable they precipitate themselves over the precipice to destruction whenever the devils of war enter them. Led by falsehood and such phantoms as glory and gain (which never materialize except for a few), the multitude when possessed, is enraged with all who may seek to check its mad rush and would fain tear such in pieces. They assail all those who plead for justice as traitors, sentimentalists, visionaries and liars and at the same time paint the enemy as black and detestible as possible. The Anglo-Celtic Saxon nations—England and the United States—are in such a frame of mind at this time. Both have unjustly sought to suppress independent republicans. Both are proposing for the people of such republics a colonial system of government wherein the people of the former republics are to have little or no voice. Englishmen and Americans can find arguments enough to justify their courses at present. Whatever is injurious to the good name and fame of Boer or Philippino doubtless finds no obstacle in presscensor, while scarcely anything to the credit of either Boer or Philippino ever gets by the censor to the world beyond. Of corrse the British and American peoples must be fed of such stuff as to keep them in a frame of mind favorable to the wars until theirs close. But whatever blood enthusiasts and war maniacs may say and whatever the English and American people may now believe, the truth of history will be disgraceful both to christian (?) England and christian (?) America in their war struggles with little peoples, who longed to be free and independent.—Broad Axe.

TEN YEARS OF THIRST.

But in Texas a Man Must Go to Prison If He Steals a Horse, Even When Drunk.

"We had a judge down in my part of the state," said Congressman Lanham, of Texas, who was on the bench in his district for many years, "who was fond of his toddy, but not excessively so. On one occasion he passed sentence on a prisoner who had been convicted of horse stealing. It appeared in the testimony that the man was drunk when he committed the act, but that doesn't excuse a man for stealing horses—not in Texas. Sometimes men kill in Texas when they are drunk, and occasionally go free, but when a man steals a horse in our state he nearly always gets a penitentiary sentence. In the case of which I speak the court said to the prisoner in dealing out the penalty:

"'I knew your father, and a most estimable man he was, but he had one failing. He loved liquor, and finally it got the better of him and he lost all his property and his friends. It appears that your love for liquor is the cause of your being here. It is my painful duty to sentence you to ten years in the state penitentiary. Ten long years of labor for stealing a horse, and the testimony shows he wasn't anything extra, either. But you stole him. Ten years at labor in a prison is a long time. I wish there were some extenuating circumstances that would warrant me in reducing the time, but there are none. You get ten years.'

"During the delivery of the sentence, which was as solemn as if it had been one for death, the courtroom was painfully still. The judge motioned to the sheriff to take charge of the prisoner. Then, whether it was a new thought or whether it was one the judge had had in mind all the while I don't know, but he turned to the prisoner as he was being taken back and said: 'Ten long years, and in all that time not a drop of liquor will you get.'

"I have always thought the judge believed the long thirst which awaited the prisoner was the hardest part of the sentence."

PHENOMENA OF MIND.

The Society of Psychical Research to Devote a Liberal Sum to the Purpose of Investigations.

An appeal to the public for $50,000 will shortly be made by the Society for Psychical Research, which purposes to devote the money to investigating the phenomena of hallucinations, coincidences, apparitions, automatisms, etc. Dr. James H. Hyslop, professor of logic at Columbia university, who is deeply interested in the success of this appeal, explains that thorough scientific investigation of these phenomena was calculated to modify the whole theory of insanity, and that the community at large would consequently be benefited.

"Insane asylums," he said, "are full of interesting cases. If hallucinations, apparitions, automatisms, dowsings, and things of this sort were studied in this country with as much care as Pierre Janet has bestowed upon them in France there would be a chance of discovering a cure for certain forms of insanity. It would not apply to acute mania, or melancholia, or epileptic insanity, but it would apply to some forms of mental insanity which are based upon hallucinations. Many persons are put in asylums who in reality are sane and merely have physical peculiarities.

"If we could get coincidental phenomena in connection with the brain that would suggest hallucinations it would modify the whole theory of insanity.

"If insanity lies on the borderland of any stage of future existence we ought not to treat it from the materialistic point of view. It is worth while ransacking the insane asylums to establish the truth of this alone."

ANOTHER FASTER.

A Thin Man at New York Follows the Example Set by Milton Rathbun, the Fat Man.

Emulating the example of Milton Rathbun, who has fasted for 26 days and expects it to keep it up for 14 more, Frank Foster, an Elizabeth (N. J.) telegraph operator, has not eaten for four days. He stopped eating and cigarette smoking at the same time, and after fasting for four days concluded it was easy to go without food, so announced his determination to go for a record.

Foster says that eating is a habit, and that once one gets away from feeling the necessity of eating the rest is easy. He is of slight build and frame. He says that if the fast causes him to lose flesh he will be a good exhibit for a dime museum when he gets through. He is determined to stick to his resolution, however.

In the meantime, Mr. Rathbun announces that he has no appetite, and feels in good health. He says that he has suffered no inconvenience since he decided to fast, except a slight loss of flesh. When he started, 26 days ago, he weighed 207 pounds; now he weighs 173 pounds, a loss of 34 pounds.

Not Appreciated.

An Indiana paper, in reply to a correspondent, says it "cannot spare space to print 'The Vampire.'" This, says the Chicago Times-Herald, is probably the bitterest of all the doses that Kipling's admirers have been called on to swallow.

Music as an Intermediary.

The Denver Post says that eight brass bands played at the funeral of a Chinaman in New York to frighten the devil away and give the deceased a chance to make the run to the celestial city.

How Western Union Won

THE Dugan domicile is 50 yards from the end of the railroad bridge, but the Dugan front yard straggles all the way down the hillside to the mud flats, where the ducks and the little Dugans wade and sun themselves all the summer time. The railroad bridge, which is a viaduct more than a mile long, carries the track across the valley far above the shining water, and often the high arches in the distance are hidden from the little Dugans by the blue smoke that drifts thinly down the valley from the mills where Mr. Dugan works. In the mornings the little Dugans carry his dinner-pail as far as the end of the bridge, which gives him a short cut to the mills, although he defies the railway company's rules when he resorts to it.

At the end of the bridge Dugan always sends his children back to the cabin, for the bank goes down in very precipitous fashion to the river bed from the high abutments. But Johnny Dugan, the eldest boy, often ventures on the bridge to throw stones at the blue glass insulators on the last telegraph pole—the top of that pole is almost on a level with the track on the bridge, and its base is 80 feet below, close by the stone abutment. Johnny feels brave to stand where he can glance down the tall white pole to where the Dugan ducks are paddling in the puddles and his own small tracks are visible in the adjacent mud.

Johnny Dugan and the Barry boys had spent many pleasant hours, one April day, throwing stones at the insulators, when they were caught in the act by big Ed Conlin, the telegraph company's lineman, the man of wonderful spurs and leg-straps. No doubt they would have noticed his approach and escaped recognition, as usual, had they not been lost in admiration of Jimmy Barry, who had at last succeeded in breaking one of the insulators. Ed Conlin promptly called on Mrs. Barry, who "blarneyed" him wisely, and then on Mrs. Dugan, who happened to be in an irate mood, and so gave him the rough side of her tongue and ordered him off the place. Then Ed vowed that if he ever found Johnny Dugan on the bridge he would throw him into the Dugan duckpond; after which nothing but enmity could rule between the Dugans and Western Union. And rule it did—until one May morning after a heavy rain.

The rain had made the gully along the track a roaring torrent of muddy water. The river itself, from previous freshets, was high over the flats. And Johnny was on the end of the bridge, pelting the insulators and keeping an eye on all roads by which any sectionhand or lineman might approach.

Such was the situation when something went wrong with the telegraph pole that had suffered so many assaults. It suddenly fell toward the bridge, so that the top red cross-arm was close to the ends of the ties. There the wires held it. Johnny peered down and made out that the earth had been washed away from the base of the pole by the stream from the ditch. Two of the wires had broken under the strain.

"Hi, kids!" cried Johnny to his mates, who were hunting for car-seals among the cinders. "We can get the glasses!"

The others came up to inspect, but the humming wire and the great white pole that extended from their feet to the flat below awed them. Johnny alone was undaunted; greed possessed him wholly as soon as he saw that the top row of insulators were loose and free of wire.

"Huh, you kids afraid!" cried he. "I'm going to get the whole row."

Johnny secured a short board and carefully laid it from the bridge to the cross arm of the telegraph pole. He tried his weight on the board and then slid out until he could grasp the pole with his legs and arms. Then he reached for the glass insulators.

"Hi, Johnny, the sectionmen are coming!" sang out Jimmy Barry.

As Johnny made a hasty swing around the pole to get back to the bridge, his fright at being discovered vanished in great terror, for the telegraph pole lurched, another wire snapped, and the big stick swung out until it hung at an angle of 60 degrees toward the river, with Johnny clinging desperately to the cross-arm, 80 feet from the swirling brown water and 20 feet from his frightened companions on the bridge. As the pole stopped careening, Johnny gave one frightened glance downward and then turned a white, freckled face toward the bridge.

"Run, fellers!" he shouted, weakly, and up the track the trio flew.

Ed Conlin and one of the sectionmen were coming down the track, looking for the cause of Western Union's trouble, and when he saw the boys hurrying away, he suspected them.

"Get out!" he shouted. "If I catch you here again, I'll—" But just then he saw Johnny Dugan far out on the tremulous pole.

"How'd he get there?" said the staring sectionman.

Big Ed Conlin did not stop to explain. In three bounds he reached the bridge, looked down, and saw the treacherous water swirling around the base of the pole. How long would it remain upright?

"Tell him to slide down," said the sectionman.

"He's too little. The water might catch him below and carry him away," said Ed Conlin. "Hang on, sonny! Don't be scared!"

Then he rushed through the Dugan cabbage-patch to the well and cut the rope from the spindle, and got back to the bridge before the Barry boys had half aroused the mothers with their clamors.

Out on the bridge, the lineman made a noose and prepared to cast it over the pole. But he thought better of it. "No, can't do that," he said, briefly. "We could never swing that pole shoreward or keep the lad from being knocked off if she hit the bridge."

"That's so," said the sectionman, staring at Johnny Dugan's red stockings. "She'd break the rotten rope snip-snap."

He stared down at the yellow tide of the river, and just then Mrs. Dugan's wails and the children's chorus came faintly down the track.

"I'm going to climb the pole," said Ed Conlin, thinking of how Dugan would be coming across the bridge that evening looking for Johnny and the others. "I'm going to climb it if the whole concern goes into the river. You come down the bank and catch him if he falls near shore."

Over the bank went Ed Conlin and the sectionman, alongside of Burns, the policeman, who had run across lots to see what the matter was. They scrambled down the soft hillside close to the stone abutment, and out through the water at the base of the pole. There Ed Conlin tightened the cumbrous straps around his legs and glanced up at Johnny Dugan, silent as a squirrel on his lofty perch, with his jacket blowing out like a woful signal of distress.

"Ed, lad," said the section-man, "ye'll never get ashore again in that current with them iron togs on ye, if it falls, and I think it will."

"With the rope's help, Dugan's boy may," said the lineman. Then Ed sunk his spurs into the white, soft wood and went up, carrying the well-rope with him, while Burns and the sectionman waited nervously and watched the debris drift by under the stone arches. Up went the lineman with exasperating deliberation, stopping occasionally to adjust the rope and glance downward.

"He's a cool one," said the sectionman to the policeman.

"Let's hold the pole up for all we are worth," replied Burns.

Then they braced themselves against the trembling stick, thinking how futile would be their efforts when its 80 odd feet crashed over and threw Johnny Dugan and the lineman half-way out to the first stone pier of the bridge.

After awhile Johnny felt the steady movement of the spurs, and the men below heard his quaver of fear and Ed Conlin's deep voice telling him not to mind. The pole was pressing against their bruised shoulders, and they struggled mightily against it, and at last its base seemed to be pushing from them through the oozing mud. Then the sectionman shouted to Ed Conlin to slide.

"He'll never slide without Dugan's boy," said Burns. "I know Conlin."

The two heard a cry, and Mrs. Dugan came scrambling down the bank. "Johnny, Johnny, my darlin'!" she was gasping, and the sectionman, glacing up, saw Johnny sliding swiftly down the pole, with rope under his arms, while the lineman, seated on the cross-arms, was paying out the rope. As Johnny neared the waiting arms, Ed Conlin dropped the rope and clasped the slender pole, for the tall shaft had now swung with his weight toward the water and was coming slowly down.

The sectionman grasped Johnny Dugan and threw him far up among the muddy bushes. Then he darted back from the base of the pole, which was tearing up a great hole in the soft bank. It came heavily down with a mighty splash on the sullen water, with the lineman clinging like a cat half-way up its white sides; and then, while all except the butt was buried in the yellow flood, the sectionman dived out along the side with the rope in his hands.

"Cracky!" said the policeman. "Is he ever coming up?"

But out of the troubled water Ed Conlin's steel-clad boots rose to view, and the sectionman was after them in frantic haste. He had the rope around the lineman in a minute, and by the time the pole was moving toward its rush under the arch, Ed Conlin himself, covered with mud, and his face bleeding from numberless scratches, was sitting weakly among the alder-bushes, with the sectionman cutting the straps from his ankles.

"Well wouldn't that beat ye!" said the policeman, with enthusiasm.

"Yes," said Ed Conlin, "but keep the Dugan boys off the bridge after this!"—Charles Tenney Jackson, in Youth's Companion.

The new woman has taken another step forward. One of the fair sex has been appointed assignee of a bank at Hinsdale, N. H.

A New York automobile, having run down an elevator shaft in that city, may lead to an ordinance prohibiting them from climbing smokestacks and telegraph poles.

It is estimated that 50,000 men will go to Cape Nome this year, at an expense of $500 each. The expenditure of $25,000,000 on an arctic sea beach is one of the curiosities of modern life.

Emigration to the United States from Germany was almost twice as large during February of this year as it was during the same month last year. The number in February of this year was 7,221, while last year it was 4,679.

A New Orleans man, who was left bankrupt at the end of the civil war, has just paid off his last creditor, and now at the age of 91 he says he is ready to die as the burden of debt has at last been removed. There are few such men in this world. Most of them seem to be trying to make someone else foot the bills.

Word comes from Berlin that Nansen is preparing a new expedition and expects to leave in two months' time. This may be regarded as a notification to those of us who have not read "Farthest North" that it may be well to hurry up in order to be ready to appreciate and enjoy "Still Farther North" when the explorer returns.

A cablegram from Athens says that the press and the government there propose doing all in their power to stop the ever increasing emigration of Grecian peasants to the United States. It is stated that entire villages are being depopulated, and many large districts are left uncultivated merely because the villagers and the farmers are coming to America.

The French automobile enthusiasts are great extremists. R. Merville, champion automobile cyclist of the world; E. Crom, a journalist, and E. Janne de Lamare, arrived in New York from Paris with two big automobiles. They intend to start for the Klondike and to make the last 800 miles of the trip on their automobiles. Their autos are propelled by gasoline.

Michael Connolly, who leaves the New York state penitentiary next September, after serving 20 years for highway robbery, will receive $8,000 by his father's will, provided that during the five years following his imprisonment he behaves like a good citizen. In case he does not become a good citizen the $8,000 is to go to the state. It was no fault of that father that his boy went astray!

The ordinance bureau of the United States navy is now experimenting with a new explosive called "marsite." This new explosive, which is said to have wonderful power, can only be exploded by the combined force of percussion and concussion. Now some one will invent an armor that will resist its force. Thus the fight has gone on for centuries between armor and armament, and so it will go on until the end of all things.

Following close upon the vigorous exploitation of the wonders and possibilities of liquid air comes the announcement that a Swiss scientist has discovered a process of separating it into its component parts in such a way as to produce pure oxygen on a large scale and at little cost. This would be an ideal solution of the fuel question. It looks a little as if these wonderful statements might be part of a scheme to boom a liquid air speculation.

A remarkable result of the coal famine prevailing in all the manufacturing districts of Europe appears in a dispatch from Hamburg that a steamship has arrived there from Newport News, Va., with a cargo of American coal, which is to be shipped to the districts of Bohemia and Saxony where the strikes still prevail. This condition may not last long, but it shows that in a time of emergency this country is not only the granary but the coalfield of the world.

In the Hawaiian islands, according to the latest reports, there are 21,616 Chinese. Of these 15 are doctors; merchants and traders number 822, including 3 women; 1,356 are clerks and salesmen, 18 of these women; of mechanics there are 220; mariners, 15 only; fishermen, 294; drivers and teamsters, 105. In the country, apart from Honolulu, there are 36 Chinese coffee planters, 98 ranches, 718 rice planters, 2 of them women; of farmers and agriculturists 1,278, and the laborers number 10,941. There are no Chinese lawyers.

Another terrible habit which is said to be even worse than the drinking of alcohol is becoming very common in eastern Prussia. A correspondent of one of the eastern papers in writing a letter relating to the matter says that this new habit is nothing more nor less than the drinking of ether. It is now sold in the saloons like any other liquor, four or five grammes to the glass, and in the town of Memel alone the amount sold last year was 8,500 quarts. The effect is said to be four times more powerful than that of an equal amount of alcohol.

There is an ominous and too little recognized fact in regard to the man in the moon. Strictly and slanglessly speaking, he is no longer in it. He has been supplanted—the old, old story—by a woman, and moon-gazers now grow rapturous over a fair profile of great and classical beauty. It seems to require special qualifications to see the lady and some scoffers even go so far as to say that you must first have one in your eye. But be that as it may, there remains for masculine minds the depressing fact that one more man has had to abdicate.

QUESTION IS SETTLED.

Republicans Agree Upon a Compromise in Porto Rico Legislation Dispute.

Washington, March 27.—At last the Porto Rican question is settled. The compromise is agreed upon, and the republicans are harmonious once more. All the conflicting interests have been adjusted. The legislation which will be agreed upon embraces 15 per cent. duty on all goods sent from the United States to Porto Rico, except foodstuffs and the necessities of life, which are free of duty; articles sent from Porto Rico to the United States, 15 per cent. duty; the full Dingley rates in Porto Rico against countries other than the United States; the limitation of the duty to the time when the island needs the money; and, finally, a complete system of local government to go into effect at once.

Practically speaking, the compromise is that suggested by the president. It takes the house bill as it finds it, with 15 per cent. of the Dingley rate, and leaves that rate of duty intact on all articles imported into the United States from Porto Rico. This, of course, includes tobacco and sugar, but in all such cases it amounts to giving Porto Rico a preference of 85 cents over any other country.

Washington, March 27.—Attorney Frederic D. Kenny Monday filed a petition for writs of habeas corpus and certiorari in the United States supreme court in a case which is expected to decide the constitutionality of the provisional court established by the military authorities of Porto Rico. The case is that of Ramon Baez, of that island, who is serving a term at hard labor on the charge of voting illegally at the municipal election held at Guayama on the 31st of last October. Baez's case is one of 32, but he is the only person actually undergoing punishment for the offense charged, sentence in the other cases having been stayed by agreement pending the appeal in the Baez case.

Various Municipalities in the State Cast Their Ballots for Mayors and Other Officials.

Des Moines, Ia., March 27.—The city election was unusually exciting and a heavy vote was cast. Returns at ten o'clock from 24 of the 29 precincts indicate the defeat of Mayor John MacVicar (rep.) by Jeremiah Hartenbower (citizens) by a majority of from 500 to 800.

Clinton, Ia., March 27.—McDaid (rep.), for mayor, carries Clinton by a thousand or more over Miller (dem.), and most of the republican city ticket is elected. The democrats will control the city council, as before.

New Hampton, Ia., March 27.—W. J. Springer (rep.) was elected mayor over W. G. Shaffer by 57 majority. The fight was purely local, both candidates being republicans.

Marshalltown, Ia., March 27.—Politics were not an issue in the municipal election. H. J. Benson, G. W. Harris and R. McGuire were reelected councilmen. I. S. Finkle, the present incumbent in the First ward, was defeated by I. T. Kirby. The tax proposition for a public park was defeated.

Grinnell, Ia., March 27.—The municipal election was for aldermen, and two democrats and two republicans were chosen. The council stands five republicans and three democrats.

Burlington, Ia., March 27. — The democrats elected Marquarde mayor over Carter (rep.) and also the city ticket. The republicans probably have a majority of city council.

Sioux City, Ia., March 27.—A. H. Burton (rep.) defeated Quick (dem.) for mayor by about 100 majority. But four democrats were elected on the entire city ticket.

Cuban Provinces Consolidated.

Washington March 26.—Secretary Root said Saturday that while he was in Havana arrangements were made for the consolidation of the department of the province of Havana and Pinar del Rio, commanded by Brig. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, and the department of Havana, commanded by Brig. Gen. Ludlow, into one department under command of Gen. Lee, to be known probably as the department of Havana and Pinar del Rio. The department commanded by Gen. Ludlow was practically confined to the city of Havana, and is within the limits of the province of Havana, commanded by Gen. Lee.

No Cause for Alarm.

San Francisco, March 26.—The board of trade and other commercial organizations of this city propose to call a meeting for the purpose of refuting sensational reports regarding the bubonic plague which, it is asserted, have injuriously affected business interests. There is no plague scare here, and, despite the opinion expressed by the board of health, the statement is positively made that not a single case of that disease has been discovered in Chinatown.

Bank Robbed of $3,000.

Hoopeston, Ill., March 26.—Pate's bank, owned and operated by Alexander Pate, of Wellington, five miles north of this city, was entered by burglars at an early hour Saturday morning, the safe blown open and $3,000 in cash, notes and other valuable papers taken. The robbers secured entrance to the bank by prying open the side door to Pate's large general store, in which the bank is located.

Assessment Increased.

Des Moines, Ia., March 24.—The state executive council fixed the railway assessment at $46,000,000, which is an increase of $1,500,000 over last year. The assessment on the old roads was reduced about $150,000, and the new roads were assessed at about $1,650,000. The Chicago & Northwestern assessment was raised $90,000, while the Rock Island and Burlington assessments were reduced $250,000 each.

Academy Burned.

Stoughton, Wis., March 26.—The Stoughton academy was totally destroyed by fire Sunday. The institution was run under the auspices of the Norwegian Lutheran synod and was attended by 112 students hailing from Iowa, Minnesota, Illinois and the Dakotas. The pecuniary loss is not heavy. The academy will probably be rebuilt.

BRITISH ENTER TRANSVAAL.

Occupy Territory 18 Miles North of Christiana—Gen. Woodgate Dead —Boers Recruiting Actively.

London, March 26.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Kimberley, dated Sunday, March 25, says: Prisoners brought in here report that a force of British cavalry has entered the Transvaal and penetrated to a point 18 miles north of Christiana. The British forces at Fourteen Streams are being strengthened. A movement northward is expected.

London, March 26.—At a late hour Saturday night the war office posted the following dispatch from Gen. Roberts, under date of Bloemfontein, March 24:

"Yesterday Lieut. Col. Crabbe, Capt. Trotter and Lieut. E. Lygon, of the Grenadier guards, and Lieut. Col. Codrington, of the Coldstream guards, rode eight or nine miles beyond their camp on the Modder river without escort except one trooper. They were fired upon by a party of Boers and Lieut. Lygon was killed and Lieut. Col. Crabbe, Lieut. Col. Codrington and Capt. Trotter were seriously wounded. The trooper also was wounded. One of the wounded officers held up a white handkerchief and the Boers came to their assistance and did all they possibly could, attending to their wounds. The Boers then conveyed the wounded to the nearest farmhouse, where they were taken care of."

London, March 26.—The total British losses, exclusive of the invalids sent home, are 16,418 in killed, wounded and missing. Advices received here announce the death in the Mooi hospital Friday of Gen. Sir Edward Woodgate, who was wounded in the engagement at Spion kop on January 24.

Another town in the British territory west of Kimberley has been taken by the Boers and many former rebels who had yielded to the British have again taken up arms for the republics. The town occupied is Papkuel and 400 burghers made up the force taking possession.

A Lorenzo Marques special says the Transvaal authorities are evidently recruiting actively, and large numbers of French, Dutch and Belgian volunteers are constantly passing through that place to join the Boer forces.

London, March 24.—The war office has issued the following from the general at Cape Town to the secretary of war:

Cape Town, March 23. — The following telegram has arrived from Nicholson, Buluwayo, March 16: "The following is from Plumer, Lobatsi, March 14: The Boers advanced from the south in considerable force this morning. They first advanced from Goodes Siding. After a sharp little engagement Lieut. Col. Bodle's advanced post was compelled to retreat. The retirement was excellently carried out to our main position. The casualties included Lieut. Chapman and a corporal, prisoners, and two missing, probably prisoners. Five troopers were wounded. Chapman's horse fell with him close to the enemy, who immediately surrounded him. The exact Boer casualties are unknown, but several were shot at short range. In the afternoon the Boers advanced further north and shelled our position from a ridge on our left. Our 12½ pounder replied, the artillery duel continuing until sunset. Lieut. A. J. Tyler has since died of wounds. One native was killed."

ON AN EQUALITY.

Secretary of Justice in Cuba Has Decided Upon Reform in Several Existing Laws.

Havana, March 27.—Senor Estevez, secretary of justice, has decided upon a reform of the laws relating to offenses against Protestant clergy, now regarded as more serious than offenses against laymen. He will inaugurate similar reforms in the laws applying to offenses against Catholic clergy, which have hitherto been considered more serious than those against Protestant clergy. His idea is to place all these offenses on the same footing. The law making the offenses of negroes more serious than those of white persons is to be modified, so as to put the races on an equality.

Mob Hangs Two Men.

Richmond, Va., March 26.—A mob which for 36 hours had surged around the little jail at Emporia, Greenesville county, Va., about noon Saturday secured the opportunity for which it thirsted, dragged two prisoners forth and hanged them to the same limb, filling the body of one with bullets as he hung writhing and gasping in the air. The two men were Walter Cotton, a negro, who on Thursday shot two officers who were attempting to arrest him for burglary, and a white man who aided Cotton in the robbery, but was not implicated in the murder.

Wages Advanced.

Philadelphia, March 26.—In accordance with their notice posted shortly after January 1, 1900, promising an advance to their employes, to take effect April 1, the Berwind-White Coal Mining company has notified all its miners of a general average advance of 20 per cent. The miners are now placed upon a basis of 60 cents per gross ton and all day labor increased accordingly. This advance will make the wages the highest paid during the last 30 years and in some instances the highest that have ever existed by nearly seven per cent.

Swept by Fire.

Milwaukee, March 27.—A special from Portage, Wis., says the business portion of the village of Kingston, Green Lake county, has been burned. Nine stores and dwellings were destroyed, four of which were owned by David Keeler. Other losses were William Lueptow, Gustave Marquardt, Edward Vinz, R. S. Williams and George Williams. Loss, $20,000.

Mine Accident Figures.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 27.—The annual report of James Roderick, chief of the state bureau of mines and mining, contains a chapter dealing with mine accidents and their causes. In the 30 years from 1870 to 1899, the report states, 9,575 lives were lost in and about the anthracite coal mines of Pennsylvania.

Naval Veterans Retire.

Washington, March 27.—President McKinley will approve this week the application for retirement made by Rear Admiral J. F. Day, president of the retiring board, and that officer will retire with the rank or senior rear admiral. Rear Admiral A. H. McCormick was retired Saturday.

President Signs It.

Washington, March 26.—The conference report on the Porto Rican relief bill was agreed to in the house Saturday—yeas, 135; nays, 87; present and not voting, 20. The Porto Rican Appropriation bill was signed by the president at 4:20 p. m. Saturday.

A TERRIBLE CRIME.

Colored Brute Kills Woman and Daughter Then Burns to Death Four Other Children.

Raleigh, N. C., March 23.—A negro, Tom Jones, commonly known in the country as "Preacher Jones," on Thursday morning murdered Ella Jones and her oldest daughter Ida, and then set fire to the beds in which lay the bodies of his victims and four sleeping children, ranging in years from a babe one month old to the largest boy who was not more than five. The crime was committed at Garners, a little town five miles east of here and the work was done with an ax. The murderer, according to the story of little seven-year-old Laura Jones, who escaped, with her younger sister, deliberately struck the mother four times and then made two cuts into the body of the oldest child. He then fired the house and it was completely destroyed. The body of Ella Jones and that of Ida, the 13-year-old child, were burned beyond recognition. The dead are: Ella Jones, the mother, aged 33; Ida Jones, 13 years old; Josie Jones, five years; Nancy Jones, three years; Eva Jones, two years; an unnamed baby one month old. The two girls who escaped were Laura Jones, seven years old, and Sid Jones four years.

CARNEGIE AND FRICK.

An Understanding Reached by Which Big Steel Company Will Be Reorganized—Suit Withdrawn.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 23.—The differences between H. C. Frick and Andrew Carnegie have been settled. This announcement was made officially by the Carnegie Steel company, limited. The parties interested have agreed upon a plan of reorganization, the new concern to be incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. The effect of the proposed reorganization will be to terminate all equity proceedings now pending. The stocks and bonds of the new corporation are to be taken by the present owners themselves, and not offered to the public, as once contemplated. Mr. Schwab will continue as the executive head of the new company.

It is learned from one in close touch with the Carnegie company that the new organization will be capitalized at $350,000,000. This cannot be definitely confirmed at this hour, but the authority is considered reliable. The same gentleman says Mr. Frick will remain in the new company in the same relative position he held just previous to the bringing of his suit.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Terrible Result of a Boiler Explosion in a Sawmill Near Muncie, Ind.

Muncie, Ind., March 24.—The James Nickum sawmill, six miles southwest of Muncie, was destroyed by a fearful explosion Friday evening. Three men are dead, one will die and three others were injured. The dead are Thomas Sullivan, Lon Van Buskirk and Marion Carey. Young Van Buskirk's head was blown off and his body terribly mutilated. Clifford Van Buskirk will die. The injured are James Dragstrim, shoulder crushed and arm broken; James McCreary, leg broken and injured internally; Will Green, head split open and leg broken. The explosion resulted from the water pump becoming broken when the boiler had on a full head of steam. The engineer and proprietor had just discovered the trouble and Nickum had gone to the blacksmith shop to get repairs. This saved his life, but the building he was in was buried in debris. The boiler split in three parts and went in as many directions from one to three hundred yards.

Erne Whips Gans.

New York, March 24.—Frank Erne, of Buffalo, successfully defended his title of light weight champion of the world against Joe Gans (colored), of Baltimore, before the Broadway Athletic club Friday night. Erne did most of the heavy fighting, displaying better judgment and more skill than his opponent. Gans received his punishment gamely until the twelfth round, when his left eye was started from its socket by a terrific right-hand swing from the Buffalo boy. Gans was helpless and there was no alternative for the referee but to award the decision to Erne.

Iowans Oppose Porto Rican Bill.

Des Moines, Ia., March 23. — Just before the adjournment of the lower house of the legislature at noon Thursday a resolution was introduced by Representative Kendall declaring "That the people of Iowa are unalterably opposed to the Porto Rico tariff bill passed by the lower house of congress." After considerable debate the resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote.

Want Reciprocity.

St. Johns, N. F., March 27.—Mr. Bond, the premier, will appeal to the country at the coming election on the question of reciprocity with the United States, advocating a renewal of the Bond-Blaine convention, negotiated some years ago by him, which provided for reciprocity between the two countries. Canada objected, thus preventing the convention taking effect.

Rebels Become Aggressive.

Manila, March 26.—The rebels in Gen. Young's district are becoming aggressive. The American battalion garrisoning the town of Namacpacan was attacked on four consecutive nights recently. Reenforcements are now arriving there. Gen. Young proposes to pursue the rebels aggressively before the rainy season sets in.

Fatal Explosion.

Lancaster, O., March 26.—The boiler at a stationary sawmill at the Boys' industrial school blew up Saturday afternoon, killing the proprietor, Mr. John Neubauer, who was also the blacksmith at the state farm. His three sons were badly injured by having bones broken and a son-in-law had a leg broken.

Demand an Increase.

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—The coal miners of the Springfield subdistrict held a lengthy meeting Monday night and decided to demand an increase of 20 per cent. in the wages paid for day laborers over the scale recently adopted by the miners and operators of the state at Springfield.

From Washington

How a Little Boy Was Saved.

Washington, D. C.—"When our boy was about 16 months old he broke out with a rash which was thought to be measles. In a few days he had a swelling on the left side of his neck and it was decided to be mumps. He was given medical attendance for about three weeks when the doctor said it was scrofula and ordered a salve. He wanted to lance the sore, but I would not let him, and continued giving him medicine for about four months, when the bunch broke in two places and became a running sore. Three doctors said it was scrofula, and each ordered a blood medicine. A neighbor told me of a case somewhat like our baby's which was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I decided to give it to my boy and in a short while his health improved and his neck healed so nicely that I stopped giving him the medicine. The sore broke out again, however, whereupon I again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and its persistent use has accomplished a complete cure." MRS. NETTIE CHASE, 47 K St., N. E.

One of Glen McDonough's Jokes.

In one of his farces Glen McDonough had written two or three lines to be spoken by a chorus girl. The lines were given to a green, heavy amateur, who looked well and would do. At the rehearsal the girl made her way to McDonough, who held the book, and said: "Mr. McDonough, I have a line in the first act and one in the third. Couldn't you write me one for the second act, too?" McDonough thought a minute, looked at the girl and said: "Yes; in the banquet scene you enter and say: 'Here is the ham.'" "Oh, do I bring the ham on with me?" "No, my dear; it is not a speech, it is a confession."—Chicago Chronicle.

Significant Signal.

"I was much amused," said Cawker to Cumso, "at what a returned Klondiker told me of the customs of the gold mines."

"Interesting and funny, were they?"

"He said that in his shanty six men slept together. They all lay in a row, like spoons in a case, facing one way, to keep warm. When one of them became tired of lying on one side he would call out 'Lawyer,' and they would all turn at once."

"Why did they use the word 'lawyer?'"

"That meant 'Lie on the other side.'"—Judge.

Delano,

WRIGHT COUNTY,

MINNESOTA.

An ideal Minnesota Town Only Twenty-eight Miles from Minneapolis.

Its Principal Industries and Local Business Men.

A Young City of Steady Growth and Future Promise.

The Make-up of its Population.

Twenty-eight miles out from Minneapolis on the Great Northern is situated the town of Delano, though which runs the picturesque Crow River. Its population numbers close to twelve hundred and is steadily increasing. It has a public school and an efficient staff of teachers. Its business departments consist of two large hotels, one bank, two lumber yards, two elevators, one first class restaurant, two flour mills, and other business houses. Its printing offices are its most commendable branches of business, one of them having a force of twenty-three hands who find steady employmont. Its city hall is a handsome structure for a town of only 1200 inhabitants and speaks well for the enterprise of the residents.

Delano is surrounded by fine timber lands and excellent locations for farms, which will be developed when capital comes to the place. Its business men are live awake and let no grass grow under their feet and there is no reason whatever why the town should not enjoy a steady growth until it reaches large proportions. Residents will do well to patronize those houses which are mentioned in this issue as they are all reliable and anxious to be given a trial.

Waverly,

From One Store in a Wilderness to a Thriving Minnesota Village.

Waverly Men Who Have Built Up Solid Business Blocks.

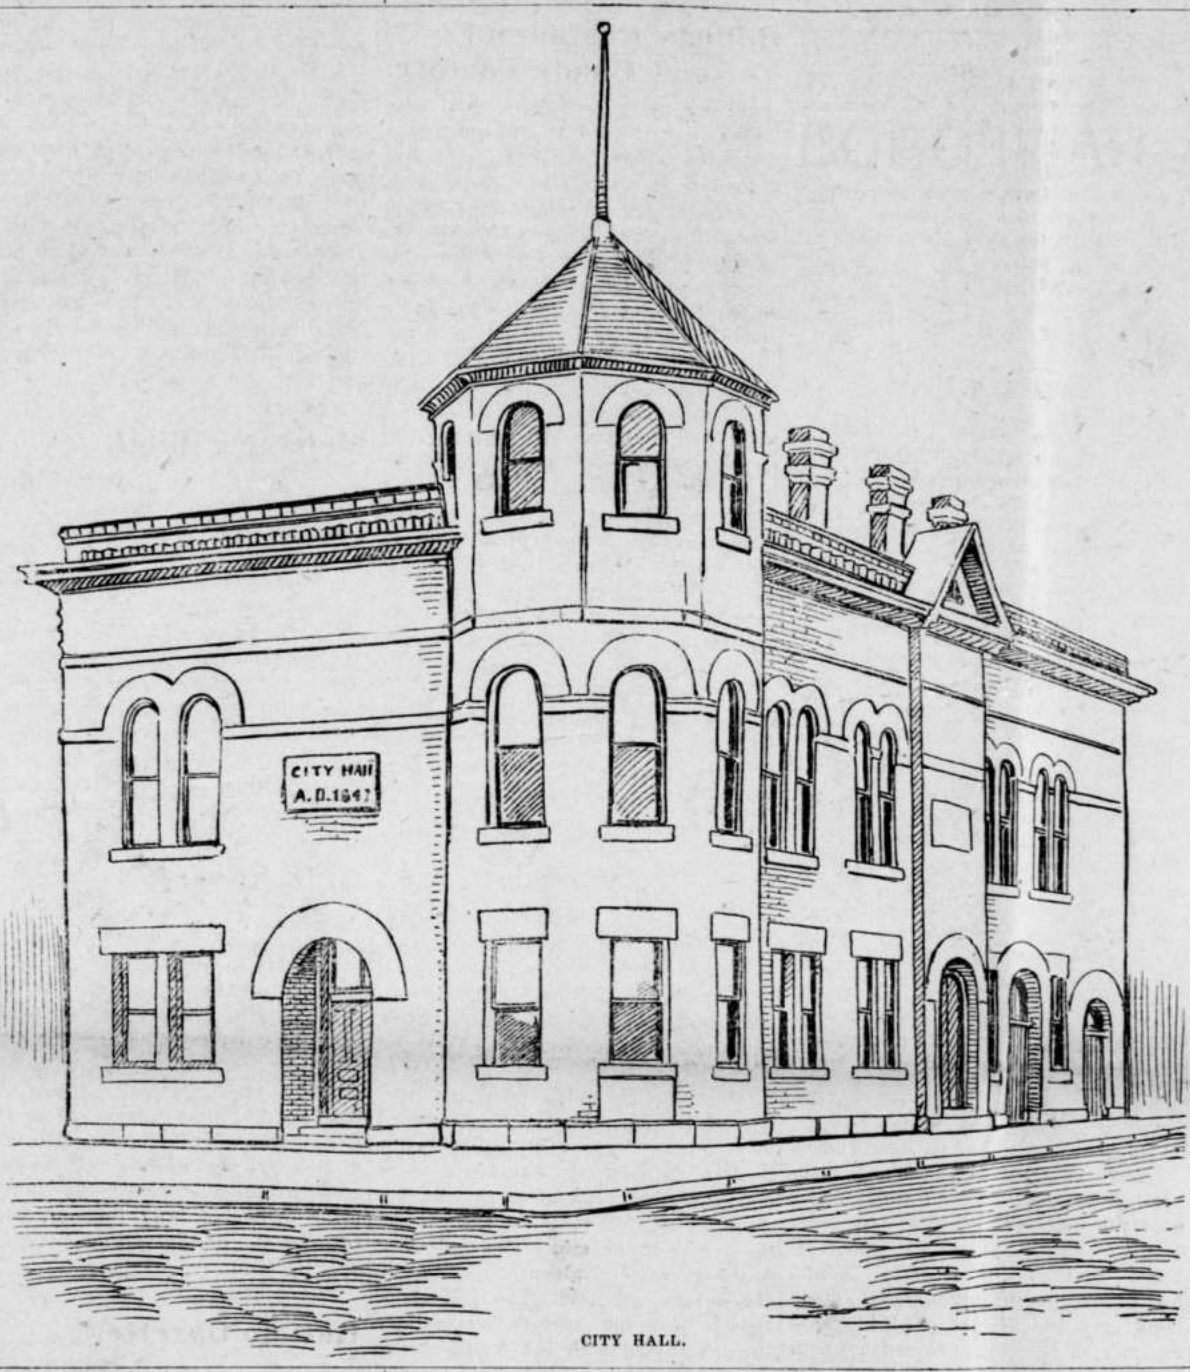
A Beautiful Village on the Great Northern.

Thirty years ago all was a wilderness where now we find a flourishing village with about 800 people. Such is Waverly. Piles of brush and logs gave place to a few houses which since then have in turn given place to handsome business blocks.

Waverly became incorporated in 1881 with the following officers: President, William Quinn; trustee, L. V. Kyle, J. K. Cullen and John Giblin; recorder, C. H. Cullen; treasurer, John O'Gorman. Waverly is indebted to the Co-Operative Creamery for a good deal of its advancement and the men who run the plant. Over 100,000 bushels of wheat were shipped to the city markets last year and a large number of cars of stock. Hundreds of cords of wood were shipped both east and west.

The handsome pastoral residence of St. Mary's Church and the City Hall speak well for Waverly. The business blocks are well in proportion for a town of Waverly's size and the business men are doing their best to further build up the place.

Future alone can only sing the praises of the town and from present indications it will not be wanting.



CITY HALL.

T. F. Kelly,

Mayor of Waverly.

Hardware and Furniture, Carpets, Paints, Oils, Nails and Glass.

ing justified him in building a store of his own in which he at present is located. He has a supply of furniture from which it is possible to pick anything necessary to furnish a house, and his goods are all of the highest quality and the prices very moderate. The same can be said of his hardware assortment. If you desire to purchase anything in the line of hardware, furniture, carpets, paints, oils, nails and glass, call at Kelly's store and ask to see goods and get prices. Mr. Kelly is always pleased to show his goods and show the superior points he claims for them. Mr. Kelley is one of the best known business men of Waverly and his place of business is a credit to the town. He lately joined the Benedicts which added greatly to his popularity and well wishes for his future success.

E. H. Learned,

Postmaster of Waverly.

A prominent man of Waverly is E. H. Learned, the present postmaster. Besides distributing Uncle Sam's mail he engages in the business of grain buying and does a large amount of business in this line. Mr. Learned

Montrose,

Wright County,

Minnesota.

A Picturesque Village on the Great Northern Road.

The Leading Business Men and thier Occupations.

Montrose is a thriving village with a population close to seven hundred, located on the Great Northern road, about thirty-five miles from Minneapolis. The town has several flour and saw mills, hotels, hardware stores, a large creamery, general stores, etc. It is a young village, so it is hard to tell what its future will be, but from present indications when the surrounding country becomes thoroughly settled and capitalists become interested in the place, there is no reason why it should not become a large progressive town. It has the necessary facilities as far as surrounding and locality is concerned. The present business men who are building up the place should receive the patronization of the inhabitants and the farmers and it well rebound to the credit of Montrose. The surrounding county is magnificent and the rich soil makes it admirably suited for farming. There is much standing timber which can be turned into money, and the lands into farms.

THE INDUSTRIAL BULLETIN,
No. 18 Nat. Ger-Am. Bank Bldg.,
St. Paul, Minn.

It is only necessary to take a glance over this sheet to arrive at the conclusion that its object is to advertise. Advertising, by business men and firms, is a necessity in this competitive age to bring their name and business before the general public. Business men who do not advertise are behind the times, and it is likely their business is also. To advertise properly costs money, but the result rebounds greatly to the credit of the advertisers, if the advertising is done in a way that draws the attention of the public.

THE INDUSTRIAL BULLETIN speaks for itself. A large sum of money has been expended in making this advertisement of Wright County interesting, and an unusual number of half-tone cuts of the business men tend to make it attractive. This issue is intended to be a circulating medium among the people of Wright County, and make them interested in the business houses of the different towns, and to patronize them respectively.

The publisher of THE BULLETIN is perfectly reliable, and all that is claimed for him and his business will prove this upon investigation. The publisher requests the readers to go over the contents of this issue carefully, and it may be that they will patronize firms hitherto overlooked.

DELANO,

that institution graduated in the class of 1880 in the Classical Course. In recognition of his ability and good work done, the faculty gave him the position of Salutatorian and Orator at the commencement exercises.

He took up the study of law with Hon. W. P. Howland at Jefferson, Ohio, alternating his work on the law with that of successful school teaching, and on the second day of October, 1883, he was admitted to practice law in all of the courts of the State of Ohio.

In May, 1884, he settled at Delano, Minnesota, and has been a successful practitioner, at that place continuously since that date.

At the general election, 1888, Frank H. Lindsley was elected Superintendent of Schools for Wright County, and held that office for three consecutive terms. It is safe to say that under his supervision greater advancement for the better was made in the condition of the schools in this county than has ever been accomplished in a like period, before or since. On retirement from office Mr. Lindsley devoted his time exclusively to his law practice, and each year has added many new clients to the list of his old ones and friends whose patronage and confidence once gained is never lost.

In connection with his law business, he maintains an agency for Fire Insurance and carefully superintends the writing of the policies so that they cover the property intended to be insured, and if loss occurs his patrons are fully protected. He also deals in real estate and places mortgages, examines titles, and conducts a general loan business.

All desiring work or services in his lines are invited to consult him, at his office above the post office, in Delano, where they will receive courteous and honorable treatment.

Mr. Lindsley wishes to extend to the public acknowledgement of the many honors and favors, heretofore, extended toward him, and he will endeavor, in the future as in the past, to attend to all business placed in his lands promptly and to the best of his ability. At present he is postmaster at Delano, and one of the directors of the Wright County Bank which institution has earned a wide reputation for honorable dealing with its patrons.

Adam Horsch,

Building Materials.

Delano is a growing town and new buildings are going up continuously, and it is worthy of mention that the material is largely furnished by Adam Horsh, the well known Delano man; thus Mr. Horsch is building up Delano and his own business at the same time. He carries a large stock ready to meet all demands in lumber, mouldings, sash, doors, blinds, brick, lime, cement and all kinds of building material. Planing and moulding mill in connection. Persons in and around Delano contemplating building in the near future should call to Mr. Horsch and get prices of building material, and estimates as to costs of building. Mr. Horsch is reliable, and his large business has grown up through honest and fair dealing and all his materials coming up to the highest standard, while his prices are as low as those in the Twin Cities or elsewhere,

J. E. Borsch & Co.,

General Merchandise.

Here is found a large stock of clothing, dry goods, boots and shoes, groceries, notions, hats and caps, etc., so it is easy to make a selection. High quality, low prices. Delano has many general merchandise establishments and all are of high standing. J. E. Borsch & Co. can compete with any of them and it is a choice of the people whether they think they could do better with them or others. Their goods are A 1., and all of their customers have expressed their satisfaction with dealing of them. Give them a call.

Dr. J. Shrader,

Physician and Surgeon.

An extensive practice has qualified Dr. J. Shrader to be an authorative on disease and its cure. He enjoys a large consultation, and his diagnosis of disease and treatment has resulted in his having made a name for himself as a doctor who knows his business. He deserves a large practice as he is faithful and untiring in his efforts to cure persons suffering from various sickness and his success with those who have been under his care should be an inducive to others who may require the service of a skilled physician. Go to him, and if it is possible to cure he will tell you so and do his best to prove it.

Anything in the line of bureaus, beds, carpets, rugs, wall paper and borders, baby carriages, caskets, etc., can be supplied by him. He also has a large stock of wheels on hand all ready for the season's opening. They are all of high grade and the assortment is so large it is easy to make a choice. The people of the village should buy of him. He is a very pleasant gentleman, willing to show goods whether he makes a sale or not. His furniture is all of high grade quality while the prices are as low as those in the Twin Cities.

Montrose Milling Co.,

Manufacturers of Flour, Feed, Graham and Corn-meal.

The firm of the Montrose Milling Co. is composed of J. P. Thornquest, L. C. St. John, H. Schultz and O. A. Denzel. This firm is fully capable to manufacture fine grades of flour, feed, graham, corn meal, etc. Its grade of flour is fine and its output is largely used by the residents of Montrose and the surrounding country. Farmers get high prices for their grain and can have the same manufactured into flour and feed at reasonable prices.

A Great Bargain.

August Leiter's Property for Sale.

Owing to conditions of health not favorable, Mr. August Leiter of Montrose offers for sale his fine property consisting of the following desirable business premises and real estate: One harness shop and one house and barn, with eight lots, for sale ot a reasonable price. A great bargain. Inquire of him if convenient or address A. Leiter, Montrose, Minn., for particulars and price.

L. M. Robinson,

Confectionery.

The above is the card of a Montrose man who has just started out in business—that of confectionery—and wants all the inhabitants of the village to give him a trial when they need anything in the line of pure confectionery. Everything about his establishment is clean, and all his sugars are pure, so he is able to place a large stock of fresh and toothsome sweets within the reach of all at low prices. Confectionery if it is pure is nournishing and stimulates bodily activity and restores lost vitality. Uncle Sam's quartermasters will carry along candy which will be served as rations, according to newspaper reports, the value of sweets in restoring the lost energy of soldier's being now fully understood. So there is no harm in eating candy, but rather it is to be commended.

J. S. Denoon,

Saw Mill Proprietor.

Farmers can obtain all the lumber they need of whatever variety at the saw mill run by J. S. Denoon, at very low prices. He will saw their lumber for them and has hard wood for sale. This saw mill is a home industry and competent to furnish all kinds of lumber, lathes and shingles, and should be well patronized by the people of Montrose. All of the wood work for putting up a house can be obtained of Mr. Denoon.

August Leiter,

Harness, Saddles, Bridles and Farm Machinery.

August Leiter of Montrose is an extensive manufacturer of all kinds of harness and also sells farm machinery. He has a large supply of saddles, bridles, trunks, valises, etc., on hand, all of high quality and prices very low. He also does business in farm machinery and is well qualified to supply the wants of the farmers in this line. Every year sees great improvement in farm machinery and it is now possible to have a great amount of labor done in a remarkable short time if the right farm machinery is obtained. Mr. Leiter knows all about this and is wide awake to all the latest labor-saving devices suitable to farm work.

Gustav Kretschmer,

Blacksmith.

This gentleman is a practical blacksmith, having been here in business for quite a time. His shop is fitted up in a convenient manner for blacksmithing, plow-work and horse-shoeing. In horse-shoeing and plow-work he has an extensive trade which goes to show that he is an expert at this branch of the business. Every class of work is done in the best possible manner and at prices the lowest. He also makes machinery for drilling and manufactures sleigh and wagons. Farmers will do well to try him when they need a blacksmith's service.

Quinn Brothers,

Montrose Independent Elevator.

Farmers around Montrose should take their grain to the Montrose Independent Elevator where they will receive the highest prices for it. The Montrose elevator is the property of the Quinn Brothers, William Quinn and J. B. Quinn. They have elevator interests in other towns and are fully competent to grade and store grain. We hear a good deal about the storing of grain in elevators and how the farmers are often unsatisfied in regard to the grading of their grain and prices. The way to avoid all this is to go to the Quinn Brothers' elevator. They have made a reputation for fairness and honesty and it is to the advantage of the farmers to do business with them.

J. H. Streeter,

Saloon.

For pure wines and liquors for family use or for medical purposes go to J. H. Streeter. His goods are pure and what he claims for them. A large stock of cigars are kept constantly on hand.

Max F. Stegemann,

Wines, Liquors and Cigars.

All kinds of whiskies, liquors and cigars can be obtained at Max F. Stegemann's place of business at Montrose.

PLATFORM TALK

AND ECHOES FROM THE NEBRASKA CONVENTION.

The Chicago Platform—What That Great Deliverance Contained—Gleanings From the National Political Field—The Virginia Congressman's Story—State and Twin City Notes—Political Round-up of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, March 26, 1900.

All eyes have been Nebraskawards during the past week, for the action there by the allied forces on national issues, and the candidacy of Mr. Bryan. Results were entirely reassuring. The platform adopted by Democrats and Populists differed in no important matter. Affirming the Chicago platform, there is such ringing application of the principles of that great deliverance to the issues which have since arisen, as re-inspires all patriotic men and women to that effort for such success at the polls, as is foreshadowed. No doubt a wise platform has been made for Nebraska. It arraigns the Republican administration upon events and issues since 1896; for the new money trust, created by the gold standard, greenback-retiring law; for failure to enforce anti-trust laws, and to enact others if the present are ineffectual, since it has both congress and president with which to do so; for its imperialism shown in the Porto Rican tax, denounced as flagrant violation of the nation's organic law; for the wicked Philippine policy, and declaring for independence for that people under American protection. This much negatively.

Positively, the declaration is for expansion of trade by peaceful means; opposition to militarism and sympathy with the Boers in their struggle for national existence. That the Republican leaders who sympathized with Cuba fail to be interested in the struggle of the Dutch, is shown to illustrate the paralyzing influences of our own imperialism in the Philippines and in Puerto Rico.

Very significant of the trend of the times is the expression favoring municipal ownership of public utilities, and recognition of the principles of the initiative and referendum. Strictly American also, is the demand for the immediate construction of the Nicaraguan canal, and preservation of the right to fortify it. The free coinage reaffirmation is as emphatic and unequivocal as language can make it, to which is added a demand for an American financial system which shall not be subject to the fluctuations and disturbances of foreign powers; recognition of the sovereign right of the government to issue all money, whether coin or paper; retention of the greenbacks and retirement of national bank notes, as fast as greenbacks can be substituted for the same.

The reiterated affirmation of the Chicago platform, in all its parts, naturally directs attention to that great document again. How many people who have opposed it, and how many who denounced its makers and supporters, really know what it contained; how many such ever read it, or could enumerate more than its chief declarations? Aside from the free coinage declaration, the Chicago platform contained the following declarations, which people will do well to enumerate and see how few of them, even the most partisan can conscientiously disapprove.

Re-affirmation of allegiance to the essential principle of our government and the devotion of the Democratic party to the fundamental principles of the constitution.

Denunciation of gold mono-metalism as a British policy, un-American and anti-American, against that spirit of love and liberty which proclaimed our independence in 1776 and won it from England in the War of the Revolution.

Opposition to interest-bearing bonds in time of peace and trafficking with banking syndicates.

Issue of all paper money by the government, made redeemable in gold and silver coin.

Denunciatory of high tariff laws like the McKinley law, as a breeder of trusts and monopolies.

Demand for the use of the remaining constitutional power to provide for legislation so that the burdens of taxation may be equally and impartially laid, since the supreme court has made the income tax invalid.

Protection of American farmers and artisans from foreign pauper labor.

Arbitration of differences between employers and employes in interstate commerce.

Condemnatory of the formation of trusts and pools, and control of the same by the federal government.

Condemnatory of profligate waste by billion dollar Republican congresses.

Denunciatory of interference by federal authorities in local affairs as in violation of the Constitution, and for trials by jury in cases of contempt.

Against discrimination by the government in favor of any of its debtors, referring to the Pacific railroad funding bill.

Just claims for pensions to deserving Union soldiers; denunciatory of arbitrarily dropping soldiers from the pension rolls.

Early admission of all territories into statehood when qualified for same by population and resources and home rule for same.

Sympathy with the people of Cuba in their struggle for liberty and independence.

Appointments based on merit with fixed terms of office, and equal opportunities of all citizens of ascertained fitness in the civil service.

No third term of the presidential office.

Improvement of great waterways for the interior states, and cheap transportation to the water.

Such were the chief planks for the support of which the 6,500,000 who voted for the matchless Bryan, were denounced as anarchists and revolutionists!

With five of the Minnesota delegation standing for tariff the balance for free trade backed by the two senators, what better illustration of the party inconsistency, than the old story of the hunter's dog, that ran upon a barb wire and was cut clean in half from end to end, exactly in the middle. The hunter clapped the parts together and the dog got well, but he got the parts turned the wrong way, so that there was a head and a tail at either end. Thus when the dog was going forward he was also going backwards, and when backing up was going forward. Applied to the Republican position, both free trade and tariff are barked from each end of the party dog.

Speaking of political stories, the Congressional Record has one told by a Virginia congressman, as to how mean a man felt in his district, who had for the first and only time voted the G. O. P. ticket. He voted early, and feeling very badly took to the woods to hunt possums. A big rain came on, and the man crept into a hollow log for shelter. The log becoming soaked commenced to swell, and pretty soon he found himself so tightly squeezed that he was not able to move backward or forward. The squeeze tightened, and he concluded he was going to be killed and commenced to pray. Thinking over all the mean things he had done he suddenly bethought him of his vote in the morning and he instantly felt so small that he slipped from the log as if he had been greased.

Mark Hanna—"This d—d Porto Rico business has got to stop somewhere." And so has this d—d Hanna-McKinley business.

If there is a thing that Captain Van Sant steers clear from it is pro-Boer meetings. Having been unable to attend in the Twin Cities, the people got one up right in Winona, and the genial captain was again "out of town." This is sad.

And they do say that the captain's friends are not a little disturbed that he spoke for free trade the other night at Duluth. He had better waited, they say, till he knew just the kind of a straddle is to be made by his party.

Testimony to the high character of Minnesota wheat grading, from an unexpected source, is given in a Minneapolis Times symposium, mostly from Minneapolis chamber of commerce circles. The proposition distinctly stated that "Minnesota and Dakota grain was never valued so high in the world's markets," as shown in current and continued quotations, was sustained by numerous chamber of commerce men, among them Colonel George D. Rogers, secretary of the chamber, who, exploded in wrath, when informed of the systematic efforts of enemies of the present administration to discredit Minnesota grades and grain. Another testifying was Mr. F. H. Peavy, the elevator king, who expressed himself as strongly as a man could, in approval of existing conditions. Others were J. Q. Adams, the grain exporter, L. Christian & Co., the Northern Grain company, and Mr. F. L. Greenleaf, the latter being in position to know, as chairman of the new grain appeal boards. The latter board and its working is commended on all sides. Like testimony was also given by ex-Inspectors Tunnell and Gibbs, former state inspectors under Chief Clausen.

Speaking of grades and market prices, a "friend of the administration" asks for specific instances where actual market prices on stated dates, make comparisons of Minnesota wheat and grades favorable to the present regime, in comparison with the Clausen administration of the inspection department.

The matter was admirably covered in the public statement of Inspector Reishus himself last week. The facts cited by him are obtainable from almost any daily New York or foreign market report. The quotations that Inspector Reishus quoted were New York for March 1 to 4, inclusive, 1899, and March 1 to 5, inclusive, for 1900, on contract grades for No. 1 Northern and No. 1 Red, respectively. In 1899 the inferior grade outsold the Minnesota, while in 1900 the Minnesota "despised grade" outsold the other, as it should. The actual figures were:

New York Quotations:

1899.	No. 1 Northern.	Red Winter.
March 1	85½	86¼
" 2	83½	85½
" 3	84½	85½
" 4	83¾	85½
1900.	No. 1 Northern.	Red Winter.
March 1	77¾	72½
" 2	77⅝	75⅝
" 3	78⅛	74⅜
" 5	77¾	75¾

Also, back to June, 1898. Liverpool sales were: No. 1 Northern at 97¼; California No. 1, $1 11¾.

Liverpool sales February, 1900, No. 1 Northern hard at 90¾; California No. 1, 86⅜.

These figures speak for themselves.

The state lunacy commission changes by new appointments by Governor Lind, as well as the state board of medical examiners. The former consists of Dr. C. E. Riggs, St. Paul, reappointed, W. F. Milligan, Wabasha, and C. O. Cooley, Duluth. The medical board is Dr. Thomas H. Lowe, Slayton, Dr. Louis Fortsche, New Ulm, and C. J. Regnell, Minneapolis.

Another appointment highly gratifying to all knowing the high character of the appointee, is that of H. D. Stocker, Jr., of Minneapolis, to the board of defectives. Mr. Stocker succeeds George F. Gifford, late editor of the St. Paul Globe, who has returned to journalism at Chicago.

And speaking of Minneapolis politics, that was a hard whack at the Bergstrom boom that the Times gave it, by declaring that Hennepin county does not want secretary of state anyhow. And the Times "speaks by the card," at least sometimes.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

First in the Field.

The Prohibition state convention, at Minneapolis, placed the following ticket in the field, which is the first to be announced:

Governor—B. B. Haugan, Fergus Falls.

Lieutenant-Governor—C. B. Wilkinson, Owatonna.

State Secretary—Frank E. Carlyle, Lake Benton.

State Treasurer—C. W. Dorsett, Minneapolis.

Recommended by state convention for president, Hale Johnson, Illinois.

Presidential electors—E. S. Ellis, Dodge Center; C. C. Drew, Luverne; Albert J. Kanne, Waterville; Andrew Rankin, St. Paul; C. M. Way, Minneapolis; P. J. Nelson, Anoka; J. J. Rindall, Fergus Falls; W. J. Dean, Minneapolis; J. A. McConkey, Fergus Falls.

Assessed Valuation.

State Auditor Dunn has made a summary of the tax lists of the Minnesota counties for 1899, which shows that the total assessed valuation of the state is $585,083,328, being about $6,000,000 more than for 1898. In sound numbers there are $250,000,000 of acre property. $240,000,000 of city lots, and $93,000,000 of personal property. The average rate of taxation is 24.85 mills, as against 23.9 for 1898. Carver county has the lowest rate, 17.42, and Mille Lacs the highest, 48.47. The total tax levy amounts to $14,500,000. Of this Hennepin county pays $3,411,000, and Ramsey county $2,202,000. The state gets $2,000,000 out of the levy. County government requires $2,700,000; city and villages take $4,500,000, and townships $1,090,000.

The Boards Are Filled.

Dr. Charles E. Riggs, of St. Paul, was reappointed a member of the state board of inspectors of insane hospitals. The terms of Dr. H. W. Brazie, Minneapolis, and Dr. George W. McIntyre, St. Peter, having expired, they were succeeded by Dr. W. F. Milligan, Wabasha, and Dr. C. O. Cooley, Madelia.

Governor Lind also appointed Dr. Thomas Lowe, Slayton, Dr. Louis A. Fritsche, New Ulm, Dr. C. J. Ringnell, Minneapolis, members of the state board of medical examiners. The appointees succeed Doctors H. Morell, Slayton, John S. Shrader, Delano; C. B. Pillsbury, Owatonna.

It Will Help.

It case the $2,000,000 appropriation bill passes congress, Minnesota's annual allowance for militia purposes from the federal government will be $30,000. This state supported the national guard on a $7,000 appropriation from the government in addition to the state's allowance. National guardsmen figure that with the increased amount, new rifles are likely to be substituted for Springfields and in every respect the equipment of the guard will be up to date.

Railway Taxes.

In preparing his last bi-ennial report for the legislature State Auditor Dunn estimated the receipts for 1899 from the gross earnings tax upon railroads at $1,150,000, and a similar amount for 1900. The estimate was exceeded by more than $100,000 in 1899, when the railroads contributed $1,261,271.77. This year the excess over the estimate will be almost $300,000. The state auditor has prepared the completed figures, which reach a total of $1,444,488.36.

For Foreign Countries.

The Gillette-Herzog Company, of Minneapolis, has been asked to submit bids on the structural iron work in the mines at Johannesburg, South Africa. The contract calls for work amounting to $150,000. The same company was asked for bids for street railway building in Lisbon, and 14 cars of ironwork were shipped to Honolulu recently, being the first material for the great sugar plant being constructed by the company.

THE TEEMING WEST.

The Prairie Lands of Western Canada Being Filled with Excellent Settlers.

The salient fact that presents itself in taking a bird's-eye view of the Canadian West, is that of intense activity in every department. Whether the glance be turned upon the district east of Winnipeg, the Red River Valley south or north, the Dauphin and M. & N. W. district, the Southwestern, or whether it take in the great central division along the main line of the C. P. R. stretching away out to the Rockies and from there bending north and south to Prince Alberta and Edmonton, Mcleod and Lethbridge—whether the examination be made in any of these directions the same activity, growth and hopefulness is observable.

The Canadian west is not only a good place to locate permanently, but it is also a good place to invite their relatives and friends to come to. This is the spirit that seems to animate the west at the present time and its effects are to be seen on every hand. To enumerate the towns where handsome and substantial blocks and residences have gone up this year would be simply to give a list of the towns and villages along the railway lines. And this movement has not been confined to these centers of population, but in many cases it has been overshadowed by the improvement in farm buildings.

So far as one can see, this is no passing phase, no repetition of any temporary boom following a period of good crops and fair prices. It is a movement more spontaneous, more general, more marked than anything that has gone before, and seems to indicate that the Great West, like Samson, bursting the encompassing bands, has awakened to a period of activity and development that will surpass anything we have known in the past and which will only be paralleled by the opening out of some of the most fertile of the western states of the union.

Look at some of the figures. Over a thousand schools in Manitoba and the number going up by leaps and bounds. Something like five hundred schools in the Territories. Winnipeg as representing the gateway of the west, the third city in the Dominion in regard to bank clearings, postal business and probably in regard to customs: the custom return at Winnipeg running about thirty to forty per cent. greater month by month than in the fiscal year of 1897-8, the largest previous year for actual business entries, when over $900,000 was paid through the Winnipeg office for duty. The C. P. R. and Canada Northwest land sales together running over $1,500,000 for the year. These, and a thousand more signs show how the west has leaped into new life.

This is an inspiring and cheering spectacle, but it brings with it great responsibilities. The business men realize this, the banks realize it, and have spread their agencies through every bustling little town clear out to the coast, the churches realize it, and one denomination alone has opened an average of about thirty new stations in each of the past two years, and will increase this in the year now entered upon, the government departments realize it, and there is talk of redistribution and additional members. The educational branches realize it and new schools are springing up everywhere. Over 12,000 settlers came in from the United States alone last year, and these with the people who came in from the east prove the most rigorous Westerners. They lose no time in developing their farms, in filling their grazing lands with stock and in every district is to be found evidences of thrift and prosperity.

Was All Face.

The governor general of Canada, while enjoying a drive in the keen, frosty air, met an Indian who was very lightly clad. From mere curiosity he stopped the sleigh when opposite the Indian and asked him how it was he could withstand the cold under so light a covering. The Indian, without a moment's hesitation, answered by asking:

"How your face not cold?"

The governor general explained in his simplest English how it was that the skin of his face having been exposed to the weather always, it naturally had hardened. The Indian waited till the white man was through, then, with an utterly expressionless counteance, he said:

"Me all face," and went his way.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EASILY TOLD.

He Could Judge of the Passage of Time with the Greatest Accuracy.

It occurred in Judge Lawlor's court a few days ago. There was a murder trial on and a policeman named Riley was on the witness stand relating the details of the tragedy. Said Mr. Ferral, who was acting as defendant's counsel:

"How many minutes after the shooting did the man die, Mr. Riley?"

"Two minutes, sir," answered the witness without the least hesitation.

"You seem positive about the time," remarked Mr. Ferral, with the air of one who has the upper hand. "Now, I'm going to test your ability to judge time. I will hold my watch here for two minutes. When you think the time is up, say when."

The defendant's counsel held the watch on the witness and stood examining the hand carefully. The policeman, however, did not seem to be worried at all at the tax upon his mental apparatus. He sat staring vacantly about the room, and at the exact second when the two minutes had expired, remarked: "Now!" and smiled like a tickled sphinx.

Mr. Ferral was staggered at the uncanny accuracy of the witness, and Gen. Solomon, who was prosecuting, was delighted proportionately at his opponent's discomfiture. He chuckled in a comfortable German way, during the rest of the session. At the noon recess he called Riley to him, and, slapping him on the shoulder, said:

"Officer Riley, you vass a vonder! How dit you do it, hein?"

"Do it!" replied Riley, pointing to a big redwood clock on the opposite wall, "why, that was dead easy!"

Riley will be promoted.—San Francisco News Letter.

RELEGATED THE HASH.

The Landlady Could Not Withstand the Onslaught of the Facetious Feeders.

In a certain boarding house, where variety was not the spice of life, and where hash was so frequent an occurrence that it would have been advertised for if it had come up missing, lived six boys, who were battling with a cold world and a colder landlady.

This perpetual hash grew monotonous, and the boys determined to banish it from the table, by fair means or foul. Accordingly, when they filed into the dining-room on Monday morning and recognized the Sunday's roast served up in hash the first boy made a low bow and said:

"Why, good morning, sir; I think I've met you before!"

The second shook his head mournfully and exclaimed: "The last sad state of Mr. Beef!"

"Ah, yes," said the third, "the poor fellow is all cut up."

"The remains of a close friend," sighed the fourth.

"Yes, closer than a brother," assented the fifth.

"The victim of a terrible grind!" finished the sixth, as they took their places at table.

The landaldy wore a haughty don't-know-what-you-mean air, but hash has no more been seen in their midst.—Memphis Scimitar.

No Wonder He Smelled It.

A commercial traveler whose wife is one of those women who borrow trouble indiscriminately had occasion to make a trip east recently.

His wife was very anxious about him and felt certain that he would fall a victim to smallpox, which was reported to be prevalent in the city to which he was going. She begged him to carry a little lump of asafetida in his pocket to ward off contagion.

Naturally he objected and positively refused to be made the permanent abode of such a persistent odor.

When he came home from his trip he said to his wife:

"It is wonderful, the power of the imagination. Why, don't you know I imagined that I smelled asafetida the whole time I was gone!"

"It wasn't imagination at all," quietly replied the wily little woman. I sewed a bit of asafetida in the corner of your coat before you went away!"—Memphis Scimitar.

BUFFALO GA...

DELANO, FRIDAY, Mar. 30, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—About four inches of snow fell Thursday morning.

—Teachers for the Delano High school are to be engaged April 21st.

—The ice in the river has become broken down in some places.

Principle Williams of Watertown school was a visitor last Monday.

—The new flour store in upper town seems to be doing its share of the trade.

—Some of the boys had a game of ball at Epple's farm last Saturday afternoon.

—Darrow & Gupthel of Rodkford have a large mare for Sale they will sell cheap.

—Mrs. Thomas Reichel is having her building on Brige St. fixed up and it is now for sale.

—Some new buildings are needed in town as there are very few if any vacant at present.

—Johnson Bros, have obtained the Cargill Elevator to transact ther business in for the present.

--Conzet & Darrow will make specil sale on single harness for the month of April. Don't miss the chance.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursay and Fri. 11tf.

--The Delano Steam Laundry man has attatched a saw to steam and now saws his wood by that excustles power.

—Frank Smith the blacksmith, has sold out his shop and returned to Long Lake. Mr. Peterson succeeds him here.

—Sunday's fall of snow made the roads muddy; but was fine for the fields, putting the ground in excellent condition.

--Farm machinery for sale is being displayed in several places in town. Among the most active agents is Paul Plotnik.

—The early part of this week snow balls were flying in all directions. And they didn't seem to care where they landed either.

—The Athletic Club have suspended Club meetings for the summer, and have stored their equipment away till again wanted.

—More sickness than common is reported in this vicinity. Among the ailments are tonsillitis, quinqy, pneumonia, erysipelas and LaGrippe.

--C. M. Conzet has a fine Scotch Colloy dog one year old, and has no use for him, will trade him for 40 acers of land or will sell to good party.

--Travelers hardly know what kind of vehicles to leave home with now. One day wheels, next runners and occasionally a mud scow would go best.

--The Delano Athletic Club has concluded to suspend from April, till next fall. The room has been rented to Mr. Canedy, who will move his tonsorial equipment in early in the month.

--A special meeting of the village council was held Monday evening and a resolution passed to reduce the cost of the electric light by cutting down salary of the electricion to $50 per month.

--Monday next the Trustees of the M. E. Church are to open bids for the work of painting the parsonage. A few subscribers to the fund have not yet called on the secretary to cancel their donations.

—Yesterday a car load of household goods and live stock was laid over here on account of a horse getting down and unable to get up again. The car load came from Indiana and is bound for Rugby North Dokota.

—It is a wonder many of the wealthy city people who can afford to have country residences during the summer, don't build in Delano, where they can have eletric lights and water privileges with little expense. Perhaps if their attention was, in a proper manner, called to these and other facts concerning our thriving village some of them would.

--It seems to us a poor kind of justice to punish a community by removing from their midst the post office because somebody shot the postmaster; or to lock up a school library because some body wrote on the walls. Free American citizens should have the best possible mail privileges, and school children should have access to the liberary as often as necessary for consulting the authorities found there.

—The Epworth League will hold a Railroad social at the City Hall, Friday evening March 30. Everybody is cordially invited to attend. The following program will be rendered:

County Cullings.

Robert Spence of St. Thomas, is in receipt of ten bushels select "Blue Stem" seed wheat, from Buffalo, Minn. The past few years have shown this variety to be well adapted to our locality where better results are obtained than with the fife variety.—Le Suer Sentinel.

LeRoy Cady who graduated from the Agricultural school at St. Anthony Park last week. came up Monday evening for a short visit. He will leave for Owattona, this week where he will have charge of the green house and garden at the state school at that place this summer. –Buffalo Journal.

Doctors seem to be vieing with the lawyers and newspaper men in the field of politics. Cokato chose Dr. Dahlquist to preside over their village, Dr. Shannon was a candidate for president of Buffalo village; Dr. E. Y. Chilton is State Senator. Dr. Powell is county coroner, and Dr. Catlin is a member of the Democartic State Central committee. If there are any microbes in the politics of Wright county such a combination of medical talent ought to be able to discover and destroy them —Buffalo Standard.

The republican papers are continually anouncing this or that candidate for nearly every office on the ticket. They don't appear to recognize the fact that there might possibly be as good men in the democratic party as in the republican party; or in other parties for that matter. As the republican party, of the gold standard persuasion has but one ticket of course all others are opposed to that ticket and the way to make that opposition felt is to nominate one ticket against it, and all vote it. Have men on the ticket who are running on principle; and vote your principles, just once, for a change, and see how much better it will seem; and how many good men, besides gold bug republicans there are in Wright County. Let every voting precinct select its best men for office and be prepared to stand by them, or any other good man in convention and give us the best, and cleanest ticket in the field, then see how easy the ticket will be elected.

ROCKFORD.

The citizens of Rockford and vicinity held a public meeting, at the Centennial Hotel, on Friday evening March 23rd. The meeting was well attended; and was called to order by D. R. Thomson. On motion D. R. Farnham was elected chairman, and O. C. Roberts was elected clerk of the meeting. The chairman stated that according to the notice given the meeting was called to take into consideration the matter of a celebration at Rockford, the 4th of July, 1900. On motion it was voted that we have a celebration at Rockford on that day. On motion voted that the meeting shall be at Burt's Grove, on R. R. Avenue. Voted that a committee of five be elected as a finance committee, and to make such arrangements as may be necessary to raise the money to pay the expenses for a grand celebration. D. R. Thomson, O. C. Roberts, D. D. Ames, J. W. Teeney and E. E. Darrow, were elected as said committee. J. W. Teeney reported that the skeleton of the Rockford Band, that did not quite materialize last year had $25. on hand, that they would contribute to the celebration fund. On motion voted to accept the Band money, with thanks from the public and the fiance committee. There were suggestions made that we hold a series of entertainments, oyster supper, ice cream socials, and other amusements to raise funds; but it is left with the committee to act as they see fit. The people at the meeting seemed to be in earnest, so we shall, no doubt, have one of the grandest celebrations ever held in the county. We have begun early, it is true: so that other towns and villages in this vicinity can take notice that this, 1900, is Rockford year. The meeting adjourned, to Friday evening, April 27, at J. W. Teeny's store, on upper main street.

A. A. Farnham, M. W. of Rockford Lodge No. 158 A. O. of U. W. goes to St. Paul, this week as representative or delegate to the Grand Lodge. March 27, 28 and 29.

The oyster supper at G. A. R. Hall, on Saturday evening was well patronized. The M. E. church organ fund was well advanced and the prospects for a new organ are very good, in fact a new organ is assured.

The doctors are kept very busy now, as many are sick with LaGrippe, or Influenza, or Pneumonia, or something else in that line. The M. D's say it is in some respects a new and strange disease; but so for not very fatal. Almost every family has one or more sick.

MAPLE PLAIN.

We have been having winter again. Had the weather kept fine, farmers would have been seeding by this time, but instead of getting spring we will get bad roads. Most everyone has been sick. Hope spring will come soon and perhaps the people will feel better.

Was much interested in reading a letter in last week's GAZETTE from Hon. B. F. Christlieb of Los Angles, Cal., was also interested in reading the letter from Rockford correspondent.

The farmers are hauling a good many logs into Styner's saw mill, at Armstrong. Mr. Styner says they are a good quality of logs too. They can put up their pine lumber to the heavens if they want to. We do not have to buy; nor will we, while lumber is so high. We Pioneered this country in the fifties and know what hard times are. So just keep your lumber or send it to heaven in smoke, and let the insurance companies pay the freight. We like to see everybody do well and accumulate some property, but above all things we hate the disposition of the hog. I fear there is no heaven made for such people. But no doubt they are like Simon Magnus, they expect to buy their way into the kingdom. If the Carnige Steel Trust keeps on it will soon be able to own the country. Then what will the rest of us fellows be,—bondsmen? Everything seems to be in confusion from the front door step of the humble cottage to the crouned heads of Europe. It is war in the Transvaal and Phillippine Islands. It is shoot and fight for office down in Ky., and a life insurance policy will not save a fellow now a days. When I was a boy I often heard it remarked that the devil was to run this country for a thousand years. It would seem by a casual observer that he is now in possession.

The Primary election law comes into force this fall but applies only to counties having 200,000 or more inhabitants. So Hennepin and Ramsey county will only be effected by the law in this state. It is nothing like the Gobel law.

There must be Primary Election seven weeks before General Election.

From the petitions that were out town meeting day it would seem that most of the people in Hennepin county were runing for office. Any person by paying the County Auditor $10.00 can take out his petition and have his name put on the ticket and come up before the primary election. If carried there that brings him before the convention.

Among our Exchanges.

So the old rabid Republican Tribune has become an inflationist! It is taking the exact stand of Bryan and the fusion element.—Litchfield Independent.

New York World: In his annual message to Congress in December last Paesident McKinley said of Hawaii: "The people of these Islands are entitled to the benefits and privileges of our Constitution." If Hawaii, why not Porto Rico? How can this Republic make fish of one of its possessions and fowl of another?

Duluth Herald: The Portland Telegram says: "No wonder sturdy John Bull did not want our good and great president for an arbitrator even if J. B. had been willing to arbitrate; nobody could tell what day or hour the president might change his mind and revise his opinion, and then the whole business would have to be done over again."

Duluth Herald: At Ocean Grove, N. J., last year, President McKinley said: "The flag does not mean one thing in this country and another thing in Porto Rico and Cuba." Did our president mean what he said, or only 85 per cent of what he said? Is he an honest, capaple statesmanlike president, or only 85 per cent of such a character? This is a curious question, that the American people are inquiring about-and they must be answered.

Le Sueur Sentinel: Page Morris, of Duluth, was at home on Thursday nigh and did the explaining act, incidentally telling his constituants, how little they really knew about legislative or political matters anyway. When a congressman finds it necessary to leave the post of duty to which he has been assigned, in the midst of a session, to come home to explain things to his people, it either augers dense ignorance on the part of his constituents, or gross mistakes on his own. Judge Morris seems worried about something, but whether it is his own acts or the heathenish ignorance of, his people at home, they will have to decide.

World: Two American officers in the Philippines, both young men of high promise and great gallantry, have committed suicide within the fortnight just because these fever-racked brains gave way. Yet we are told that it is a most salubrious climate—by those who stay in Washington.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16, 1900.

Republican Senators are still in a dead-lock on the Porto Rican tariff and the key is yet to be found. Some of the republican Senators have been whipped into support of the tariff against their own convictions and against the expressed wishes of their constitutents, but there are still about a dozen who hold out for free trade and who say they will vote with the democrats for a free trade amendment. The bill giving back to Porto Rico the money which has been and is being unjustly taken away from its inhabitants under the Dingley tariff has become a law, but what is to become of the mined. Mr. McKinley and every member of his Cabinet are now openly working to get votes for the tariff, in the face of their official record as advocates of free trade with the island. Democrats are taking no part in the mess, realizing that the republicans are making democratic votes by thousands and being willing to let it go at that until the time comes to vote.

Although hampered by the republican members of the House Military Committee, which is investigating the use of Federal troops in the Idaho mining troubles last year, Representatives Lentz and Sulzer have succeeded in showing that the troops were extremely brutal in their treatment of men arrested; that warrants of arrest, similar to the infamous French letters the cachet, with the space for the name left blank, were signed and issued to constables in quantities, and that, although there is a state law against discrimination against either union or non-union miners, no man could work in the mines of the Couer d'Alene country without a permit, and no member of a labor union could secure a permit. This isn't a showing to be proud of, and the investigation isn't over yet.

The platform adopted by the Nebraska democrats is thought to represent Col. Bryan's idea of the platform that should be adopted by the Kansas City convention, and consequently it has been much discussed among democrats in Congress. The only feature of the platform adversely criticized by democrats is that dealing with the initiative and referendum. Among southern Senators who were outspoken in their condemnation of his idea were Tillman, Bacon, and Clay. Senator Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said of the Nebraska platform: "Its varous declarations seem to me to be in thorough harmony with the democratic position. Certainly we are all agreed upon the re affirmation of the Chicago platform, upon the condemnation of trusts, in our opposition to imperialism, and in the belief that the Constitution follows the flag. The initiative and referendum is something new in a democratic platform. I admit, but I am not prepared to say that it is an unwise innovation I would not, of course, advocate the reference of all minor matters of legislation to the people, but on all great questions it seems to me that the judgment of all the people might well be appealed to and accepted As a general rule, no man is afraid of submitting a question to popular will if he believes that he is in the right."

Representative Sulzer, of New York, made a warm speech before the East Washington Democratic Club: in which he said: "England controls the policy of the administration of William McKinley. It was English influence that involved us in war in the Philippines. England wanted our soldiers and our ships in Asiatic waters. It is beginning to be clear now why she wanted them there. Salisbury is a far-seeing prime minister. He foresaw the effort that England is now making ta crush the South African republics; he foresaw that the Czar might seize the opportunity to push Russian interests in China and thus jeopardize what England calls her right there. With a secret alliance or understanding between the government of Great Britain and the republican administration in Washington, American guns and American bayonets might be turned to England's account in the far East."

Representative Champ Clark, of Mo., thus stated his position on the trust question: "It would be foolish for me to waste time making an anti trust speech. The entire matter may be summed up in a single sentence. This is not a new issue. The first anti trust speech was made about 4,000 years ago by an old gentleman named Moses, when he wrote upon the tablets of stone the inspired words, "Though shalt not steal"'.

Hon. Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who was in Washington on private business, was asked to state his views on the political outlook and said: "The perple of Georgia are to busy making money to pay much attention to politics, but they are solid for the regular democratic nominee for President, be he Mr. Bryan or anyone else. Of course, we all believe it will be Mr. Bryan. Georgia, and I think the South generally, is dead against imperialism, and will vote that way."

Mr. McKinley has requested Gen. Joe Wheeler has not yet decited to do so. He has been given to understand that if he will remain in the army he can have a brigadiers' commission in the regular army, or rather be retired with that rank.

Railroading Patents.

A single firm of Patent Lawyers, C A. Snow & Co., of Washington, D. C., have in the last year procured 1,630 patents for their clients, many of them for rejected inventions. C. A. Snow & Co. have been accused of railroading patents through the Patent Office, but they insist that this locomotion is better than ox carting them for by the atter process the inventor often dies before he gets his patent 16.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

FRANK L. RANDALL, Winona, has taken charge of the St. Cloud Reformatory, vice Superentendent W. H. Houlton. Mr. Randall, will soon have his family with him at St. Cloud. He will make a good Superintendent.

THE Auditorum in Kansas City, Mo., where the Democratic National Convention was to be held caught fire soon after noon on Wednesday, April 4, and in less than half on hour was burned to the ground. Several other buildings were burned. The building was one of the finest of its kind in the world. It was well insured and is to be rebuilt in time for the convention July 4. This shows enterprise on the part of the Kansas City people.

THE Pioneer Press published a letter from the son of a prominent South Dokato Populist, who went to the Philippines with the volunteers from that state. and then re-enlisted and is now there. It comments editorially on the letter and makes much of its claims for the United States' dew possessions. A latemember of the 13th Minn., on being asked about it, said: "The fellow re-enlisted which proves he was foolish. That's all I wantto know about him."

THE tendency of the times seems to be towards Monarchial government for the world. Russia has lately wiped off the map Finland, and Norway and Sweden are expecting that they may soon be called upon to follow Poland and Finland. England has a vast army in South Africa trying to obliterate the Transvaal and Orange Free State. The United States, even; the boasted home of the free and land of the brave is trying to annex the islands of the seas. Let Freedom reign.

ADMIRAL DEWEY has announced his willingness to accept the Presidency of the United States if the people want him. He don't say on what platform he desires to run. Last fall he said nothing would induce him to run. Since then he has lost prestidge as a Presidential possibility wonderfully. Even Cushman K. Davis would stand a better chance of a nomination, and possibly of an election, than the hero of Manila Bay would. But with McKinley and Bryan as nominesour Naval hero had strick to his better present job awhile longer.

THE Republican party has succeeded in whipping through the bill fixing a tariff on Porto Rico. This of itself don't seem to be very bad, tosome of our partisam politicians; especially as it is for only two years. But when such a bill is once voted it is much easier to keep it going than to get it changed. Those interested keep insisting that it is necessary and must not be done away with. Then too it is an awful precedent to establish! If Puerto Rico in a past of the United States, its people should have the trade privileges of the country. If tariff is such a good thing between Puerto Rico and the balance of the country how long will it be until a tariff is as necessary between other parts of the country; between one State and another? God grant, never.

Presidential Possibilities.

For nearly four years people have looked upon President McKinley and Hon. William Jennings Bryan as the contending candidates for the Presidency of the United States. Each represents the views of a class of people. Each is the representative of the opposite of each other. Mr. McKinley stands for protective tariff; single gold standard money; for extending our teritory, at the point of the bayonet, beyond our shores; for imperialism and militaryism; a big army, and a big navy, and war taxes to pay the bills; the issuance of bonds upon bonds, as the treasurer may see fit to sell them, for generations yet to come to pay. The President is backed up by the claims for a second term by a board of office holders; by the trusts, corporations and monopolies. His strength in this way in his party almost precludes the possibility of his defeat for renomination by the g. o. p. formerly of Lincoln and Blaine, but now degenerated to Hannaism.

Hon. William Jennings Bryan is the acknowledged leader of nearly all forces opposed to the imperialistic doctrines of the present g. o. p. He is for an economical administration of governmental affairs; for not piling up of debts to make slaves of our children for ages to come. He is for bimetallism, because it will furnish a sufficient amount of standard money to keep greedy individuals, corporations or trusts from controling the money market. He is for free trade, as nearly as may be possible, to run the government. He is for a small army and a small navy. He is opposed to sending our soldiers to foreign lands to force the natives to accept, against their will, our "flag" but not our "constitution". He is opposed to placing the banking business of the government in the hands of others to manipulate as they see fit. He is opposed to militaryism, to imperialism and everything that tends to making an empire of our government, and slaves of its people.

Mr. Bryan has an unusually strong hold upon the people, of all classes. He is a man of the people, and is for their best interests and as one of the leading orators of the world, has been heard all over this land. Men know him and honor him wherever he goes. It seems next to impossible for another to pluck the nomination so justly his, from him at the coming convention.

McKinley and Bryan then are in all probility the men who will lead the fight this fall over whetheror not we will remain a free people; or become an empire; whether we will continue to love our flag and our constitution together; or to force the flag and militaryism upon our neighbors and ourselves while we dole out the constitution, little at a time to suit trusts, corporations and greedy money getters.

Great issues are at stake. Never has our country been called upon to face more numerous and more important questions than now. But they resolve themselves into the one great question will we remain a republic; or will we become an empire?

St. Cloud Times: President Kruger in sending delegates to the United States to appeal for action that will prevent the wiping out of two South African republics is wasting good money. Mr. McKinley will do nothing that is not sanctiond by England.

Pioneer Press: The people of Minnesota in general and St. Paul in particular thould entertain a feeling of pride over the honor conferred upon Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul in being selected to deliver the dedicatory adress at the unveiling of the Lafayette monument in Paris on July 4 The selection shows the great esteem in which the archbishop is held, not only as an orator, but as a representative American citizen.

G. O. P. Argument.

"The man who was hanged at Spokane, Wash., the day that Bryan reached town doubtless congratulated himself."—Pioneer Press.

If the man did congratulate himself he doubtless was a "goldbug".

Hardly Jibes.

Editor Dare, of the Sherburne County Star News lays himself liable to the charge of flopping, nearly as much as does Congressman Page Morris, by publishing the following:

"Some of our congressmen seem to labor under the impression that the people know little or nothing about politican matters. This is a mistake that ought to be removed from their thinking apparatus with rapidity."

And a little further down the same column this:

"However, a careful size-up of the situation over the district, convinces the Star News that the people are pretty well satisfied with the energy and integrity of Congressman Morris and will insist upon his renomination for another term."

Wrong Method of Teaching.

Many parents in St. Paul would like to see this reform adopted here.

CHICAGO, April 3.—Charges that teachers in public schools are following such "advanced" methods as that they are failing to instruct pupils properly in the most necessary branches of learning are made by members of the board or education. Trustee Austin O. Sexton told a committee of the board that half of the teachers, the majority said to be graduates of high schools, could not speak or write English correctly or spell correctly.

Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, superintendent of schools, admitted that many of the teachers were deficient in the points mentioned by Mr. Sexton. The fault, hesaid was not so much with the teachers as of the system by which they were instructed and by which they were instructing others Mr Sexton urged the requirement of Grammar one hour's study of English every day. He said:

"The trouble is, that an attempt is made to teach spelling without a spelling book, the English language without a grammar, etc. We are advancing too fast. Let us stick to the grammar and the spelling book, no matter if they are called old fashioned. Give the pupils one hour every day with the grammar—not English literature, Hiawatha, Julius Caesar or anything of that sort, but the old-fashioned technical grammar."

A motion that pupils give one hour each day to the English language, with especial reference to its correct usage, was adopted—St Paul Dispatch.

Among our Exchanges.

Lincoln and Freedom.

Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in us; our defence is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands, everywhere those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God can not long retain it.—National Watchman.

Lincoln at Gettysburg

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now, we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and dedicated, can long endure. We are met on the great battle field of that war.

We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a large sense we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated to the great before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth. National Watchman.

Morris Men.

Who are the men that are actively urging the nomination of Morris throughout the district? They are the federal officeholders, the men who have been rewarded. They are the ones who are calling upon the people to renominate Mr. Morris, and are telling the Republican party that it would be ungrateful to turn him down.

The truth of the statement that it is the officeholders who are active in the campaign for the renomination of Mr. Morris is easily found by looking over the personnel of the committee meeting here on March 15. The morning after the meeting a number of the members of the committee were interviewed in the News Tribune, and all said that their counties were sure to return Morris. Who were these men at this committee meeting?

Well, there was L. M. Willcuts, collector of customs of the port of Duluth, holding a proxy; W. E. Culkin, register of the land office ot Duluth, holding a proxy; H. G. Wire, of St. Cloud, postmaster, holding a proxy; N. H. Ingersoll, of Brainerd, postmaster, holding a proxy; J. Y. Breckenridge, of Pine City, postmaster; C. C. Eastman, of Wadena, postmaster; A. N. Dare, of Elk River, superyisor of the census, etc., etc.

Of course these men are all for Morris. Why shouldn't they be? All the laws of gratitude demand that they should be.—Duluth Herald.

PIETY IN BASKET FACTORY.

Religious Fervor of Employes Compels a Total Suspension of Work.

Owing to the results of a revival held at Sharpstown, Md., at the Methodist church a large basket factory had to close down recently. Soon after eight o'clock the other morning about 30 young women employed in the factory became so affected with religious fervor that they began to sing, pray and shout.

The men at work in another department were attracted to the scene. The proprietor of the factory, who is a Methodist, was called. He made no effort to control the girls, but told them to shout and rejoice and he would pay them as much for this as for working.

News of the unexpected demonstration spread, and so many persons visited the factory that the work was brought to a standstill. Probably 500 persons visited the factory, and, without stopping for food or rest, the services were continued until late in the afternoon, when the people went to their homes exhausted. Several conversions were reported.

SEARCHLIGHT FIRE ENGINE.

An Addition to the New York Fire Service Which Costs More Than a First-Class Pumping Engine.

Fire Commissioner Scannel, of New York, has closed a contract with a fire engine manufacturing company for the purchase of the Croker searchlight fire engine. Chief Croker, at whose instance the machine was built, said that it had demonstrated its usefulness in the department and was a success. At a fire in Mercer street the engine did excellent work by lighting up not only the front of the building but the various floors as well. The firemen were thus enabled to locate the fire and strike it from the rear, as well as the front. The contract price of the engine was $5,900. The engine is more expensive than a first-class pumping engine, which costs $4,700.

Lucky for Ladysmith.

The bicycle and the motocycle have done much to deprive horseflesh of its value in many civilized countries. But if the bicycle and the motocycle had driven the horses out of Ladysmith, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, the beleaguered inhabitants would now be short of their daily rations.

LITTLE BOBS.

[Verses written by Rudyard Kipling in honor of Lord Roberts, known as Fightin' Bobs, and published in the Pall Mall Gazette in 1895.]

There's a little red-faced man,
Which is Bobs!
Rides the tallest 'orse 'e can—
Our Bobs!
If it bucks or kicks or rears,
'E can sit for twenty years,
With a smile round both 'is ears—
Can't yer, Bobs?

If a limber's slipped a trace,
'Ook on Bobs;
If a marker's lost 'is place,
Dress by Bobs.
For 'e's eyes all up 'is coat,
An' a bugle in 'is throat,
An' you will not play the goat
Under Bobs.

'E's a little down on drink,
Chaplain Bobs;
But it keeps us outer Clink—
Don't it, Bobs?
So we will not complain,
Tho' 'e's water on the brain,
If 'e leads us straight again—
Blue-light Bobs.

If you stood him on 'is 'ead,
Father Bobs,
You could spill a quart o' lead
Outer Bobs;
'E's been at it thirty years,
An' amassing souveneers
In the way o' slugs an' spears—
Ain't yer, Bobs?

What 'e don't know o' war,
Gen'ral Bobs,
You can arst the shop next door—
Can't they, Bobs?
Oh, 'e's little, but 'e's wise;
'E's a terror for 'is size,
An' 'e—does—not—advertise—
Do yer, Bobs?

Now they've made a bloomin' lord
Outer Bobs?
Which was but 'is fair reward—
Weren't it, Bobs?
An he'll wear a coronet
Where 'is 'elmet used to set;
But we know you won't forget—
Will yer, Bobs?

Then 'ere's to Bobs Bahadur—
Little Bobs, Bobs, Bobs!
Pocket-Wellin'ton an' arder—
Fightin' Bobs, Bobs, Bobs!
This ain't no bloomin' ode
But you've 'elped the soldiers load,
An' for benefit bestowed,
Bless yer, Bobs!

CHANGE PARTNERS

THE club doctor had gone away looking very serious, and promising to call again in half an hour, after he had been to see another patient. He was thinking that by that time his patient might have died or recovered consciousness, in either of which cases he would be able to express a more decided opinion about her symptoms. At present they puzzled him, and he contented himself with looking grave, patting John Emanuel on the back and telling him to keep up heart and hope for the best. When he was gone the husband sat and stared at the fire, with his empty pipe in his hand. There was a certain enjoyment in the knowledge that everybody in the village would soon be talking about his wife's accident.

"Tha naabors'll mebbe coom in ta see Soosan," he said, aloud, reflectively; and he put down the empty pipe on the mantel shelf, with its cheap clock that seemed to tick more loudly than usual, and its two pot dogs, which smiled as foolishly as ever, in spite of the calamity which had come to the house.

There was a gentle tap at the door before he could sit down, and John Emanuel's face took a shade of deeper gravity and importance as he crossed the room to open it.

"Oh, it's thoo, Cousin Sarah," he said, as a buxom woman of 30 or so entered. "A thowt th' news be getting roond the plance."

"It's rare an' sad news," said Cousin Sarah, as she shut the door behind her. "A met th' doctor, as a wor coomin', an' he says it'll be th' end o' Soosan. Tell us how it coom abawt. They say as thee fawnd 'er when thee coom hoam to tha tea."

"Yaas," said John Emanuel, shaking his head slowly, "joost ath' foot o' th' ladder, an' a thowt she wor dead. Hoo long th' poor thing had bean thear a don't know, but she ha'n't mooved a syllabul since, an' I doan't think she ever will."

"Tha woan't find another like her in a hurry," said Cousin Sarah, who had been skirmishing around the place while she talked, and had just discovered a tablecloth, which she proceeded to lay on the wooden table in a bustling, workmanlike manner.

"A man mun have his vittles, coom what may," she said, in answer to his inquiring glance. A'll be boond tha's had nowt sin' tha coom hoam."

"A ha'n't thowt on it," said John Emanuel, looking a little brighter, as the bustling woman poked up the low fire and put on the kettle.

"Tha' woan't find another like Soosan in a hurry," she suggested again, as she returned to the table; and John Emanuel nodded.

"Oop early and ta bed laate," she went on, "an' haard at it all th' time; she wor a wonderful woman. What wor she dooin' when she toombled off th' ladder?"

"Whitewashing," said the husband.

"A thowt as much."

"Well! thoo'rt joost such another," suggested John Emanuel, as he watched her bustling about over the meal. "A've often said to mysen', Soosan an' Coosin Sarah are th' only two wimmen as a'd like ta see abawt ma plaace. "If Soosan shood be took,' a've said to mysen agaan and agaan, "Cousin Sarah's th' lass as a shood maak Missis Smith.'"

The woman stopped in the act of carving a huge slice of bread.

"Tha' doan't mean it, John Emanuel!" she said, staring at him.

"A do that," said John Emanuel, with determination: "but, of coorse, there's Patrick in tha way naw."

"Of coorse," said Cousin Sarah, going on with her bread cutting, and her tone became more conversational again. "Patrick coom with me as far as th' house," she said. "He sad he'd stop an' smoak in th' garden. He's no good in time o' trubble, ain't Patrick."

"He's noa nearer marryin', I spoase?" said John Emanuel, thoughtfully. Cousin Sarah shook her head.

"Patrick's bone idle, A think."

"Then why doan't thee gib him oop?" said the man, looking down at his boots.

"Give Patrick oop? Whatever foer?" said Cousin Sarah, with an excess of innocence, and the man still stared at his boots as he answered:

"Why, to marry me, of coorse. A shall want somebody ta fend an' to do for me when Soosan's goan."

Cousin Sarah put down the knife again to stare across at him.

"Dost ta mean it, John Emanuel?"

"A do," said he.

"Then a'll goa and tell Patrick that a caan't keap company wi'm any longer," she said, briskly, and she opened the cottage door to put her plan into execution as she spoke.

John Emanuel looked meditatively into the fire when she was gone. The kettle was beginning to sing. The cheap American clock seemed to tick more cheerfully.

"A wonder whaat Patrick'll saa," he remarked to himself aloud, and then he stared into the fire again.

Cousin Sarah came back just as the kettle was beginning to boil, and she made a dash for it with the teapot in her hand.

"Tha's not taaken long abaat it," said John Emanuel. "What does Patrick saa?"

"Oh, he doan't mind."

"Has he goan hoam?"

"Noa; he's taalking ta that Mary Emily Quipple next door over th' hedge."

"A'm glad he taakes it kind," said the man, as he began his tea. "Tha's not a wooman in these parts a'd like ta see in Soosan's plaace but tha' Cousin Sarah. Tha's maade this tea joost she does, and three loomps o' sugar, too."

"A spoas you'll be burying Soosan on the Sunday?" said Cousin Sarah, who had been following a train of thought of her own. "Tha' better get th' coffin maade in Yoark. It'll coom cheaper than if tha give it ta Tomphine ta do. He's rare an' dear. Whaat's the matter, John Emanuel?"

For the man was staring with a white, scared face toward the narrow, ladderlike steps that led up to room above. As he spoke, she, too, heard the sound of steps descending, and they both sat with mouths ajar, staring.

"A MAN MUN HAVE HIS VITTLES, COOM WHAT MAY."

The next moment they started simultaneously as a well known voice said, querulously:

"Here's a fine to do! Me lying in me bed till all tha daalight's goan, an' th' outhouse not haalf doon yet, joost because a've had a bit of a fall off th' ladder. It's like thee, John Emannel, laain' me there in th' best clean sheets wi' my dirty shoon and cloase on. Why, whaat's tha to do now, that tha looks as if tha'd seen a boggle?"

Ten minutes later Cousin Sarah called her former fiance, who was still conversing with a pretty pink-gowned country girl over the hedge that divided the front garden from the next.

"A maade a mistake, Patrick," she said, in a businesslike tone; "we'll goa on as we have been dooin'."

Patrick shook his head.

"Noa, Sarah; it's too laate," he said. "A've just asked Mary Emily Quipple to be ma wife, an' she's said 'Yaas.'"—Pall Mall Magazine.

Old Manners.

A gentleman of the old school said some years ago: "When I was young two gentlemen meeting in the street took off their hats to each other; a few years later and the bow had ceased; then came a time when they merely touched the brims of their hats; and now a jerk of the chin and a little grunt—'H'm, h'm'—is considered sufficient salutation between two men of quality and fashion." The habit of remaining uncovered in the presence of ladies died hard, but it is a good many years since the late Lord D—— was conspicuous as the only man who always stood bareheaded in the crush of the opera. "Mesdames," said an old lady, some fifty years ago, in reply to some complaints upon the changes in men's manners, "vous etes descendues de votre piedestal le jour ou vous aves permis aus messieurs de fumer devant vous." She little thought that in the days of the granddaughters of the women whom she was upbraiding the smoking-room would be common to both sexes, and the very idea of standing on a pedestal almost a subject of derision.—Cornhill Magazine.

Her Reason.

"Why did Mrs. Frizzington, the rich widow who furnished all the money for the business she and you have started, want the name of the firm to be 'Rootle & Frizzington' instead of 'Frizzington & Rootle,' as it ought to be,-seeing that she is much more heavily interested than you?"

"She did not want to be referred to as 'the senior partner.'" — Chicago Times-Herald.

A man named Smith died at Amesbury, Mass., the other day, and left a large fortune for which an heir is wanted. Somebody may be injured in the crush.

James B. Dill, a New York lawyer who was a reporter on a Chicago newspaper not many years ago, received a fee of $1,000,000 for adjusting the litigation and quarrel between Carnegie and Frick.

It is expensive for a rich man to die in England. George Smith, the American millionaire, who recently died in London, left an estate of $25,000,000, on which the succession tax was $4,500,000 or about 18 per cent.

Now New York rushes to the front with a proposition to hold a great world's fair in 1909. It will be in the nature of a celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the first visit to this country of Hendrik Hudson.

Gov. Stanley, of Kansas, will recommend to the next legislature the restoration of capital punishment when that penalty is fixed by the jury, leaving the governor only to execute the judgment. Numerous murders of recent occurrence in the state have influenced the governor to take this course.

During a bullfight in Madrid a panther, a lioness, a bear and a bull were turned loose in the pit before 12,000 people, and the bull finally conquered and gored them all. The master of ceremonies, in order to goad on the animals, kept shooting at them. Had we better not send a missionary or two to Spain instead of sending them all to Africa and China?

Before his election to congress Joseph C. Sibley, of the Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania district, declared that in the event of his success he would divide his salary for the entire term among the five hospitals of his district. In accordance with this promise he has given $1,000 each to the institutions named. When he represented the Twenty-sixth district he divided his salary among the labor organizations of Erie and Crawford counties.

Mrs. Minnie Parkhurst, of Hudson, Ark., has accomplished the remarkable feat of obliging a railway to carry eight persons for the price of one ticket. There was no charity about it, either, and the eight passengers rode in strict compliance with the railway's rules. Mrs. Parkhurst is not a "new woman," nor is she looking for any more rights than she now enjoys. She has seven children, all under five years of age, and she took herself and them from her home to Minnesota for one fare.

Statistics of the number of species of animals now known to exist on land and sea show a total of 400,000, while there are 150,000 kinds of plants. Insects alone furnish 208,000 species, of which 120,000 are coleoptera, with lepidoptera, 50,000, and hymenoptera, 38,000. Birds number 13,000, fish 12,000, reptiles 8,300, of which 1,640 are serpents, 300 being venomous. The amphibians are 1,300 in number, spiders, 20,000; mollusks, 50,000; worms, 8,000; echinoderms, 3,000. The Museum of Natural History at Berlin contains 200,000 species.

A scientific journal says that the lobster is becoming so scarce that the government has ordered an investigation. The government fish commission has sown great quantities of lobster spawn, but without any good results, and they are becoming very scarce. The lobster is a slow grower and is not large enough to be serviceable for food until four years old, and it does not begin to reproduce until eight years old. During the past year the price of lobsters has increased 100 per cent., and unless something is done the lobster will become extinct.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company has awarded contracts for the construction of the largest solid masonry bridge in the world. It will cost $1,000,000 and will span the Susquehanna river at Havre de Grace, on the main line between Baltimore and Philadelphia. The bridge will consist of 48 solid masonry arches of cut stone, each of which will be 72 feet in the clear, giving the bridge a total length of 3,700 feet. It will take several years to finish the bridge, but when completed the road will have a structure that will stand for centuries.

AT THE POLLS.

Municipal Elections Are Held in Many States — Republicans Win in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, April 3.—The republicans scored a success over the fusionists at the election here Monday for all the city officers. They also have all members of the new board of public service for three years, which controls everything except the police and fire departments. The board of legislation stands: Twenty-four republicans and seven democrats, and the board of education 24 republicans and seven democrats. Three years ago the fusion ticket was elected by a plurality of 7,445 on a total vote of 66,000. The majority of Fleischmann (rep.) Monday over Cohen (fusion) for mayor is 5,518.

A summary of the results of the municipal and township elections in Ohio indicate more republican than democratic gains, but no special cause for it is assigned, except that the republican factions that have been fighting for years have evidently been getting together and that the democrats have shown more indifference than usual. In Cleveland, where the factions have been most intense, the result is decisive. A feature of the day was the election of Dr. Washington Gladden as a councilman at Columbus, where the question of municipal franchises was a special issue. The writings of Dr. Gladden on labor questions and social and political economy are well known, as well as his work as a pastor and lecturer and his experience in a parliament of ward representatives will no doubt attract great interest. The republicans elected their ticket at Toledo, where Mayor Samuel Jones has held sway as an independent factor for years. At Dayton the democrats reelected Mayor Lindmuth.

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—The democrats made several striking gains in the municipal and township elections held in all Michigan cities Monday except Detroit and Port Huron. At Lansing, J. F. Hammell was elected by 316 majority, the first democratic mayor in ten years. Mayor George R. Perry (dem.) was reelected at Grand Rapids over ex-Mayor Stuart by 1,388 majority. His majority last year was only 723. There is a strong Holland Dutch vote in Grand Rapids, and dissatisfaction with the administration's course toward the Boers is believed to be reflected in the increased democratic majority. Both candidates ran on liberal administration of the laws platforms. At Petoskey, which has hitherto been republican, the democrats carried two of the three wards and elected P. B. Wachtel mayor. Hudson and Ann Arbor both show democratic gains. At Big Rapids the democrats reduced the republican majorities of last year by half. Democratic Mayor W. B. Baum was reelected at Saginaw, although by a reduced majority. Ludington, Lapeer, Alpena, Mount Clemens, Sturgis, Traverse City, St. Clair, Ypsilanti, St. Ignace, Niles and Adrian also went democratic. At Manistee two democratic tickets were in the field, and the republicans elected their entire city ticket. Jackson republicans elected their candidate for mayor, the democrats electing the rest of the ticket. At Eaton Rapids the republican ticket was elected, and at Hastings the republicans were successful for the first time in the city's history. St. Joseph and Grand Haven also went republican. A number of bonding propositions and charter amendements were voted on in different parts of the state. Late returns show that the republicans were also victorious in Albion, Benton Harbor, Cadillac, Coldwater, Corunna, East Tawas, Holland, Kalamazoo, Marine City, Mason, Midland, Monroe, Mount Pleasant, Negaunee, Niles, Owosso, St. Louis, Stanton and West Bay City.

Keokuk, Ia., April 3.—At the city election the democrats elected three of six aldermen, making no change in the political complexion of the council, which is still a tie.

Dubuque, Ia., April 3.—Politics cut no figure in the election. The democrats made a campaign on the issue of economy and reform in public morals. Returns from most of the precincts show C. H. Berg (citizens' candidate) reelected mayor by over 2,000 majority.

Topeka, Kan., April 3.—The election for city offices in the town of Beattie, in Marshall county, Monday was a contest between men and women and the men won. A ticket composed entirely of women was elected a year ago. The women officers, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Totten, mayor, were candidates for reelection. Aside from the sex and personality of the candidates, the principal issue was whether joints should be allowed to run, the men favoring a wide-open policy. The men rebelled against the strict prohibition enforced by the women and the entire men's ticket was elected with the exception of clerk, one councilman and marshal. The latter is a man.

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 3.—Utah voted for congressman to succeed Roberts, rejected by the house. King (dem.) for congress was elected over Hammond (rep.) by probably 2,000 majority.

The painters' scale became operative Monday on a nine-hour basis, with an advance of ten per cent.

TRAPPED BY BOERS.

Col. Broadwood Marches Into Ambush Near Bloemfontein—Enemy Capture Seven Guns.

London, April 3. — The war office reports that Col. Broadwiid lost seven guns and all his baggage in the ambush laid for him by the Boers on Saturday. The casualties numbered 350.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 1:

"I received news late yesterday evening from Col. Broadwood, who was at Thaba n'Bhu, 38 miles east of here, that information has reached him that the enemy was approaching in two forces, from the north and the east. He stated that if the report proved true he would retire towards the waterworks, 17 miles nearer Bloemfontein, where we have had a detachment of mounted infantry for the protection of the works.

"Broadwood was told in reply that the Ninth division with Martyr's mounted infantry will march at daylight to-day to support him, and that if he considers it necessary he should retire from the waterworks. He moved there during the night and bivouacked. At dawn to-day, he was shelled by the enemy, who attacked on three sides. He immediately dispatched two horse artillery batteries and his baggage toward Bloemfontein, covering some of them with his cavalry.

"Some two miles from the waterworks the road crosses a deep nullah, or spruit, in which during the night a force of Boers had concealed themselves. So well were they hidden that our leading scouts passed over the drift without discovering them, and it was not until the wagons and guns were entering the drift that the Boers showed themselves and opened fire. Many of the drivers of the artillery horses were immdiately shot down at short range, and several of the guns were captured. The remainder galloped away, covered by Roberts' horse, which suffered heavily.

"Meanwhile, Lieut. Chestermasters, of Remington's scouts, found a passage across the spruit unoccupied by the enemy, by which the remainder of Broadwood's force crossed. They reformed with great steadiness, notwithstanding all that had previously occurred.

"Broadwood's report, which has just reached me, and which contains no details, stated that he had lost seven guns, and all his baggage. He estimates all his casualties at about 350, including 200 missing.

"On hearing this morning that Broadwood was hard pressed, I immediately ordered Gen. French with two remaining cavalry brigades to follow in support of the Ninth division. The latter, after a magnificent march, arrived on the scene of action shortly after two p. m.

"Broadwood's force consisted of the Royal household cavalry, the Tenth hussars, Q and U, batteries of the Royal horse artillery and Pilcher's battalion of mounted infantry.

"The strength of the enemy is estimated at from 8,000 to 10,000, with guns, the number of which is not yet reported."

Bloemfontein, April 2.—Gen. Lord Roberts has sent a telegram of condolence to President Kruger on the death of Gen. Joubert. Rudyard Kipling has written a poem on Joubert's death, which appears in The Friend of the Free State.

Kansas City, Mo., April 2.—A Journal special from Washington says: Webster Davis, of Kansas City, will tender his resignation to the president as assistant secretary of the interior. Mr. Davis decided to take this course as the result of his visit to South Africa. He has decided to deliver a public address touching the entire scope of the present war and believes that he can best do so while free from any restraint which his present position would impose upon him. When taking his departure for home from Pretoria 2,000 people appealed to him in tears to state their cause to the American people, and Mr. Davis says his conscience would haunt him if he proved recreant to that pitiful appeal. He believes the American people are not truly informed on the situation. He will therefore avail himself of an early opportunity to relate his experience and observations at a public meeting that shall be free to all.

Owosso, Mich., April 2. — Fire Sunday destroyed $150,000 worth of school property in this city, caused the death of two men and injury to five others. The dead are Fred Ross, fireman, and Frank Tucker, school boy. The injured are Charles Beatty and Will Ross, firemen, and Frank Rulledge, Frank Davis and Solomon Vogel, school boys. The fire started from a chimney burning out.

Portland, Ore., March 30.—Fourteen thousand people have engaged passage from Pacific coast ports for Cape Nome, Alaska, on the first fleet of steamers, which sails about May 1. It is stated that 42 steamers will leave for Nome from San Francisco, Puget sound ports and Portland, practically at the same time. Many of these steamers will make two trips, and it is estimated that upwards of 20,000 people will leave Pacific ports for the new gold fields during the season.

Was Bound to Die.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 31. — A sensational suicide occurred on Goat Island, near the spring. A man waded out as far as he could, shot himself three times in the head, pitched forward into the water and was swept down between Luna and Goat islands, going over the falls at the Cave of the Winds. From papers and letters left behind he is thought to be Hippolyte Schneider, of Pittsburgh.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The tenth annual session of the Grand Council of Minnesota, Royal Arcanum, was held in St. Paul, on the 27th. Eighty-seven officers and representatives were present. The reports of the officers showed a membership of 4,186 in the state, an excellent gain for the year. The following officers were elected: Grand Regent, R. B. McKenney, Minneapolis; Grand Vice Regent, Geo. W. Dunlap, St. Paul; Grand Orator, W. L. Comstock, Mankato; Past Grand Regent, H. C. Gilbert, St. Paul; Grand Secretary, Geo. T. Hughes, Duluth; Grand Treasurer, L. L. Sandford, Minneapolis; Grand Chaplain, J. H. B. Easton, Rochester; Grand Guide, F. C. Campbell, Minneapolis; Grand Warden, O. M. Finance Committee, F. J. Meyst, W. W. McFarlane and H. W. Davison. Hon. Jere Holdeman, of St. Louis, was present as installing officer.

The grand council voted to endorse legislation for a $500 certificate and the reduction of the minimum age to eighteen years. Also to abolish the present form of the investigating committee's report on applicants. The next meeting of the grand body will be held at Mankato, March 26th, 1901.

A County Line Fight.

County Auditor Minor, of Hennepin county, has decided to include six sections of Ramsey county on the tax rolls of Hennepin county, and if he carries out his intentions, there will be trouble for the people living in the strip included in the three westerly sections of the town of Rose and the city of St. Paul.

The trouble over the strip is due to an error in fixing the boundaries between Hennepin and Ramsey counties. The legislature tried to correct the error, which was simply a clerical one, but inadvertently moved the line one mile farther west than was originally intended. It is claimed that the latter act is illegal, because it was done by resolution, when it should have been done by law. Thus the original act stands with an error of course, but it is claimed that the mistake is clearly a clerical one and does not affect title to the land.

Postponed.

The annual convention of the Minnesota Sunday School Association, announced for April 17-19, has been postponed until May 15-17 in order that Marian Lawrence, general secretary of the International work, may be present. The opportunity to hear two such practical workers as Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Meigs is a rare one. Let all the Sunday schools of the state be planning to send big delegations. St. Paul will most hospitably entertain all who come. For information write to headquarters, Y. M. C. A. building, Minneapolis. Mrs. J. E. Hobart, Sec'y.

Spring

Annually Says Take Hood's Sarsaparilla

In the spring those Pimples, Boils, Eruptions and General Bad Feelings indicate that there are cobwebs in the system. It needs a thorough brushing, and the best brush is Hood's Sarsaparilla, which sweeps all humors before it. This great medicine eradicates Scrofula, subdues Salt Rheum, neutralizes the acidity which causes Rheumatism — in short, purifies the blood and thoroughly renovates the whole physical system.

"We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has given the best of satisfaction, especially as a spring medicine. It builds up the general system and gives new life." DWIGHT C. PARK, Whiteland, Indiana.

HORSES IN THE WAR.

A Good Idea of the Characteristics of the Different Types in South Africa.

There are many different kinds of horses employed in the present campaign and the following gives a very good idea of the characteristics of the various types, says the South African Press. The heavy horses of the royal horse artillery are magnificent animals, towers of strength every one. They are splendidly trained and combine immense power with great activity.

It is a grand sight to see them in action. The dragoons and hussars are mounted on great heavy chargers, which thunder over the plain, but they are lighter than the artillery horses. The Australians have fine, serviceable steeds, upstanding and by no means light, and kept in excellent order. The New Zealanders brought their mounts with them direct from the Britain of the south and an exceptionally shapely lot they are, showing breed in every line. They have done a great deal of trying work since their arrival, really more than their share, in fact, and have shown themselves thoroughly reliable nags. They average about 15½ hands and are perhaps a little lighter than the Australian mounts.

A number of South American horses have arrived from the Argentine and they are in remarkably good condition, as sleek as moles. They are thick-set, strongly built little horses, too large to call ponies, but nothing like the height of the chargers above mentioned, and it is likely that in the field these "big little" South American cobs should prove as serviceable as any.

Last, and least in stature, are the horses of the mounted infantry, South African horses, light, active, strong. Small though they are, compared to the majority of the mounts, they are by no means to be despised, for they do their work well and keep up remarkably. They are nimble over the strong ridges, and fleet of foot across the native flats, and if well cared for will get through the campaign in as good order as any.

It is said that care will kill a cat; but if a man doesn't care very much he will probably find a bootjack or a gun just as effective.—Chicago Daily News.

I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I want your advice before beginning its use. I have become very much alarmed about her, as she is getting so weak."—MRS. MATILDA A. CAMP, Manchester Mill, Macon, Ga., May 21, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It affords me great pleasure to tell you of the benefit my daughter has received from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After beginning the use of your medicine she began to mend rapidly and is now able to be at her work. Her menses are regular and almost painless. I feel very thankful to you and expect to always keep your Vegetable Compound in my house. It is the best medicine I ever knew. You have my permission to publish this letter if you wish, it may be the means of doing others good."—MRS. MATILDA A. CAMP, Manchester Mill, Macon, Ga., September 18, 1899.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

THE GREAT FACTOR IT WILL BE IN THE CAMPAIGN OF 1900.

Some Earnest Expressions on the Subject From Headquarters—Views of Chairman Johnson of the National Executive Committee—"Coin" Harvey's New Work of Great Power—The Good Work at Home. Other National Points—Encouragement From General Weaver—The Increasing Broad Spirit Among All the Allies—The State Round-Up—Twin City Political Harmony and Other Small Things—Political Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, April 2, 1900.

It is clear that aside from the help the Republicans are to give the reform forces by their blunders, inconsistencies and proven subserviency to monopoly, the great mainspring of action for this campaign is to be education. The people have but to have existing facts, touching the tendencies of the government in the backward direction from all that the fathers have taught us, added to their own experience of receiving no appreciable part in the enlarged trade and business of the country, (their less and less profits for toil and investment), to bring them to the side of right in November. The power of such education was found by the writer to be an uppermost topic with the working head of the national executive committee, Hon. J. G. Johnson, in a recent interview with that gentleman. He first spoke of the effect of the wide publicity of Mr. Bryan's great speeches, and the inestimable benefit the monopolistic press had conferred upon our cause, though with no intention of doing so. "The Republican metropolitan press outnumbers ours many times," said Mr. Johnson, "and not possessing that means, we must use books and pamphlets." In that connection Mr. Johnson commented upon and commended unstintingly the new book of Hon. W. H. Harvey, which has been repeatedly referred to in these writings, and he especially requested that our press advise the people to buy and read Coin's new work, "Money, Trusts and Imperialism." Mr. Johnson explained that there was no money with which to purchase and circulate the book, but that the people must do this themselves. If they would do this, placing the book in the hands of the young especially, till its teachings are fastened on their minds, the republic would be saved. Failure to give attention to such instilling of principles, had lost the people political control in several states in the recent past.

Something further said by Mr. Johnson will be a great stimulus to many of our co-workers who have already gone ahead on their own hooks, at their own expense—that of the people themselves—such as is being done by the Minneapolis anti-imperialists, by the Co-Operative Library schemes, and otherwise. That was this:

"The best policy in this fight for the people to save themselves from class laws is to encourage them to make their own fight. A self-relying people will make a strong fight, but people who wait for some one to give them literature are apt soon to fall under the influence of class legislation, fostering class laws, secured by those who buy the literature. The national committee's duty is to aid the people in the management of their campaign and to teach them to be self reliant."

Mr. Johnson reiterated again and again the great value of the Harvey book, and at the low price, 25 cents, it was within the reach of all. "Say to your readers," he said in conclusion, "that this is their cause, and that I want them to see to it that a thorough campaign of education is made. Things are tending our way now, but this should not breed overconfidence, but should rather give us new courage, cause us to be aggressive, and leave nothing undone that may aid in securing success."

"Money, Trusts and Imperialism," can be obtained of all book dealers, or direct from the publishers, Chicago. Any orders can also be entrusted to this bureau.

The following can be addressed for their respective kinds of literature, being sent out gratis:

For anti-imperialist publications, Fred G. Corser, Minneapolis; H. M. Mize, Chicago, or Hon. Erwin Winslow, Bostan, Mass.

For anti-trust documents, Hon. George S. Bowen, Chicago.

For Lincoln Republican documents, Hon. E. S. Corser, Minneapolis.

For congressional speeches and documents, under frank, Hon. R. F. Pettigrew or Hon. William Sulzer, Washington.

Requests for any of the foregoing, or any other inquiries, may be addressed to this Bureau.

The visit of General Weaver of Iowa to St. Paul during the week, was of more importance than was generally known. In the conference which took place with some of the General's Peoples party friends, he had a message of hope and confidence which rejoiced all in their inmost souls. General Weaver gave facts gathered since the recent Lincoln convention, showing the harmony existing among the Populists, and, as bearing on the presidential nomination, showing the broad spirit of patriotism that is spreading among all classes and all of the allies. Men in all parts of the country, the General reported, are working for the broadest action at the coming Sioux Falls convention, such as would avoid partisan bitterness among the Democrats. To this end General Weaver's idea is that the Sioux Falls convention, instead of making a formal nomination of Mr. Bryan, declare by resolution that he is already the candidate chosen of all the people, and as such they endorse him, and call upon all other allies in this great struggle to do likewise. This idea meets with a cordial response so far as canvassed in Minnesota, and was unanimously approved by those conferring with General Weaver.

In connection, General Weaver made a very encouraging report on Michigan, where he had just been. The broadest spirit is actuating the reform forces there, uniting all the allies, and independents, Populists and Democrats are expecting to unite for a victory against the Republicans, crushed and humbled as they are, with the recent exposure of rottenness. And there is a possibility that such united forces may support Pingree on an independent ticket.

A good specimen of the prevailing opinion that Bryan will be elected, is given by the Philadelphia Record, and New York Evening Post, neither of which papers are Bryan supporters but whose Washington correspondents agree that McKinley's fate is in doubt. "If the election should occur this week," says one, "Bryan would be the next president. "On the Porto Rico tariff issue," he continued, "the Republicans would lose Indiana and also Illinois; and McKinley on that platform, (as he is now destined to be), will find the chances against him in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and Ohio would be very doubtful."

If it would not be a violation of confidence, the writer could give the name of a prominent Minnesota Republican, recently returned from a long business trip in the East, and who informed the writer in confidence that the impression grows in Wall street and other business quarters in the East, that Bryan is going to be elected. And this man added the reason why there was no regret expressed, much less fears, which was that the "prosperity" on the country is only that of the great concerns, where business and high prices have been forced, they taking all the profits, in a word the big fish only getting anything, and these eating up the little ones. "That's what's the matter with us," this man confessed.

The Populists have the first of the political innings this year, commencing April 27, throughout the state, when the primaries are to be held for delegates to the state convention. These choose delegates to the county conventions which are to be held next day, April 28. In this connection county chairmen, under action of the state committee, are urged to hold county conventions under proper call, but if none is called or held, then the people are to take action by mass conventions. These county delegates are for the state meeting May 2, when, the indications are, there will be a large and harmonious convention.

Speaking of the mid-roaders, the Sioux Falls Press announces that paid agents of Hanna are due to make their appearance in Minnesota, providing for mid-roaders to attend the Cincinnati convention. In which connection the Press remarks that it is hard to fathom the Hanna tactics which are exploiting Doc Fay, as mid-road vice presidential candidate, when Mr. Donnelly is already the candidate on the ticket with Parker.

Manager Calderwood of the Twin City Rapid Transit company is back at his post, just in time to attend to the Minneapolis proposal to reduce fares to six for 25 cents, regular, and eight for a quarter morning and evening, for workingmen. Also he can give some attention to that little delinquency of $10,000 of unpaid corporation taxes.

Speaking of reduced fares, a Twin City movement is on foot for a smaller coin than the penny, and petitions to Uncle Sam are in circulation for the half-penny to be coined. It is so "English, you gnaw," and so appropriate to the little things, including profits in business, under the English gold standard policy.

Speaking of continued shrinkages, under the gold standard, the Methodist bishopric residence at Minneapolis has gone into the mortgagees' maw, after the payment of $15,000 on the property. Another like item is the home purchased by the Associated Press in South Minneapolis, for one of the victims of the great Tribune fire. It has been sold for taxes. Also, Hennepin county subordinat officeholders have had their gold standard benefits emphasized by a slash of 10 per cent in salaries.

Lost, strayed or swallowed up in the imperialistic maw, one first-class presidential boom for C. K. Davis. Finder apply to Minneapolis Times for suitable reward.

And, speaking of Senator Davis, there is nothing but praise for his appeal in the senate for free trade and justice for Porto Rico. That he will fall by the wayside, crushed under Hanna's trust juggernaut, is poor reward for the distinguished service he has rendered, in giving us the imperialism of the Philippines. Puerto Rico is a wee small imperialist chick come home to roost.

While there has been more or less "music" in the St. Paul municipal contest, the cause of the Doc Ames party has marched on uninteruptedly. The nomination of Dr. Ames by the holy-water party is now conceded. In fact the G. O. P. endeavorers are devoted to endeavoring how to prevent that result, but see no hope. But why this humming and hawing about the genial doctor? Is not Doc Ames, with all that can be heaped upon him good, bad and indifferent, better, far better than the party he has returned to?

Waseca recently held a great pro Boer meeting, and in the list of the eloquent Americans speakers we again fail to see the name of one S. R. Van Sant. Is the eloquent Van Sant never going to get back from Wisconsin!

A Competent Defense.

The homeliest man in congress is Eddy, of Minnesota. He rather glories in the distinction of ugliness, especially as all his other characteristics are enviable. During his last campaign the enemies of Mr. Eddy charged him with being double-faced. He met the charge in a manner that disarmed all criticism. A SUCCESSFUL FARMER.

Within three miles of the town going eastward is the farm of Mr. W. Creamer, one of the municipality's largest and most prosperous mixed farmers. Mr. Creamer came to this country in 1880 and settled on a portion of the land which comprises his present enormous farm of 1,280 acres. In common with many others of a similar period he experienced all the hardships and difficulties common to the absence of railway and market facilities. In no wise daunted, by energy, industry and indomitable will he has been able to surmount all obstacles and has achieved an unparalleled success, and is known throughout the district as one of its preeminent farmers. His operations extend over 1,280 acres, two sections (the thought alone of so much land makes the eastern farmer dizzy); 800 acres of this is broken and the remainder is excellent pasture land and wood. This harvest he took off a crop of 500 acres of wheat and 200 of other grains. Four hundred acres are plowed and ready for wheat next spring. Mr. Creamer is, as has been stated, a mixed farmer of no mean proportions, having at the present time 40 horses, 60 head of cattle and 50 pigs. The most modern farm buildings are found on his premises, the main building being a barn 55 feet square on a stone foundation containing stabling for 16 horses and a large number of cattle. The loft is stored with 29 loads of sheaf oats for feed and tons of hay; there is also a cutting box. Another building of large dimensions is the granary, in which after teaming large quantities to market he still has stored 3,000 bushels of wheat. A crushing machine is in the building. There are a number of lesser buildings containing chicken house, pig pens and cattle sheds. The farm residence is a handsome frame structure of ample proportions, in connection with it is a wood shed. The water supply is unexcelled; besides house supply there is a well in the stables and a never failing spring situate in a bluff, which never freezes. Surrounded by a thick bluff of poplars, extending in a semi circle to the west, north and east, the winter storms are broken and accumulation of snow unknown. Added to his farming operations, Mr. Creamer conducts a threshing outfit for the season. His success is only one instance of what can be accomplished in Western Canada.—Baldur (Man.) Gazette, Nov. 16th, 1899.

Thousands are going to Western Canada this year to take advantage of the free homestead laws that are being offered by the government.

This young fellow is engaged to a pretty Detroit girl, but they don't care to publish the bans until after Lent. This disturbs an irascible old uncle of hers, who has a daughter of his own, too much after his own style to be a favorite. He took it upon himself to send for the young man the other day.

"Are you going to marry that niece of mine?" he asked, sternly, when they were alone in the inner office.

"Pardon me, sir, but I must decline to answer. She has a father and a mother, and I'm on good terms with them. I fail to see that it is your affair."

"There's a whole lot that you fail to see, young man. I'm really the head of our family, and I'll not shirk my duty. Her parents are a couple of chumps. Are you or are you not engaged?"

"You force me to say, sir, that it is none of your infernal business and that you are just what I heard you were, a sour, cross-grained old curmudgeon."

"See here, sonny, I'll not bandy words with the likes of you, but if you had been going with my daughter as long as you have my niece, I wouldn't do a thing but put a revolver to your head, informing you that if you didn't marry her I'd shoot."

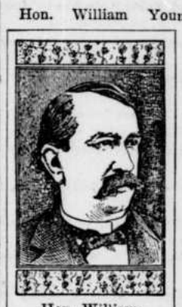
PERUNA PROTECTS OUR HOMES.

The Roberts Family, of Falls City, Neb., Are Healthy and Happy—A Rare Sight in These Days. They Say, "We Think Peruna Is The Greatest Medicine On Earth."

No man is better known in the State of Nebraska than Mr. Carl T. Roberts, contractor and mason. A typical American—active, shrewd and full of business sagacity. He is not only a provider for his family, but a protector. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he writes, among other things, as follows:

"Our boy, James, had the membranous croup, and repeated attacks of lung fever. Our boy, Charlie, was also subject to repeated attacks of pneumonia and pleurisy. Our third boy, John, was subject to fever and ague (malarial) and liver trouble. Your remedy, Peruna, cured my boys entirely, and now I have three of the healthiest boys in the State of Nebraska, which I attribute to your medicine. My wife had a stomach trouble which Peruna also cured. Altogether for my whole family we have used nineteen bottles of Peruna, and have thus saved $500 in doctors' bills. I am a contractor and mason by trade and am known all over Nebraska. I have had a stomach trouble which has been greatly relieved by your remedy, Peruna, for which I am still taking it. We think it is the greatest medicine on earth." C. T. Roberts, Falls City, Nebraska.



Hon William Youngblood.

Hon. William Youngblood, Anditor for the Interior writes from Washington, D. C., to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, as follows: "I've often heard of your great medicine and have persuaded my wife, who has been much of a sufferer from catarrh, to try Peruna, and after using one bottle she has wonderfully improved. It has proved all you have claimed for it, and I take pleasure in recommending it to anyone who is afflicted with catarrh." Peruna has become, in a multitude of households, absolutely indispensable.

Mr. T. G. Walker, Carneiro, Kansas, writes: "It is with pleasure that I report that I am better than I have been for many years. I believe Peruna is without a doubt the best medicine that ever was used in a family. It has cured my nervousness, with which I have been afflicted for a great number of years."

It is a fact of ever-increasing astonishment that so many otherwise sensible and provident people will, for the neglect of so simple a precaution as to have a bottle of Peruna at hand, bring upon themselves the needless suffering and foolish expense that a practitioner of medicine is forced to witness every day.

As soon as the value of Peruna is fully appreciated by every household, both as a preventive and cure of these affections, tens of thousands of lives will be saved, and hundreds of thousands of chronic, lingering cases of disease prevented. Peruna is the household safeguard.

Feminine Consistency.

Mrs. Greene—They do say that Mr. Slyder gambles. Isn't it awful?

Mrs. Gray—I should say it was. Why, it's almost as bad as stealing. If he wins, he robs some other man; if he loses, he robs his family.

Some of the delights of single blessedness were discovered by a British bachelor who was sewing a button on his overcoat without a thimble. When the needle was partly through the cloth he would force it further by pressing the shank against the wall; then he would aid the movement by dragging the needle forward with his teeth. He was engaged in the latter part of the performance when his teeth slipped from the needle and he fell backward from his chair to the floor, breaking his collar-bone.

ALABASTINE

WHAT ALABASTINE IS.

Alabastine is the original and only durable wall coating on the market. It is entirely different from all kalsomine preparations. Alabastine is made ready for use in white or fourteen beautiful tints by the addition of cold water. It is put up in dry powdered form, in packages, properly labeled, with full directions on every package. It takes the place of scaling kalsomines, wall paper and paint for walls. Alabastine can be used on plaster, brick, wood or canvas, and a child can brush it on.

WHAT "KALSOMINES" ARE.

Kalsomines are cheap and temporary preparation, manufactured from whiting, chalks, clays, etc. They are stuck on the walls with decaying animal glue. Alabastine is not a kalsomine. It is a rock-base cement, which sets, and it hardens with age. It can be re-coated and re-decorated without having to wash and scrape off its old coats. Alabastine is utilized to a great extent in hospitals, as it prevents the accumulation of dirt and the congregating of disease germs, being disinfectant in its nature.

CHURCHES AND SCHOOLHOUSES.

The interior walls of churches, schoolhouses and all public halls should never be coated with anything but the durable and pure Alabastine. So evident has this fact become, that hundreds of tons are used annually for this work. The genuine Alabastine does not rub or scale off. It is cleanly during the long period of its usefulness. Every owner of a building should use it. Ask your paint dealer or druggist for card of tints, and write for free copy of our interesting booklet to Alabastine Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.

REJECT THE "JUST AS GOOD."

The dealer who tells you that he can sell you the "same thing" as Alabastine or "something just as good," either is not posted or is trying to deceive you. In offering something he has bought cheap and is trying to sell on Alabastine's demands, he may not realize the danger to himself as well as to you. Beware of all new substitutes. Dealers risk a suit for damages by selling and consumers by using an infringement. Alabastine Co. own the right to make and sell wall coatings adapted to mix with cold water.

DELANO, FRIDAY, April. 6, 1900.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Equestrious and bicycle riders are enjoying the fine weather and good roads.

—Seeding has begun, and farmers are happy in expectation of a bonutiful crop in the fall.

—Billings and Farnham, (Ed of Cokato) are to occupy the restaurant building as a law office.

—The Delano Steam Laundry, south of track on River St., runs Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursay and Fri. 11tf.

—The repairs ha vebegun on the M. E. parsonage, prepratory to painting. Several subscribers have not yet handed in their contributions. They are now needed.

—Spring moving has begun. A. E. Johnson and Len Diedrich are to trade residences. Johnson has bought the resturant of O. L. Billings and will move it into the Diedrich building.

—The weather is fine, but just crisp enough to keep the spring overcoat in use. People who discard their winter clothing too soon in this country are apt to pay dearly for their indiscretion.

—Quite a number of horse owners have had their animals clipped, this spring. Own to the warmer weather it don't look so cruel as it did last spring Though a blanket feels good to them some days.

—Old Sol's heat, and the balmy air is causing the disapperance of storm doors and windows. They have not yet been replaced by the mosquito netting but probably many of them soon will be.

—The Modern Brotherhood of America lodge of Delano, was represented at Waverly today, at the trial of Mr. Hill, the organizer, against whom charges have been made of some kind of crookedness in business matters.

—The new lumber man F. C. Belden, is occupying the Miss White house, on Third Street, lately vacated by his predecessor, W. E. Shipley. Mr. S. hrs moved his family to Dayton, Iowa, to take the place formerly held by Mr. Belden. They exchanged jobs.

—The river is raising and the ice going out; a little earlier in the season than usual. We have had a remarkable fine winter and seem to be going to have as nice a spring. If Minnesota was like this every year the inhabitants thereof would be much more contented than they sometimes are.

—The Y. P. C. E. Society will give a dime social at the City Hall tonight. Everybody invited the Programe is as follows:

Song	Endeavar.
Recitation	Flossie Davis.
Violin Solo	Lotta Rossen.
Reading	Mrs. Shaw.
Song	Marjorie O'Hair.
A Story	Three Old Maids.
Instrumental Solo	Miss Lolo Henion.
Recitation	Emma Hildebrantd.
Street Scine in New York	Tableau.

—We have all along claimed that the improved plan of trying to educate children without begining at the foundation was a farce and a failur, in most cases. Children sholud know their abces before they go any further, and they should know their figures as well. Then they are prepared to put them together to make small words or small numbers and so on up. This beginning to read without knowing the letters was an erroneous idea, probably originated by some one who had a dumb pupil that could not learn the letters. In another column is an article on the subject showing how they dislike such things in Chicago, and Chicago is not alone.

ROCKFORD.

The village school will have the usual spring vacation this week.

The civil case of of Fred Tessmer vs. Gust Steinke for $50. damage, for cutting timber on Tessmer's land, in the Town of Greenwood, was called, in Justice Florida's court, on the 29th, and an adjournment taken till April 5, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Town House. M. A. O'Hair attorney for plaintiff.

O. H. Harvey, of Rockford, is the successful bidder on the Rockford and Delano mail route. Service to commence the 16th day of April, 1900, for 3 years, 2½ months. Star route contractors have the chronic habit of trying to cut each others throats as well as their own by insignificant bids? Or perhaps the honor of working for Uncle Sam pays with very little cash consideration.

Last Saturday, at noon the village was startled by the cry of "Fire! Fire!" Smoke was issuing from all parts of Mrs. Goulet's house, on Mechanic's street occupied by C. C. Willcutt and W. H. Prestidge. The fire was soon located in a small closet in the Prestidge room. None of the family were at home. The fire was soon cleaned out with water from the river. In about two mineuts from the time the alarm was given a large crowd was on hand, with pails, ready for work. Not very much damage was done. But work for the housekeeper, cleaning out mud and water, and the burning of the contents of the closet: wite the loss of books and papers, and amongst others the financial books and records of the A. O. U. W. Lodge, of Rockford, of which W. H. Prestidge was financier. How the fire orginated no one can tell. Matches were kept in the closet, and it is suggested that the fire was started by mice and matches.

K. C. Bucklin went to the city on business Thursday evening. He returned on Saturday with A. A. Farnham, from St. Paul.

Mrs. Marcia A. Moore, of Rockford, was a delegate to the Grand Lodge of the Degree of Honor, of St. Paul, last week.

Litchfield Independent: Congressmen Eddy, Morris and McCleary are with the president in his scheme to levy a tarriff against Porto Rico. Morris came home to explain his vote. All three declare the people don't understand the matter and that if they did they would not oppose the position taken by these worthies. These men are so smart and know so much more than the entire body of their consituency, that things will be in a bad shape after they quit the helm. Such exhibitions of egotism are amusing.

Minneapolis Tribune: For an advocate of peace the Russian czar is displaying a good deal of pernicious activity in stirring up trouble with an implied threat of war. He is pursuing an aggressive policy in Persia, making hostile demonstrations towards Afghanistan, bullying the Turkish sultan, and treading upon the corns of Japan by demanding a Korean port. He is doing this while England's hands are tied and with the knowledge that the countries he is treatening are in no condition to resist his powerful armament.

Le Sueur Sentinel: General Joseph Wheeler, who is now at home, having resigned in the Philippines last Noyember, is being urged to withold his intention of leaving the army at present, until congress can pass a bill to retire himself and Gen Fitzhugh Lee, as brigaders in the regular army. It may be possible that it is also desired to close the vetran's mouth upon what he saw in the islands. It is believed that he would tell some things that are not for the credit of the administration at home or there, if he were turned loose at this time. Joseph is however; quite likely to have his way all the same before he gets done with it.

Norwood Times: Judging from the way St. Paul opens up the campaign there will be a hot time in this old commonwealth from now until the polls close in November. It is a fight between the gold and the silver democrats, just as we expected and predicted all the time, because these good fellows have been petted and fostered too much by the leaders of reform democracy on the grounds that they supported Lind in 1898 and will do so again this year. Now the Palmer-Buckner fellows under the assumed title of "better element" actually think we must submit to what they dictate in the way of candidates and platform for 1900. Of course the Globe and other anti-Bryan "better element" papers will say that the city affairs of St. Paul has nothing to do with national politics, but to us and to all of the Bryan forces, the treatment Judge Willis, who is the prince of reform, received at the hands of a so called democratic convention last Saturday is a gentle reminder of what may be expected in the campaign now on. We hope Willis will stay in the field and die game while Smith perishes like a dog, even though it cost democracy every office in the state. It is time for the Bryan forces to assert their rights and to say they again prefer defeat to victory with anti-Chicago platform men at the head of their tickets.

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

The "St. Paul Dispatch" Enterprise Gives It to Northwestern Readers.

If anything had been lacking to make a perfect metropolitan newspaper of the St. Paul Dispatch, the want was entirely filled when it completed arrangements for the special foreign cable service which is now brightening its colums. It is really astonished how the recent war with Spain has developed the American thirst for the news of the world. It placed America in a new position with regard to the rest of the earth and gave new importance to the events of the world at large. If the movements of foreign powers were once of interest they became doubly so when America rose into place as a world power. The St. Paul Dispatch recognized this when it secured this cable service, with its news from first hands. No longer is London the sole source of all European news, and no longer is the news of the world filtered through British channels and tinted with English ideas. It comes to the Dispatch straight from each European center and without bias or prejudice. This will be gratifying to all intelligent people of the Northwest, particulary so to that large foreign-born element which delights in information direct from the fatherland. The Dispatch has secured a resident correspondent in every large city on earth, who uses both cable and mail in sending in every news event of interest and all public gossip that is dear to the heart of the newspaper reader. In the past six years the Dispatch has made great strides to the front and is today recognized as the greatest evening newspaper of the Northwest.

The subscription price being so small it puts a daily paper in reach of everybody. Send 25 cents for one month's trial subscription to St. Paul Daily Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

MAPLE PLAIN.

While the nations in the Oriental Countries are seemingly preparing for war, we are preparing for spring. Or rather getting ready for spring's work. Somebody must stay by the stuff. If there is no seedtime nor harvest, we will soon be as they were in the land of Canian—without bread—and this seems to be the condition of India at the present time while we have enough and to spare, yet they must starve. This does not look right.

It looks now as if the Maple Sugar industry will not pan out much this spring—and we shall be compelled to call on Porto Rico for sugar and syrup But who will pay the freight? The consumer. He pays everything from a ten cent counter to a whole department store.

Patrick Henry said when contending so earnestly for the liberation of the colonies from under the British Yoke; "Give me liberty, or give me death." But the multi millionair says, "give me the earth and the fullness thereof that we may be as gods over the nations. "They drank wine, and praised the gods of gold."

We read and hear a good deal about the lumber industry. What a big cut they have made during the past winter and what good wages has been paid to the men who worked in the lumber woods. we are glad to know of the laborer getting good wages, but what was back of it all—a vast money power, to give stimulous to the poor fellow in dollars and cents, that he, next fall, may vote for the power that is oppressing him, and yet he is kept ignorant of his situation. They have kept pushing up the lumber a dollar at a time, until it is almost out of reach of the consumer; and when the crash comes, which it will the last state of things will fare worse than the first, (under democratic rule, we fellows who do not accept everything that comes along, swallow the single gold standard, the Philippine Islands, including monkeys, crocodiles and the army canteen, are called cranks, and chronic kickers.

In some of the old countries in ancient times they were more liberal to their criminals, when being executed, than we are today, they gave them the choice, by what means they should be executed. Some of our friends on the other side of the political fence are not that liberal with us, in politics, for in 1896, they called us fellows who believed in free silver, and the dollar of the constitution, traitors, anarchists and etc. But such talk ought to make them ashamed of themselves.

The Kentucky fight has been on for some time, with but little gain on either side. Some are digging up the Gobel law and pronounce it unorthodox in letter and in spirit, and unfit to rule the hip pocket cavelry of the mountaineers of the eastern Ky. This war in Ky. is not of Afro-American and Democratic origin, as has always been, heretofore alleged. But is of the high exechtive order.

Here are some of the chief provisions of the Gobel election law:

(1). That the general assembly shall elect three Commissioners, to be styled the State Board of Election Commissioners, who shall have charge of the conduct of elections, in the commonwealth.

(2). That the State Board of Election Commissioners shall annually appoint three Election Commissioners in each county, to have charge of the conduct of elections in the county.

(3). That each County Board shall annually appoint for each election precinct in the county two Judges, one Clerk, and one Sheriff; one judge a republican and the other a democrat. In addition, each of the two principle political parties is allowed an inspector, selected by the party authorities to witness the count.

(4). That when the election of a Governor, or Lieutentenant Governor is contested, the contest shall be considered by a board of three Senators and eight Representatives selected by lot and that the report of this board must be presented to the general assembly for final action.

(5). That the State Board of Elections sitting as a Board of Contest, shall finally determine all contests for state offices other than those of Governor. You who are opposed to the Gobel law look up the old law and see whether or not the Gobel law is more unjust than the old one,—we think not.

Will give more on the Gobel law next week. FARMER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 16, 1900.

The republican wobblers in the Senate have at last succeeded in patching up a Porto Rican bill that will receive enough republican votes to jam it through the Senate, and an agreement has been made to vote on the bill next Tuesday. The new bill retains the 15 per cent tariff, although changes have been made to catch the votes of four or five Senators, and the provision for a civil government. There is much speculation as to what the House will do with the bill. If the members could vote as they talk they strike out the tariff clause and insert one providing for free trade, but pressure is being brought to bear upon them to vote for the bill as the Senate passes it. Mr. McKinley has for the time ceased to wobble and is using his influence to push the bill through. Democrats hope the republicans will succeed in forcing the bill through as a party measure, as responsibility for making it a law will give the democrats the electoral votes of several States and at least twenty seats in the next House.

During one of the sittings of the House Military Committee, which is investigating the use of Federal troops in Idaho, Representative Lentz, of Ohio, was very near to coming to blows with Representative Hull, Chairman of the committee. The he was passed. Mr. Lentz accused the chairman and the republican members of the committee of unfairness in the conduct of the investigation.

What democrats think of the republican attempts to make it appear that Col. Bryan is not as strong a candidate as he was in 1896 may be judged from the opinions herewith given, which voiced the general democratic sentiment in Congress and in Washington. Senator Morgan—"Mr. Bryan will be nominated again because he is the strongest man in the party." Senator Money—"Mr. Bryan will be nominated and he will be elected. He is the strongest man in the democratic party." Senator Turley—"I do not know of any one in the democratic party who as a Presidential candidate, would receive the support which will be given Mr. Bryan. His chances of election are much better than in 1896." Senator Tillman—"There is no comparison, so far as the chances of Bryan's election this fall are concerned, with the situation that prevailed in 1896 His chances are very much greater". Senator Bate—"Bryan is today the strongest man, and he will pull a million more votes than any other man who could be named. I believe he will be elected." Senator Kenny—"Under all the circumstances, Bryan is the strongest man we could nominate. I don't think any democrat will contend otherwise. He is strong because he is near to the people, and he represents democratic principles better than any other man." Senator-elect Blackburn—"Our republican friends are all busily engaged in trying to convince us that our chances of winning are good with any body except Mr. Bryan. I think I know the motive that prompts this disinterested advice, and I am equally positive that Bryan at the head of our ticket will poll a million more votes than any other man unburied. His nomination is accepted by every one, and is as much of an accomplished fact now as it will be after the 4th of next July."

Senator Morgan trapped Senator Foraker very cleverly on the question of whether the Constitution extends to Porto Rico. It was during the discussion of the new Porto Rico bill which is the result of the last republican caucus. A little change in phraseology, but none in principle. Mr. Morgan remarked that he found no provision in the bill for the establishment of national banks on the island when Mr. Foraker interrupted to say that the bill extended all laws of the U. S. to Porto Rico which are not locally inapplicable. "Does the Senator think national banks may be established there?" asked Mr. Morgan. "Within the liminations named in the bill, I should say yes," replied Mr Foraker. "Then," triumphantly retorted Mr. Morgan, "Porto Rico is not a foreign country. There is no questionabout the logic of that proposition."

There is a screw loose in the machinery of the Civil Service when a man like Hon A. P. Greeley, who is the ablest and best equipped man that ever acted as Commissioner of Patents has to resign to enter the practice of patent law because of insufficient compensation. During his sixteen years connection with the U. S. Patent Office Mr. Greeley made an invincible record for himself, and by his unrelenting and successful war law upon swindling pattent attorneys, such as notorious John Wedderburn, did much to purify the practice before that office.

Senator Jones, of Ark., said of the issuing of licenses by Secretary Root, to individuals to dredge for gold in the sands of Cape Nome: "It is an undefensible outrage, It is simply a means adopted by the Secretary to drive honest miners out of their rights and to give exclusive privileges to a few men he may deem responsible. I think this was a deliberate scheme of a few persons to monopolize that rich Cape Nome sand."

The democrats of the House had a little fun with Representative Steele, of Ind., who had a letter from Porto Rico read saying that the people of the island did not want free trade, by bringing out the fact that the writer of the letter was a brother of Representative Landis, of Ind., and the holder of an official position in Porto Rico.

Who Changed?

Admiral Dewey once really hoped that Mr. McKinley would be our next president and said so in a loud and distinct tone of voice. Wise men, however, sometimes change their hopes.—Minneapolis Times.

Is it not a possibility that Admiral Dewey was led to change his opinion, and hopes for McKinley's elections by the vacillating actions of the President himself?

It may be Bryan and Towne, after all. These two men are well known, the country over, as ardent workers for reform. Their reputations are established. They speak for themselves. Nobody will have to be told where they stand. People want men of that kind. Everybody is tired of reading of the absurd and shifting plans for party, or individual or monopolistic benefits. What Americans want to day is a good, and honest old United States government. And they want known men who advocate and who have advocate that form of government; and in whom they have confidence that they will not vary with every shifting zephyr that happens along. Bryan and Towne, is all right.

Eagle In the Mirror.

The Eagle has succeeded in finding a foeman worthy of her talons. She and her editor are thusly reflected in the Prison Mirror, run by the convicts at Stillwater:

For a man who doesn't know anything about politics the editor of The Prison Mirror has a good deal to say about things political. Wonder if Rosing hasn't got something to do with it?—Delano Eagle.

For a poll-parrot editor who runs a 2 by 2 boiler-plate nothingness, who is notorious for his literary looting, but loud in his amens, the Eagle seems to be doing an unnecessary amount of screaching lately. As the above clipping was the only original editorial in the Eagle, undoubtedly its editor, on account of the laborious mental strain entailed in writing the above, is now in the hands of his family doctor preparatory to being sent to Rochester. As an admirer of the Eagle, we suggest that he change his name to the Delano Buzzard.—The Prison Mirror.

A Million Men.

Now it is said that the Philippine insurgents will try to hold out till after election in the hope that if Bryan is elected they will be granted their independence. They are banking on a slim chance, but it would be well for Uncle Sam to wind this thing up at an early date, if it takes a million men. The cost will be no greater.—Aitkin Age.

That's the way our g. o. p. folks talk. "If it takes a million men." Where are the men to come from. Didn't the administration have an army of volunteers for the Spainish war out there; and offer them $500, a-piece to stay six months to fight the Filipinos; and when they refused to accept the offer, kept them anyway, until they could get the regulars to take their place? If volunteers already there wouldn't be hired to stay who is green enough to believe a million men could be raised to go to the Philippines to exterminate a race of people who have shown themselves worthy of better usage by christian people? Why are the Philippines so necessary to the United States that anyone would think of giving a million men for them?

READERS of the Eagle note the correctness of our prediction when that bird so savygely attacked the the Congressmen who advocated tariff between the rest of the United States and Puerto Rico. The Eagle has lit squarely in the Page Morris bond wagon. Why this wondeful flipflop in so short a time. The Old Bird will douptless get her bearings next time before she starts out on a flight, of any kind.

WANT things be lively though when Page Morris gets out electioneering for a third term and happens to brush up against Senator Knute Nelson or some of his admirers? Perhaps a joint discussion could be arranged for, so that the people might know whether Page Morris, or Knute Nelson and themselves, know the most. Page being all right with the Hanna machine can't well be dropped; so Mr. Nelson will have to touch lightly on the Porto Rico tariff question when he gets out among the people in the Sixth district.

CONGRESSMAN MORRIS is meeting with overwhelming opposition in his candidancy for renomination. He came home and explained to the people how little they know about tariff between Porto Rico and the balance of the United State. But the constituency has been paying the Page Morris lumber tariff long enough to think that they know a little bit about such things. And then there are Senators Davis and Nelson who have helped make laws, and been good republicans longer than Mr. Morris, claiming that the Poro Rico tariff is a great wrong. They have some friends yet, who think that they are as wise as the Congressman from the Sixth District; or if they are not they ough to be. It looks as if Page had split off from the party. But the present incumbent has the appointees to office at his command and stands an ordinary show of getting the nomination, when, of course the g. o. p. will howl for him, and keep still about the tariff, talking principally against free silver, and abusing democrats, populists and others.

How They See It.

With such a demand for mules, it will go hard with any candidate for office from Missiouri who advocates putting an end to the Boer war. Webster Davis better not run for anything this year.—Duluth News Tribune.

The above is a fair sample of the g. o. p. argument that we have prosperity. They care not how many poor innocent people are driven from their homes, and shot down, or hung without trial; or how many American young men are shot, or go insane, or die doing it; so long as they can point to arise in the price of mules and other commodities to carry on "war".

Oregon Agriculturist: Wool Markets and Sheep does not take a very hopeful view of the wool situation. It believes that prices a few months ago were higher than existing conditions justify and that there is more likehood of further decline in price than of a recovery.

Broad Axe: The Idaho bull-pen horror rivals the most brutal outrages ever committed by the Czar of Russia. That such a thing could occur in free America is a warning to all laboring-men and should cause them to shake off their lethargy. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

Grosvenor's Tariff Speech.

Hon. Charles H, Grosvenor, of Ohio, made a speech in Congress on the Puerto Rician tariff bill, Feb, 28, 1900. The American Economist publishes it.

Mr. Grosvenor, starts out in a very poor way it seems to us, to make votes among his fellow Congressman, or their friends. After alluding to the democratic position on the subject, he says:

"I am not unaware that there is a strong sentiment in the certain localities among hitherto Republicans who favor the democratic position, and I could I think, if personal ties were not odious in connection with a matter of national politics, point out some curious incidents explaining the attitude of certain gentlemen upon this question, but everything of that character shall be avoided".

If Mr. Grosvenor thinks he could explain the votes of several of our representatives, and of our Senators Davis and Nelson, against his views of free trade with all United States territory, why don't he do so like a man? Why cast slurs and intimate they voted for "selfish interests".

Mr. Grosvernor says:

"The question, and the sole question here involved is the question of the right and power of Congress to legislate in reference to the internal affairs the question of taxation by imports and otherwise upon the territories lately acquired from Spain. To put it sharply, it is this: Is Congress bound by the limitations of the Constitution in the matter of levying taxes upon importations into or out from these newly acquired possessions? The position that we have planted ourselves upon is a very simple one. We say Congress may legislate in relation to these territories without any reference to the provisions of the Constitution, excepting that Congress cannot do a thing forbidden by the Constitution."

The speaker then illustrates by citing that the constitution would not let Congress legislate respecting establishment of religion, abridging freedom of speech and press, etc., found in the amendments to the constitution; but he failed to quote from the original document "but all duties, imposts and excises, shall be uniform throughout the United States".

It seems to us a strange thing that a man who boasts that he represents a district "in which there are 9,000 coal miners now employed at splendid prices for their labor" and whose prosperity is due McKinley pratection should feel himself less influenced by selfish interests than are the representatives and Senators from Minnesota. When Mr. Grosvenor was sworn into office it was to the best of his ability to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States". When he so insiduously assails the characters of his fellow law makers, and insults the people of a state like Minnesota; and, in order to "preserve" the wages of the coal miner constituents, "protect" the trusts in their sugar and tobacco traffic, and "defend" the g. o. p., right or wrong, it seems to us the best thing to do with him would be to exchange him as quickly as possible for the representative of the people; one who would believe in keeping inviolable his oath of office.

The balance of his lengthy speech falls like chaff about his ears when the premises, which are wrong, are removed from the structure,

The idea of a Congressman getting up to advocate such doctrine as he did, with the never mind the Constitution air, is simply disgusting to the average American citizen. But some of the present Congress have for some reason or another assumed to know a great deal more than their constituents or the Constitution, about a tariff on Porto Rico's products. Their constituents will, in November, know enough to relegate some of them to their respective homes.
